And all this time we were having proofs brought to us of the infamous atrocities that were taking place in the small towns and villages all over the south of Belgium, incidents that have no place in this short letter, being too horrible, and far better forgotten for the time being, except by those whose mission it is to exact a terrible vengeance. It will suffice to say that if only half of that which is true were to be related, the stories would not be believed by people not in touch with the facts.

It may be said that Brussels was fortunate in this respect, in her immunity, as up to my leaving on October and comparative calm prevailed.

But there is only one Max, the Burgomaster who will be known in the future as the man who saved Brussels, in spite of all kinds of provocative measures by the German Governor. Perhaps he owes his present imprisonment to his firm stand. He wouldn't have the people starved, he wouldn't have the national banner banished from the windows and balconies. His counsels of calm and patience were listened to. And again, the American minister continued in residence.

From day to day the only official news we had was obtained from the German Governor's telegrams from Berlin, posted on every street corner, nothing but victories, of course, and thousands of allied prisoners. We were given a special dose, when the Audacity and the Hawke officers were sunk. One sample will indicate the mentality of their reports:—"A German Taube passed over Paris yesterday but inflicted no damage. One bomb killed a vigilant (old man) and wounded a petite fille (little girl) &c., &c.

For outside news we depended on "runners" between Ghent, Ostend, Quevy, and Holland, occasional smuggled newspaper, two or three days late, but it is wonderful how, without telegraph, telephone, or postal service, news filtered through. I think, though, the lack of really authentic news as to how the war was going on, and from relations and friends, was one of our greatest privations.

What we were most certainly aware of was the continual roar of cannon firing away at a distance of eight, ten, and twelve miles away, in the attack upon the first line of the Antwerp forts.

As for the German soldiers, with whom we now and again got into conversation, the officers are generally over-bearing dare-devil braggarts, who are sure that France is shortly for the Kaiser. The Marinos, who were at one time 15,000 strong in Brussels, seem to be pretty well educated, some of them speaking French. One of the latter said they had been to Paris (one of their officers had told him so), was going to Antwerp, and from there to London. The ordinary rank and file live in mortal fear of their officers, but still believe, in a sort of way with them, must be humiliated and crushed, and full toll taken for the heavies inflicted on Belgians, not from one or other "Deutschlander," but all and every one, be they Bavarians, Saxons, Westphalians, or Prussians. He contends that the people are not what the Government has made them, and the Government is not the people have made it and are responsible for.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire this week the bill is headed by a sketch, "Pinkie," presented by Mr Fred Kitchen and his company. As usual, the burden of the piece is borne by the creator of "Potts," and it is a tribute to the genius of the comedian that he is able to raise so many laughs out of such poor material. In parts his burlesque of a detective is extraordinarily funny. Jack Lane, a Yorkshire comedian, has some very amusing business. Miss Daisy Dormer is a great favourite in Leeds, and her song, "Kiss me good-bye, my little soldier boy," was received enthusiastically on Monday night. She has another catchy number in "You're here and I'm here." Other artistes appearing include Fennel and Tyson, an American comedy duo; Carter Livsey and Lillian Rossbery in a sketch, 'Some Rehearsal"; and Lilli Lassah.

Next week at the Empire the artistes will include George Robey, the prime minister of mirths; the Harlequinaders, in a sparkling melange of bright and musical numbers; Woody Wood, and W.H. in the farcical sketch "The Perch Club"; Dora Lyric, the popular chorus comedienne; Bess Egbert, the retired dustman; La Belle Aimie, a dainty dancer; Shirley and Ransome, depicting the comedy and pathos of cockney life in "The separation order"; and Mickey Nolan, comedienne.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week the principal attraction is "A Year in an Hour"—a sparkling revue by Julian Wylie and Jimmy Tate. There are five scenes, each of them good, and the business has been brought up-to-date. A good deal of laughter is caused in the schoolroom scene, where "Kaiser Bill," as the dunce of Europe, "catches it hot" from the athletic arms of the mistress. Amongst the principals, Dorni Treburo is the leading light. Miss Dalton, Frank Benson, Mollie Drew, Gerald Osborne, Herbert Franklin, and Mdlle. Correre are some artistes outstanding. The chorus is a strong one, and contains more than one good vocalist. Miss Grey has two songs, a policeman's, ditty and one about the excitements of a shoe-black's life. This is quite as good as the "Zig-zag Path" success of Arthur Roye, the light comedian, revived with tremendous success his great patriotic song, "Sons of the Sea," and Vine and Brewer appear in a good musical speciality act.

Next week at the Hippodrome Miss Marie Blanche will appear in a new sketch, "The Chorus Girl," and she will be supported by Messrs Stanley Turnbull, Ken Worth, and W. T. Ford. Others in the bill are Bertram Banks, child mimic; Edna Lestome, vocal male impersonator; Dainty James, popular comedienne; Herbert La Martine, introducing his novel staircase dance; T. B. Barr, comedian; and Tatton Hall and Co., will present their latest comedy creation.

INCREASED YIELD OF WHEAT.

The Board of Agriculture in a preliminary statement showing the estimated total product of corn and hay crops in England and Wales this year, says the total production of wheat in England and Wales was 7,218,683 quarters, 2,000,000 quarters more than last year. The yield per acre is practically one bushel above the average of the last ten years.

Barley is fractionally below the average per acre, and the production amounts to 148,500 quarters less than last year.

Oats are slightly more in production, but below the average per acre.

Beans were better, but peas were the lowest on record.

The total production of hay was 7,200,000 compared with 9,000,000 tons last year, a very abundant year.

Members of Leeds Golf Club have given £47 (the second instalment) to Leeds National Relief Fund.

EXPRESS DELAYED.—Shortly after 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning the East Coast Express from King's Cross to Edinburgh was delayed by half-an-hour near Selby station, through the breaking of a spring of the engine. The train had to be taken forward by a North-Eastern engine.

LUNCH.—Messrs Cochrane and Sons Ltd., Selby, on Wednesday launched a steel screw steamer, 1141 ft. by 161 ft. 6in. 11ft. 2in. moulded, built to the order of the Hull Steam Fishing and Ice Co., Ltd. As the vessel left the ways she was christened Lynx, by Mrs Tweedy, wife of Hull. The visitors rendered the luncheon offices, where the usual toasts were given.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.—The Selby Scientific Society commenced the winter session with a social gathering at the Museum on Wednesday night. There was an interesting exhibition of prints and lantern slides by the members. The Rev. Dr. Solloway explained a number of lantern slides of Selby, including St. Mary's Abbey and the city walls, and also views at Whitby and elsewhere on the North-East Coast.

CONCERT AT SELBY.—In aid of the Belgian Refugees a concert was given on Tuesday night at the Selby Public Baths. The Rev. R. J. Dunford presided over an attendance which filled the building. Contributions to the programme were made by Mr and Mrs G. Farley, Mr and Mrs Waddington, Miss Townend, Miss A. Smith, Father Byrne (Sheffield), Miss Beabbs, Miss Barker, Messrs C. Maw, A. Nettleton, B. Farley, E. Mullen, F. Cryer, F. Farley, Geo. Ross, and the Abbey Bell Ringers. The accompanists were Miss May Farley and Mr Herbert Berry.

HARRY HAYLEY,

Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,

12, King Edward St., LEEDS

Telephone 56,

WE HAS NOW IN STOCK A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,

ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.

HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.

A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.

Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.

FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.

STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.

BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,

DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.

THE GREAT CURE FOR

COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.

Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.

TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.

OR THE MAKERS,

J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR

BROWNHILLS'

MINCEMEAT

NEW SEASON'S NOW READY.

A HAREHILLS MAN IN THE FIGHTING LINE.

Staff Sergeant-Major J. A. Dockray, of the Mechanical Transport section of the Army Service Corps, has just been invalided home. He has lived for some time in Hebden Avenue, Leeds, and he is a well-known figure in the Harehills district, while his reputation as a breeder of bloodhounds has spread far beyond the city. One of his dogs, it may be recalled, was used in the Rotherham murder case.

Up to now, he says, both the British and the French have lost heavily; but the Germans had fared considerably worse. The German shells had done a great deal of damage, and their guns thundered day and night.

"When you get within twenty miles or so of the firing line," he continued, "you hear the roll of the cannon like distant thunder. It seems clearer as you approach; then you see the trenches, and then you get to the guns. Then it's simply terrible; it's hellish. All thoughts of home vanish, and you just think of what is in front of you. Those tales of men thinking of home on the battlefield are not a bit true. Such thoughts never enter your head; you've something else to view."

The correspondents under which he received his wounds were related with some modesty and great brevity. It was during the fighting at Soissons. "The man who had been on this particular job—despatch-riding on motor-cycle—had never turned up, so I took on the job myself. Shells were flying all over the place, but I thought I had got into safety, when suddenly I saw a flash, and I got hit on the head and fell off the cycle, which was travelling about 35 miles an hour. I know nothing more until I regained consciousness in the field hospital about eight hours later. Then I found that I had injured my left hand in falling and that I had been hit with shrapnel on my forehead, right eye, chin, and right arm. My mouth must have been open at the time, for my tongue was also hit."

The British went on the Sergeant-Major, were not advancing very fast, but their advance was slow and sure. "All the British Tommy has done so far," he added, "has been accomplished by honest fighting, not by stooping to such dirty tricks as the Germans have practised. And it hurts them to think that he is fighting so clean."

Mr Dockray, however, was anxious to be quite fair to the Germans. Although, he said, the enemy might at times have driven women and children before them to screen their advance, on one occasion, during the fighting at Mons, the casualties among the villagers were caused by their own people. When the Germans entered the village the women and children seemed to lose their heads, and ran about the streets screaming and seeking to get into the British lines. They were caught between the two fires, and many were killed. At on point the British lowered a barricade to let the women through.

There are, of course, humorous aspects of the struggle. One night the men in the advanced British trenches had been singing lustily. "I'm off to Philadelphia in the morning." The Germans, whose trenches were only a short distance away, had evidently been listening intently, for as soon as our men stopped singing they took up the refrain, and rendered it as heartily as the British soldiers had done.

The Germans are not always so happy. According to Sergeant-Major Dockray they have very little to eat, and the first thing they ask for when they are captured is something to eat. They have even been reduced to eating their dead horses. Along many of the roads horses have been found with the loins cut away.

The Sergt.-Major has no doubt as to which side will win, but, he admits, "It's going to be a long job."

"I'm surprised," he added, "that a lot more recruits don't come forward. A soldier's life is a glorious life. He's well fed and decently clothed, and he sees the world. I know when my time comes to go back to the fighting I shall smile."

Roundhay National School has contributed £5 to the Leeds National Relief Fund.

We STUDY Our Customers' Tastes and Stock what THEY Require.

THAT is the secret of our business Success and the reason housewives everywhere make it a habit of visiting Doyle's FIRST whenever they require China or Glassware of any kind. It saves them time and often times them money, because they know that Doyle's will have in stock WHAT they want.

Purchase only BRITISH China and Glassware.

59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings

Large Assortment always in Stock at

J. WINTERHALDER'S,

Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,

13, New York Street, LEEDS

(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).

Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

YOUR WEDDING

Should BE NICE whether it is MOTORS or CANARIES. We are the most talked of and the most thought of in the city. Ask about us; get our charges. BUCKTON, Clapgat Lane (late of Cambridge Street). Tele. 1077 Central.

"WE NEVER SLEEP."

BEST & BOOTH

Tailors & Costumiers,

119, KIRKGATE,

— AND —

143, BRIGGATE

(Corner of Market Street). LEEDS.

Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.

Look Out for B. & B.

THE CHALLENGE!

Never Beaten.

BRAITHWAITE'S

"The Firm with a Reputation."

ARE NOW OFFERING

THE BEST VALUE IN YORKSHIRE

— IN —

BOOTS & SHOES for Present Wear.

We are SPECIALISTS IN "FOOTWEAR for the COUNTRY."

Large Variety of Leggings, Gaiters, Slippers, & Dress Shoes.

FARMERS' BOOTS. NAVVIES' BOOTS. PIT BOOTS.

BOOTS THAT WILL TURN THE WET

SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared.

BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Stores,

58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.

Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

Teasdale's | All Men Joining the Army SHOULD HAVE WITH THEM Teasdale's Chlorodyne A Safe Protector from common hazardous ailments—Cholaeric Diarrhœa, Dysentery, etc. GIVES INSTANT RELIEF; EASES PAIN. BLESSING TO HAVE SUCH A GRAND MEDICINE. Brigadier Fortune, Royal Horse Artillery: "I thank you for the great benefit that Teasdale's Chlorodyne has not only done for myself, but also for many of my comrades to whom I have given it. It has indeed been a blessing to have such a grand medicine in my possession. I have used it in numerous cases of Dysentery, Rhumatism, Pains in the Back, Coughs, and Colds. It acted like a charm in every case." Teasdale's Chlorodyne THE MOST VALUABLE PRESENT YOU CAN GIVE TO A FRIEND GOING TO THE FRONT. 7½d., 1s¼d., and Large Bottles, 2/6. Can be had of PURDY, Crossgates; RENNARD, Halton, and other Chemists; GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & Co., and TAYLOR'S DRUG STORES. ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE. | Chlorodyne

Money Saving is Money Making

Special Show in the Latest Styles and Shades of Ladies' & Children's Winter Coats, Costumes, and Skirts, at Most Reasonable Prices

Winter Coats from 8s. 11d. Raincoats from 6s

SMITH & PETTY,

44, Lowerhead Row, LEEDS

Three Doors from Briggate.

MOURNING ORDERS EXECUTED IN 12 HOURS.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY

96, ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street), Leeds.

DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1. Saturday Evenings, 6.30 to 8.

3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.

3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.

Prospectus on Application. JNO. EXLEY, President.

Tel. No. 453. WM. MAUDS, Manager & Secretary.

CLERGYMAN AND GIVING.

—The annual sack of work of the Leeds branch of the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society was held on Tuesday in the Church Institute, and a short address was given by Miss Hewlett, missionary at Delhi. The Rev. T. L. Palmer, vicar of Roundhay, who presided at the opening, observed that many people were subscribing to various parochial objects more freely than before, and it appeared that the appeals through so many channels opened up by the war had taught the lesson of giving in other directions.

Half-a-guinea has been sent to the Belgian Relief Fund by Mrs. C. Thompson, Roundhay.

A sum of 10s. has been sent by J. and J. Lovitt, of Monk Fryston, to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Aberford footballers visited Barwick on Saturday, and defeated the homesters by 5 goals to 3.

At a meeting of the Aberford Cricket Club on Monday it was decided not to join the Barkston Ash League for next season.

Miss Cope, of Roundhay, has given £2 to the Belgian Relief Fund, and Mr and Mrs Pearson, of Roundhay, have contributed £1.

On Sunday there was a good gathering of men at the Methodist Church at Aberford to hear an excellent address by the Rev. Butty, secretary to the S.P.G. in the diocese of York.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal

— BY —

ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

November usually brings frost and occasional fogs, and outdoor flowering plants, if not actually cut down, soon lose their attractiveness. In the case of varieties that have to be planted annually, they may now be lifted and treated according to their requirements. Tuberous begonias must be housed before frost can touch them. They may be stored in shallow boxes with a little sand or fine soil packed all around. Lobelia fulgens or cardinalis should be cut down, lifted, and have a quantity of the soil shaken from the roots. It will be unlikely that a number of young shoots are appearing around the base of the old flower stems. These are the growths that will be used for propagating purposes in the spring. Cut the roots fairly close together in shallow boxes, and place sand between them. This variety of lobelia is fairly hardy, but must be stored where it will be protected from severe frost and damp. A shelf in a fruit house, or even a light outhouse will suit it well. Early in the new year the roots may be divided into single crowns, which should be dibbled into boxes of light, sandy soil. When nicely rooted they may be either potted into 4-inch pots, or re-boxed into a richer compost, allowing more plant about four inches of space.

All necessary planting should be proceeded with without delay. The soil is still comparatively warm, and plants that are put in now will soon become established, and make a quantity of new root before the severe weather sets in. All kinds of autumn bedding plants may be got in, as well as hardy trees and shrubs. Alpines, and herbaceous perennials.

Where wallflowers are used in large beds, it is an advantage to add a few young specimen evergreens such as variegated holly, aucuba, euonymus, and rhododendrons. They break up the surface and remove the formal appearance, so noticeable where wallflowers are used alone in quantity. Very often one shrub in the middle of the bed will give the desired effect, but in very large beds it may be necessary to use half a dozen.

THE HERBACEOUS BORDER.

In the herbaceous border all necessary replanting should be proceeded with. We have previously referred to the haphazard manner these plants are dealt with in many gardens. Such careless treatment many varieties will thrive for years, but in a case of time they will commence to dwindle and die. To get the best results replanting should be carried out once in three years. Where large quantities are grown it is a good plan to replant a third of the plants each year. Any that are to be replanted should be lifted before being cut down. It would be quite an expert to name many of the varieties after they are cut down and shaken. A portion of the border should be cleared of plants and should then be trench d two spades deep and receive a liberal dressing of manure. It is a mistake to have the plants lying about unprotected for any length of time, as severe winds or a sharp frost would have a damaging effect upon them. Strong-growing varieties such as rudbeckias, Michaelmas daisies, iris, bellanthus, and some snapdragons require dividing each time they are lifted or they get too large to handle. It will be noticed that the outside of the clumps are the strongest, in fact, the inside are frequently so badly matted as to be worthless. The replanting should be performed carefully. It is a mistake to plant much deeper than they were before being lifted, and to allow the crown to protrude rather out of the ground than they were previously would bring certain failure. The soil should be trodden firmly around the roots, and the surface should be left in a rough state with a mulching of rotten manure if the soil is light, but on heavy soils leaf mould may be substituted for the manure.

A ROCKERY.

In many gardens there are shaded corners that are looked upon as a nuisance "because nothing will grow there." Such a position, if handled intelligently, may be converted into one of the prettiest parts of the garden, especially if a few large rockery stones are available. The making of a rockery is a work of art, and is but indifferently understood by the majority of gardeners. The old system of planting the stones in such a manner as to suggest that they were intended to represent a miniature graveyard is altogether wrong. They should be placed in such a position as to form pockets, to be filled with soil for the reception of the plants. The stones should be fixed horizontally, and should fall from the front to the back. At each end a smaller stone may be fixed, and thus a basin or pocket is formed. The larger stone being higher at the front than it is at the back will act as a conductor to the rain, which instead of being drifted off the bank will be drained into it, and will remain available to the plants for a considerable time. A few plants suitable for a shady rockery are periwinkle, London pride, Arabis in variety, British ferns, primroses, pyrenees, doronicums, Christmas roses (hellebore), Iceland poppies, and also all kinds of Dutch bulbs.

The Plants and Land.—Only stocky, hardy plants can be expected to move well. Thin, drawn-up ones necessarily suffer, some even dying. The land in which they are to be planted should be deeply worked into a fine tilth, and the plants will be found to make a better start if the soil has been recently turned, as it is then likely to be moister. While they are out of the ground, the plants must be kept wet all over and away from the rays of the sun. It is not enough to keep only the roots wet, as the leaves continue to transpire moisture under such conditions, with the result that the plants wilt. Puddling, that is the dipping of each root into a puddle composed of soil, lime, and clay, is often desirable, though it tends to mat the fine rootlets.

KITCHEN GARDEN.

No time should be lost in getting leeks, carrots, turnips, potatoes, onions, and radishes into store. Parsnips may be left in the ground until required for use. Remove all yellow and decaying leaves from Brussels sprouts, savoys, etc., and continue to hoe up the surface soil between the rows with the hoe.

Celery that has not received the final earthing should be attended to at once, and the soil should be rounded off in such a way as to conduct heavy rains away from the hearts of the plants.

Strawberry beds may be finally cleaned, and a mulching of rotten manure and old potting soil will help to build up the crowns. In placing the mulch about the plants care should be taken to avoid covering the crowns.

Strawberries in pots intended for forcing should now be removed to a shallow cold frame, and should be stood on boards. It is important that they should receive free ventilation, and on bright days the lights sh uld be entirely removed. It is too early to remove any to the forcing house at present.

Pansies may still be lifted and planted in a cold frame for winter use, and a few roots of mint placed in a box of soil and stood in the greenhouse will give many pickings during the winter months.

HOUSE PLANTS.

GENERAL REMINDERS.

Nephrolepis ferns are splendid house plants and although not requiring as much water as they did during summer they must not be allowed to get dry or the fronds will lose their fresh green appearance. Other house plants such as aspidistras, palms, and aralias will require less water at the roots, but the leaves should be sponged with warm soapy water about once a month.

Bulbs which were planted in bowls some time ago may now be growing freely. Any that are required for early flowering must be placed in a light position when about an inch or top growth has been made. There is still plenty of time to plant bulbs in vases, bowls, or pots, which should be placed in darkness until growth commences.

UNDER GLASS.

Celosia plants that are getting shabby may be discarded if a few sturdy shoots are placed in sandy soil in a warm greenhouse. They root quickly this month.

Discontinue syringing Gloire de Lorraine begonias, and allow them to commence flowering. They require a warm, light position, and should be staked out to allow light and air to reach the hearts of the plants.

Ripen seedling schizanthus as soon as the roots reach the pots. No repotting must be done during December and January. Give them a cool, light position, and stand the pots on slates.

Keep Burmese chrysanthemums under observation, and give a good watering if the pseudo-buds show signs of shrivelling.

Tie out Japanese anemones as useful orchid. It is now developing flower spikes, and an occasional dose of liquid manure may be given.

WAR AND ITS EFFECT ON TRADE.

It is evident from the statistics of the Local Government Board with regard to pauperism that the war has not yet caused any abnormal distress and that the working-classes are probably suffering less of late than any economic consequences from it. The punctual payment of rent is a sure test of prosperity. In this connection what Mr John Tryon, the Chairman of the Metropolitan Industrial Dwellings Company, said on Tuesday at the annual meeting of shareholders is not without interest. He said that, notwithstanding the anxious events of the past three months the collection of rents from tenants had during the year amounted to £38,000 or so, which was a larger sum than had been collected in any previous year. He was glad also to tell the shareholders that during the months of August and September following the declaration of war the tenants of the company had fully maintained their reputation of being good tenants, willing and anxious to pay their rents. Even since the end of September the receipts had come in most satisfactorily. There was no cause for apprehension whatever with regard to the ensuing year.

HISTORIC CALAIS

Calais, the base of attack upon England which the Kaiser hopes to make, is known to nearly every traveller to the Continent. It has 60,000 inhabitants, is a first-class fortress, and is—chiefly upon its passenger trade with this country—seen by countless travellers passing through the town every year. It has played a very important part in Anglo-French history, and was for many years in our hands. A century ago it had intimate trade associations with Calais, and a York merchant was Mayor of the Staple of Calais. It was there that there assembled the flower of the Dauphin Lorris, who had been invited by the discontented English barons against King John. In 1346-47, Edward III., after the battle of Crecy, starved it into surrender after a desperate resistance of eleven months. He consented to spare the town on condition that six noble citizens should place themselves, clad in their shirts and with halters round their necks, at his absolute disposal—which shows that the fourteenth century Edward III. of England was not much more civilised than the twentieth century rulers of Germany. The amiable monarch ultimately relented on the passionate pleading of his queen, Philippe of Hainault. Calais remained English until 1558, when the Duke of Guise, with 30,000 men, succeeded in expelling the small English garrison of 500 men after a siege of seven days. The Spaniards captured Calais in 1596, but it was restored to the French two years later by the Treaty of Vervins. It was from Calais that Mary Stuart set sail in 1560 to assume the crown of Scotland, and it was there that Louis XVIII. landed at the restoration of the French monarchy in 1814. The future history of Calais will probably have to be content with the distant sound of German guns.

MRS FIELDEN, OF GRIMSTON PARK, OPENS A SALE OF WORK.

DEAN OF YORK AND THE WAR.

The annual sale of soldiers' comforts, clothing for the poor, and needlework, and other articles, in aid of the funds of St. Stephen's Orphanage, York, was held in the Orphanage schoolroom on Tuesday afternoon. There was a large and influential gathering of the opening ceremony, at which the Dean of York (the Very Rev. J. Fort Purey-Cust, D.D.), presided. Among those supporting him were Mrs. Fielden (Grimston Park), Captain and Mrs. Greenwood, Hall (Greenwood (Grimston), Mrs. Guy Fairfax (Hillbrough), Miss Fielden, etc.

The Dean said that a little time ago one looked rather with feelings of misgivings as to what would be the condition of many of the churches in the country when the expenses of this terrible war were pressing very hard upon all classes and all ranks of society. But he was glad to say that, without any doubt, the funds of the societies, but also as showing the true character of the British nation—that they had suffered very little in many respects, and had not suffered at all in other respects in that they had received larger contributions this year than in former years. A little while ago the annual meeting of the Nurse's Home was held, and the results had been better than last year. Last Sunday in the Hospital Sunday, and while at York Minster a year ago the offertory was £12, on this occasion the amount was £47. (Applause). One felt a great thankfulness that it should be so, for one could not help seeing that in the midst of so much trouble, sorrow, and anxiety as at the present moment what an invaluable blessing to the British nation in this war the war had been. Twelve months ago the population of Great Britain generally went thinking of how they could enjoy themselves, for of what they could get for their own good. But now it was just the other way. There seemed to be one unselfish, earnest desire to know what they could do to help others. (Applause). In conclusion, the Dean called upon Mrs. Fielden to declare the sale open.

Mrs. Fielden said: "I have the greatest pleasure in coming here to-day, and I hope the sale will be a great success because it is in a good cause. I declare the sale open." (Applause).

A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Fielden, on the motion of Canon Greenwood (Grimston), seconded by Dr. Evelyn, carried the proceedings forthwith, on Wednesday evening—Mr J. W. Dobson (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs R. Routledge, jun., vice-chairman, E. R. Lupton, W. W. Hartley, W. Goodall, H. Cummings, and H. Chappel, with the Clerk (Mr A. E. Carr), the sanitary inspector (Mr T. Abbott), and the water inspector (Mr. Marshall).

It was reported that during the month there had been nine births in males and 1 female), and there had been four deaths. One was registered for each district. Ages were aged 82 and 75, while the fourth death was that of a girl belonging to Allerton Bywater.

SANITARY AND BUILDING.

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee an account for £80 8s., being the charge for maintenance of patients at the isolation hospital during the hilliest ended September 30th, was passed. The plan of a compression house proposed to be erected by Garforth Gas Co. was approved. The tender of Messrs G. H. Marshall and Son, to do alterations to the mill buildings for £160 4s. was accepted.

The minutes were passed.

At a meeting of the Highways Committee the tender of Mr J. H. Bewsons for repairing fences and railings in Wakefield Road and Selby Road for £11 was accepted.

WATER COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Water Committee Mr Noyke reported that for the month ending 29th September the consumption of water was 1,301,000 gallons—an average of 46,404 gallons per day. An account sent by Leeds City Council for water for the quarter ended 30th September, amounting to £151 14s. 8d., was recommended for payment.

The minutes were passed.

After the reading of the minutes Mr Slater asked when the new urinal-closet house at the gas works had not been submitted after the building had been begun.

Mr Goodall said that was so, but the building involved no questions of sanitation or ventilation.

A FOOTPATH AT EAST GARFORTH.

Mr Gascoigne directed attention to the unsatisfactory state of the footpath leading from the level crossing on the Aberford Road. He thought something should be done, a good job should be made of it.

Mr Abbott said that the footpath should be asphalted as far as Paradise.

Mr Marshall said it was a main road, and if he could get the work done he would do so, but the County Council were chary of sanctioning expenditure.

Mr Hartley said there would be over 100 houses on that side.

The Chairman said there were about 140.

Mr Hartley said that they were a bit neglected on that side.

Mr Goodall asked why they could not ask the County Council to sanction the expenditure on a footpath.

It was pointed out that the estimates had already been sent in, and the Chairman asked Mr Archer to bear this work in mind next time.

Mr Archer said he would do so.

Mr Chappel raised the question of the Barley Hill Road footpath again, but nothing was done in the matter.

A BOY LEADS A BRITISH REGIMENT.

A story of a lad leading a bayonet charge is told by Corp. Ibbetson, D.C.M., and Manchesters, one of the hundred and fifty wounded who arrived at Cardiff early on Tuesday morning.

He said: "On October 29th, the Germans were all around us, and their fire enfiladed our trenches.

"First our lieutenant was wounded, then our sergeant, and we were left without a single officer to command the platoon.

"We were wondering what to do, when a private, a boy of eighteen, the baby of the company, threw up his cap, and, with a ringing cheer, yelled, 'Fix bayonets, lads!' We did, and charged the advancing Germans.

"The boy was in the act of bayoneting a German when the latter shouted, 'Ere God's sake, don't stick me!' 'It is too late,' returned the youngster; 'it is though you!'"

BARKSTON ASH MEN WITH THE COLOURS.

Lance-Corporal R. Dawson, of the West Yorkshire Regiment, of Selby, was buried and injured under some 3 tons of debris, along with his officer, on Sunday, October 25th. One was killed and brought into the trench, through a German shell dropping alongside the trench where they were lying. He was buried for 36 hours. Both the officer and himself were got out alive, but the German was dead. Corporal Dawson is now in hospital.

Private Richardson, Princess Pat's Canadian Light Infantry, of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, is now in Shaftesbury Plain is paying a flying visit to his parents in Selby. He has been several years in Canada with his brother, and was a draughtsman at the Westinghouse Co. works, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. At the outbreak of the war, along with his brother, he was the first in Canada to volunteer in Hamilton (Guelf's) Battalion. Guelf is the Canadian name for Hamilton who has raised the battalion. Richardson was sergeant-major in the Canadian Dragoons.

MARSTON

A sum of £8 3s. was collected at Long Marston Church for the Belgian Relief Fund.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 12.

November is truly an unpleasant month, and one during which the poultry keeper must be constantly on duty if he would see the highest kind and soundness kept at bay. When to this is added the inconvenience of limited hours of daylight, none but the would succeed must need extend the meaning of hustle.

Large have been rewards their maximum price, and will remain at that figure practically until Christmas, so that the poultry keeper is entitled to indulge the hope that he will be repaid for his labours. The lesson must will prepare his morning mash over night; the value of the food is enhanced by cooking, and it that is given warm, the appetite is keen, and it is right if sufficiently warm till morning. What a difference, then, an appetising meal which will warm and comfort the fowls on the cold morning should be ready for distribution immediately you rise, and the discomfort of preparing, mixing, and boiling up, which none could honestly describe as a pleasure, is avoided.

Whatever you prepare over night or in the morning, don't forget the addition of Colman's Poultry Mustard; as eggs become scarcer its use is more warranted.

Green food was recently mentioned. Scalded clover meal was overlooked. Experience has shown that there is no better substitute, and is easily procurable. Many will have cabbage and other green stuff to spare, whilst mangold, swede, and turnip, cut in half, will be eagerly eaten by the birds. Remember, the meal must not be given when frozen, otherwise it would derange the birds, and an excess of turnip must not be fed or the eggs will be distinctly flavoured.

Let the last meal be given at least an hour before darkness sets in. Let them work for it, but let it be a joyful feed, quite sixteen hours will elapse before the next meal, and you want them to lay don't you?

The hens are keeping union hours now. The way to a man's heart is through his stomach. You must job the hen the same way.

(Any enquiries concerning poultry keeping addressed to our expert, Captain Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post mortem examination, must enclose a 1d. penny postal order. The name of the writer must in all cases be given).

YORKSHIRE OFFICER SAYS 'WAR IS A WICKED THING.'

A relative has received from an officer in the West Yorkshire Regiment a letter in which he describes the wholesale looting by Germans. He writes:—

"The Germans have looted every village and town—looting with a system. They get a billet out, everything worth taking gone, and the wine all drunk; churches and farms ablaze, and peasants often grateful for a cruse of bread. They are a disgusting lot, the women and children, and to be in the district is no honour.

Wilson Butterworth (25), a foreman rag extractor, of 14, Wycliffe Street, Dewsbury, died in the Dewsbury Infirmary from blood poisoning, caused by the prick of a needle which was sticking in a bass he was unloading.

"October 22nd.—Yesterday I thought we were done for. However, we pulled through, for which I thank God. I cannot tell you all our doings, but I will say we were in a hot corner. War is a most wicked thing; I cannot say I enjoy it. Had a lucky touch yesterday in the trenches. A shell burst right in the trench, actually sounding my shoulder, and a bullet cut down through my puttees, pants, and took the skin off my leg, but did not hurt me. Read the 91st Psalm, and you will find it there. I first took it as a text in the Psalms, 'My hand shall hold him fast.' It has worked wonders for me. Thanks for letters. Don't worry more than you can help. Keep smiling."

"Tell the C.F.S. girls from me that their working is of great comfort and benefit to the men, and that they are doing the best work of any in providing comforts that happiness to men who have, for the sake of duty, left wife and children to fight."

DURING THE WAR USE

COLMAN'S POULTRY MUSTARD AND SECURE MORE EGGS

"The Poultry Keepers' Account Book" and other literature, post free on application to

PRICE LIST. RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth Herts.

3lb. 2/8
9lb. 7/-
12lb. 12/2
56lb. 51/0
Carriage Paid.

BRITAIN REQUIRES MORE FOOD!

ALLEN'S ROUP CURE, 2/1 Post Paid. Each package contains a sufficiency to make 25 gallons of medicated drink, a guaranteed cure for this dreaded disease. Prevention is better than cure, and medicated poultry keepers will occasionally give this preparation in the fowls' drinking water, and so protect their flocks immune.

Full directions are given with each packet.

To be obtained only from R. M. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES, 1/6 post paid. Generally called "The Poultry Keepers' Friend." Immediately a bird is noticed off colour a capsule (iron, quinine, and cod-liver oil) right down its throat will be found to put it right. For a day or two before and after shows they are invaluable.

To be obtained only from R. M. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

THE MOST PRACTICAL UTILITY POULTRY PAPER.

MONTHLY HINTS ON POULTRY

32 pages, profusely illustrated, art paper, &c. 2/- per annum, post free, from

THE EDITOR, Sawbridgeworth, HERTS. Write for specimen copy.

Pure-bred Laying Pullets 7/6 each.

We can offer you selected Rhode Island Red, White, Black, and Brown Leghorn, White Orpington, and White Wyandotte, March hatched Pullets, at 7s. 6d. each. Also Barnevelder vigorous Cockerels, from 15s. each. Approval.

ALLEN POULTRY FARM, LTD., Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

GENUINE EAST INDIAN RAPE NUTS.

A WELL-TRIED AND RELIABLE

AUTUMN TILLAGE.

M. SCOTT & Co., Seed Crushers, SELBY.

Prompt Delivery can be given to Rails Selby.

Ask your Manure Merchant for particulars.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Large numbers of young Italians are escaping from Trieste and Trent to avoid being called to the colours under this conscription.

It is stated that when Parliament meets on November 11th the Government will ask for a further £100,000,000 for the purposes of the war.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, preaching at Barking on Monday, said the response made to our country's call was worthy of our best days.

Mr Joseph Chamberlain, whose will has just been proved, has left unsettled estate of the gross value of £126,019, the net personalty being £123,408.

The Queen's appeal for bulb bulbs and socks for the troops has been quite ready responded to by the women of the Empire that the fund has been closed.

The unemployment returns issued on Monday by the Board of Trade show that there is a further decline in the number of those who are in want of work.

The execution of a woman found guilty of child murder was at Nottingham Assizes on Saturday ordered to be stayed on the finding of a jury of midwives.

Leopold Dunke (53), a German tailor, was bound over at Newcastle on Monday for abusive language including "I'm glad of the English, I will crush them under my feet."

Mr Joseph Cowen, Stella Hall, near Newcastle-on-Tyne, has offered a prize to be competed for by the Tyne-side Irish Battalion, making in all £13,000 which he has given.

Among the natural effects of the war in the Cradock Basin has been a decided brightening of American trade in certain articles for the belligerents, notably shoe leathers, canvas, and beef.

The Folkestone magistrates on Saturday inflicted fines on nine men, part of the crew of the steamer Nora, for refusing to go to sea after wilfully disobeying the orders of the captain at Calais.

In the Court of Criminal Appeal, London, on Monday, the sentence of death passed upon Tom Gilbert, a foreman plasterer at Aylesbury, was quashed on the ground of the prisoner's insanity.

Viscount Bryce, in unveiling a statue at Aberdeen as a memorial to King Edward, said the warm tribute to the late King was one of building up the perfect and cordial understanding with France.

The body of a Fawley man was found on the Great Western Railway near Dorchester, and the body of his wife was discovered in the house. Suicide is the verdict. The couple came to be in the district is not known.

Wilson Butterworth (25), a foreman rag extractor, of 14, Wycliffe Street, Dewsbury, died in the Dewsbury Infirmary from blood poisoning, caused by the prick of a needle which was sticking in a bass he was unloading.

A verdict of "Suicide, but no evidence as to state of mind," was returned, at a Leeds inquest on Ellen Handley (52), housekeeper to Mr Herbert Wade, of 48, Lofthouse Place, Leeds, who was found dead with a gas tube in her mouth.

At Hartlepool a saw mill and much valuable timber was destroyed by fire; at Newcastle the Masonic Hall and Assembly Rooms and two adjoining warehouses were destroyed; at Kilham three wheat stacks, valued at £300, were destroyed.

Private Frederick Askin (20), a soldier dressed in khaki, was charged with stealing letters belonging to members of the Royal Field Artillery which are addressed at the Canadian Road Barracks. The prisoner, who admitted the theft, was sent to prison for two months.

A sensation was caused in Manor Hamilton, co. Leitrim, by a public row between a local prisoner, residing in the main street, shot his son dead and then shot himself with a revolver. There had been some dispute between them over property. The father is not expected to recover.

At a meeting of the members of the Malton Agricultural Society on Saturday, on the proposal of Mr William Wood, it was decided to approach the North Riding County Council and ask for permission to engage boys over 12 years of age, on account of a serious shortage of labour.

At Liverpool on Monday, a German, named Ernest Keating (43), who escaped on Saturday from Shrewsbury concentration camp, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment with hard labour. Evidence was given that Keating said he found the gates open and walked out. He wanted to see his wife and children in Liverpool.

At Thames Police Court Caroline Sripp, 50, a German, was sentenced to fifty months' hard labour and ordered to be deported as an alien. The police stated that the prisoner lived close to the entrance to the London Docks and from her windows ships of German nationality she was looked upon as a dangerous person.

In order to stimulate recruiting at Goole, Mr Mr James Dove, a well-known Goole ship owner, has decided to give insurances to all recruits during the week-end. Altogether, 18 were admitted to the 5th Battalion (K.O.Y.L.I.), and in addition to providing the insurance, Mr Dove handed the men one shilling each.

An Army Order prohibits the sale of intoxicating drinks to soldiers in Newcastle, Gateshead, Jarrow, and neighbourhood except during three hours a day. The Burnopfield and District Licensed Victuallers' Association have agreed that soldiers shall not be served with intoxicating drinks before the hour of 1 p.m.

The Rev. William Bryant, vicar of Stoke Lane, Westminster, was found shot in his vicarage on Saturday, with a revolver lying near him. An examination of the body by the police led to the conclusion that the rev. gentleman had probably been dead two days. Mr Bryant, who was living quite alone, had successfully appealed in the High Court against a magistrate's order granting his wife a separation order.

The second division of the Supreme Court in Edinburgh on Friday ordered Father McHardy, a Roman Catholic priest of Kirkcudbright, to appear before one of their number to give evidence in an affiliation case, which came before their lordships in the shape of an appeal. In the Court below the priest was examined as a witness, but refused to speak as to what was said to him by the defender, or what he reported to the two sets of parents as having been said to him by the defender. In declining to speak, Father McHardy pleaded privilege. Although the statements were not made to him in the confessional. The Court held that, in the circumstances, the plea of privilege was untenable.

ADEL.

Mr L. H. Lawson, who has been given a commission in the Army, is a son of Mr P. W. Lawson, of Adel, and was educated at Cardinal Mathew's, and has since been in business with the firm of Messrs Fairbairn, Lawson, Combe, Barbour (Limited), engineers, Leeds.

Speaking at a meeting of the Farmers' Club in London on Monday, Mr H. Trueman Eve, the secretary, said that no class, perhaps, had been less affected by the war than farmers. In giving a broad rule to express the duties of a farmer as a citizen wishing to help the country, he said they should sow what suited the farm and their style of farming, but give the seeding of wheat the turn of the scale.

Messrs. Vickers, Ltd., the famous gun manufacturers, propose building a factory at Crayford, Kent, for, among other things, the manufacture of sewing machines, with the purpose of ousting from this country the Germans makes, which hitherto have had a marked lead. Although we were the first European country to make sewing machines, in 1832, we only put 100,000 machines to Germany's 40, and the latter country exports one million of their machines annually.

Much curiosity has been aroused in the last few days by the discovery of a mysterious tunnel in the Chiltern district, and the names of two gentlemen have been mentioned in certain quarters. It is interesting to note that these gentlemen are well known in literary circles to be deeply interested in the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy, and it is understood that some years ago they had a considerable digging neighbourhood in the hope of finding emblems and manuscripts which would support their theory. These scientific investigations met with fruitless after much labour had been expended.

The British hospital ship, the Rohilla, has been wrecked at Whitby. She was of 2,965 tons, which was on her way from Leith to Dunkirk, went ashore at 3.30 on Friday morning in a furious gale. There were some heroic rescues by the Whitby lifeboat and brave attempts to save others from the wreck. On Sunday morning the weather had moderated, and the Tynemouth motor lifeboat proceeded to the scene of the disaster, and took off all who were on board the wreck. The gun room rescued had been on the wreck for more than fifty hours, and their sufferings had been terrible. Out of about 220 persons on board 146 have been saved.

Mr Balfour, addressing the eighth Royal Scots at Haddington on Friday, just after leaving the town, wished them God-speed, and congratulated them on being given the opportunity of showing that manner of men they were. There had never been in history a situation comparable to that which they now had to face. They had to face it, and would face it, with high courage and undaunted resolution. Those who, like himself, were prevented by age from taking their share in actual fighting, envied them their happier fate. Those at home had them in their thoughts, and followed them in imagination through all their trials and difficulties.

Alderman John Sewell Rigg, a former Mayor of Ripon, and a prominent judge of horses in the North of England, was charged at the Appleby Police Court on Tuesday with having committed false pretences a mare and a gelding from two Appleby farmers. The case for the prosecution was that the defendant had made the proposal his work of buying horses for the Westmorland and Cumberland Yeomanry, represented to the farmers that he was still purchasing horses for the Army. He bought the two animals for £140 each, and later sold them to the Yeomanry for £165 each. The case for the defence was that the defendant was committed on both charges to the Westmorland Quarter Sessions, bail being allowed.

At Bristol Wm. Crook, (24), was committed for trial charged with the manslaughter of his brother, Matthew Crook (20), on October 3rd. Cordelia Britton, a sister, stated that the brothers were members of the 5th Loyal North Lancashire Regiment (Territorials) and had a gunsmith's railway bridge, near Bristol, on October 7th. Britton and another girl were visiting them when Matthew complained of the loss of the badge of his cap, and picked up a rifle. Thereupon his brother seized another rifle which was loaded, pointed it at him and seriously wounding Britton, who has been in hospital ever since, but is recovering. Wm. Crook, who has joined the Army, said the shooting happened, said he only picked up the rifle as a joke, and had no intention of shooting.

If you are a Poultry keeper, and your birds are not laying as you would like, or your pullets are not coming on as they should be, there is none those you should fly to—

COVERDALE'S Egg-Producing Poultry Powder

From once a tail it to 40 eggs a week.

Dear Sir,—My hens had not laid a single egg per day for the last month. I gave them a Poultry Powder you sent me has worked wonders. They are already laying an egg a week and increasing. I will certainly continue use it and recommend it to others.

Yours truly, J. LUND.

It is the best Poultry Tonic on the market, and it use guarantees WINTER LAYERS. The cock is not made sterile by its use as he soon.

Sold in Packages, post free, 8d., 1/3, & 2/9, including a 16-page booklet on "Profitable Poultry Keeping."

Coverdale's Poultry Powder, Ltd., PARLIAMENT STREET, YORK.

Also at Corn Dealers, Co-operative Stores, &c.

Agents—G. H. MOON, Grocer, etc., East Keswick, Wetherby, Aberford, Thorner, Crossgates, Tadcaster, South Milford, Harrogate, Ripon, Boroughbridge, and Knaresbro'; W. H. DICKENSON, 158, Meadow Lane, Leeds; T. H. SMITH & SON, Garforth; Mrs. HURST, High Street, Tadcaster; G. HARGRAVE, Grocer, Sandal; J. HILLS & SON, 279, Hunslet Road, Leeds; and TAYLORS' DRUG Co.'s Branches.

"The Rothwell Courier and Times" IS THE Only Weekly Newspaper PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 98—NEW SERIES [Registered at the G.P.O.] a Newspaper. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited), THE BREWERY, LEEDS.

NOW READY IN BOTTLE.

East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles

Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.

Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.

Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT. AT 6.30 AND AT 9.

Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 16th, 1914.

Craig and Bolton Present the Morality Sensation, "WHAT WOULD YOU DO," or, "THE ALTERNATIVE."

WEE GEORGIE WOOD, In his latest Successful Scenes, "Winkles."

STACEY & WILLIAMS. FRED WILDON.

WALTER AUBREY. HARRY FORD.

COSGROVE & BURNS.

CARMEN TURIA.

The Spanish Queen of Song.

ALDON AND LOUPE.

Eccentric Barrel Jumpers.

Latest War News and Actual Films from the Front.

Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 3s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4½., 3½.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9.

NEXT WEEK.

Ernest C. Rolls Presents the Second Edition of the Great Revue, "FULL INSIDE."

Original London Star Cast.

WOODWARD AND PAGE.

MASTER JAMES GARNETT.

RUSSELL CARR.

FANNY and HARRY DENT.

HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

FRED BARBER,

Pork Butcher,

11. CALL LANE, LEEDS.

TEL. 1604.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.

SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY

Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.

James Smithies,

Registered Plumber & Contractor.

Residence:—

43, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Wm. HELLIWELL,

The Working Man's Friend,

212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS

WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.

Special Suits From 30/-

NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established 1814. SPARKLING HOSPERRIDE An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage. OBTAINABLE FROM HOTELS RESTAURANTS & DEALERS REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

For TOWN or COUNTRY. For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.

THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT IS AT

Fabor 45/-

Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.

LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-

COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.

Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.

24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

For many years Mr. R. Benson Jowitt, whose ways Committee will consider the proposal if they believe that it will involve a loss.

passing, as chronicled this week, from the presidential chair of the Yorkshire Penny Savings Bank to that of a vice-president, is a very familiar and honoured figure in Leeds financial circles. His principal connection with the Bank has been as head of the firm of Messrs. Jowitt, Sons & Co., Limited, Leeds, which was founded by his father, Mr. W. H. Jowitt, who was followed by Mr. Jowitt in the chair, and Mr. J. W. Morkill, who is the present occupant of the chair. Junior Mr. Morkill is also a prominent public man. Of the three Directors, Mr. Morkill is probably the best known to the public, his comments being widely published. He was frequently criticised, sometimes unfairly, and I also believe his task was worse than his bite, as the saying goes, because I have known him to generously help persons who, through misfortune, had the silliness to make the acquaintance of the police.

In the administration of the law a marked change has come about during the past two decades, and it is particularly noticeable at the Skipton and Tadcaster Courts. While severe punishment is inflicted in cases in which it is richly deserved, a more generous attitude is displayed to offenders who have transgressed for the first time, and, in fact, "old hands" are often given a chance on a promise of amendment. The police, too, are always anxious that the best should be said for the law-breaker. Not quite twenty years ago I knew a parson-magistrate who seemed to have a keen delight in passing severe sentences, always accompanied by cutting comments, but one meets with little of that nowadays in this quarter.

Recently a Kippax correspondent wrote criticising a resolution passed by Tadcaster Board of Guardians in regard to pensions for disabled sailors and soldiers and allowances for the dependents of men who had lost their lives fighting for the country, but the only point to which he really took exception was the means by which the money should be raised. That is not settled yet, but the Government have, as I predicted they would, decided the other question. If a single man is disabled for life he will receive 14s., plus national insurance allowance (total 19s.), and a married man with no children will get 16s. and insurance allowance (21s.), rising to 23s., where there are children, and insurance (28s.). The allowances for widows are 7s. 6d., with one child 12s. 6d., two children 15s., three children 17s. 6d., and four children 20s. The amounts might have been more generous in cases where there are young children, because a woman with two children could not perhaps do any work, and 15s. is not much to live upon. The terms are, however, a great improvement, and they will, no doubt, provide a guarantee to men that if they fail to return their women folks will not be at the mercy of the poor law.

What effect have smells from sewers on infectious disease? It is surprising that this question should have again been raised at the Rothwell Urban Council meeting, but it is evident that people are difficult to convince. I remember the late medical officer (Dr. R. Stevenson) telling the Council that by the time sewer gas reached their nostrils it was quite harmless, but since then the question has been raised several times. At Crossgates an outbreak of diphtheria several years ago was attributed to bad drains, and so knowing were the folks that medical evidence failed to convince them.

Kippax, as the most populous township in Tadcaster Union, has not given a very encouraging lead in the matter of re-siting, and its returns compare very unfavourably with those of Garforth and Tadcaster. In this issue we publish the names of 105 Kippax men who have brought honour on themselves and on the village by enlisting, but where are the rest of the young fellows? Kippax has a population of well over 4,000, and Garforth, with its fewer inhabitants, is credited with sending out about 200 men, and Tadcaster, with a still smaller population, has contributed about 170. Why, Wetherby, with half the number of its inhabitants possessed by Kippax, has distinguished itself by sending about 200 men to the Colours, while Selby, which has double the population of the village on the hill, claims to have between 700 and 800 men in the Army. Clearly, Kippax has a lot of leeway to make up.

Garforth will benefit if Kippax secures a tramway service, but the Urban Council are lending no assistance in the matter. In reply to a petition from Kippax for trackless trams, the manager of the Leeds system states that he will bring it before the Tramways Committee, so there is every reason to believe that the question will be discussed. It would have been better had a deputation representative of Kippax, Garforth, and Allerton Bywater waited on the Tramways Committee and presented their case, because if objection was taken to the running of trackless trams motor 'buses could have been suggested as an alternative. Leeds Corporation are not philanthropists, and they will look at the question from a business standpoint, and all necessary information as to probable traffic should be laid before them. It is not likely the Trams-

Recently it was stated that the cost of town-planning Schools and Anstheope would be a charge on the rural district of Tadcaster, but since then I have had information which does not coincide with this view. The expenditure connected with Templenewsam scheme will, I understand, fall on the parish and not on the district, so I presume the same thing will operate all round.

Templenewsam scheme, although not finally decided upon, will probably be the first carried out by a Rural Council in the country, and it will have a remarkable effect on the development of the district. Roads of the greatest value and convenience will be constructed, open spaces will be provided, and the residential and industrial areas will be prescribed, so that the land will be laid out in the most beneficial way.

Barwick residents are to be given an opportunity shortly of stating whether or not they desire public lighting. It is proposed to limit the scheme to the village itself, so that only the people residing within the lighting area will have the power of voting, as they will, if they adopt the Lighting Act, have the privilege of paying. At the present time it is not clear that any real demand for lighting exists, but as several people have expressed a desire to have the question tested, the Parish Council have decided to find out the opinion of the ratepayers come road.

During the past few weeks lists of men from Tadcaster, South Milford, Monk Fryston, Crossgates, Church Fenton, Oulton, Woodlesford, etc., who have been patriotic enough to answer the country's call have been published in this journal, and in this issue we give the roll of honour for Thorpe and Scarcroft, which have distinguished themselves in several ways. By the publication of these village lists honour is given where it is due, and an opportunity is granted the public of judging what the district is doing in this great national crisis.

The figures already published show conclusively that the towns and villages in Barkston Ash Division have done splendidly, and they are on example to places like Leeds, where the young men have apparently failed to realise the needs of the country. The great majority of the men who have gone from the district are not at the Front—they are being trained, but there is little doubt that when the time comes for them to face the enemy they will give a good account of themselves.

In not a few parishes in the district the practice has been in vogue almost since the beginning of the war of ringing the church bells every day at noon in order that the people might be reminded of our brave men on the battlefield, and in connection with this I came across a very interesting letter written by a minister who is a chaplain at the Front. In reference to our soldiers, he says:—"They have seen visions—and they still shudder at the memory! It was hell, sir!—so they think of the retreat from Mons, etc., and when they have told you all about it they are glad for you to come a little closer and tell them news about home and peace and God. Here at least God is the name on the lips of many, very many brave boys, and—well, it's all too sacred to try to tell in a letter. At times it is a bit nerve-trying, but it is good to be here, and I am thankful to those who gave me this great chance to seek gently and gladly to help broken men to the joy and healing of the peace that passeth understanding. The question is asked, it almost seems by everyone, 'Do you think they'll be praying for us at home, sir?' Well, there are places in England, the parish of one of our Church of England Padre's is one, where at noon the parish bell is rung and rich and poor stop, shutters over their business at the moment, and offer prayer for the sailors and soldiers. That may not be possible everywhere, but it does mean a lot to think that those we love and who know our need are really praying together that God will answer."

"Farmers are of more account now than they have been for many years," declared a speaker at the Scarcroft ploughing match dinner, with all the delight and satisfaction a lady struggling for recognition is supposed to feel when she begins her ascent of the social ladder. Agriculturists, if the opinion quoted has any weight, have come to the conclusion the nation honours them at last with a place in the scheme of things, because they grow food for the people, but is not this view erroneous? Farmers, whether they wanted it or not, have had special legislation passed for them, and vast sums of money, part of which the townspeople have had to find, have been spent on experiments and education solely for their benefit.

According to one of their leaders, farmers are the only class who have not suffered by the war, and I wonder if they are grateful. It has been recorded that they have been grumbling about crops not turning out as well as was expected, about dry weather, and wet weather, but all that is in the ordinary course of things. The farmer must have his grumble; it hurts nobody, and it relieves his feelings. One of the speakers referred to the suggestion that more wheat should be grown in the country, in order to increase food supplies, but agriculturists will consider their own interests and utilize the land in the way they consider best. However they use it, they are raising food, and they will undertake the work that yields them the largest returns. That is business.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE

	£ s. d.
Amounts previously acknowledged	88 17 9
Underground workmen and boys and screwmen, Stakes and Isabella Pits, per Mr. C. H. Hebden (6th contribution)	6 15 7
Underground workmen and boys and screwmen, Trench Pit, per Mr. E. W. Ogden, and contribution	2 0 11
Total to 12th November	£107 14 3

Wm. Geo. Bosher, Hon. Sec. and Treas.

Accident.—A motor-car belonging to Mr. J. Godfrey Long, J.P., of Spofforth, chairman of the Wetherby Steeplechase Committee and of the Wetherby Board of Guardians and Rural District Council, collided on Saturday morning with a butcher's cart at the corner of St. James' Street and North Street, one dangerous corner in Wetherby. The cart was completely overturned, meat and eatables being strewn about, and the shafts were smashed. Mr. Dobson, the owner of the cart, received a severe shaking, and a little boy named Utley, who was in the cart with him, was more severely injured, suffering from shock, but fortunately he had no bones broken.

Comforts for Soldiers.—Mr. Kearsey, late Colonel 1st V.B. W.Y.R., writes:—Will you kindly allow me, through your columns, to make an appeal for comforters and mittens for the above battalion, to the residents in the following areas, viz.:—York, Selby, Harrogate, Knaresborough, Starbeck, Ripon, Boroughbridge, Ponsby Bridge, Tadcaster, and Wetherby. I feel sure all classes in the inhabitants in these towns will gessen only and quickly respond to this appeal, and that the ladies who are working for our troops will help to provid these winter comforts when they know they are needed for both the active service and the reserve battalion, now mobilised at York and Harrogate respectively; for when a soldier is civilled by cold he cannot shoot straight. Colonel Wood, commanding the active service battalion, says khaki-coloured comforters, 6ft. long by 8in. wide, would be as useful as anything, or else mittens; and that it is better that these should be sent to the battalion and not to men of any particular company. Parcels should be labelled "comforts," and addressed to Officer Commanding, 5th Battalion West Yorkshire Regiment, Drill Hall, Collingerate, York. Colonel Bottomley, commanding the Reserve Battalion, would prefer mittens only for noncommissioned officers and men. Parcels should be labelled "comforts," and addressed to Officer Commanding 5th Reserve Batt., West Yorks. Regiment, Beech Wood, Harrogate.

SMITH BROS

HOLD A

LARGE STOCK of MATERIALS

— SUITABLE FOR —

Red Cross & Hospital Work.

SPECIAL DISCOUNT ALLOWED FOR QUANTITIES.

BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS "BY TEST THE BEST."

THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.

The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of

AUTUMN FOOT STYLES.

Please Come Round and Inspect our Display

ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.

Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse 31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.

A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Huddersfield: " 1609. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.

William GREENWOOD,

Watchmaker and Jeweller,

92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

SPECIALITIES:—

DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.

W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.

Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.

— AND AT —

3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

STEPHENSON'S GREAT AUTUMN SHOW

OF THE PRESENT SEASON'S FASHIONS AT

THE CROSS ARCADE,

Extending from KING EDWARD ST. to QUEEN VICTORIA ST. (50 yards down either from) BRIGGATE, LEEDS

Here you will find extensive Stocks of all that is Beautiful, New & Tasteful in Goods & Garments and

WE CONTINUE TO SELL AT OUR OLD LOW PEACE PRICES.

NO SHORTAGE OF STOCK. ADVANCE IN PRICES.

The Latest Productions in Furs, Dress Fabrics, Silks, Ladies', Maids' and Children's Paletots, Raincoats, Blouses, Woven Underwear in Winter Weights, Children's Coats and Costumes, Corsets, Ladies' and Children's Millinery, Hosiery, Gloves, Ribbons, Lace, Neckwear, &c., &c.

Special Attention is called to the Bargains we are offering in Household Drapery, Blankets, Down Quilts, and Wool Shirtings.

COME AND SAVE MONEY AT

STEPHENSON'S DRAPERY MARKET,

THE CROSS ARCADE,

King Edward Street, & Queen Victoria Street, LEEDS.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED]

THE CREED OF CONQUEST

By J. B. HARRIS-BURLAND

Author of "Dolores," "An Angel's Sin," "Faith," "Beyond the Limit," "Love the Greatest," "The Gold Scourgers," "The Unknown," etc.

SYNOPSIS OF OPENING CHAPTERS.—Sir John Ironcli, a great student of science, has discovered the means of controlling and arresting the magnetic power of the sun and forming them into a gigantic system of destruction. Accompanied by his son Ralph and Julian Estcourt, he gives a demonstration of the powers of his invention in a mountainous district.

The experiment has taken place like at night on a small island adjoining Sir John's estate. Ralph awakes early in the morning to find Sir John alone with his model. On the way, down with a final test he makes awful possibilities of the invention, tells us that his father should give the secret of his discovery to the world. Ralph answers that his father will never do that, as neither shall any one else. Sir John then turns on his heel in the hangings is horrified to find his father's back calmly studied.

CHAPTER III.

For a few moments Ralph Ironcli stood motionless. His mind was dazed by the shock of the discovery. He had thought it possible that his father had made his invention, considered that the old man, overwrought with excitement and an incessant toil which had lasted for over three years, had suddenly collapsed, had fainted, or had even perhaps fallen and struck his head against some piece of stone or iron.

But there was no question what had actually happened. His father had been murdered. The revolver, still gripped in the right hand, left no room for doubt, even if the effects of the blow itself had not been visible.

Ralph Lowick passed his hand across his eyes, as though trying to clear the mists from his brain. Then he clutched at the woodwork of the kitchen dresser, and leant forward, his face white and his eyes staring, the body upon the floor. Every muscle in his body was rigid, and he remained as he was, seemingly as though he had been carved out of stone. Then a shiver passed through him, and he drew himself up, and the blood seemed to course through his veins again.

"I am not a child," he thought. "I must keep a head on my shoulders. There's a good deal to be thought of and done to-night."

He knelt down by his father's side and held his hand over the heart. The flesh was still warm, but he could not detect the faintest flutter beneath his fingers.

Then he took the revolver from his father's hand, rose to his feet, and, making his way into the next room, closed the door and locked it. He knew that his duty was to fetch the doctor and the police at once. But there was something else to be done first. The death of his father was inexplicable, save on the theory of experiment which had taken place that evening on the island. The scientist had no enemies, save those who could hope to steal the secret of his invention, or those who wished the secret to die with the man who held it. Under ordinary circumstances it would have been right to go at once for the doctor and to place the affair in the hands of the police. But, as it was, there was something of more importance than the pursuit of the murderer. It must be ascertained whether the machine itself had been stolen. The future of a nation—perhaps the future of the civilized world—depended on that. Private grief and the revenge of the law must wait.

He lit a small candle, and the blue spark ran into the night. The moon had now risen above the dense atmosphere, and shone white in a clear sky. The cave was within a few yards of the bungalow, and Ralph hurried up to it. He had feared the worst, and his fears were realised. The machine was gone!

He knew now that two people must have taken part in the foul deed of which he was the single man could have moved the machine from the cart. He might have pulled it on to the ground, but he could not have done nothing further with it. The weight of the box, which was almost entirely lead, must have been nearly four hundred pounds, and its shape was such that it could not have been carried, even by a Samson.

He held the lantern close to the ground, and saw dozens of footprints in the sand. Doubtless many of them were his own, and some were made by his father, and some were undoubtedly those of a servant.

"I cannot play the part of a detective," he muttered. "Now that the box has gone, I can do nothing. I will go for the police."

He made his way back to the channel, following a line of footsteps which he fancied had not been made by either of Van Endermine or himself. They took him to the pier; but he did not stop to examine further than to see that the footmarks and the gardener to the bungalow, giving them instructions not to move or disturb anything, and merely to watch till he returned. Then he stepped into the motor which had been left standing on the road, and made his way to the village of Easternhoe. Here he called up the doctor, asked the policeman to telephone to Winchester, the nearest town of any importance, for the inspector, and took both doctor and policeman back to the island.

When he had formed them across, he returned to the mainland, and locked up the furious speed to Sinchester, which was fifteen miles away. He met the inspector's trap three miles outside the town.

"I've come to fetch you," he shouted, "that trap is far too slow."

Inspector Turnbull alighted and seated himself by Ralph's side. He was a thick-set, heavy-faced man, with a close-clipped black moustache. One of the smartest police officers in the East of England, he had the professional merit of not looking very intelligent. In the course of his career he had found this very useful to him.

"Sad business, sir," he said in his slow, deep voice, "a terrible business for you—and for all of us. Sir John was much respected by everyone."

"Yes, Turnbull. But we can't think of that now. I haven't allowed myself to think of what I've lost. The scoundrels must be found—if possible to-night before they can make use of what they have stolen."

"Please tell me all about it, sir. It will save time. I can get to work directly I arrive."

Ralph Lowick told the inspector all that he knew, and dwelt much on the importance of the loss of the machine. He would have liked to keep the whole matter of the invention a secret, but he knew that this was practically an impossibility. The nature and value of his father's secret would have to be disclosed at the inquest under cross-examination, inasmuch as the theft of the machine had provided a motive for the crime.

When the young man had finished the recital of the facts, which he did with considerable clearness for one who was in such deep distress, Mr. Turnbull asked a few questions, and seemed satisfied with the answers.

Then for two or three minutes there was silence, and it was not till the lights of the house came in view across the stretch of marshland that either of them spoke again.

"I expect, sir," said the inspector, softly, "you didn't think of looking in your poor father's workshop, or laboratory, as I suppose he called it?"

"I did not. Why should I?"

"It didn't occur to you that possibly the machine would be useless to anyone unless he had some kind of key to it—plans, drawings, explanations, and all that sort of thing."

"I must confess that it didn't occur to me, but, in any case, valuable documents of this sort would not be left in the workshop. They would be in a safe or somewhere."

"You didn't think of looking at the safe?"

"No, I did not."

"We will look at it before we cross to the island."

When they arrived at the house they made their way upstairs to the bedroom, and found that the safe was locked, and that there were no signs of anyone having attempted to break it open.

"Where are the keys?" asked the inspector. "My father kept them on his watch-chain."

"You didn't notice if his chain had gone?"

"I did not."

"Then, well, I think it would be better to leave someone on guard. Have you any men in the house?"

"The butler, and I can find the undergardener and a groom."

"Well, let two of them watch here. It is possible that the safe may have been opened on, on the other hand, if it has not, the assailant might be made before we come back. Also, if anyone is known into confusion, the scoundrel seizes an opportunity."

"You think the men are hiding in the neighbourhood, sir?"

"Yes, if they have not already stolen the plans. Now, if you'll give instructions to your servants, I'll cross over to the island."

Lowick told the butler and the undergardener to wait in the bedroom and, acting on the inspector's suggestion, sent the caretaker, the groom, and the chauffeur to search the grounds. Then, accompanied by Mr. Turnbull, he made his way down to the landing stage, and found to his amusement that a boat had been left on the other side. He shouted till he attracted the attention of someone in the bungalow. In the meantime the inspector lost no time, but carefully examined the pier and the shore by the edge of the water.

"The footprints of a man and a woman," he said, "but, of course, anyone landing at the tide was up would land on the pier."

"Yes. The footprints are those of my sister and Miss Endermine. I was driving the cart."

"Yes, there are the marks of the wheels and the horse's hoofs. I see nothing else."

The footman arrived with the boat, and rowed them across to the other side.

"You'd better get back, Mr. Turnbull," said to the man, when they landed on the island, "and report to Winchester with you. There are quite enough of us here."

The footman looked at his master inquiringly.

"Yes," Ralph said, sharply, "you've both got back." And then, turning to the inspector, "Is there anything particular you'd like to do?"

"Certainly. The gardener can take the place of the chauffeur in your father's bedroom. Then I want the chauffeur and our friend here to go to Easternhoe and make inquiries."

"What inquiries?"

"I will tell him as we walk up to the bungalow."

Mr. Turnbull's instructions to the footman were clear and precise. First the man was to try and find out if any cart or barrow or truck had passed through Easternhoe that night since seven o'clock; secondly he was to go to six villages within a radius of three miles of Easternhoe and make similar inquiries; thirdly, he was to get the local policeman of Westernhoe to telegraph or telephone to six small ports on the coast, and to get the coastguards to search all ships moored for a brown box some two feet square and one in depth.

This was repeated twice before the man grasped it. He departed at once in the company of the gardener, and the inspector and Lowick entered the bungalow.

They found the doctor in the sitting-room, his elbows resting on the table, and his head on his hands. There was a dazed expression on the old man's face, and in front of him there was a sleepless half-full of brandy. For thirty years he had been the doctor at Easternhoe, and had seen many men and women dying, but this was the first time he had ever been called in to view the body of a murdered man. As he looked at Ralph there was fear in eyes as the inspector and Lowick entered the room.

"I waited till your return," he said, plaintively. "I thought it would be better to wait though I was afraid I have gone home long ago. I could be of no use here."

"I am obliged to you for waiting, sir," said Mr. Turnbull. "Where is Evans?"

"He went out ten minutes ago, and has not returned."

The inspector nodded, and then went into the next room, closing the door behind him. When he returned he addressed himself to the doctor. "I can't tell you how upset I am; I don't think any of us realise it as yet," and he looked at Ralph's face with his hands. He shut out some hideous sight from his eyes.

The young man looked down on him, and his lips tightened. As yet he had had no time to think of his own terrible grief. Action had been demanded of him—concentration of immediate action; and, though there had been moments when he had done all that was in his power to find the murderer and recover the machine. But he was very near to it now, as he looked down on the grey, bowed head of the doctor who had brought him into the world. The old man had been a friend from childhood, and a crony of his father's for nearly thirty years.

"I think you had better go home, doctor," he replied, "and get an effort to be calm. It is getting very late. You ought not to have waited up for me. You look quite tired out."

"I must stay, Ralph; I must stay for a little while. I ought not to give way like this. But the shock—and I feel that I could do anything, if your poor father's life depended on my nerve, I should not be found wanting. But I am helpless, and am trying to think—to remember."

Ralph took roughly a strong brandy and soda, and drank half of it without taking his lips from the glass. Then he went out on to the verandah, leaning against one of the iron pillars, gave a deep sob.

"I must hold up," he muttered; "at present I must not think of myself."

He pulled himself together, and stepped out on to the road. Far away at the northern end of the island a yellow light twinkled. Doubtless it was the policeman buying him self to find some clue. He remained there less for two minutes, and then returned to the sitting-room.

"You'd better let me row you across the channel," he said to the doctor. "Then, if you'll go into the house and direct the men in the motor returns, they'll drive you back to Easternhoe."

"No, Ralph, no—I couldn't wait in the house. I must get home. The walk will do me good."

The door leading into the bedroom opened, and the inspector entered the room. Both men looked at him inquiringly at him, but his face was quite devoid of expression.

"Any clue yet?" asked Ralph.

"We will talk of that at the inquest, sir," Mr. Turnbull answered, somewhat curtly, and then in a kindlier voice he added: "There is nothing more that we can do to-night. Have the keys of the safe been stolen?"

The inspector thrust his hand in his pocket and held out a gold watch and chain. Half a dozen keys were attached to the chain by a gold ring. Ralph Lowick examined them carefully.

"The keys of the safe are still here," he said, and he gave a sigh of relief. That, at any rate, was a gleam of light in the darkness. The plans and drawings could not have been stolen from the safe."

"I am glad," said Mr. Turnbull, gravely. "Have you seen Evans?"

"I think he is at the far end of the island," Lowick answered. "I saw a light moving about there."

"He must return at once," said the inspector "He ought never to have left the building."

He made his way outside into the open and waved his lantern to and fro, making signals that were well understood by his subordinate.

Fifteen minutes elapsed before the policeman came.

"Where have you been, Evans?" the inspector asked.

"Sorry, sir, but I thought I'd walk to the island."

"You've been gone for over half an hour."

"Mr. Ironcli, sir, I—I thought I'd walk to the island."

"Nonsense! Where have you been?"

"I—I—I thought I'd walk to the island."

"When they arrived at the house they made their way upstairs to the bedroom, and found that the safe was locked, and that there were no signs of anyone having attempted to break it open.

"Where are the keys?" asked the inspector. "My father kept them on his watch-chain."

"You didn't notice if his chain had gone?"

"I did not."

"Then, well, I think it would be better to leave someone on guard. Have you any men in the house?"

"The butler, and I can find the under-gardener and a groom."

"Well, let two of them watch here. It is possible that the safe may have been opened on, on the other hand, if it has not, the assailant might be made before we come back. Also, if anyone is known into confusion, the scoundrel seizes an opportunity."

"You think the men are hiding in the neighbourhood, sir?"

"Yes, if they have not already stolen the plans. Now, if you'll give instructions to your servants, I'll cross over to the island."

Lowick told the butler and the under-gardener to wait in the bedroom, and, acting on the inspector's suggestion, sent the caretaker, the groom, and the chauffeur to search the grounds. Then, accompanied by Mr. Turnbull, he made his way down to the landing stage, and found to his amusement that a boat had been left on the other side. He shouted till he attracted the attention of someone in the bungalow. In the meantime the inspector lost no time, but carefully examined the pier and the shore by the edge of the water.

"The footprints of a man and a woman," he said, "but, of course, anyone landing at the tide was up would land on the pier."

"Yes. The footprints are those of my sister and Miss Endermine. I was driving the cart."

"Yes, there are the marks of the wheels and the horse's hoofs. I see nothing else."

The footman arrived with the boat, and rowed them across to the other side.

"You'd better get back, Mr. Turnbull," said to the man, when they landed on the island, "and report to Winchester with you. There are quite enough of us here."

The footman looked at his master inquiringly.

"Yes," Ralph said, sharply, "you've both got back." And then, turning to the inspector, "Is there anything particular you'd like to do?"

"Certainly. The gardener can take the place of the chauffeur in your father's bedroom. Then I want the chauffeur and our friend here to go to Easternhoe and make inquiries."

"What inquiries?"

"I will tell him as we walk up to the bungalow."

Mr. Turnbull's instructions to the footman were clear and precise. First the man was to try and find out if any cart or barrow or truck had passed through Easternhoe that night since seven o'clock; secondly he was to go to six villages within a radius of three miles of Easternhoe and make similar inquiries; thirdly, he was to get the local policeman of Westernhoe to telegraph or telephone to six small ports on the coast, and to get the coastguards to search all ships moored for a brown box some two feet square and one in depth.

This was repeated twice before the man grasped it. He departed at once in the company of the gardener, and the inspector and Lowick entered the bungalow.

They found the doctor in the sitting-room, his elbows resting on the table, and his head on his hands. There was a dazed expression on the old man's face, and in front of him there was a sleepless half-full of brandy. For thirty years he had been the doctor at Easternhoe, and had seen many men and women dying, but this was the first time he had ever been called in to view the body of a murdered man. As he looked at Ralph there was fear in eyes as the inspector and Lowick entered the room.

"I waited till your return," he said, plaintively. "I thought it would be better to wait though I was afraid I have gone home long ago. I could be of no use here."

"I am obliged to you for waiting, sir," said Mr. Turnbull. "Where is Evans?"

"He went out ten minutes ago, and has not returned."

The inspector nodded, and then went into the next room, closing the door behind him. When he returned he addressed himself to the doctor. "I can't tell you how upset I am; I don't think any of us realise it as yet," and he looked at Ralph's face with his hands. He shut out some hideous sight from his eyes.

The young man looked down on him, and his lips tightened. As yet he had had no time to think of his own terrible grief. Action had been demanded of him—concentration of immediate action; and, though there had been moments when he had done all that was in his power to find the murderer and recover the machine. But he was very near to it now, as he looked down on the grey, bowed head of the doctor who had brought him into the world. The old man had been a friend from childhood, and a crony of his father's for nearly thirty years.

"I think you had better go home, doctor," he replied, "and get an effort to be calm. It is getting very late. You ought not to have waited up for me. You look quite tired out."

"I must stay, Ralph; I must stay for a little while. I ought not to give way like this. But the shock—and I feel that I could do anything, if your poor father's life depended on my nerve, I should not be found wanting. But I am helpless, and am trying to think—to remember."

Ralph took roughly a strong brandy and soda, and drank half of it without taking his lips from the glass. Then he went out on to the verandah, leaning against one of the iron pillars, gave a deep sob.

"I must hold up," he muttered; "at present I must not think of myself."

He pulled himself together, and stepped out on to the road. Far away at the northern end of the island a yellow light twinkled. Doubtless it was the policeman buying him self to find some clue. He remained there less for two minutes, and then returned to the sitting-room.

"You'd better let me row you across the channel," he said to the doctor. "Then, if you'll go into the house and direct the men in the motor returns, they'll drive you back to Easternhoe."

"No, Ralph, no—I couldn't wait in the house. I must get home. The walk will do me good."

The door leading into the bedroom opened, and the inspector entered the room. Both men looked at him inquiringly at him, but his face was quite devoid of expression.

"Any clue yet?" asked Ralph.

"We will talk of that at the inquest, sir," Mr. Turnbull answered, somewhat curtly, and then in a kindlier voice he added: "There is nothing more that we can do to-night. Have the keys of the safe been stolen?"

The inspector thrust his hand in his pocket and held out a gold watch and chain. Half a dozen keys were attached to the chain by a gold ring. Ralph Lowick examined them carefully.

"The keys of the safe are still here," he said, and he gave a sigh of relief. That, at any rate, was a gleam of light in the darkness. The plans and drawings could not have been stolen from the safe."

"I am glad," said Mr. Turnbull, gravely. "Have you seen Evans?"

"I think he is at the far end of the island," Lowick answered. "I saw a light moving about there."

"He must return at once," said the inspector "He ought never to have left the building."

Hunslet Board of Guardians.

The fortnightly meeting of the Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the Union Offices, Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr. T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Others present were Mrs. M. A. Dickson, Richard H. Parker-gill, Mrs. Stead, J. W. Watts, and G. W. Peters, with the Clerk (Mr. F. W. Moy).

CHILDREN'S HOMES.

At a meeting of the Children's Homes' Committee a letter was received from the Rothwell Urban District Council respecting the charges for water supply, and expressing the opinion that the Guardians are much too many treated than other Unions in the district. An account was also received for water supplied during the past half-year, and it was decided that the matter be referred to the next meeting for a definite reply to the Guardians' offer also with the July half-year.

It was resolved that the Guardians be recommended to provide additional fare for the inmates of the institution as follows:—Legs of mutton (with rubbers for the sick instead if preferred) together with plum pudding for dinner, and tea after dinner. Spice loaf and cheese for tea, 1lb. grapes for each adult and 1lb. for each child, 1 oz. tobacco additional for men and a sufficient quantity of tobacco or tea for women, 1 box of cigars, 50 cigarettes and an average of 1½ per head of children for toys, to be selected by the matron.

The minutes were passed.

VARIOUS

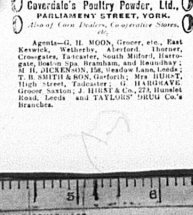
It was resolved that the Guardians support the request of the Executive Council of Poor Law Unions' Association for the next conference and to support any resolutions for the increased allowance to wives and dependents of those at the Front.

It was resolved that the Clerk Armstrong (relieving officer) asking the Board to allow him a fortnight in five as holidays as it was too late in the year to take holidays.

It was also resolved that Mr. Armstrong to postpone his holidays until October owing to Mr. Steel being called up.

Mr. Butterick moved that the matter be referred to the General Purposes Committee for consideration.

Mr. Conroy seconded and this was carried.



A letter was read from Father M. J. Dillon (a former member of the Board) and Mr. Beckett thanking the Board for their congratulations upon his appointment to St. Mary's, Selby.

WHITKIRK.

LADY DOROTHY WOOD AND THE BELGIANS.—Writing to the newspapers from Templenewsam, Lady Dorothy Wood says:—Lady I. has planned to make an appeal in your columns for clothes for the numbers of wounded Belgian soldiers who have come to hospital in England since the occupation of Antwerp and Ostend by the Germans? Many of them were removed from Belgian hospitals in nothing but blankets, and, now, when recovering and able to get up again, are sorely in need of an outfit; indeed, it is a fact that there are many who are obliged to remain in bed because they have no clothes at all. At the outbreak of war, when the sun was at its zenith, was hot summer weather, therefore very few have any warm underclothing, and many have nothing to wear but thin shirts and black cotton trousers. Such clothing is terribly inadequate for the winter, especially for those numerous cases suffering from severe rheumatism. I feel sure your readers will respond readily to an appeal for our brave Allies, who have fought so splendidly, and who must rely solely upon us to provide those things for them while their own country is unable to do so. We have either a clothes' depot or a fund which has been open and are still in good condition. The chief needs are:—Warm vests and pants, shirts, socks, boots, and slippers and jackets and trousers. Any contributions will be most gratefully received at the Leeds Lady Mayoress's Committee Rooms, 1, East Parade, and should be labelled "Belgian Refugees."

TADCASTER

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday afternoon at Tadcaster Dodgue match was played between Tadcaster and York City. The teams were:—York City—Pinkney (goal); Stewart and Dungate, backs; Patrick, Dent, and Wray, half-backs; Johnson, Pattinson, Allan, Atkinson, and Shepherd, forwards. Tadcaster—Moverley, goal; Gould; Clayton and Ellerbeck, backs; Moss, Shields, Lee, Hall, Sanderson, and Jackson, Nesbitt, Birdsall, Sunderland, and Garbutt, forwards. Tadcaster started with only eight players, and the game was over-ruled by the referee at 3.30 scored for York. Shields joined Tadcaster after 10 minutes. Though having a depleted side, Tadcaster soon equalised, Birdsall scoring from a corner. Sanderson, Garbutt, and Lee added to the lead, Allan being the scorer. Tadcaster, having only nine players, the game was naturally very one-sided, but Hall scored one and Moss one just before half-time. Considering the circumstances Tadcaster did well to keep the score down. At the interval York were leading by two goals to one. With a full team Tadcaster expected to do better, but for a time the play ruled very even. Tadcaster had evidently taken too much out of themselves in the first half, and York increased their lead, Allan scoring from a scramble. Then a brilliant effort by Ellerbeck all but resulted in a score, he just putting outside with a hard shot. As time went on Tadcaster had more of the play, but free kicks become too frequent. There was an exciting tussle in the York goal after a centre by Ellerbeck, but it fizzled out, as did a second in the same way. Tadcaster were defeated by three goals to one.

If you are a Poultry keeper, and your birds are not laying as you would like, or your pullets are not laying as they should be, there is one thing you should try now

COVERDALE'S Egg-Producing

Poultry Powder

From one meal all the 40 eggs a week.

Dear Sir,—My hens had not laid a single egg for 4 days, but after the first meal of Poultry Powder you sent me my hens laid 40 eggs in 7 days, and have been laying 5 a week, and increasing. I will certainly continue to use it and recommend it to my friends.—Yours truly, J. LUND.

It is the best Poultry Powder I have ever used, and it use many others.—WINTER LAYERS. The cost is about a penny per bird per week.

Sold in Packets, post free, 8d., 1/3, 2/6, & 5/9, including a 20-page booklet on "Profitable Poultry Keeping."

Coverdale's Poultry Powder, Ltd., PARLIAMENTARY STREET, YORK.

Also at Corn Dealers, Co-operative Stores, &c.

Agents—G. H. MOON, Grocer, etc., East Keswick, Wetherby, Aberford, Thorner, Crossgates, Tadcaster, South Milford, Harrogate, Boroughbridge, Ripon, Wrenham, and Beamsley; M. H. DICKENSON, 158, Meadow Lane, Leeds; T. B. SMITH & SON, Gardeners, New Hill Top, High Street, Tadcaster; G. HARGRAVE, Grocer, Station; J. HUNT & Co., 278, Hunslet Road, Leeds and TAYLORS' DRUG Co.'s Branches.

DISTRICT BREVITIES.

In Tadcaster, it is stated, measles are very prevail nt.

• • •

A cow belonging to Mr. J. Pocklington, of Weston, has had three calves.

• • •

Members of Whitkirk Rifle Club are now having drill. It will benefit them.

• • •

"When drink's in wit's out," said a man at Tadcaster charged with "d and d."

• • •

A substantial increase in the population of Tadcaster Union was recorded last month.

• • •

The call on the Wetherby Union for County Council purposes is £500 more than last year.

• • •

According to reports, farmers are likely to have to pay increased prices for labour in the district

• • •

Where are the houses? A man told Tadcaster magistrates on Monday that he could not get a house in the town.

• • •

Who gives? An appeal is being made to the following of the York and Ainsty Hunt to provide a motor ambulance.

• • •

A cheerful message. "We are still knocking spots off the Germans." Thus writes a Thorparch man at the Front.

• • •

A musical evening given by the Osmondthorpe Harmonic Society realised over £4 for the Leeds Lord Mayor's Relief Fund.

• • •

Well done! A patriotic barber in the district states that he will attend all the Belgian refugees in his village free of charge.

• • •

Whinmoor people are greatly in need of a water supply. They must wait for it, as Schools Committee is satisfy their wants.

• • •

Bolton Percy is the only place in the district with a Women's Institute. The fee is twenty-pence per annum and a sixth of a penny on land.

• • •

The language of a man at Tadcaster was described as "most oppolitive." It was fortunate it was not repeated to the magistrates.

• • •

It is stated that Crossgates would give hospitality to a number of Belgian Refugees could a house be obtained for their accommodation.

• • •

In order to carry out a road improvement at Sherburn Cross the District Council are to require the necessary land by compulsory means.

• • •

"What do you mean by keeping company?" asked a lawyer at Tadcaster. "I was walking him out," said the girl of whom the question was asked.

• • •

The competitors at the Thorner and Scarcroft ploughing match, according to a judge, are showing greater perfection." When will they reach perfection?

• • •

In an assault case at Kippax a man said he "sold two pigs to a woman not knowing him to be such." They won't be made into German sausage, will they?

• • •

The Rev. H. T. S. Gedge, of Askham Richard, has, with the full approval of the Archbishop of York, withdrawn his acceptance of the benefice of Bishopton, York.

• • •

There's always something! Wetherby farmers were complaining a short time ago that the land was too dry for getting in wheat, and now they are saying it is too wet!

• • •

The Rev. Victor Stillingfleet, M.A., was on Friday instituted by the Bishop of Ripon to the Rectory of Kirk Deighton on the presentation of Mrs Gelbart, Kirk Deighton.

• • •

Within about twenty years the Skyrack magistrates have had fourteen changes. Three of the gentlemen have joined the great majority, the rest to go being Mr Benson Jowitt.

• • •

At Marston, Crossgates, tomorrow (Saturday) night there should be a large audience to hear Dr Sadler, the scholarly vice-chancellor of Leeds University, dealing with "The issues of the war."

• • •

Templenewsam people are, it is stated, giving about £12 a week to the Distress Fund, and if disease becomes acute a number of subscribers have indicated their intention of increasing their subscriptions.

• • •

It is expected that when the Templenewsam town-planning scheme is passed the work of making the principal road from Halton Hill through the park to Whitkirk will be commenced at once. This road will be a great convenience.

• • •

Mr C. E. Charlesworth, the Rothwell colliery owner, has given £10, and Mr Payne Galloway, of Askham Bryan, £10 10s. to the York and Ainsty Motor Ambulance Fund. Mr Payne Galloway has also given £10 to the Hussars motor maxim fund.

• • •

The Rev. Father Dillon, formerly of Hunslet, who was at one time a member of Hunslet Board of Guardians, has been appointed to Selby Catholic Church, and he preached his first sermon there on Sunday evening before a large congregation.

• • •

Mr William Liversidge, the "Grand Old Man" of Selby, who is in his 88th year, has organised a demonstration with the object of gaining for the Army a good many more recruits from Selby. Already two old and two men belonging to the town have joined the forces in some form, or re-enlisted since the outbreak of the war.

• • •

In Tadcaster district the school attendance returns for last month gave an average of 86.48 per 100, compared with 86.33 in the corresponding month of the previous year. At the separate schools the figures were—Bilbrough 92, Healaugh 90.47, Newton Kyme 95, Tadcaster boys 86.25, girls 87.25, infants 86.87, and the Roman Catholic School 86.84.

• • •

Kaiser's guest! Word has been received from Private Walter Hayes, who belonged to the West Yorkshire Regiment, and who was reported missing on September 22. Writing to his parents, who live at 17, Spring Grove View, Thwaite Gate, Stourton, he tells them that he is a prisoner of war at Doeberitz. He had been only a few months in the reserve when he was called out.

It's coming: Wetherby is to have a picture house.

• • •

Tadcaster magistrates had only three cases to deal with on Monday.

• • •

Rothwell and Stourton are now to help the Belgians. Quite right, too.

• • •

The inmates of the Wetherby Workhouse are to have their usual Christmas festivities.

• • •

Pony drivers are not always kind to ponies, as witness the conduct of Gorforth lads recently.

• • •

In Barkston Ash farm labour is scarce, and farmers are talking about employing Belgians.

• • •

The members of Wetherby Golf Club have sent £16 19s. to the National Relief Fund.

• • •

Business is dull at Garforth! The Urban Council had practically nothing to do at their last meeting.

• • •

The issue of closing orders for certain houses in Tadcaster and Kippax will result in great improvements to property.

• • •

Going elsewhere! Wetherby Thursday market has been greatly injured by the weekly market recently started in York.

• • •

Birkin Church folks have contributed £3 2s., and Kirk Hammerton Church is congregation £4 8s to the funds of Leeds Infirmary.

• • •

A sum of £3 13s. 10d., proceeds of a whist drive and dance at Hunsingore, has been given to the West Riding Belgian Relief Fund.

• • •

These are the days of small things. The meetings of Tadcaster Board of Guardians and District Council on Monday were over in about half-an-hour.

• • •

Lord Harewood has given £100 and Lady Harewood £50 towards the cost (over £1,000) of an armoured motor maxim gun for the Yorkshire Hussars.

• • •

Mr J. Ladley, who was appointed a member of Tadcaster Assessment Committee on Monday, is a Kirkby Wharfe farmer, and a well-known judge of horses.

• • •

Wouldn't look at it! Tadcaster Chamber of Agriculture did discuss the farm labourers' wage programme, but the Wetherby farmers would not give it consideration.

• • •

The prospects of labour in the district are good. Agriculture will give full employment to its people, and the mining centres there is no complaint of distress.

• • •

Tut, tut! At Scarcroft ploughing match dinner a speaker said he trusted that farmers and their men did "sound labour." A better fate is scarcely deserved by the sons of the soil.

• • •

Mumps at Selby! The infants' departments of the Abbey Church, Wesleyan, and Roman Catholic Day Schools have been closed for three weeks on account of an outbreak of mumps in the town.

• • •

Thorner and Scarcroft have an excellent Nursing Fund, of which Miss Hilda Nasmyth is hon. treas., and the collectors are now fulfilling the task of getting in the money necessary for the work.

• • •

In Garforth on Guy Fawkes' night two women ran along Wakefield Road declaring that they had seen a Zeppelin, and then this neighbour, if anywords transpired that a lad had been experimenting with a couple of toy airships.

• • •

Mr Paul Rhodes, one of the members of the golf club, last week holed the 5th at Cobble Hall, Roundhay—about 430 yards—in one stroke. This is the second time the feat has been accomplished at this hole during the present year.

• • •

How long will the war last? The prophets are busy. Even the soldiers are guessing, and some expect to be home about Christmas, while one local soldier says the war will last two years. Long before that, we hope, the Allies will be talking to the Kaiser in Berlin.

• • •

In Garforth on Guy Fawkes' night two women ran along Wakefield Road declaring that they had seen a Zeppelin, and then this neighbour, if anywords transpired that a lad had been experimenting with a couple of toy airships.

• • •

Mr Paul Rhodes, one of the members of the golf club, last week holed the 5th at Cobble Hall, Roundhay—about 430 yards—in one stroke. This is the second time the feat has been accomplished at this hole during the present year.

• • •

How long will the war last? The prophets are busy. Even the soldiers are guessing, and some expect to be home about Christmas, while one local soldier says the war will last two years. Long before that, we hope, the Allies will be talking to the Kaiser in Berlin.

• • •

Thorner and Scarcroft are showing their patriotism. Up to now they have contributed to the Army, Navy, and the Voluntary Aid Detachment are anxious to do what they can. Thorner folks are also giving hospitality to a number of the Belgian Refugees.

• • •

Some of the Wetherby men who are serving their country are having their services recognised. For instance, Edward Gaythorpe, who is now with the Yorkshire Hussars, at Hitchin, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant, Stanley Walker and Harry Wiseman have both been promoted to the rank of corporal.

• • •

Licence-holders warned! At Selby on Monday the Chairman (the Rev. B. Hemsworth) stated that the magistrates found there was a certain amount of drunkenness going on among soldiers. The justices wished it to be known that publicans must exercise care in this matter, otherwise the hours for the sale of liquor would be curtailed.

• • •

Farmers, look out! A correspondent writes:—It is stated that farmers have not been much affected so far by the war. It is to be hoped that their eyes are sufficiently open to the danger of the destruction of stacks and stored crops by enemy incendiaries. The remarkable number of farm fires "from unknown causes" since war broke glut (several of them occurring at short intervals within not very wide areas) indicates the possibility of organised attempts to destroy food supplies, and the necessity of keeping a strict look-out.

EVERY WOMAN

Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1854.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Clarement House, Baldwin Lane, London.

A FORMER CHAIRMAN OF THE SKYRACK BENCH.

THE LATE MR BENSON JOWITT.

MR R. Benson Jowitt, who was for many years chairman of the Wetherby Board of the Leeds General Infirmary, died at Tunbridge Wells, where he had resided since leaving Leeds some years ago.

He was a magistrate for Leeds as well as for the West Riding, having qualified for the city in 1897, and for the county a year later. He was as West Riding Justice of the Peace that he was best known in a judicial capacity. He was one of the most regular attenders at the Court for the Skyrack Division, held at Leeds, and he had been on the Bench when, about the year when, on the late Mr Bothuse E. Wilkinson leaving Leeds in 1893, he was unanimously chosen chairman. One instance of his use in the practice of the Court, he was responsible for. That was the substitution of the hand-up method for the reading of the right hand—for the old-fashioned method of kissing the Testament. It was purely for sanitary reasons that he made the change, which was afterwards adopted in many other Courts throughout the country.

In the city of Leeds his influence College took an active share, as a prominent life governor (for which a donation of £1,000 was made by the Jowitt family), a member of the Council, and a member of the Committee on Technical Instruction in the days when Sir Lenard Lupton was connected with the Leeds University, being a life member of the Court. He was one of the Governors of the Grammar School, a member of the Committee of the Leeds Musket Festival, a trustee of the Leeds Trade Benevolent Society, and for a brief period a member of the Council of the Chamber of Commerce.

In former days he was associated with the East Parade Congregational Chapel, but eventually joined the Church of England, at St Martin's Church, Conservatory, of which he was for several years a warden, he was one of the most energetic workers. He was also a trustee of the Leeds Parish Church, and was a member of the Representatives of the Ripon Diocese in the York House of Laymen.

Politically he was an ardent Liberal, but while the party divided on the Home Rule question in the middle of the 'eighties he became an equally ardent Unionist. His public appearances on the political platform, however, were exceedingly rare, and in later years particularly he took hardly any part in politics.

With so many calls on his time he was yet able to devote himself actively to his business. On leaving school he joined his father—the late Mr John Jowitt, who headed the poll at the first Leeds School Board election, and was afterwards Chairman of the Board—in the oldest-established business of Robt. Jowitt and Sons, wool merchants. His father retired from the concern a few years before his death in the late 'eighties, and from that time until he went to reside at Tunbridge Wells Mr Benson Jowitt—his only son—was head of the firm. For many years he lived at Harehills —the estate now better known as Potternewton Park—which the Corporation acquired from Mr Joseph Ford. He resided at Wetherby from his native city.

At the Skyrack Court on Tuesday the Chairman made a brief reference with the relatives of the late Mr Robert Benson Jowitt, and paid a warm tribute to his memory, commenting on the various institutions in Leeds with which Mr Jowitt was associated, in addition to being chairman of the Skyrack Bench, for many years. On behalf of the legal profession Mr A. Willey also expressed sympathy.

THORNER AND SCARCROFT AND THE WAR.

FORTY MEN SERVING WITH THE COLOURS

THE THORNER CONVALESCENT HOSPITAL.

GENEROUS HOSPITALITY FOR BELGIAN REFUGEES.

We have received a list of the gallant men from Thorner and Scarcroft who are serving their King and country, and it will be observed that included are the names of Lieut. F. C. Ledgard, who died a heroic death on the battlefield, and Captain R. S. Ledgard, his brother, who is a prisoner of war in Germany. Corporal A. Carr, of the Scots Guards, has been wounded, and is now in hospital at Southend-on-Sea.

The names of the men are as follows:— R. Addin, F. Armitage, W. Arrowsmith, J. Bowman, G. Brown, M. Brown, A. Camp, Corporal W. A. Carr (wounded), Cooper, Cowper, G. Dighton, T. Dighton, T. Hambleton, J. Fisher, H. Graham, H. Hanson, H. Hardisty, H. V. Higgs, A. Hollings, H. Hollings, A. Illingworth, H. Limbert, Captain R. S. Ledgard (prisoner of war in Germany), Lieut. F. C. Ledgard (killed in action), W. Metcalfe, B. Miles, A. Neuffton, J. Nettleton, C. Noble, W. Noble, C. Palliser, R. Pickersgill, T. Revis, S. Revis, M. Rhodes, W. Richardson, H. Smith, C. Taylor, H. Warrington, F. Webster, and J. Wensley.

The Vicar, in his magazine, writes:—The sadness of this terrible war is being brought home to many of us by the death on the battlefield of some friend. Mr and Mrs Ledgard and their family, who had recently had heard the glad tidings of the safety of their eldest son, Capt. R. S. Ledgard, are again plunged into grief by the death of their youngest son, Lieut. F. Ledgard, who has been killed in action. Deserved to his a young man of great promise, he has been called at an early age to lay down his life for his country. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend." Trials by the sacrifice of such brave men that the honour of England is today being maintained.

Several interesting letters which have appeared in Thorner magazine have been sent to us for publication.

Miss Hilda Nussey, Commandant of the Beverley-street-Thorner Voluntary Aid Detachment, writes:—

"The Voluntary Aid Detachment received orders from headquarters at York on Saturday, October the 17th, to equip their hospital. On Monday afternoon Major Dobson, who is in charge of the 2nd Northern Hospital of Leeds, inspected the Workmen Sunday School buildings. He pronounced that the sanitary arrangements were not adequate for hospital use, which naturally requires to be of the most perfect type—and tremendous supply of water laid on, etc. The hospital was therefore obliged to be abandoned.

"On Tuesday, October the 20th, Major Dobson asked me to go to Beckett's Park Hospital and discuss if any other scheme were practical. He was very anxious to accept our offer on the recommendation of the Leeds Hospital is generally at present. The stipulation was that we were to have the hospital for a year. A house has been thought about at Bramham, but I feel convinced that a year would be a very long time for us to go backwards and forwards regularly, and therefore it would not undertake the work.

"The money which was collected at the beginning of the war amounted to £37 8s. 3d., about £10 12s. 9d. of which has been spent in material which made up pillow cases, 21 red sleeping jackets, 33 night-shirts, and about 20 pairs of socks and 4 pairs of slipping socks and operating stockings.

Many ladies have been good enough to buy the wool and make socks as well. The Thorner ladies also made some of the pyjama, day shirts, and socks which the Wetherby Fund provided for the Front. Socks have been sent to 12 soldiers personally known to the Thorner ladies, and 28 pairs sent off to Queen Mary's Needlework Guild. The hospital shirts are now still being kept at Brandy Grange. The remainder of the money—£20 12s. 6d.—is deposited in the Thorner Branch of the Barclays Bank, Limited, Smith's Bank, for Mr Mid treasurer's name.

"A meeting will be called to talk over the subscribers whether they wish their money to be returned or given to the Prince of Wales' Fund, the West Riding War Fund, or the St John's Ambulance Association. The most important question, as to whether we could take more from the Front, which, of course, would be a much more expensive affair, will also come up. The villages is very much indebted to the trustees of the Thorner Workmen Chapel for the large room offer which would be free—only paying for the coal—and had proved very practical."

At a meeting recently held it was decided to offer the hospitality of Thorner to three Belgian families, in addition to those already in the village. Mrs. Dorrie's house. The house is suitable for the purpose but has no piano and no lighted house at Wetherby, and could unless there is a Belgian family in the village who would like to have it. Mrs. Dorrie's house. The house is suitable for the purpose but has no piano and no lighted house at Wetherby, and could unless there is a Belgian family in the village who would like to have it.

The entertainment, stated that about £100 point on Sunday, and £50 on Monday, including the proceeds of his motherinlaw's house in Kippax, which the defendant came up and struck him three times with the hoof. Previous to the assault Armitage had been inside the house, where he used abusive language, and he complained that he could not go away.

Mrs South Mead's gate evidence as to the language used by defendant.

The defendant said he assaulted Thorpe and great provocation. Thorpe had called him "abominable" German and he would shoot him. It had been going on for a week or two just because he had sold two pigs to a German not knowing him to be such.

For the assault Armitage was fined 20s. and costs, and 2s. 6d. and costs for the bad language.

AN ALERT STOURTON OFFICER.

PRISONER COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

The story of a smart capture by a Stourton policeman was told in the Skyrack Court on Tuesday, when George Fox, a labourer, of no fixed abode, was charged with being in possession of house-breaking implements at night.

P.C. Wright stated that about 10.55 p.m. on Wednesday, November 4th, he was on duty in Thwaite Lane, Stourton, when he saw the defendant loitering about in a suspicious manner near to Wade's farm, where a considerable number of fowls are kept. Witness asked him why he was about there, and Fox said he was going to Woodlesford. Prisoner was then searched, and a bag and various tools, including a jemmy and a cold chisel, were found upon him. He charged the man with loitering with intent to commit a felony, and he replied "How could I commit a felony when I was walking about?" When Fox was taken in charge with being in possession of housebreaking implements at night Fox replied "Oh, I see, you are doing that are you."

Answering a question put to him by the prisoner, P.C. Wright stated that when he first saw him he was standing near to a building.

Fox was then committed to take his trial at the next assizes.

FLINTS AT ADEL AND TADCASTER.

The Saturday evening lectures during the winter season at the Leeds Philosophical and Literary Society Hall were agreeably opened on Saturday by Lieutenant-Colonel E. Kitson Clark, who snatched a few hours from his military duties to lecture on "Prehistoric Yorkshire." The Rev. W. H. Draper presided.

The lecturer began an interesting story with the findings of flints at Adel, tracing their development from the coarse weapons and implements of the delicate fishhooks and arrow heads. In considering how the flints came to be at Adel, he said it should be remembered that flints were at one time the only implements that could be used. One could not easily cut down trees with flint implements, although by way of experiment this had been done in Denmark with small, soft fir trees. The inference was that there would be found on chalky ground where big trees did not grow. Flint nodules, it might be assumed, were found in chalky ground only, but that did not explain how flints came to be found at Adel, where there was no chalk. Adel was at the head of the hills that led to the Pennines, and, conceivably, was one of the steering places for prehistoric travellers in the stone and bronze ages. Bronze and flint work were found in the valley of York, and the inhabitants of Tadcaster and Stamford Bridge appeared to be conclusive that in those early days there was an invasion from the north-East Coast along a great prehistoric road, which passed through Stamford Bridge, York, Tadcaster, to Adel. This was an interesting road across the country in those days of the Stone Age, and it was his business—the present to prevent a recurrence of that invasion.

A WETHERBY GENTLEMAN WINS.

AN UNSUCCESSFUL APPEAL.

Before Leeds Justices (Messrs. Gilbert Scott, Pennell, in the court of Appeal on Friday, Messrs. William Lee, Wetherby, ironmaster, appealed from a judgment given by Mr. Justice Bucknill in the King's Bench Division on appeal from Mr. Joseph Scott, the magistrates' clerk for Wetherby.

Mr. Spencer, the plaintiffs, sued the latter in June, 1913, Plaintiffs recovered judgment against Mr. Bucknill, Lee, being unsuccessful, paid £250 costs. They directed that he should be entitled to present a motion to appeal, and on June 27th they filed a notice of appeal with a statement that they did not intend to appeal against the whole of the judgment, but only against so much of it as ordered the costs to be paid by the defendant. Plaintiffs contended that by that document the defendant had limited his appeal to the question of costs.

In consideration of Messrs. Wood, T. Attorney, of Grantham, ought not to proceed with the application, as no motion was made. I ought, on behalf of the Bench, to say that Messrs. Wood and T. Attorney, Grantham, £75 on June 30th on account of the costs, and I further ought to pay the balance of account, including all costs, within three months from the about date.—John Stobart Church-wardth, chairman.

The £75 was paid on June 30th by defendant, but default was made in paying the balance, and plaintiffs sued defendant on the document, but defendant contended that the document had signed the document only as agent for the company. Plaintiffs contended that, having regard to the surrounding circumstances, the document must be construed as the personal guarantee of the defendant, given to the plaintiffs to induce them to stay their hands against the company of which defendant was chairman. If it was signed merely for the company, plaintiffs were getting no further security, and there was no object in taking the guarantee. Plaintiffs claimed £214 from defendant.

Mr Coutts-Trotter opposed the appeal, remarking that the document was not so worthless as Mr Spence would have the Court believe. For many cases it was better for creditors to elect to take payment by instalments from a limited company in such circumstances than to resort to winding-up proceedings.

In the result the Court, by a majority, held that the document imposed no personal liability on the defendant, and dismissed the appeal with costs. Lord Justice Phillimore dissented.

TADCASTER PETTY SESSIONS.

MAN WHO PLEADED FOR ANOTHER CHANCE.

At Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday the magistrates present were Messrs C. B. Lamb and J. H. Ingleby.

A poor man, who was passed for Catterton and took off to jail for Bolton Percy, asw will as a library rate of a half-penny and one-sixth of a penny.

George Fidwatch, labourer, of Tadcaster, appeared in an ejectment order case. Asked why he had not got out, he said there were no houses to be got in the town. The Clerk said that he had had nearly six weeks already.—The magistrates made an order for defendant to quit within five days.

John Stevens, labourer, a miscellaneous man, who said he had a job in the Tow ton district, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly in Commercial Street, Tadcaster, on November 8th.—He pleaded guilty.—P.C. Steed said that on Sunday afternoon he found prisoner lying across the footpath in Commercial Street, and when he got him up he saw that he was drunk and unable to stand. He used exceedingly obscene language.—Prisoner said he was very sorry, and he would not touch beer again if they let him off.—He had never been locked up before.—Supt. Slack said the man's language was "most appalling."—Prisoner said that, as they knew, when drink was in wit was out.—Supt. Slack said that nothing was known against prisoner. She was fined 5s. and costs, or, in default, 14 days' imprisonment.

CRUELTY TO GARFORTH PIT PONIES.

GARFORTH LADS IN TROUBLE.

At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Thursday four Garforth boys—John Kershaw (16), Willie Kershaw (14), Harry Armstrong (14), James Walker (15), and Clarence Sewell (14), all pony drivers at the Garforth Colliery, were summoned for cruelty. Liberating three pit ponies belonging to the Garforth Colliery Company.

P.C. Bourne stated that on Sunday, October 25th he was in plain clothes near to the Gas Works, Garforth, when he heard shouting and the clanking of horses' hoofs. Going to the field, he saw Walker, Armstrong and John Kershaw riding bareback on ponies, while the other two defendants were running behind urging on the ponies with shouts, and by striking them with sticks, and by throwing clods of earth at them. After riding round the field the boys who were riding the ponies dismounted, and the other two jumped on the ponies' backs, and the three first defendants commenced urging the ponies on in the same way. Sewell and William Kershaw had not done. Catching sight of the officer, the defendants made off, but were subsequently caught. The animals, which exhibited little hair, were in a state of sweat, and steaming together in a corner of the field. They were all of a father and their nostrils were dilated.

John Kershaw denied liberating the ponies. They were his brothers, Armitage and Sewell were fined 10s. and costs, and Walker, who did not attend the Court, was fined 5s. and costs.

LORD HAREWOOD AND THE SPY PERIL.

SAYS HARROGATE IS A NEST OF SPIES.

Lord Harewood, in regard to the German spy peril, has stated in a newspaper correspondent—

"I think that there has been some improvement since the order prohibiting alien enemies from dwelling within twenty miles of the coast was promulgated, but the power to spy has by no means ceased. There can be no doubt whatever that signals indicating the location of our warships have been sent from the East Coast to the enemy.

"The Absalom, Cressy, and Hogue were trapped in this way, and the Lowestoft raid was due to the same cause. There was a clear case signed merely for the company, plaintiffs were getting no further security, and there was no object in taking the guarantee. Plaintiffs claimed £214 from defendant.

"I also received information that fast motor-cars were flashing signals out to sea.

"I can assure you that it is the fishing boats that provide the link between our coast and the enemy. It is not impossible, I am afraid, that traitors sailing under our own flag have been in the pay of the enemy.

"We must remember that the Germans for years have been perfecting their preparations, and in the most insidious manner. Only two days ago I communicated with the Admiralty with regard to a certain firm.

"Harrogate I believe to be a nest of spies, not so dangerous, of course, as those on the coast, because they are not able to signal directly to the enemy, but still dangerous, and some of the most insidious harm comes from the German wives of naturalised subjects and even of British-born women. I have spoken about telling the poorer people not to worry, and that they will be as well off under the Germans as they are today."

Mysteries—Among the men on the "Monmouth" was Private A. F. Isaset of the Royal Marines, a son of Inspector Isaset, of the Leeds Police Force, who lives at Rose Croft, Fearnville Park, Roundhay. Isaset was 19 years of age, and the last time his parents heard from him was on August 27th.

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS.

SHERBURN, KIPPAX, SCHOLES, AND ALLERTON AFFAIRS.

The fortnightly meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held at the workhouse, Tadcaster, on Monday—Walter Crosland, J.P. (vice-chairman) presiding. The other members present were the Rev. Canon Greenwood (Grimston), Messrs W. Sykes, C.C., J. H. Ingleby, J.P., and J. Nettleton (Tadcaster), W. Nicholson (Stutton Grange), T. H. Prater (Poppleton), R. Wright (Bramham), A. Chippindale (Scholes), E. Parkin, J.P., and A. Towrend (Kippax), W. Carson and F. Phillips (Allerton Bywater), A. Johnson (South Milford), G. Webster (Huddlestone-cum-Lumby), R. H. Hirst (Aldeton Bryan), and J. V. Wheatley (Appleton Roebuck), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Bramley), the surveyor (Mr T. Scott), and the sanitary inspectors (Messrs Driver and Wood). Mr W. S. Blackburn signed the declaration and took his seat as the representative for Sutlington.

ASSESSMENT COMMITTEE

The first business was the appointment of a member of the Assessment Committee in place of the late Mr J. W. Blackburn.

Mr Lowes proposed the election of Mr W. S. Blackburn.

Mr Brotherton seconded.

Mr Hey proposed that Mr Ladley be appointed.

Mr Hoult was seconded.

Mr Ladley was elected by a small majority.

Mr Blackburn was appointed a member of the Relief Committee.

The treasurer to the Board was reported to have a balance of £2,246 in hand.

THE HOUSE

The master's report showed that during the fortnight there had been four admissions to the workhouse, one discharge, and one death. The number of inmates in the workhouse was 91, and in the children's home 25—as against 106. The tramps relieved during the two weeks were 25 and 22 against 14 and 18 for the corresponding weeks of last year.

At a meeting of the House Committee it was reported that the district relief had fixed £12,000 as the gross value of the workhouse and £2,000 as site value. The committee suggested £9,000 as gross value and £800 as site value.

Garforth, Kiddal Lane, Aberford, and South Milford were suggested as bread stations in connection with the way ticket scheme.

Miss Clarke was appointed general assistant at the workhouse.

The price of flour offered by Messrs Rishworth, Ingleby, and Lofthouse for November, being the same as October, was accepted.

The minutes were adopted.

COUNTY CALL

Mr Prater, on behalf of the Finance Committee, reported an increase of £6,000 on the Urban rate, or £1,861 more than the corresponding half of last year, and £689 more than the last half-year. The main increases were for education and police.

FUTURE PROVISION

A letter was read from a Union asking the Board to support a resolution urging the Government to provide increased pensions for soldiers and sailors and allowances for dependents of men killed along the lines of the Compensation Act.

Mr Chippindale said that they had already decided to support a somewhat similar resolution, and he proposed that they support the one now before them.

Mr J. J. Foster seconded, and said that they ought to show their sympathy in this matter.

This was agreed to.

DISTRICT COUNCIL

At a meeting of the District Council it was stated that the treasurer had a balance of £6,836 in hand.

Mr Blackburn was appointed a member of the Highways and Sanitary Committees.

For the vacancy on the Small Pox Hospital Committee Mr Crosland and Mr Parkin were proposed, and the former was elected.

HIGHWAYS COMMITTEE

The Highways Committee minutes showed that a sum of £270 was expended on district roads during the fortnight. It was reported that there had been an encroachment on the road at Scholes by the building of a wall in front of some houses, and the owner is to be asked to remove the wall.

It was reported that there was a dangerous crossing at Ledston owing to the beck side having given way, and the matter will come up for next meeting.—Letters from Sherburn were reported of Allerton Bywater, Sherburn, Kippax, and Tadcaster, and the parties concerned are to be written to.—Permission was given to open a road at Lofthouse in connection with a scaffer.—A letter was received from the county surveyor with reference to the lopping of trees and cutting of hedges overhanging main roads.—It was stated that the offer to give yard for land for a road improvement at Ryther had been accepted.—No reply had been received from the owner of land in connection with the proposed improvement at Sherburn Cross, and steps are to be taken to acquire the land necessary for the improvement.

The minutes were approved.

SANITARY AND BUILDING

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee plans for the erection of new houses at Robinson Lane, Kippax, were approved.—Property in High Street, Kippax, was reported to be without sufficient spouting and fall-pipes, and a notice was ordered to be served on the owner.—The inspector was instructed to have the manhole covers in Swillington put into a proper state of repair.—Plans for alterations to House by John Smith's of Garforth, were passed.—A notice was ordered to be served on an owner at Church Fenton to put his property in order.—A Kippax owner's grave sinking fund he was willing to put it to use in order, and the inspector was asked to meet him.—In regard to several houses at Tadcaster closing orders had been made, and the owners now wrote stating they desired to carry out the necessary repairs. It was agreed that the closing orders be postponed and that the necessary repairs must be put in hand at once.

The medical officer reported that during October there had been 69 births and 24 deaths, and 28 cases of infectious disease were notified.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/–, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 5
40	1 0	2 0	3 6	6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s. per inch	per insertion.
26 do.	1od. do.	do.
52 do.	8d. do.	do.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, WITH BOOKINGS FROM CROSSGATES AND HARROGATE.
Wednesday, 18th Nov., 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby, 1.32 p.m. to Goole and Hull. Saturday, 21st Nov., 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby.
For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

ROTHWELL JOINT CEMETERY BOARD.

THE above Board are prepared to receive APPLICATIONS for the POSITION OF CLERK. Salary £25 per annum.
Applications, with copies of two testimonials, and endorsed "Clerk," to be sent not later than November 16th, to John Hirst, Chatham House, Rothwell, Leeds.

WANTED Good GENERAL SERVANT, 18-20.—Apply, English, Beulah House, Crossgates. 3 2568

WANTED GENERAL SERVANT, 18-22. No Cooking.—Apply, 140, Chapeltown Road, Leeds. 2560

BUTCHERING.—A Strong LAD, One who can dress a sheep preferred.—Stratford, Boston Spa. 2602

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, chiefly housework. Three in family.—Apply, Green, "Jesmond," Selby Road, Whitkirk, near Leeds. 1

WANTED Strong DAY GIRL. No Sunday work.—Mrs Booth, 30, Hollyshaw Lane, Whitkirk. 2565

WANTED 3 Respectable ENGLISHMEN as LODGERS. No others need apply.—Mrs Flockton, 3, Bentley Square, Oulton, near Leeds. 3 2571

WANTED, Good GENERAL SERVANT. Age 20-25. Reference required.—Apply, Mrs. Grisdale, 27, St. Michael's Crescent, Headingley, Leeds. 3 2601

FOR SALE.

28 DAYS' GRANDFATHER CLOCK for Sale. Good going order.—Apply, Jackson, Watchmaker, Austhorpe Road, Cross-gates. 1

PIG—POTATOES, 1 cwt per Bag (to stone), CABBAGE PLANTS. Drumbeade, Leeds Market, Rods, Sawns, 2/6 per 1,000, cash.—Thos. Hookem, Scarcroft, near Leeds. 1 1876

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES, &c. MUSIC for Sale. 1 copies—Robin Hood & Earl Rivers, Daughter 31, Bishopsgate Rock 25. Practically new. Half-price or best offers.—H. Pawson, Micklefield, Leeds. 2 1804

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free, 2 Stamps —(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10. daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs W. Wood, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. special 5s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.

Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
Dental Rooms,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8,
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE,
(Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS).
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0	10	0	for 3½d. per month.
£1	0	0	,, 5d. ,, ,,
£2	0	0	,, 10d. ,, ,,
£3	0	0	,, 1s. 0d. ,, ,,
£5	0	0	,, 1s. 8d. ,, ,,
£7	10	0	,, 2s. 8d. ,, ,,
£10	0	0	,, 3s. 4d. ,, ,,

Same above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE 4 LADY LANE LEEDS.

MR and MRS. TURNER
7 Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited.
Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 2417

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ROTHWELL URBAN DISTRICT WAR RELIEF COMMITTEE.

A MEETING OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE will be held on MONDAY NEXT, November 16th, at the COUNCIL OFFICES, ROTHWELL, at 7 p.m.
All members are respectfully requested to attend as private notices will not be sent out.
By order of the Committee,
H. J. Rennie,
W. Dobson,
Joint Hon. Secretaries.

WEST RIDING INSURANCE COMMITTEE.

CHANGE OF DOCTOR AT END OF MEDICAL YEAR.

ANY INSURED PERSON who desires for the new medical year commencing on the 1st JANUARY NEXT TO BE PLACED UPON THE PANEL LIST OF A DOCTOR other than that of the doctor upon which he is now, must GIVE NOTICE to that effect to the undersigned before 1st DECEMBER, and such notice must be accompanied by the brown medical card.
When a Doctor is on military service his fellow practitioners upon the Panel are usually willing during his absence to give free treatment to his panel patients. In such cases a transfer need not be asked for.
H. VIVIAN DIXON.
County Hall, Wakefield, November, 1914.

CROSSGATES BAPTIST FELLOWSHIP.

LECTURE HALL, WHITKIRK—TUESDAY, November 17th, at 8.
LECTURE—
"TEMPERANCE SAM."
By Mr J. Owen.
Chairman—Mr Haxton.
Membership Fee, 3d.

CROSSGATES and DISTRICT FARMERS' CLUB.

GOVERNMENT SCHEME FOR IMPROVEMENT IN HORSES.

An Address will be given by Mr W. R. CRAWFORD, of Leeds University, on above subject at the BROWN COW INN, WHITKIRK, on WEDNESDAY, Nov. 18th, at 7.30 p.m.

All Farmers are cordially invited to attend.

SAXTON AND DISTRICT PLOUGHING MATCH.

ON WEDNESDAY, NOV. 18th, 1914. (Weather Permitting).
ENTRIES CLOSE MONDAY, NOV. 16th.
E. Stoker, Secretary.

TEMPLE NEWSAM.

IN consequence of REGULATIONS ISSUED BY THE WAR OFFICE NO INTOMCANTS ARE ALLOWED to be SUPPLIED or GIVEN to BELGIAN SOLDIERS.
Certain The Honourable Edward F. L. Wood desires that NO PERSON WILL OFFER ANY INTOMCANTS to any of the SOLDIERS or REFUGEES in the NEIGHBOURHOOD of TEMPLE NEWSAM.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

Every Evening at 7 o'clock, except
SATURDAY: Two Performances at 6.30 & 8.30
WEEK COMMENCING NOVEMBER 16th.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
Sole Exclusive Rights for this district.
Pictorial Record of the GREAT EUROPEAN WAR.
Nothing has ever been seen in Garforth to equal it.
THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY—
"THE RAGE OF WAR."
A Sensational Western Drama in three parts. Astounding Feats of Horsemanship.
Children's Matinee on Saturday at 2.30. Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

BARKER'S
FIRST ANNUAL SALE.
PLAYER PIANOS. PIANOS & ORGANS.
£16.—ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND, by Meszler. Tape check repeating action. Only shop-soiled. Cost 80guns. Sale Price £45.
£15.—PLAYER PIANO, quite new, 65-note, with all the latest attachments and pedals. Sale Price £20.
£20.—J. AND J. HOPKINSON, iron frame, check repeating action, walnut case; rare bargain. Sale Price £36.
£36.—BRINSMEAD OVERSTRUNG, ivory keys, rosewood case. List price, 55 guineas. Sale Price £18.
£18.—SCHIEDMAYER, second-hand rosewood case; had practically no use whatever, 50 guinea model. Sale Price £100.
£100.—KIRKMAN, mahogany case, very pleasing tone; exceptional bargain. Sale Price £9.
£9.—WADDINGTON ROSEWOOD PIANO, good condition. Very suitable for learner. Sale Price £20.
£53.—COLLARD AND COLLARD ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND, overstrung, only shop-soiled. Sale Price £36.
£36.—BECHSTEIN, ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND. Discounted regardless of cost. Sale Price £42.
£42.—BECHSTEIN, ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND. Discounted regardless of cost. Sale Price £100.
£100.—KIRKMAN, mahogany case, very pleasing tone; exceptional bargain. Sale Price £9.
£9.—WADDINGTON ROSEWOOD PIANO, good condition. Very suitable for learner. Sale Price £20.
£20.—J. AND J. HOPKINSON, iron frame, check repeating action, walnut case; rare bargain. Sale Price £36.
£36.—BRINSMEAD OVERSTRUNG, ivory keys, rosewood case. List price, 55 guineas. Sale Price £18.
£18.—SCHIEDMAYER, second-hand rosewood case; had practically no use whatever, 50 guinea model

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday Rothwell Parish Church had a League match with Waterloo Main Old Boys at Rothwell Hall ground, Hitchin started for the homesters up the slope, and his side were quickly on the aggressive, so much so that Cooper, the visitors' custodian, was called upon to defend his charge. Waterloo then worked their way down the field and Bradley was tested. For the next few moments play was kept in the visitors' half until Clark tricked Stringer and passed to McGregor, who opened out the play, carrying the ball well within the danger zone, but only to be stopped off it by Gregg. However, the ball was kicked off short, and it was not long before Bradley was again called upon. His clearing kick placed the leather well among the forwards, but the subsequent movement was fruitless one. At the opposite end Wise missed a very easy chance, after beating the homesters' backs. A little later Clark missed a grand opportunity. A foreign appeal then set play with a splendid shot, and Stringer might have had a second goal, but he shot badly. At the interval the score was still equal to nothing in favour of the Rothwell three. In the second half the play was of a scrappy nature, Stringer increased the Rothwell total, while Wise, for the visitors, missed another easy chance.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHURCH.—A concert with the Primitive Methodist Church on Saturday a treat was in store for an old-known Rothwell lady and organist, Mrs. Cockroft, for whose benefit were contributed by Miss Ivy Thurwell, Miss Lunn, and Mr Jesse Kilburn. Glees were rendered in excellent style by the choir, and Mr J. Scaife, of Woodlesford, in reading Miss Dolly Gray, received a point encored by Mr Raymond Ellis (who, by the way, was the Chairman) on the striking of the hour of 8 o'clock, and a pianoforte solo was skilfully performed by Miss Southwart. Mr J. C. Harrison was the accompanist. During the evening the Rev. W. G. Sothby (Pastor) was pleased to give a statement as to the financial result of the special services held in connection with the installation of the new organ. The expenses incurred by the new organ and renovation of the chapel amounted to about £330, while the total raised was £290, including £46 2s. 8d., the gross income thereof from the opening ceremony and subsequent efforts. The debt left is, therefore, £60, and it is anticipated that of this amount a large sum will be paid off in various ways. An arrangement has been made with Mr Pickard, F.R.C.O., and organist at the Central Mission, Leeds, to give a recital during the early part of January, while the teachers of the Sunday School are preparing an effort.

ALLERTON BYWATER

The Rev. Ivo Harry Boon has been licensed to act as curate in Allerton Bywater, and to officiate in St. John's Mission Room, Lofthouse Gate.

FOOTBALL.—In the first round of the Leeds Hospital Football Cup Competition Lock Lane Institute were defeated by East Ardsley by two goals to one. Lock Lane Ws., however, beat Hunslet Amateurs by six to nil.

BARWICK

DOGGY CASE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Edwin Backhouse, clerk, of Barwick, was fined 1s. and costs for not having his name on the collar of a dog which he owned.

BOWERS ALLERTON.

MISSION HALL.—The members of the Friday Night Young Men's Bible Class were favoured on Friday evening with a visit from Mr F. E. Hewitt, of Leeds, who gave a lecture on "Familiar sayings, their origin, and meaning." There was an attendance of fifty young men, and the lecturer held their attention for an hour. The meeting was presided over by the esteemed teacher of the class, Mr Walter Blackburn. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr Hewitt, being moved by Mr Ismay Robinson, and seconded by Mr A. Fudge. The lecturer, in replying, said it had been a pleasure for him to visit such a class as he thought it would be impossible to find such a body of young men meeting on a Friday night either in the city of Leeds or in more thickly populated districts.

MISSION HALL BAND OF HOPE.—This society celebrated its 20th anniversary festival last week end. On Sunday two excellent sermons were preached by Mr J. Cockroft, of Leeds, and in the afternoon a service of song, entitled "Watermill Hollow," was given by the choir, under the leadership of Mr W. Blackburn. Miss Beatrice Robinson presided at the harmonium with excellent manner, and Miss Spink presided at the piano, while the Chairman was Mr Lockwood. On Monday evening the annual "at home" was held. The Band of Hope children had been specially trained by Miss Alison Parker and Miss E. Davidson, and they went through a programme of action songs, popular songs, and pianoforte recitations. A pianoforte solo was given by Mr C. Stockwell, and a pianoforte duet by Misses Davidson and Laing. The concluding piece was a musical sketch, "Our Sunday Land," eleven part in by 30 children. All acquitted themselves well, and reflected great credit on the two young ladies who had trained them. The self-denial box was crowded by an appreciative audience. Mrs. Beatrice Bullock presided. A very timely address was given by the esteemed local schoolmaster, Mr. O. B. Milnes, on "Advice to Mothers."

CROSSGATES

Crossgates Cricket Club has given £1 4s. 6d. (first donation) to the Leeds National Relief Fund.

The members of Crossgates Recreation Hall Tennis Club have sent £1 2s. to the Leeds Belgian Refugee Fund.

Mr Cyril will give a lecture on "Templetownism" in connection with the Baptist Brotherhood at Whitkirk on Tuesday evening. See advt.

At a meeting of the Wesley Guild on Wednesday evening Mr A. W. Dyson gave an address on "Fiction," with a review of "John Holdfast, Gentleman," by Mrs Caffyn.

Mr Percy C. Binns, of Crossgates, who was for several years captain of Whitkirk F.C., and a member of the Executive of Barkston Ash Football Association, has been given a commission as second lieutenant in the Miners' Battalion, K.O.Y.L.I., and is now in training at Ferndene Park, Otley.

CROSS-GATES.—A match in the Leeds and District League was played at Leeds between Crossgates Institute and Headingley, and it was drawn—three games each. G. W. Beaumont defeated F. Schofield, 2-1; Dewar beat Hall, 2-0; H. Brown, whilst C. Holliday also won a good game. The losers on Crossgates side were J. E. Waller, J. H. Moss, and G. Williams.

ASTBURY.—A case of anthrax has been notified on a farm at Crossgates, Astbury, which is within a week in the Leeds city boundary. The first occurred at Coldridge, a few days ago, and all the customary precautions were at once taken by Mr G. F. Bowman, veterinary inspector to the Leeds Corporation. The case at Crossgates was reported about the middle of last week, and a microscopic examination of the blood of the cow confirmed the opinion that the animal was suffering from anthrax. The remainder of the herd have since been examined, and are stated to be healthy. There has been no spread of the disease.

At the meeting of the Literary Society on Monday night next Mr R. Mackay, of Whitkirk, will lecture on "Some chronicles of an ancient kingdom," which deals with our own district. See advt.

ANNIVERSARY.—The anniversary of the Crossgates Baptist Church was celebrated during the weekend. On Saturday afternoon a service was held in the chapel, and the preacher was the Rev. Mr Shipley. A public tea was subsequently provided in the lecture hall, and in the evening an interesting lecture on "Through Judea with a camera" was delivered by Mr Shipley. At the conclusion the usual votes of thanks was passed on the call of the Rev. J. Miller Hamilton, and carried by Mr Diggle. On Sunday the special preacher was the Rev Murray Page, of Blenheim Chapel, Leeds, and the services were of a high character. At the evening service Mrs Greenwood gave an effective rendering of the solo "Abide with me." The proceeds of the anniversary amounted to over £45.

LITERARY SOCIETY.—On Saturday afternoon between 30 and 40 members of Crossgates Literary Society visited Leeds City Art Gallery and were addressed by the curator, Mr Frank Rutter, on "The advantages of art study." He recommended frequent visits, not annual or spasmodic, and instanced a well-known barrister who, when in court at the Assizes or Sessions, spent many odd 10 or 15 minutes in the Gallery in the intervals between cases, in contemplation of his favourite pictures, refreshing, refreshed to his labours. It was often said that familiarity breeds contempt, but this was only true with regard to the mediocre and the inferior; familiarity with the best only increased the realization of its worth. In the realm of literature the same applied; a good book was only fully appreciated on a third or fourth reading, while ephemeral work was discovered after one perusal. A great artist had said there was no such thing as ugliness in nature, only some objects were less beautiful than others. In the Central Hall an exhibit of Chinese porcelain was contrasted with one of Delft ware fashioned after similar designs, and the superiority of the former in workmanship and texture was exposed. The classic plaster casts, Japanese bronzes and the exhibits of Leeds pottery were then inspected. The oil paintings and water colours were described and their beauties pointed out, and the Phil May exhibits also proved of much interest. The collection of etchings were then shown and two of these well illustrated the artist's theme, about beauty. The etcher had been the first to discover beauty in scaffolding poles, and in this instance art had revealed beauty in an unexpected place. Mr E. H. Dewhurst, (President), on behalf of the members, tendered their thanks to Mr Rutter for his kindness in acting as escort, and also for his admirable address. Mr Taylor supported, and Mr Rutter suitably responded.

GARFORTH

The churchwardens of Garforth Church have sent £4 8s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

DRINK.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Frederick Day, 69, waterman, of Garforth was convicted for having been drunk and disorderly at Garforth on Friday, October 30th. P.C. Hogg proved the case, and the defendant pleaded guilty. Last language. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

APPOINTMENTS.—The Worshipful Philip Vernon Smith, LL.D., Chancellor of the Diocese of Ripon, has appointed the Venerable Archdeacon Blenkinsopp (Archdeacon of Richmond), Rural Dean, and Rector of Methley, and the Rev. T. E. R. Wilson, M.A. (rector of Garforth), to be surrogates for marriage licences in the Diocese of Ripon.

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday afternoon Garforth played South Milford in the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition at South Milford, and the homesters won by the substantial margin of four goals to nil. The scorers were Green (2), Chilton, and Grayson. Both teams played in the same colours, and Garforth have lodged an objection to the match on this ground.

B.W.T.A.—The members of the Y branch of Garforth B.W.T.A. held their fortnightly meeting on Tuesday night at the residence of Mrs Chaffey. It took the form of a "Speakers' evening," and the questions asked related to drink and were answered by the members. Miss Cook rendered a solo and a recitation was given by Miss Wesserman. A very enjoyable time was spent.

WESLEY GUILD.—A large and appreciative audience assembled on Monday night to hear Mr S. Shipley, of the Leeds Band of Hope, on "The songs of life." The paper was conceived with much purpose, and it was read in very effective style. The paper was on excellent one, quotations from Burns, Carlyle, Emerson, Kipling, and others giving it a greater interest. A hearty vote of thanks to the essayist was moved by Mr Dodd, seconded by Mr. C. A. Bolmer-ridge, and passed. Rev. E. Ross presided.

THE GARFORTH WOMEN'S GIFTS TO THE SOLDIERS.—Recently the women of Garforth sent gifts of socks, body belts, etc., to the soldiers, and the following reply has been received by Mrs H. H. Darby (Town Street, Piccadilly):—"The Lady in Waiting presents her compliments to Mrs Darby, and is commanded by the Queen to express to her and through her to the members of the Garforth Branch of the Leeds Queen Mary's Needlework Guild Her Majesty's most grateful thanks for their gifts. The Queen deeply appreciates the kind interest to her appeal."

PICTURE HOUSE.—Naturally everyone is intensely interested in the war and all connected with it, and the programme at the Picture House this week-end will, therefore, appeal strongly to this feeling. Pictures of the King, the principal pictures depict the training of our fighting men, and the views of the camps at Doncaster and the Lords "Pals" are opportune. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday next week, crowded "Scenes of life" will be the rule, for a pictorial record of the great European war is to be filmed. The management have obtained the sole rights for this district, and it is stated that nothing to equal the pictures has ever been seen in Garforth. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the leading feature will be "Our Navy," and

WETHERBY CHAMBER OF AGRICULTURE.

DECLINE TO CONSIDER WORKERS' UNION'S PROGRAMME.

FOOD SUPPLIES AND THE WAR.

A meeting of the Wetherby and District Chamber of Agriculture was held at Wetherby on Thursday, when several matters of interest were discussed. Mr J. Thompson (president) was in the chair, and others present included, Messrs A. Barnett, E. Barkworth, A. H. Whitehead, J. H. Eltoft, G. P. Wright, C. Sherston, H. Crossley, J. Jackson, W. Weller, Spencely, J. H. Thompson (secretary), etc.

Letters of apology were received from Major Dent and Mr T. Dawson, both of whom expressed their regret at their inability to be present.

AGRICULTURAL WORKERS' UNION.

The President said it was undesirable to discuss very fully the programme of the Agricultural Workers' Union, as it was obvious to every farmer that the proposals of the Union, if adopted, would certainly drive a great deal of land out of cultivation, and would decimate the country of livestock, as it would be impossible to have animals properly looked after in the hours proposed by the Union.

Mr G. P. Wright: The less we say about it the better. The absolute absurdity of the whole thing will bring it to grief.

After a brief discussion it was unanimously agreed, on the motion of Mr Wright, seconded by Mr Sherston, to allow the matter from the Union to lie on the table.

FOOD SUPPLIES AND THE WAR.

The President said that the Government were approaching agriculturists on the question of food supplies during the present war, and had formed a central committee, who in turn had nominated county committees. He had the honour of being appointed a member of the Yorkshire Committee. There had not yet been any meetings of the county committees, but he supposed they would soon be put on a proper basis, so that the Government would be able to buy all their requirements direct from the farmers. He was not going to say a word about the middle man, who, in many cases, was absolutely necessary, and they would never be able to eliminate him entirely. But it would be well if the operations of the middle-man were subjected to more supervision, for it would be to the advantage of producers and purchasers alike. Various suggestions had been made in connection with this subject of food supply as to an increased production of wheat. If they were to increase the area of wheat production they would run one or two risks. In the first place all land was not suitable for growing wheat, and that was a fact not appreciated by the general public. It was argued that a great deal of land now under grass was capable of growing wheat. For himself, he hoped that the best of our old pastures which had taken fifty or one hundred years to get into their present state of maturity would never be broken up. There were three million acres of land which had gone out of cultivation and had been turned into very poor grass land which supplied very little food for man or beast. Some of that land might come under the plough, but much of it contained a large quantity of insect pests, and crops would suffer badly when it was brought under cultivation. Another point to be considered was that if farmers were expected to grow an abnormal quantity of wheat the Government must guarantee them something like a reasonable minimum price, or at least give them a chance of making a small margin of profit. (Hear, hear).

Mr Spencely said he thought it would be very foolish for a farmer to grow wheat on land that would carry any stock or sell. He would put the plough on acre that would carry stock in order to grow wheat.

Mr Crossley said a great many horses had come into the district and large supplies of hay and corn would be needed. He found that quite recently the Army people came to buy through a second man, who offered the farmers a very low price for what was wanted.

Mr Sherston remarked that the little pamphlet sent out by Leeds University had a good deal of sense in it. It suggested that if a little more land were put down to wheat it would do no harm. Farmers could not live on wheat and nothing else. They had horses to feed, and they must also look forward to the future. Land ploughed up would not grow much to start with, and it would take ten years before it would again become grass. He hoped that farmers would be able to do something in providing for the Army, and that any profit formerly made by the middle man would now be made by the Government, while the farmers would receive a bit higher price. In the West of England they looked at it very much as a way in which the farmer could do his little bit towards helping at this time. He agreed that they should not be made to do more than with altogether, but if they could help the Government by direct dealing they ought to do so.

The President said if the committees did their work satisfactorily and were supported by the farmers the matter would not end with this year, but would go on continuously. Land now under bad grass would be much more profitably employed in growing good crops provided they did not have the labour difficulty up against them.

The subject then dropped.

SWINE FEVER ORDERS

The President said the next item on the agenda paper had reference to swine fever orders, but he had nothing to say on the question.

Mr Crossley expressed the opinion that the best thing to be done would be to knock off the restrictions altogether. They had been in force for years, and had done no good. It was a shame to keep killing off pigs.

The President: Don't you think matters would be still worse if there were no regulations at all?

Mr Crossley said he thought the serum treatment should receive a fair trial.

The President said it had been pointed out at the General Chamber of Agriculture that in America the injection of serum had been a fruitful source of the spread of the disease. They actually gave the animal the disease and it then spread the infection. The only advantage was that the cases of acquired disease were not so severe nor so fatal as the natural. He was afraid there was not much to be said for the serum treatment.

Mr Sherston thought it should not go forth that this Chamber was in favour of entirely doing away with the regulations.

Mr Crossley then moved, and Mr Jackson seconded: "That in the opinion of this meeting the swine fever regulations are too stringent and should be relaxed and limited to one mile around the place where the disease exists."

This was agreed to, and the proceedings ended.

TEMPLENEWSAM RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION.

TRAMS TO HALTON—DISTRESS COMMITTEE.

THE TOWN-PLANNING SCHEME FOR THE DISTRICT

The monthly meeting of Templenewsam Ratepayers' Association was held in the Wesleyan School Institute, Halton, on Monday—Mr J. M. Arnett (President) in the chair.

Councillor Verity, in reply to a question said that the application to run tram cars to Halton would involve little extra expense, but the Council had to consider Mr Martin. Have you got the consent of the Local Government Board to expend the money?—Councillor Verity: Yes, and I think we can do it for about £1,000. We have got that sum out of loan, and it is favourably rated.—Mr Verity: About 48 per cent., I believe.

A discussion ensued on the extension of the tramway to Halton, and Mr Young said it would be a great convenience to the people who lived on the outskirts of Halton was strongly in favour of a tramway service.—Mr Martin said the trams would be a good convenience for the people, but Mr Thompson said that the extension of the trams would be an inducement for Leeds people to come out for week-end visits. Councillor Verity: Corporation put forward another connection scheme.—Mr Young: Will the trams run through Templenewsam?—Mr Verity: We are running to Moortown and Harehills, and the clutches of Leeds.—Mr Cousins said the tramway was to be in Halton, Colton, and Whitkirk.—Councillor Cass: Halton is the only place that wants the cars.—Mr Young said that at the public meeting the people was that Halton people wanted cars and Whitkirk people did not.—Mr Martin: Can we say whether we want the cars to be charged?—Mr Verity: We cannot say anything until we see what the charges are, and then, if necessary, the District Council can approach the City Council.

Whitkirk people were then brought up again for discussion, and Mr Martin said that no one had any objection to that part of the scheme, but the objection to Halton was a common field, and they implied that they could not pay rates, as the grass was too long, and it was wet.—Mr Verity said they had been a good deal of fault finding with the present tramway ground. It had been given, and he thought they should be satisfied with it.—Mr Martin said the starting of the grass would not cost much.—Mr Young said he thought the Parish Council would do the work if they were asked.—The hon. sec. said he would mention it to Mr Thompson, and the matter then dropped.

—Mr Cass asked if there were not too children in Whitkirk.—The hon. sec. said that when the school census was taken there were 166 from 6 months upwards, and two were going to school.—Councillor Cass included Whitkirk, and Green Lane to the Avenue.

Mr Ripon, in reply, to a question, said that the Distress Committee were actively engaged, and he did never seen such times to get work. Everybody, the attendance at the meetings being excellent. They were receiving £12 per week, and they would get more could be sent. Finding that they had a field of something like £72, and considering that distress was not very marked in the district, the Committee decided to rent the field of Mr Hall, the Belgian Relief Fund. He pointed out that of the money collected they sent 25 per cent. to the West Riding Distress Fund for the relief of distress in other districts, and should increase or have a call on the West Riding Fund.—Mr Coulds said he knew of one.—Mr Coulds said only one had been mentioned in the district.—Mr Atkinson said that the collectors in connection with the Distress Committee were asked to get the names of the men serving with the colours, and he could say that 1,000 Belgian Relief Fund had sent more men to the Army than it was given credit for.—Mr Young mentioned that some of the poorest people in the parish were subscribing to the Fund very well.

At the invitation of the Association, Mr W. B. Pindar, Clerk to Hunslet District Council, attended to give an explanation of the Templenewsam town-planning scheme, and he had a very cordial reception. He said it was nearly two years since he had the pleasure of addressing the members on this important question, and it was the Templenewsam Ratepayers' Association who gave the necessary impetus to the prosecution of the scheme in its initial stage. There was some gratification in knowing that by the time Mr Hunslet District Council was ready the first scheme to be prepared by a rural council in Yorkshire, and it was extremely probable that it would be the first scheme to be completed by a rural council in England and Wales. The map he had got was not the final one; it embodied proposals put forward by the Council, but they were open to many changes. The map and explanation had already been submitted to a conference of owners, and were now deposited at the Council's offices, so that they could be seen by anyone interested in order that they might make suggestions which appeared to be desirable. One or two suggestions had been made and they would be considered. In a most interesting way Mr Pindar then explained the scheme, showing the proposed new roads, open spaces, etc., and he answered many questions relative to the scheme.—Mr Young, at the close, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr Pindar, to whom they were very grateful. He was always willing to give them information about local matters, and they could always depend on its reliability.—Mr Ripon, in seconding, said that those who knew Mr Pindar expected nothing from him but courtesy and thoughtfulness. The town-planning scheme was to be a very fine thing for the district.—The resolution was agreed to, and Mr Pindar said it had been one of the greatest encouragements in the world that the Ratepayers' Association took so much interest in work of that kind.

LEEDS HOSPITAL CUP—DRAW FOR SECOND ROUND.

A meeting of the Leeds Hospital Cup Committee was held at the Hospital Committee Rooms, Park Square, on Monday night.

A protest by Garforth White Rose against the result of their match with South Milford last Saturday was considered until Friday evening, an Emergency Committee being appointed to deal with it.

The draw for the second round resulted as follows:—

Lock Lane Woodville v. Pontefract, Reference, W. Lupton.

Woodhouse, Britannia v. Glasshoughton, Reference, W. Sanderson.

South Milford or Garforth White Rose v. Fryston Colliery, Referee, H. Field.

East Leeds Harehills or Thornhill v. Leeds Albion v. Clarence Ironworks. Referee, H. W. Ledger.

Methley Perseverance v. Leeds Harehills Referee, R. W. Smithers.

Great Preston White Rose v. Heckmondwike Referee, M. Jeffs.

East Ardsley v. Ahlafs Albion. Referee, W. Thompson.

Rothwell Parish Church v. New Wortley Gas Works. Referee, H. Millburn.

To be played on Saturday, November 28th.

BRAMHAM MOOR HUNT.

RUN IN WETHERBY DISTRICT.

The Bramham Moor Hounds had a nice gallop on Friday with about a third of the usual followers present. They found immediately in Ingmanthorpe Big Wood, and after a turn round the cover by Sandbeck Nook. Near to Wetherby he turned up the set-pot-boiler course and crossing the railway ran on in the direction of Walton. He turned left after that, and then crossed the railway, going on nearly to Thorpe Arch Whins, by Flint Mill, to Horn Bank. Here there were a couple of foxes, but hounds ran straight on nearly to Wetherby Bridge. Near Mr Gaunt's the fox got in a drain at the water, till 12 minutes from finding, and on Farrelly holding for him turned after to hear and a scurrying for him turned after to hear and a scurrying for him he bolted him and was killed. They found again in the Willow Garth, and though several foxes were on foot none was moved to ground.

PROPOSED PICRIC ACID FACTORY AT STOURTON.

HOME OFFICE INQUIRY.

Major Cooper Key, Chief Inspector on Explosives to the Home Office, held an inquiry on the 4th inst. at Leeds, in connection with the application of Messrs Brotherton and Co., chemical manufacturers, of Leeds and other places, for permission to manufacture picric acid at their works at Stourton.

The subject of the application had been before the West Riding magistrates sitting in Leeds, but the magistrates declined to grant the necessary licence.

Mr Arthur Wild appeared for the applicants, and in opposing the application were Mr R. H. Hopkins, Assistant Chief Constable, and Mr Jones, Solicitor to the Yorkshire Copper Works. Mr Armitage for the Rothwell Urban District Council to whose area it is proposed to extend.

The Inspector said he had viewed the works that morning, and had read the shorthand notes of evidence at the magisterial inquiry. In the latter part of the inquiry it was stated that he and the other officer had visited the works. As a matter of fact he had never been in Leeds before. He could not imagine how the statement came to be made, but possibly it might have arisen from the visit of some emissary of the War Office. One point that would arise was as to whether the proposed site was the best to be obtained. In laying down regulations, the authorities had to draw the line somewhere, but so long as a firm conformed to the requirements as to the particular case it was entitled to its licence. Provided there was only 2cwtslb. of picric acid in any one place or "risk" the Home Office considered that there was a chance of an explosion from picric acid itself. That quantity would burn away without exploding, but the Home Office required sprinklers to be fitted in all the buildings where there was no distances from adjacent buildings required by the statute. There was only one danger and that was that picric salts might be formed from some other dangerous products being formed inside any of the buildings there was an automatic breach in the Welsh roof.

Mr Wild had made formal application for the licence. The firm were only anxious to conform with all the suggestions and requirements made by the department with a view to strong fire precautions and the clothing of the employees. He did not propose to call any evidence.

Mr Hopkins said the building which was to be erected had never been before the justices, and the buildings which the Inspector had seen had never been before the local authority.

The Inspector said as long as they did not increase the amount of the explosive allowed in each building, and the number of persons employed beyond that stipulated, he did not think it mattered a brass farthing what the building was.

Mr Hopkins said in the course of the previous magisterial inquiry the suggestion was made that the picric acid was needed by the War Office. He recognised that if the War Office required to make picric acid for national purposes they could do so without a licence from the Secretary of State, or any one else. Although this was not the case in Mr Willey's, he was not challenged to give evidence on the point, and he did not do so. For that reason that application must be treated on purely a commercial application. He urged that the firm might have chosen a better and safer site than the one proposed which the West Riding Justices had said was in fact dangerous.

The Inspector: That might be said of any explosive factory in the world.

A discussion then took place with regard to the distances of the canal, the copper works, and other places from the proposed factory. Mr Jones mentioned that 150 yards away were 20,000 gallons of benzol, and within 80 yards 3,600 tar barrels were stored.

Mr Willey stated that the benzol was stored in tanks which were themselves in safety tanks, so that the spirit could not escape.

After some expert evidence had been given, the Inspector intimated that his report would be made in due course.

ECZEMA AND ULCERS.

King's Buildings,
Gildersome Street,
Gildersome, nr. Leeds.

Dear Sir,—

I cannot help but thank you for the great care and interest you have taken in my case and for the WONDERFUL CURE you have effected on my arm, which ULCERATED and covered with an ECZEMATOUS RASH.

This result has been brought about by your valuable Swan-Inger and cutting attention AFTER OTHERS HAD FAILED to effect a cure.

You may make whatever use you like of this testimonial, which is entirely unsolicited.

(Signed)— GEO. HAINSWORTH.

11th October, 1913.

SKIN SPECIALISTS
MEDICAL HERBALISTS
PROF. CROSSWAITE
64, KIRKSTALL ROAD
MODERATE CHARGES Send for Free Book

£10 REWARD.—This Reward will be paid by Mr. J. Crosswaite to the first person giving information leading to the conviction of a certain unscrupulous person at present calling upon householders in his name, and offering for sale Recipes, Medicines, Pills, Ointments, etc., falsely representing the same to have been prepared by Mr Crosswaite.

Information may be lodged at the nearest Police Station or Detective Office, Town Hall, Leeds, or Mr. J. Crosswaite, 84, Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

BARKSTON ASH MEN WITH THE COLOURS.

A SELBY MAN'S LETTER.

William Thornton, aged twenty-seven, whose home is on Flaxley Road at Selby, and who was in A.B. on the ss. Good Hope, during the fierce battle off the coast of Chile, was mobilised on July 15th last, and the last bounty of kings was exchanged for Mrs Thorn'o, whose second son Johnny is on the Hibernian.

SELBY MAN AND GERMANS' CRUELTY.

Such is his home in Selby, on his return from hospital. Private Fred Hall, of Kingsley Street, is on the Cuthbertson Guards, held a thrilling story.

"At the battle of Mons," he said, "a number of us were fighting in a wood, and we got to be a road, and we did it. We stuck to them. The Germans charge of us about twice, but we beat them back every time with a rapid fire of rifle and machine guns. We mowed 'em down like corn. They were lying about in heaps. Hundreds and hundreds of the biggest swords you ever saw. They won't have our cavalry to come on to the battlefield any more. The next day the Germans had fixed the white flag those until now the British took no notice of it. Then one officer came out with a white flag and waved it. We ceased firing. The French uniform, and then fired on us. Seven of us escaped."

One particular case of German cruelty, he went on, was known to be guided by a man who had been in Selby, and who knew the district. He was shot by the Germans. They then ravaged his wife and daughter and shot them, burying the two in the orchard.

"When we got there," said Offy, "the men had got out, and he was properly heart-broken, and half mad. He had hammered at the door until his knuckles were raw. He showed us the bodies of his wife and daughter. He also showed us a note which the Germans had left him, telling him what they had done."

AGRICULTURE IN YORKSHIRE.

A LABOUR DEFICIENCY.

Corn Harvest.—Generally the corn was harvested in excellent condition and taken as a whole the quality is good. Wheat is reported as satisfactory, barley fairly good, but suffering in places from bad weather laid. The oat crop appears to be a good average.

Potatoes and Roots.—The potato crop is only moderate, a good deal of disease being reported. Lifting is finished in most districts, and well advanced in others. Turnips and swedes much affected by fly and black by mildew, and the crop is poor; lifting has hardly begun. Mangolds are very good, and a very large proportion have been laid. The oat crop appears to be a good average.

Potatoes and Roots.—The potato crop is only moderate, a good deal of disease being reported. Lifting is finished in most districts, and well advanced in others. Turnips and swedes much affected by fly and black by mildew, and the crop is poor; lifting has hardly begun. Mangolds are very good, and a very large proportion have been laid. The oat crop appears to be a good average.

Autumn Cultivation.—The drought seriously checked autumn cultivation and wheat sowing, especially on strong soils, as the land was too hard and dry to work. That in the late part of the middle of the month, good progress has been made, though much remains to be done. Several correspondents report an increased acreage of wheat is being sown.

Seeds.—Seeds look vigorous and healthy, and promise well after the recent rains.

Live Stock.—The reports regarding stock are favourable; on the whole, they appear to have stood the drought in the early part of the month well, though mortality among sheep and lambs is reported from some districts. Several correspondents refer to foot diseases, and lack of rain has been bad for the pastures; but there seems to be no general apprehension of any shortage.

Labour.—Almost all districts report a deficiency, and as a result of the calling up of the pressure is felt most acutely in the case of skilled labour, millers, horsemen, and the like. Otherwise, thanks to the dry weather in which the fine weather has facilitated the working of full time, matters generally have not worn a very serious aspect.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

Selby, Monday.—During the past week the wet weather stopped threshing, consequently only small parcels have been offered. Wheat again advanced, being 42s. to 44s., medium 40s. to 41s.; malting barley 32s. to 34s.; commoner grades 29s. to 31s., fine oats 26s. to 28s., other samples 24s. to 26s., and rye 32s. per qr.

PROVISTONS.

Selby, Monday.—Eggs 5 and 6 for 1s.; butter 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d. per lb.; chickens 4s. 6d. to 5s., ducks 4s. to 5s., rabbits 2s. per couple.

POTATOES.

Selby, Monday.—Good supply for the nice supply offered. An upward tendency in prices. Sound Up-to-Date 47s. 6d. to 50s., second King Edwards 42s. 6d. to 45s., and warp King Edwards 40s. to 42s. per ton; retail, 3s. per hamper.

CATTLE.

Selby, Monday.—Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 50 beasts, 28 sheep, and 32 pigs. There was a moderate entry of cattle, but a very short supply of fat stock, best beef making 6s. per stone. A sharp trade for pigs, and prices 1s. per score higher. Stores—Fat bullocks up to £22 12s. 6d., fat heifers to £18 10s., fat cows to £21 5s., stores cattle to £14 15s., fat calves to £19s., fat sheep to £2 18s. 6d., bacon pigs to £8 2s. 6d., and pork pigs to £6 2s. 6d.

Tadcaster, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a capital show of well-finished beef and mutton. The attendance of butchers and dealers was quite up to the average, and a good trade was maintained throughout the sale, best beef making 7d. to 7½d. per lb., second-quality quality made from 8s. to 8s. 6d. Sheep met a good trade, making 6d. to 7d. per lb. Porkers pigs had a ready sale, 9s. per stone. Store pigs made less money. Bullocks made to £31 10s., heifers to £22 5s., and sheep to 76s. 6d. Cows—Numbers sold: 54 beasts, 111 sheep, and 85 pigs. Messrs T. Richardson and Son had forward 150 cattle, and made £47 10s. and £46 15s.; Mr C. Gyson, Grimston Grange, had twelve grand bullocks, making £24, £24, £24, £23 15s., £23 5s., £23, £23, £22 15s., £22 7s. 6d., etc.; two bullocks from Mr J. Dunnington, Healaugh, made £23 7s. 6d. and £23; Mr G. Wilson, Pallathorpe, had two bullocks and a heifer making £20, £18 15s., and £16 10s.; two bullocks from Mr Ramsden, Tadcaster, made £24 15s. and £24; Mr J. Swailes, Healaugh, had six good-finished bullocks, making £24, £23 15s., £23 10s., £23, £22 15s. 6d.; two bullocks from Mr L. Sampson, Newton Kyme, made £23 15s. and £23; two heifers from Mr T. B. Watson, Bow Bridge, made £21 10s. and £19 7s. 6d.; a good cow from Mr Bramley, Wingate Hill, made £19; nine ripe bullocks and heifers from the auctioneers made £31 10s., £30, £29 15s., £29, £28 15s., £28, £28, £28, 6d., and £27 15s.; Mr Jas. Beardley, Haddlesfen, had four grand pens, making 7½d. to 8d.; Mr C. Sherburn, Tadcaster, had two pens of sheep, making to 54s.; two pens from Mr R. Carr, to 53s. 6d.; two pens from Mr Beardley, to 52s. 6d.; Mr E. Jackson, to 49s.; Mr A. Hills, to 51s. Prime fat pigs from Mr Shaw, Walton, made to £5 16s. each; Mr G. Freer, to £10 2s. 6d.; Mr Pawson, to 94s.; Mr Wm. Sykes, to 84s.; from Easedike, to 81s. 6d.; Mr Simpson, Marston, to £5 17s.; Mr Foxton, to 56s. Strong store pigs from Mr L. Masters, Tockwith, to 47s. 6d. each; Mr B. Dunnington, Bilton, to 29s.; Mr Colley, to 41s.; Mr T. Richardson, Healaugh, to 19s. 6d.; Mr Lumley, Bilton, to 14s. 6d.; Mr E. Houseman, Bolton Percy, to 19s.; Mr Brewster, Appleton, to 30s. 6d. each; etc.

A Great War Story!

"THE GREED OF CONQUEST"

By J. B. HARRIS BURLAND,

Has been Secured for Publication in this Journal.

WHAT IT IS ABOUT.

Sir John Lowick, a quiet student of science, discovers the means of controlling and directing the magnetic currents in the air, and forming them into a gigantic weapon of destruction. He is murdered and the secret passes into the hands of his son, Ralph.

Ralph is a man of peace, strong-minded and absolutely indifferent to money, and he determines to use his power in the interests of the human race. He forbids war, knowing that it is in his power to stop it if he chooses. From that hour his life hangs on a thread. He holds a secret that every nation in the world desires to possess, and attempts are made on his life and efforts are made to steal the secret.

Ralph is engaged to be married to Joan Endermine, a young and beautiful woman, the very soul and personification of patriotism. She is determined at any cost to gain the secret that will make Great Britain the mistress of the world. Round these two characters, each in love with the other, but with entirely opposite views as to how the man's power should be used, revolve plot and counter-plot, the hatred of nations, and the schemes of spies and statesmen. Humanity demands his death or imprisonment for life, but the greed of conquest only asks that he shall sell his secret or give it up. The murder of Sir John Lowick provides a mystery which is not explained until the end of the story.

Look Out for the Opening Chapters:

"THE GREED OF CONQUEST."

M.P. FOR OSGOLDCROSS AND THE WAR.

"IF GERMANY WERE TO WIN."

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IN THAT EVENT.

"What should be done with the Kaiser after the war?" This question was put to Sir Joseph Compton Rickett, M.P. for Osgoldcross, by an "Answers" representative.

Sir Joseph thought we had better finish the war, in the first place, and then the fate of the Kaiser would probably have settled itself without our interference.

"But if Germany were to win?" added Sir Joseph.

"Surely that is an impossible supposition," replied the "Answers" man. So long as our Fleet continues in strength, no effective invasion of Great Britain could be contemplated."

Sir Joseph did not think the fleet of Britain would come about in that way. Such a defeat was highly improbable, less likely as the days went on and the German invasion of France remained a fact. Yet it was an alternative to be kept before his mind, for the danger might recur unless the profit our wars pursued to a satisfactory conclusion.

"Upon the German programme Great Britain came last. France and Russia occupied the first and second places; then within twelve months or so it was to be our turn. Perhaps things had developed differently—that we had hesitated to join hands with France, and, like Italy, had adopted a waiting attitude, mobilising, but looking on.

"With the experience of the last few weeks, can anyone doubt that without British aid the French forces would have been driven further back, and Paris lost or occupied?

"It is clear that the French anticipated a better defence of their northern frontier, with the aid of the fortresses of Belgium and their own strongholds. But the German siege guns proved too powerful for defences, even those of the most modern description, and within a few weeks or smashed down fortresses in a few weeks or days which were credited with the assistance of as many months, the long-range field artillery shelled the cities within those defences, and rendered them untenable for military purposes.

"It is only right to say that, until the German attack had fully developed, the French were not bound to assume that the defences of Belgium were strongholds. But the German siege guns proved too powerful for defences, even those of the most modern description, and within a few weeks or days which were credited with the assistance of as many months, the long-range field artillery shelled the cities within those defences, and rendered them untenable for military purposes.

"It is only right to say that, until the German attack had fully developed, the French were not bound to assume that the principal attack would have been delivered through Belgium. It might have come through the eastern frontier, whilst the great German attack was delivered to it.

"Can anyone suppose that, without the moral and material support of Britain, France would not have been driven further south, possibly crushed into defeat by that terrible onrush of the German war-machine?

"Before a Russian attack on Eastern Prussia had reached a dangerous stage, France would have gone down, out of hands, pressed to death, compelled to accept terms. Whatever those terms might have been, they would certainly have included the immediate surrender of the French fleet, and a compulsory naval alliance against us.

"As the French fleet is in the Mediterranean, Italy would have suddenly assembled her responsibility to the Triple Alliance, and the Italian fleet and army would have been at the disposal of Germany. The position of Great Britain in the Mediterranean would then have been hopeless until the Mediterranean squadron had been reinforced.

"The only possible reinforcement could come from our North Sea fleet. It was a risk that we should be bound to run. We could not stand by and sacrifice our naval bases in the Mediterranean, either by blockade or assault, and surrender Egypt and the Suez Canal. Then the German fleet would attack our weakened fleet.

"If successful in that attack the invasion of England would follow as a matter of course. If we made a good defence, we should still have to face a future which gave Germany military and naval control of France and Belgium."

Sir Joseph viewed the position of England, however galling and grievous to our pride, would not threaten our future independence. Would it not even be beyond the power of Germany to treat Great Britain as a conquered state?" suggested the representative.

"We should, first of all, go through the experience of Prussia and Belgium," continued Sir Joseph. "Assuming that our Navy were destroyed, and had made its way shipwards for reorganisation and repairs in our great docks yards, the North Sea would be close for a time to the German attack.

"The German cruisers would appear off the Humber, their mine-clearers would sweep the river as far as Hull and Grimsby. Ulhans would be seen in the villages of North Lincolnshire and East Yorkshire, and invasion would begin.

"And when they had beaten us they would make peace, take their indemnity, and go?"

"I should not be at all surprised," added Sir Joseph, "if Germany did not astonish the world by giving us more moderate and considerable terms than one anticipated. We must bear in mind that in such a case Germany would be gorged with plunder, and chiefly unable for the moment to assimilate more.

"The British Empire is a considerable order either to administer or to dismember. Germany would do much better for herself by building and keeping us into friendship than by overwhelming us in ruin. Instead of an indemnity, she would probably take India, leaving us our other overseas dominions.

"She would not occupy England in a military but rather in a moral sense. We must become her ally, of course; and, as a result, would find many commercial contracts to German Royalties: German blood must flow undiluted in the arteries of our future kings.

"German capital would flock into England, establish commercial enterprises, and the German tongue would become a necessity to every young Englishman who wanted to get on in life.

"Bavaria, Saxony, Wurtemburg, marriage to get on pretty well with the rest of the Federation; Belgium and Holland have come in already. See what we have to gain! No hostility to fear, no one dare to attack us, the interest of our blood. They increase of burden in taxation if you will overlook the bloodshed of conscription.

"Silence the few pessimists who are continually reminding us of the past glories of a bygone age. What are liberty, self-development, national consciousness but mere words—names by which unthinking dreamers. Let us eat and drink, even if already we have ceased to exist on a nation.

"On more than one occasion in English history, Englishmen, despairing of liberty, civil and religious, have emigrated from their country in crowds to seek a new world in which the genius of British self-government could find further expression.

"Such emigration would be little indeed compared to the abandonment of the older country for a future in the United States or in the British possessions. New wars, ominous in their outline, would begin to take shape.

"Russia, Germany, and the United States would straddle oblivant the civilised world. Which of them is to be the greatest?' would be the problem to disturb humanity."

"But this nightmare," remarked Sir Joseph, "is yet only in imagination. We can awake from it to find ourselves still free."

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal

— BY —

ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN

LAWNS.

Whilst perusing a garden article which appeared in a London weekly the other day we came across the following:—"Lawns will require no further attention this year." This notice was published on October 24th. We hope none of our readers will act upon such ridiculous advice. The roller should be used freely during the winter months when the turf is dry enough to receive it. There are numerous little attentions that may be given to the lawn during the next two months. Inequalities may be levelled out. Patchy portions may be replaced by new sod. If in the case of a top dressing of basic slag none be given, this is a matter of fact fertiliser for use on the lawn. It is supplied in varying strengths and must be applied according to the dealer's instructions. Soft meal is an excellent top dressing for a lawn, and where leaf mould can be obtained in quantity it may be spread over the lawn just as manure is spread on a grass field. It must not be allowed to lie for long in one position. About twice a week the whole surface should be raked over with a wooden hay rake.

There is no better time than the present for the removal of large weeds by hand. The ground is soft now, and by using a weeding fork the largest weeds may be removed intact. In regard to the mowing of the lawn there is no hard and fast rule as to when the final cutting should be made. Personally we prefer to be guided by the amount of growth made by the grass. If it continues to grow until Christmas as should cut it. It is important that a smooth even surface should be obtained. If the grass is long or tufty it will hold any fallen leaves that happen to get blown on to the lawn during the winter. If it is cropped close the leaves cannot find a resting place, and are eventually blown clear off the grass.

THE WILD GARDEN

As a general rule woodland walks and other "natural" gardens are left to almost take care of themselves. At this time of the year it becomes necessary to have a general clean up. The leaves from the forest trees are nearly all down, and unless the bulk of them are gathered up they are apt to injure many dwarf plants that are now partially buried by them. The wild garden is now very popular, and as it may be described as a cheap form of gardening there is a likelihood of it becoming more popular still. In making additions of shrubs, trees, etc., every care should be taken to prevent the creation of a stiff, formal appearance. Straight lines of trees or shrubs must be avoided, and the footpaths should be irregular and winding. A charming path may be made by using irregular shaped stones. Too much importance should not be attached to making them fit in evenly, the spaces between may be filled with soil and planted with small alpines. Unshaded positions may be planted with rambler roses of the Dorothy Perkins class. They may be had in a variety of shades, and if allowed to trail about the ground at will, they provide glorious carpets of colour when in bloom. Tree stumps or insecticidal trees, are often a source of annoyance of the Penzance hybrid class. The strongest varieties should be selected for the purpose, and although they will require long little attention, after they are established, it is important that they should be planted in a suitable compost. If the soil is poor it should be enriched by the addition of manure, bone meal, wood ashes, and if heavy clay, a little leaf mould. Other parts of the wild garden may be beautified by planting therein large patches of bulbs. It is better to plant a number together than to divide them up thinly over a larger area. They should also be massed in separate colours. Wallflowers left over from the autumn bedding may be used to help to make a show in spring. They will flower satisfactorily even if planted under large trees. This, of course, is subject to them being strong and sturdy plants now. Forget-me-nots are perhaps one of the prettiest subjects we have for the decoration of the woodland walk. Myosotis Sylvatica is about the best variety for the purpose, although Myosotis Dissitiflora is possibly a little hardier. We have seen huge masses of these charming flowers growing under the trees in the district, and they are a sight to be remembered if seen when in full bloom. There is no better time than the present for planting hardy shrubs and plants, and readers who have a piece of garden with any pretentions to wildness should make an effort to improve it by adding a few of the plants, etc., mentioned above.

THE KITCHEN GARDEN

There is still time to plant a few rows of cabbages. Choose exhibiting beds and fill any vacant places. At this late date the plants should be placed not more than a foot apart. This allows for every second one being pulled when growing.

Outdoor salads are now getting scarce and it is time to commence the cultivation of mustard and cress under glass. Fill a shallow box with soil, give a good watering, and sow the seed fairly thick on the surface. Cover with brown paper, and stand in a warm position. Remove the paper when germination takes place, and the salad is ready for cutting about a week after sowing.

The mint beds may now be clipped over. No further growth will be made this year. It is a mistake to place a thick layer of manure on the surface of the bed as this is usually followed by the loss of a quantity of the roots. An excellent top-dressing may be obtained as follows:—Pass the loose soil of old potting soil through a half-inch riddle. To this add a barrow load of riddled manure from an old mushroom bed. Mix thoroughly together and cover the bed to the depth of about an inch. This mixture may be put on at once.

PLANTS UNDER GLASS.

The management of a miscellaneous greenhouse is a rather difficult matter at this time of the year. The housing of chrysanthemums, cut fuchsias, and a host of other plants usually results in the greenhouse assuming a congested appearance. This is conducive to a stagnant, moisture-laden atmosphere, which in its turn will cause serious damage amongst the plants in the shape of decaying leaves, and flowers. A little fire heat must be given to cause a free circulation of air, and it may be accompanied by a free use of top and side ventilators.

AMERICAN CARNATIONS

These plants need very little fire heat even during the winter months. They require a free circulation of air, and especial care should be taken to prevent them getting too wet at the roots. Plants that are now commencing to bloom may be supplied with liquid manure at alternate waterings. The greatest difficulty the town grower experiences is to prevent them getting drawn during the dark winter days. The glass must be kept scrupulously clean, and if the above hints in regard to ventilating and watering are carried out, very little "drawing" will take place.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN,

Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 13.

The twenty-ninth annual report of the Maine Agricultural College, Orono, U.S.A., is to hand, and I purpose drawing your attention to their observations on green food for poultry.

During recent years this aspect of the question of increasing the amount of attention has been paid by practitioners of poultry to the furnishing of green food to their flocks during the winter months, when it is impossible, in northern parts of the country, at least, for the birds to get fresh succulent pasturage out of doors. General experience seems to touch that an addition of green succulent food to the ration of laying hens tends to keep them in better physical condition and helps towards a better egg-production. On the poultry plant at the Maine State College considerable attention has been given to this matter of supplying green and succulent food, and as a result of experiences extending now over a number of years a satisfactory form of furnishing this necessary part of the ration under our conditions has been worked out.

To be satisfactory not only must the green food given to poultry be of the proper kind to give good results in egg-production, but also it must be something which can be produced and handled at small cost. Furthermore, a factor which is frequently lost sight of is that foods need something besides succulence in their so-called "green" food. There is a distinction between a succulent food and a "green food" in the strict sense. One can supply succulence in the form of root crops such as mangolds. A natural consideration of the case, however, indicates that apparently the ideal condition of this foods is not for succulence as such, but rather for the tonic effect which is produced by green plants, probably primarily because of the presence of chlorophyll. In feeding fowls for high egg-production it is necessary that they be given a ration rich in protein. Only foods of strong constitution, and with thoroughly sound digestive systems, can handle the heavy laying rations carrying meat scrap and oil meal which are now so widely used by poultrymen for egg production with consequent results. On these heavy rations there is always a tendency for the birds' livers to become impaired in function, and ultimately to become enlarged and diseased—a chol

DEATH OF WELL-KNOWN KIPPAX MAN.

HONOURED CONGREGATIONAL MINISTER.

News has reached Kippax of the death, at Deal, in Kent, of the Rev. Edward Darley, who for nearly thirty years was minister of the Congregational Church at Towcester. Owing to ill-health, he was compelled to give up his pastoral charge about two years ago, and since then he had resided at Deal.

Mr Darley, who was a native of Kippax, was one of the select few who attended the evening school in Kippax in the old days, among others who were pupils at this school being the Rev. Enoch Bloomb, Mr. Christopher Hick, Mr W. Hill, etc. Mr Darley was held in the highest esteem by the people of Towcester, and in congregational circles throughout Northamptonshire.

In early life Mr Darley was associated with the Primitive Methodist Society at Kippax, and carried a high reputation as a preacher. He showed marked ability for evangelistic work, and as a youth was very successful as a missioner. After taking up the pastorate at Towcester he was unable to devote as much time as he had previously done to this branch of religious work, but he did not relinquish it altogether, and until nearly the end of his pastorate he conducted at least one mission a year.

The church which Mr Darley went to about 32 years ago had been closed, and the cause which is flourishing as well there now was practically his own creation. He was educated for the ministry at Nottingham Congregational College. Towcester was his first church, and it says a good deal for him that through all his ministry he kept the love of his own people and the respect and esteem of his fellow townsmen.

Ever ready to help the cause of Congregationalism in any way he could, Mr Darley did much useful work through the county, and in 1901 the County Association recognised his worth and work by electing him to the presidential chair. He was at one time president, and for some years secretary of the Towcester and District Sunday School Union.

Mr Darley made his influence felt outside strictly church circles. It was mainly through his influence that Sir Thomas Heaketh, Bart., and Mr Jesse Harrison, of Northampton, were induced to build the boot and shoe factory now occupied by Messrs C. and E. Lewis of Towcester. Mr Darley laid one of the commemoration stones, and was presented by the builders with a silver trowel.

The anniversaries of Mr Darley's settlement at Towcester were always looked forward to, because they formed the occasion of the gathering together on one common platform of representatives of all branches of religious activity in Towcester. It was on the eve of his 29th anniversary that Mr Darley was stricken with illness four years ago. His progress was slow and tedious, and, although he eventually was able to go about with difficulty, he was unable to resume his ministerial duties, and he, therefore, resigned his charge. Soon after giving up his work he went to live at Deal in the hope that the change would do him good and lead to a complete restoration, but all in vain, as he passed away on Tuesday, November 3rd, in his home at Deal. Mr. Darley was not married.

A SELBY SOLDIER'S HEROISM

A Selby soldier has distinguished himself in carrying a wounded officer of his regiment from the front of German trenches under a hot fire, and taking him to a place of safety. The soldier referred to is Private Harold Long, of the Durham Light Infantry, who is at present in Selby recovering from a wound received in one of the severe engagements in the north-west of France towards the end of last month. Private H Long, who is 24 years of age, was in the Mons fighting, and in the heavy battle of the Aisne Valley, afterwards going to the operations on the left flank, some distance from Lille, where he was wounded in the right thigh by shrapnel while exposed to a heavy enfilade fire. He related how the Germans suddenly rushed a village, ransacked the houses, and bayonetted two British wounded who were lying in a house. The two men were found dead after the Germans' visit.

Private Long states that he also came across instances of civilians being wounded by the Germans. On the outskirts of Armentieres he saw at a farmhouse the bodies of women and men whom the enemy had slain. A French woman who prepared coffee for a number of the British on their arrival told them that her husband had been bayonetted by the Germans because he refused them supplies.

It was during the Aisne battle that Private Long acted courageously and with resource in rescuing a wounded officer. In relating what took place, he said:—"There was a general advance on Sunday, September 13th, the day on which the West Yorkshires had so heavily through the enemy's white flag treachery. Lieut. Gales, while advancing with our company, was shot in the face and arm. He fell about 20 yards from the German trenches. A comrade named Hides and myself went to carry him away, but Hides was shot through the head and killed as soon as he reached the lieutenant. I then assisted Lieut. Gales, and got him by degrees away from the front of the German trenches. On getting out of the fire zone I carried him on my shoulders to the stretcher bearers at the headquarters of the regiment. He was taken to hospital and eventually sent home to London, where he is recovering."

Private H. Long has also a brother at the front, Bert Long (23), who is in the Army Ordnance Corps. Other brothers in the forces are—Sidney Long (19), the youngest, who is with the Lancashire Fusiliers (Territorials) at Cairo; Jos. Long (30), Army Ordnance Corps, on Salisbury Plain; and Geo. Long (20), 5th West Yorks. (Territorial) at York.

The parents, Mr and Mrs Joseph Long, of Selby, have six sons, and the above named five are serving with the forces.

B. J. Nicholls, of Ulleskelf, has joined the N.E.R. Battalion.

Wetherby Council School has sent 105 to the West Riding Distress Fund.

"An Outlaw Man's Experiences in Belgium," inserted in our last issue, was taken from an article which was written by Mr L. Lockwood, and which appeared in Oulton parish magazine.

A THORNER HERO'S DEATH.—A stirring story surrounds the brave death of Lieutenant Lydgard, of the Yorkshire Regiment, son of Mr Armitage Lydgard, of "The Manor House, Thorner. Private Robert Bowan, of the 2nd Yorkshires, who has just returned from the front wounded in the leg, tells the story. "The Germans had got round the flank of 'D' Company at Ypres where the position was seen to be dangerous by Lieut. Lydgard. With a shout of 'Come on, lads; death or glory now!' the brave lieutenant took up a maxim gun on his shoulder, advanced to the open field, placed it in position, and for a few minutes directed a fierce and telling fire into the enemy, holding them at bay. Then he fell dead, with a bullet wound in the heart. Every man in the regiment is proud of him." adds Private Bowan.

SOUTH MILFORD AND DISTRICT FANCIERS' SOCIETY.

THIRD ANNUAL SHOW.

The third annual show promoted by South Milford and District Fanciers' Society was held in the Cricket Field, South Milford, on Wednesday, and the weather conditions proved very disappointing. Rain fell in torrents, and during the night the high wind tore off the roof of the marquee. The damage, however, was partly made good.

It was very unfortunate that the weather was so unpropitious, because there was every prospect of a successful show, for a record entry of exhibits of good quality had been received from all parts of the country. The Rev. B. Heaton-worth, J.P., of Monk Fryston Hall, was to have opened the show, but he was prevented by the wretched conditions from attending. Mr Percy Paver, the hon. sec., was ably supported by several of the committee, including the Chairman (Mr G. D. Cliff, of Lumby Hill). The test proceeds were to be in aid of the War Fund, but it is feared the poor attendance of the public, owing to the bad weather, will leave little for that purpose. The following is a list of the winners:—

POULTRY

White Wyandotte, cock or cockerel—1, 2, and 3, John Townend and Son, Pontefract. White Wyandotte, hen or pullet—1, 2, and 3, John Townend and Son, and two specials. Wyandotte, any other variety—1, A. Johnson, South Milford; 2, R. Binns, Keighley; 3, W. Richardson, York. Orpington—1, J. Townend and Son; 2, F. Swainden, Bugthorpe; 3, A. C. Garnal, Ipswich; v.h.c., G. H. Andrew, Church Fenton, Rhode Island Red—1, R. Ewbank, Pontefract; 2, Mrs Colbeck, Boyle Hall; 3, J. T. Lonsdale, Stanhope Leighton, Minnoca, Andalusian—1, J. Charlson, jun., Selsdon; 2, G. H. Andrew, Church Fenton; 3, F. Howell, Rotherham. Any other variety—1, T. Taylor, Barnsley; 2, Mrs Colbeck, Boyle Hall; 3, F. Norton, Ossett. Any Variety (4 miles radius)—1, 2, and 3, and specials, G. Coleres, Church Fenton; 3, C. Cawthorne, Sherburnin-Elmet. Selling Class, any variety—1, W. M. Elkington, Kettlewith; 2, T. Taylor; 3, T. Fawcett, Howes; v.h.c., J. Townend and Sons. Any Variety, residents in South Milford, Newthorpe, and Gascoigne Wood Junction—1, and 3, and special, W. P. Cliff, Lumby Hall; 2, G. Porter, Station Hall; v.h.c., Mrs Barry, The Rectory, South Milford. Bantam, any variety, cock—1, W. Johnson, Russdill; 2, Mrs D. Dyson, Hadderfield; 3, C. Sugden, Armley. Bantam, hen, any variety—1, Mrs Colbeck; 2, Miss Hyslop; 3, Gilbert Bros., Cheadleton.

PIGEONS

Exhibition Flying Homer, cock or hen—1, T. Walker, Selby; 2, H and T Child, Dewsbury; 3, Davison and Son, Scarborough; v.h.c., Turn and Hirst, Longwood. Exhibition Flying Homer cock or hen—1 and 3, Putman and Stephenson, West Hartlepool; 2, T. Walton, Working Homer—1, T. Walton; 2, A. Cox, Bartons-on-Humber; 3, J. Bolland, Tadcaster. Working Homer, best pair—1, H. and T. Child; 2, T. Walton; 3, B. Brown, Malton. Working Homer, 4 miles radius—1, J. Fox, Fairburn; 2, N. Porter; 3, A. Sissons, South Milford; v.h.c., Barker, Fairburn. Non any colour—1, H. Stinchcombe, Luton; 2, A. Naismith, Knottingley; 3, Reynolds Bros., Tiverton-on-Avon. Any Other Variety—1 and special, F. Cousins, Harrogate; 2, T. Walton; 3, Reynolds Bros.; v.h.c., J. Horner, Crook. Selling, any variety—1, G. Lyth, Grimsby; 2, Cousins; 3, T. Walton.

RABBITS

Belgian Hares—1 and 3, A. Wood, Bradford; 2, G. W. Ibb, Doncaster. Dutch—1 and special, Gregg Bros., Ferrybridge; 2, J. Kirkbride, Darlington; 3, Brown and Sons, Fillingson-Tyne. English—1, G. Rush, Leeds; 2, Fraser and Roe, Belgrave house; 3, H. Butterfield. Any Other Variety—1, H. Forney, York; 2, W. Nettleton, Shadwell; 3, A. Savage, Thorne. Any Variety, 4 miles radius—1 and special, W. Smith, Sherburn; 2, W. Tindall, Sherburn; 3, J. Richardson, Boutheston; v.h.c., S. Smith.

BREAD

1, Miss K. Eddsley, Milford Hagg Farm; 2, Mrs W. Tindall, Sherburn; 3, Mrs L. Moskill, South Milford.

Mr Entwistle was the judge of poultry and pigeons and Mr Ezra Taylor of rabbits, etc.

CHURCH FENTON STOCK SALE.

PRICES FOR PEDIGREE PIGS.

Messrs Stephenson and Sons, auctioneers, York, held an Church Fenton, on Wednesday afternoon, the third annual autumn sale of the Church Fenton herd of large white pedigree Yorkshire pigs, the property of Mr A. Deighton, The Croft, Church Fenton. Unfortunately, the day was wet and cold, and these conditions doubtless prevented a large number of buyers being present, but there was, nevertheless, a good company in attendance. There was offered, with a few exceptions, the entire stock of large white Yorkshire pigs bred by Mr Deighton, and maintained by him with inter-mixture of the best prize-winning blood, and from the most reliable breeders in the country. The large white breeding gilts and young boars which were offered had been selected by Mr Deighton's five stock boars, namely, Fenton Goliath, Turk of Fenton, Jay of Fenton, Fenton Herdsman, and Fenton Turk, the last but one of which was offered for sale, being, however, withdrawn at £6 10s. The reserve price was £10.

The gilts and boars were a fine lot, all bone-bred, of excellent type and quality, and in a hard, healthy condition. The sows were big, roomy pigs. The store pigs were strong, well-grown animals, mostly Bags, and they sold fairly well.

About 150 large white pedigree Yorkshire pigs were offered, besides some heavy bacon and store pigs. The sale, which was conducted by Mr F. Stephenson, lasted for 3¼ hours. The following are some of the chief prices realised:—Large sow, Sunflower of Blythe House, in pig, £16; large sow, Fenton Lass, in pig, £8 5s; six young gilts, sisters to latter, total of £12 10s, two of these making 43gns a head; large sow, Carnation of Whattinghurst, in pig, £8 17s 6d; large sow, Fenton Pauline, £11; large sow, Fenton Pauline II., sister to latter, £7 5s; litter of latter, 25s per head; large sow, Fenton Pauline IV., £6 10s; large sow, Duchess of Fenton, £7; small boar, £3 5s; two boars, brothers to latter, £4 15s and £5 17s 6d respectively; six gilts, sisters to latter, total £11 7s, one making 5 guineas; large boar, Fenton Susan II, £5 5s; litter of the latter were withdrawn; large sow, Fenton Susan III, £6 2s 6d; litter of the latter, £9 15s 6d a head; large boar, £4 15s; large sow, Wyleaston Ella, £8; large sow, Oakenclough Dirty Girl, £9; large boar, Fenton Herdsman II., £10 10s; large boar, brother to latter, £6 7s 6d; large gilt, sister to latter, £4 2s 6d; large sow, Fenton Machionese, in pig, £9 15s; large boar, £5 10s; four gilts, sisters to latter, £21 2s 6d, £7 7s 6d, £3 5s, and £3 respectively; large sow, Fenton Princess IV., £6 17s 6d; two medium boars, brothers to Fenton Herdsman, £6 5s and £7 17s 6d respectively; large sow, Fenton Princess V., £6; large gilt, £6 17s 6d; three gilts, sisters to the latter, £7 12s 6d, £7 10s and £7 10s respectively; five gilts, £8 5s; large gilt, £5; large sow, Fenton Princess VIII., £7 2s 6d; large sow, Fenton Princess IX, £6 17s 6d; large gilt, £5 5s; large gilt, £5 5s; large gilt, £5; large gilt, £5 15s 6d; large gilt, £4 2s 6d; large gilt, £5; large gilt, £5 5s; medium gilt, £5 15s; large gilt, £7 5s; large gilt, £7 15s; large gilt, £7 10s; large gilt, £6 17s 6d; medium gilt, £5 7s 6d; large gilt, £6; large boar, £5 5s, medium gilts, £5 7s 6d, £4 15s 6d, and £5 7s 6d; large boar, £5 15s 6d; three boars, brother to latter, £4 5s, £5 17s 6d, and £5 17s 6d respectively; five sister gilts to latter, £5 14s 6d, £5 10s, £5 5s, £5 7s 6d, and £5 2s 6d respectively; medium gilts, £5 15s, £4 17s 6d and £5; large gilts, £5 10s, £4 15s, £6, and £5 12s 6d; medium gilts, £4 15s, £5 17s 6d, £5 2s 6d, and £5; large gilt, £7 15s; large gilt, £7 10s; large gilt, £6 17s 6d; medium gilt, £5 7s 6d; large gilt, £6; large boar, £5 5s, medium gilts, £5 7s 6d, £4 15s 6d, and £4

"The Rothwell Courier and Times"
IS THE
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 99—NEW SERIES ["Registered at the G.P.O." as a Newspaper.] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son
(Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
AT 6.30 AND AT 9.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday at 6 p.m.
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 23rd, 1914.
The International Idol Miss ZONA VEVEY and Mr MAX ERARD, England's Great Pianist, Featuring his Colossal Cathedral Organ.
DORMA MORGAN. CHAS. NORTON.
THORNLEY DODGE.
CORNALLA AND EDDIE.
CASTILLIAN QUINTETTE.
GEORGE D'ALBERT.
The Bright and Breezy Comedian.
Latest War News and Actual Films from the Front.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
Mr. G. P. HUNTLEY and CO.
In a New Comedy Sketch, "A Burlington Arcadian."
MINNIE MUIR.
ABEL & WELSH.
JENNY LYNWOOD.
VASCO.
FOREST TELL.
Mdlle. RUBY DE FONTENOY.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE.
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor
Residence:—
42. AUSTHORPE ROAD. CROSSGATES.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

SPARKLING CHOSFERRIDE
Established 1868
A Delightful & Refreshing Beverage.
Invigorating, Nutritious & Digestive.
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

For TOWN or COUNTRY.
For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.
THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
AT
Fabor 45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

At the presentation to Mr Robert Routledge, who has just retired from the position of manager of Garforth Collieries, Colonel Gascoigne, the owner of the pits, made reference to the flooding which occurred in the early years of Mr Routledge's work at Gascforth, and stated that he undoubtedly saved the collieries. What would Garforth be today without the great colliery undertakings in the district? Garforth undoubtedly owes something to Mr Routledge. When he became manager in August, 1881, the Sisters Pit was full of water, but in November he had it clear. All went well until March, 1883, when the "rubbing" in the Sisters Pit burst and the collieries were again flooded. Expert opinion was expressed that the colliery would not be opened again, but Mr Routledge thought otherwise, and he set to work with so much determination that he succeeded in beating the water. From what I have been told, it was a strenuous struggle, involving day and night work, and causing great anxiety to those engaged in it, but the collieries were saved, and they have given employment to hundreds of men since. When Mr Routledge went to Garforth the colliery was a comparatively small concern, but now at the three pits—Sisters, Isabella, and Trench—work is found for over a thousand men.

Manson folks were highly pleased with the address delivered by the scholarly Vice-Chancellor of Leeds University on Saturday night, but they were even more delighted with Dr. Sadler himself. He has a winning personality, and very soon sympathy was established between the audience and the speaker. Much of the written proof he submitted in connection with "The Issues of the war" had already been published, but the manner in which he dealt with the subject invested it with a new interest. Much has been heard on the housing question during the last few years, but an opinion from a man like Dr. Sadler is worth having, because it is the result of close study of social conditions. He evidently believes that a nation's greatest asset is its people, and in order to give them an opportunity of living "healthier and nobler lives" he earnestly advocates national action in regard to the curse of bad housing. What he wants to see is a better England for the people, and this is a direct appeal to all that is best in the nation, which, as the present crisis shows, can, on occasion, rise to great heights.

Lord Hawke, who is one of the Tadcaster magistrates, although his visits are like angels—few and far between—appeared in a new role on Saturday. His lordship, whom I saw in Boar Lane, Leeds, in the morning, was engaged in collecting funds for succouring horses wounded in the war, so he is trying to do his "little bit." The "Blue Cross" exhibition in a neighbouring shop window attracted such crowds that the footway became almost impassable, and a sturdy constable approached his lordship and pointed out that the law was being infringed. Lord Hawke, whom the officer did not recognise, laughingly accepted the legal position, but went on merrily collecting coppers for the cause he has taken up.

The members of Crossgates and District Farmers' Club have been asked to form a heavy horse society, and the committee are to consider the question. At a meeting of the Rywdale Heavy Horse Society on Wednesday at Kirkymoorside the first balance sheet was submitted as follows:—

Receipts.—90 members at 5s., £22 10s.; 35 assisted nominations at £1, £35; 67 non-assisted at £2, £134; 2 non-assisted at £1, £2; Board of Agriculture's grant to assisted nominations, £35; Board of Agriculture's grant to non-assisted nominations, £40; Sinnington Hunt subscriptions and cup, £21; total, £289 10s.

Expenditure.—Lord Middleton, hire of Tandridge, Forester, £250; secretary's salary, £20; sundries, 14s. 7d.; leaving balance profit of £28 15s. 5d.

After Mr Crawford's address, the above accounts should prove very interesting to the members, and will give an indication of the lines upon which to work.

Reference was made to Hazlewood Castle, now the property of Mr E. O. Simpson, who has carried out great improvements, at a lecture at Crossgates, and parting with the old place must have been felt very severely by Sir William Vavasour and his two sons, one of whom is an officer in the Royal Navy. Several years ago, along with a party, I visited the ancient house, and we were given the run of the place for an afternoon. We rambled through the empty rooms of the mansion and climbed on to the roof, from which a magnificent view of the Vale of York can be obtained. Everything around, however, was in a state of decay, and the garden, which had at one time, with its maze and other attractive features, been a beautiful spot, was a wilderness. It was a sad "come down," to use a common phrase, for what is probably the oldest family in Yorkshire. The chapel and the little graveyard, where the dust of Vavasours, Lane Foxes, and other local families, mingle, will always have an especial interest for Yorkshire people, because it is believed that from the day of its completion up to the present the doors of the little church, rich in antiquities and memorials, have never been closed. But the woods at Hazlewood were a joy in spring and summer, and frequently one has wandered through these woods carpeted with wild flowers, which transformed the place into what the children would term a veritable fairy land. The Vavasours have gone, but Hazlewood remains, and the old house may stand for centuries yet.

The present owner of Hazlewood, by the way, has done excellent work in the recruiting campaign. Since the outbreak of hostilities he has been in the "fighting line," waging war against indifference and apathy, and no matter where he was asked to go he was ready for the fray. In all parts of Barkston Ash he has delivered stirring addresses to crowded meetings, and he was the man to lead the cheering as recruits stepped on to the platform in response to the appeals for men for the Army. A man may do his "little bit" even if he is not allowed to shoulder a rifle. During the past fortnight I notice Mr Simpson has been engaged in recruiting work in Leeds, and I daresay he will be on the hunt for men so long as the country requires them.

Although it would be foolish to indulge in lamentation and go about with "long faces" because the country is engaged in a terrible war, people in the district will this winter have to decide how far gatherings promoted entirely for the purposes of pleasure are to be encouraged. A correspondent writing in our last issue on a Sherburn question, puts the query very bluntly in regard to dancing, and I daresay he has caused many people to consider the matter. In dancing itself there is no wrong whatever, but it may seem to many people, especially to those who have lost relatives and friends, somewhat heartless to pass hours away in this manner when men are fighting—and dying—in the trenches in order to uphold the honour of the country. With the correspondent I thoroughly agree. What dances are promoted in aid of worthy and deserving objects the people who patronize them have no right to flatter themselves that they are making a sacrifice; they are simply paying for their own selfish pleasure. If they are desirous of assisting funds—the fact that they can pay for a dance proves ability to give—they should hand over their money and have the pleasure of sacrificing something. Of course, this question will be largely ruled by individual opinion, but there is surely a time for everything.

In an address at Crossgates the Vice-Chancellor of Leeds University stated that our men are fighting in order to save all that is best in the world for us, but I am afraid many people do not thoroughly realize the greatness of the issues. To the craven-hearted Briton—and he exists—the loss of the British Empire might not mean much, but if he lost all the liberties—civil and religious—he now enjoys, and was compelled to be a woodchopper and water-carrier for the German, he would begin to understand things. As a matter of fact, we have, as a nation, enjoyed our privileges so long that we really do not value them as we ought. British citizenship is a priceless heritage and is worth all the sacrifices made for it.

How little some of our soldiers know about the war. The other day a very intelligent Reservist, who was called up at the beginning of the war, was going in the train to Garforth, and he stated that, although he had been three months at the Front, he knew nothing about how things were going until he landed in England, where he arrived two days before in charge of a batch of German prisoners. Naturally, I wanted to know where his regiment was, and when he told me I was surprised, for it seemed so unlikely that any British troops should be at the point he named. The Germans, with their up-to-date news, informed him of the occupation of Paris and the smashing of the British Navy by the Prussians, and he did not know what to think, but he was relieved when he got to London and saw the newspapers. He was asked what the Germans thought when they learnt the truth, and he said he did not know, but he knew what he thought about them—they were great—that is not precisely the word he used—liars.

It has been suggested that farmers in the district should at the forthcoming hirings engage only men under 19 and over 38 years of age, the idea being to get the eligible men to volunteer for service with the Colours. Agriculturists are, however, wondering how they are to get their work done. "How can we grow more wheat," asked one farmer, "when we have no men to put it in. They talk of fetching men for the Army, but I have not a boy they can fetch." This, of course, may be an isolated case, and if the farmer's men have already gone it is a tribute to their patriotism. While I hope that farmers will use their persuasive powers on eligible men in order to get them to go to the Army, I do not like the idea of compulsion being applied to one class, for that is what it is. If an employer says to a man that he will not employ him because he should be doing military service it is simply compulsion, and no individual has a right to exercise it. Compulsion may be necessary eventually, although I hope it may be avoided, but in that case all classes and all trades and professions will be treated alike, and no injustice will be done.

Have you noticed how proud the men are of their officers? And well they may. The thrilling story of the bravery of Lieut. Ledgard, of Thorner, who laid down his life on the battlefield, shows the stamp of men who are our soldiers' leaders, and "every man in the regiment is proud of him" is a tribute at once to the confidence and affection the dead hero inspired. Mr E. M. Lawson-Smith's two sons—promising young officers—have also given their lives for their country. The owners of estates have, indeed, set a magnificent example at this crisis in the country's history. Practically every family in this district has its representatives in the Army, and the toll already has been a heavy one. Every officer, when he expresses an opinion, says "the men are splendid," and the men speak for their leaders.

Time brings some curious changes! Aberford, which has long been shorn of its importance, at one time had its markets and its fairs, and a century ago the hiring of men and women for farm service was carried out in the village school. What a merry day that must have been for Aberford. The magistrates, too, had their meetings in the ancient place, and culprits from such insignificant places as Garforth, which had not then the railway to help it in its growth, went there to be dealt with. Aberford, which at one time had pinning and coal-mining industries, has a very interesting history, and if some one with the necessary qualifications would write it he would be doing good service to the community.

The next science lecture at Garforth is by Professor Kendall, of Leeds University, the eminent geologist, and he will tell the residents something about "The Geology of Garforth." Very few people know anything about geology—I must confess my own ignorance on the subject—but when it is treated in a popular way it can be made very interesting. Mr E. Hawkesworth, of Crossgates, is hon. secretary of the Leeds Geological Society, of which Professor Kendall is a prominent member, and part 17 of the transactions of that body, edited by the hon. sec., has just been issued. It contains a mass of information of value to geologists, and of local interest are "Notes on sections in a quarry at Robin Hood," admirably illustrated by a number of fine photographs, and reports of excursions by the members to Woodlesford, Roundhay, and other places.

At South Milford School last month the percentage of attendance was 93.1 to against 89.85 for October last year.

THE HUNSLET RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL

ABSTRACT OF ACCOUNTS FOR THE HALF-YEAR ENDING 31st MARCH, 1914.

Dr. Cr.

	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Balance at commencement		1537 5 4
Overseers' Contributions :—
Middleton—General ...	728 0 0
Special ...	200 0 0
	928 0 0
Oulton-cum-Woodlesford—
General ...	848 0 0
Special ...	580 0 0
	1428 0 0
Templenewsam—
General ...	684 0 0
Special ...	460 0 0
	1144 0 0
Thorp Stapleton—
General ...	8 0 0
Special ...	2 0 0
	10 0 0
Water Revenue—
Rents and Charges	1041 16 11
Meter Rents ...	37 19 8
Connections ...	1 13 0
	1080 19 7
Tadcaster R. D. C.—
Water in bulk ...	22 13 4
Leeds Corporation—
Water in bulk ...	99 19 0
West Riding C.C.—
Main Roads ...	930 10 0
Local Taxation Grant	100 0 0
Agricultural Rates Grant	60 10 6
Bank Interest	14 12 6
Rents of Property ...	25 3 6
Templenewsam Sewage Farm	8 10 0
Private Street Works ...	659 13 5
Housing of the Working Classes Acts ...	7 15 6
Sales of Property	6 17 0
Miscellaneous ...	6 10 7
	£8071 0 3

	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
General Expenses :—
Salaries	340 16 6
Establishment Charges...	133 4 3
Fees for Lists of Births and Deaths	1 0 8
Town Planning Expenses	2 7 6
Infectious Diseases Notification	16 10 6
Disinfecting Expenses	34 13 3
Street Watering and Scavenging	11 12 7
Travelling Expenses ...	9 4 9
Conference Expenses ...	13 16 0
Housing of the Working Classes Acts	2 11 3
		565 17 3
Highway Expenses :—
Main Roads	1094 1 3
District Roads	866 12 10
Salaries and Establishment Charges	80 0 0
		2040 14 1
Special Expenses :—
Loans (Instalments and Interest)	640 5 0
Sewerage Works ...	200 0 4
Sewage Disposal ...	181 10 3
Water Works	173 5 11
Private Street Works ...	400 13 2
Public Lighting	215 1 9
Scavenging	222 18 8
Fire Brigade	5 6 0
		2039 1 1
Leeds Corporation—
Water Supply ...		918 10 7
Ardsley U.D.C.—
Water Supply ...		103 12 6
Rothwell, &c., Joint Hospital Committee—Precept...		275 0 0
Rothwell U.D.C.—
Sewage Disposal ...	228 17 8
Balance at end of Half-Year	1899 7 1
	£8071 0 3

Dated this 12th day of November, 1914.

W. B. PINDAR, Clerk.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

STEPHENSON'S GREAT AUTUMN SHOW
OF THE PRESENT SEASON'S FASHIONS AT
THE CROSS ARCADE,
Extending from KING EDWARD ST. to QUEEN VICTORIA ST. (60 yards down either from) BRIGGATE, LEEDS
Here you will find extensive Stocks of all that is Beautiful, New & Tasteful in Goods & Garments and
WE CONTINUE TO SELL AT OUR OLD LOW PEACE PRICES.
NO SHORTAGE OF STOCK. ADVANCE IN PRICES.
The Latest Productions in Furs, Dress Fabrics, Silks, Ladies', Maids' and Children's Paletots, Raincoats, Blouses, Woven Underwear in Winter Weights, Children's Coats and Costumes, Corsets, Ladies' and Children's Millinery, Hosiery, Gloves, Ribbons, Lace, Neckwear, &c., &c.
Special Attention is called to the Bargains we are offering in Household Drapery, Blankets, Down Quilts, and Wool Shirtings.
COME AND SAVE MONEY AT
STEPHENSON'S DRAPERY MARKET,
THE CROSS ARCADE,
King Edward Street, & Queen Victoria Street, LEEDS.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED]

THE GREED OF CONQUEST.

By J. B. HARRIS-BURLAND

Author of "Deedbar," "An Angel's Sin," "Hilfth, England," "Lance, the Criminal," "The Gold Worshippers," "The Financier," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Sir John Lowick, a quiet student of science, has discovered the means of controlling and silencing the magnetic currents of the air, and bringing them into a gigantic weapon of destruction. Accompanied by his son Ralph and Jessie Rolfe mine, he gives a demonstration of the powers of his invention. It is a marvellous success.

The experiment has taken place late at night, on a small island adjoining Sir John's estate. Ralph rapidly plans to bear home, leaving Sir John alone with his model. On the way, Jessie, who at first was horrified at the awful possibilities of the invention, tells Ralph that his father should give the secret to England, so that they should give the secret to the world. Ralph could consider the rest of the world. Ralph answers that his father will not part with it, and neither should he if he were in his place. Ralph in his return to the bungalow is horrified to find his brother lying dead-murdered!

Ralph discovers that the model has been stolen, and a telegram sent to a man living near Lowick's house can be heard of the murderer in the island no trace can be found of the murderer. The inquest thought little Ralph's tragedy farther than that two men must have been connected in the death of the old man, in detective Nofar, who interests himself in the case, warns Ralph that they will make an attempt on his life, and suggests that a trap should be laid for them. Ralph agrees, and Nofar accompanies him to Lowick House. While they are chatting the detective helps himself to a glass of whisky and soda, and immediately pitches forward on the table.

CHAPTER IV.

The first witness at the inquest was Dr. Henry. He certified to the cause of death. "And you agree with me, sir," said the Coroner, "as his opinion that Sir John Lowick had died between eight and half-past. The fatal blow had been struck by a heavy, blunt instrument, in all probability, from the shape and nature of the wounds, a life-tool that had undoubtedly been delivered from behind.

Ralph Lowick was called next, and he gave a detailed account of his own and his father's movements on the night of the crime, which stress was laid on the exact time he left the island. If the doctor's evidence was correct, the murder must have taken place shortly after Lowick's departure. That seemed to point to the fact that the murderer was already hidden in the bungalow.

"You say that, so far as you know, your father had no enemies?" asked the Coroner.

"I would say he was a man who had never made an enemy in his life."

"Yet he expected an enemy on the night of his death. He was armed, and was found dead with a revolver in his hand."

"I don't attach any particular significance to that," Lowick replied. "My father was in possession of a secret which was worth millions, of which perhaps the importance can hardly be estimated in money. He knew that for two or three hours he would be left alone on the island. He only took necessary and natural precautions."

"Precisely, Mr. Lowick. I think that reasonably explains the revolver. Still, he may have had someone—some particular person—in his mind."

"It is possible, but I think if there had been anyone, my father would have told me."

"Now, with regard to the invention itself," continued the Coroner, "You spoke very guardedly about it just now, but I understand that you claimed for it terrible powers of destruction. In fact, I should imagine it would revolutionise all methods of warfare."

"I think I may say it would do that."

"It is conceivable, then, that the murder was committed, not by a man who wished to make a fortune, but by a man who desired to secure the interests of his country."

"It is more than probable," Lowick answered, "it is even possible that the murderer considers himself a martyr."

"Are you in possession of your father's secret?" the Coroner asked, after a pause.

Lowick hesitated before he replied, and looked round the room. He knew many of those present, but there were others whom we strangers to him. It was even possible that the murderer himself was there, listening to the question. In any case, to give an answer would be published all over England in less than twenty-four hours.

"I hardly think what I say," he replied, slowly. "I am acquainted with the idea of the invention, but I think if I could make another, unless I could recover the one that was stolen."

"And Miss Ellerminne?"

"She knows nothing whatever about it. She was present at the experiment, and could hear nothing to the sound, but she is as ignorant of the most elementary facts in the invention."

The Coroner asked further questions, with the view of eliciting the names of those who would be likely to know of the hour fixed for the experiment, and of those who knew the essential fact—that Sir Ralph Lowick was left alone on the island.

"One thing seems certain," said the Coroner, in conclusion, "that whoever killed your father knew that you had arranged to take Miss Ellerminne back to her home and to leave your father alone."

Mr. Turnbull, who was the next witness called, would not agree to this statement. He pointed out that two murderers might only have been waiting for an opportunity, and that the opportunity had occurred. He then gave a careful and detailed account of investigations which had had no result beyond establishing the fact—and not establishing it very clearly—that the murderer and his accomplice had landed on the island in a boat, and had departed in a similar manner. Cross-examined, he admitted that he had found a clue, but that the time but not yet come to make the information public.

"You are certain that there were two men?" the Coroner inquired in conclusion. "You are certain of that?"

"Because it would have taken two men to remove the machine?"

"Partly because of that. But I have other reasons, which I am afraid I must keep to myself for the present."

"I will not press the matter, Mr. Turnbull, but I don't think that if there were two men they could easily have bound and gagged Sir John Lowick, and carried off the machine. Men do not commit murder, as a rule, unless they are forced to do so."

"Sir John Lowick was armed," the inspector replied, slowly, "and they may have been obliged to kill him. But one of so many circumstances might have led to make the death necessary for the success of the scheme. It is not possible that the secret of Sir John Lowick was of more importance to them than the theft of the machine. It is conceivable that they might have been in fact of the theft to die with the inventor."

There was silence in the room—a silence in which one might have heard a pin drop. All eyes were turned on Ralph Lowick. The suggestion was not to be lightly considered by the inspector's suggestion. If the murderer desired the secret of the invention to die, another victim might not be necessary.

The young man smiled grimly, and his hands which were clenched on the arms, tightened. Then he glanced at Mr. Turnbull, and the officer shrugged his shoulders. The cross-examination continued, but Mr. Turnbull's answers grew less and less intelligent. He harped on the extreme difficulty of the case, and even hinted that the police were only ordinary human beings, endowed with ordinary human powers. He seemed to dwell on the fact of his own incompetence, and though he answered some questions with great show of detail and at wearisome length, he was blankly ignorant when he was asked anything of importance. In short, he seemed to be trying to convey to the jury that the police ought to be given the sack or a pension at once.

Police-constable Evans followed, and though he was only a rustic constable, his evidence absolutely smashed the amateur detective altogether. He was far superior. Yet there were times when he, too, was reticent, pleading ignorance as the inspector had done. But pleading in such a way as left no doubt in the mind of his audience that here was a very smart, secretive fellow lurked. Ralph Lowick, who was watching Mr. Turnbull very closely, noticed a distinct look of annoyance on these occasions.

Other witnesses followed, but none of them contributed anything of real value to the new trial of the mystery. They consisted of the most part of the servants at Cranses Hall, and their statements corroborated those made by the previous witnesses.

At last the long and ghastly business came to an end. There was a verdict of wilful murder by some person or persons unknown, an expression of sympathy on behalf of the jury with Ralph Lowick, and then everyone began to file out into the open air, where the sun shone and a fresh breeze blew in from the sea.

Ralph Lowick spoke to one or two people, acknowledged the salutations of others, and then walked quickly along the road that led to Cranses Hall. There was a man standing at a little distance he looked back, and saw a man hurrying after him, and waving his hand. He paused, and watched the fellow approach. The man was tall and thin, and Lowick recognised the grey suit and grey felt hat as belonging to the stranger he had seen at the inquest.

"Pardon me, sir," said the man, as he came up to Lowick, "but may I walk with you as far as your house?"

"Certainly," Lowick answered, curtly. "If you had spoken to me outside the inn, you could have spared yourself the trouble of running after me."

"No trouble at all, sir, I can assure you. The exercise will be good, for I have been a few parts for a holiday, and try to get all the exercise I can."

"Are you one of you," said Lowick, drily; and then, as they started to walk down the straight, lonely road, he added, "What do you want?"

"A few words with you, sir. My name is Nofar. Perhaps you have heard it?"

"I don't think so."

"You don't remember the Dyceworth case?"

"Certainly I do."

Mr. Nofar removed his hat, and pointed to a thin white scar across his forehead.

"I got that in the Dyceworth case," he said, quietly, "and if it had gone an inch deeper I wouldn't be here talking to you now, sir."

"I remember now. You were the man who arrested Dyceworth. A detective, eh? Have they sent you down from Scotland Yard?"

"No, sir. I have no official connection with the case. But I heard of it when I was cycling through here yesterday. Mr. Turnbull is a friend of mine; he's a smart man—far too smart for the country."

"What do you want with me?" Lowick asked, after a pause.

"To make a suggestion, if I may, sir—that is to say, if you won't consider it an impertinence?"

"Not at all. You are a man of experience in these matters, I—"

"I noticed," said Nofar, slowly, "that when the Coroner asked you whether you were in possession of your father's secret, you hesitated before you replied. The hesitation was natural, and I admired the way in which you evaded the question. Undoubtedly it will be your turn next."

Lowick looked puzzled, but he made no reply.

"They will have a try at you," Nofar continued; "perhaps to-night. Turnbull is a good friend of mine, but that hadn't the face to make the suggestion that I am going to make to you."

"What is that?"

"That you should make things easy for them, by walking straight into their hands. I'm not going to walk. It wants pluck; but I think that if you have the pluck you will be rewarded. You have the drawings in a safe have you not?"

"Yes, and I keep the key of the safe on my watch-chain. What do you suggest?"

"That you should leave your watch-chain on your dressing-table, and leave the front windows on the ground floor unbolted. Mr. Turnbull and your local constable can remain themselves in the garden. I, who am quite unknown in this part of the world, will, with your permission, stay in your house and hide myself in some place where I can watch the safe."

"To-night?" exclaimed Lowick. "No, I cannot permit such a thing. My poor father is not yet in his grave."

"To-morrow night will be too late," the detective answered, quietly.

"It would be better for me to watch myself," Lowick said after a pause.

"I think not. They will ascertain that you are in bed and asleep before they make any attempt on the safe."

"They might kill me first, and then take the papers."

"No, they will first take the papers, and then make an attempt on yours. Before that can be done quietly, the second may cause a disturbance."

Lowick was silent till they reached the gates of the drive leading up to Cranses Hall. Then he said, abruptly, "Does Mr. Turnbull approve of this?"

"Yes, sir, he does. But he didn't like to ask you. There is a good deal of risk, and, officially, he couldn't ask you."

"Does he suspect anyone?"

"I think not. I don't mention no names, but I am sure he suspects someone in the neighbourhood—someone who is personally known to you."

"Come into the house with me, and we will talk it over."

Mr. Nofar agreed, and half an hour later Ralph Lowick departed in the car in search of Mr. Turnbull, whom he found in earnest talk in the village, and engaged in conversation with the local constable at the latter's house.

"Yes, I quite approve of the plan, sir," said Mr. Turnbull, when they were alone. "If you're willing to take the risk—"

"I am willing. This fellow Nofar is all right, isn't he?"

"Oh yes, sir. Two years ago we were great friends, I had a chat with him just now."

"Very well, then. Will you be there to-night?"

"Yes, I will be there. Of course, nothing may happen. You will, of course, have your revolver, and sleep with a revolver in your hand. Under the pillow is the best place. You can switch it out more quickly."

"I'll take your advice."

"I'll give you more out, sir," the inspector continued, "if you find the cartridges have been taken out of your revolver, say nothing about it. Keep a few others in your pocket, and load the weapon again."

"In my pocket?"

"Yes, you may find the box missing, if you go to look for it."

"I'll—this sounds like business. You are sure I can trust Nofar not to bungle the matter?"

"Quite sure, sir."

It was dark when Lowick reached home, and as he passed up the drive he thought how easy it would be for anyone to get at the house from under the cover of the trees. Hence forward he would go hourly in fear of death. He would never know a moment's peace of mind till the murderer of his father was caught. It was so easy to kill, so hard to clear.

Nothing happened, however, and Lowick made his way into the library, where he had left Mr. Nofar. The detective, who was in the act of raising a whisky and soda to his lips from the glass, and rose to his feet.

"I hope I'm not taking a liberty, sir," he said, "but I think you mentioned that—"

"Certainly. Please make yourself at home. Well, I've seen Turnbull, and he falls in with your suggestion."

"I thought he would, sir. I don't mean any disrespect, but I don't think Mr. Turnbull is a suspect. You have had great trouble, and may you have the strength to bear it, and the wealth to fight your enemies."

He raised the glass to his lips, drank it down, and set it down on the table.

"Thank you, Mr. Nofar," Lowick said. "I am sure you—why, what is it?"

Mr. Nofar was staring at him with horror in his eyes. Then, without uttering a word, the detective lurched forward, and his arms and head crashed down among the glasses and bottles on the table.

CHAPTER V.

Lowick caught the detective under the arm and pulled him over on the sofa. The hands and face were cut and bleeding, and the unfortunate man's forehead where he was lowered gently to the floor. After that he was silent.

Lowick tried to restore him to consciousness, and a minute elapsed before he rang the bell. Then the sight of blood was in upper. Then servants ran to and fro and [illegible] and flung themselves in [illegible] the chairs and sofas. The [illegible] the death of [illegible] master, had shattered their nerves completely.

Lowick alone was calm. He despatched the [illegible] for the doctor and [illegible] Turnbull. [illegible] he went to the [illegible] slipped a [illegible] window in his pocket, and returned to the library. He could do nothing till the arrival of the doctor. Certain remedies had been tried, and failed. Mr. Nofar was still alive, but he was quite unconscious. All that he could do was to bind up the cuts on his face and hands.

Only twenty minutes elapsed before the return of the motor. Lowick heard the sound of the wheels as they passed the window, and [illegible] into the hall. A few quick words followed, and the doctor, white faced and feeble, made his way into the library. Lowick and the inspector remained in the hall. The young man stated what had happened, but the inspector made no comment as to do that.

"Poison," said the doctor, curtly, "no doubt of you. I hope the old fool can save him. Then he walked into the library, and Lowick followed him. Dr. Henry was kneeling on the floor, and looked up at them as they entered the room.

"Poison!" queried the inspector.

"Yes. Cyanide of potassium, I think. I'm not sure yet."

For a few moments there was silence. Dr. Henry still knelt by the side of the dead man, and was staring stupidly at the bandaged face. Mr. Turnbull was stolid and motionless. Lowick had a look of fear in Lowick's eyes, and his hands were tightly clenched.

"Meant for you, I expect," said Mr. Turnbull at last, in a terrible affair, but it narrows our search for the murderer."

"How?" Lowick asked in a dull, mechanical voice.

"One of your servants is an accomplice. Who is the most likely?"

He went to the side of the dead man, and looked down at the body of the detective. Then he searched it, and presently passed over his face, and then he turned away.

"A wife and children," he said, grimly. "Well, that's the sort of death I'd like to die, if I were a bachelor. I suppose, as he's off duty, there's no chance for me?"

"I'll see to that," Lowick broke in, fiercely. "I might have been in his place. I will provide for that."

"I'm sure you won't, sir," said Mr. Turnbull; "and now I'm off to see Winchester people. I'll run some men. I'm going to make a clean sweep of this place to-night. Will you kindly put out the lights? I'm afraid of a heart failure, that he had an old trouble of that sort, and it's proved too much for him. I'm sorry, but I'm afraid it's a bit. Don't let anything be touched in this room, and don't let one of your servants leave the house."

"I'll see that no one does," cried Lowick. "I feel as though there were a curse on this place—as though I, too, were doomed to die. I'll be hard to defend oneself against an unknown adversary."

"You'll be all right, sir. You're naturally a bit upset. The doctor will stay with you. I shall give it out in Easterford that it's you who have had the accident."

"In Easterminet?"

"Yes, I don't think the criminal is further off than that."

Lowick accompanied the inspector to the door, and then stood in the darkness, the motor throbbed and the lamps sent a fan of light streaming down the drive.

"Good night," the young man muttered, "it seems as though hadn's were let loose."

"Pardon, sir?" Mr. Turnbull replied, "but we'll bottle it up again, and put the lid on. You just keep cool, and let the law take its course. You are honest folk, and think the law isn't all that it should be. But I can tell you that the criminal knows better."

The throbbing light of the motor vanish among the trees of the drive. Then he returned to the library. He found Dr. Henry still kneeling at the dead man, and gripped him by the arm.

"Come, doctor," he said. "This won't do. We'll have some dinner."

"Dinner!" queried the old man.

"Yes, and wine, eh? Come, sir!"

"I couldn't take anything, Ralph."

"Aren't you hungry?"

"I'm not thirsty."

Lowick was silent for half a minute. Then the horror in his eyes. "If only you didn't know the secret," he faltered, "and if they could be made to understand that you don't know."

"I'm glad I do know," Lowick answered, "for Mrs. Nofar, in the next yet, and if the whole world attempts my life, I'll make a fight for it."

"A fight! It is impossible. Oh, my dear boy, you have been left a terrible inheritance."

"If it is not my own," Lowick replied, slowly. "One I shall use to its fullest power. To-morrow—"

He paused and hit his lip, as though he had said too much.

"Yes, to-morrow, Ralph?"

"I may not be alive to-morrow," he answered, "so we won't talk about it."

To be continued.

EVERY WOMAN.
Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. News. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London.

A WOODLESFORD DROWNING CASE.

ON THE WAY TO ASTLEY.

An inquest was held at Woodlesford on Monday on Edward Hartley, the captain of a keel, who was drowned in the Woodlesford Lock of the Aire and Calder Canal on Sunday.

The body was identified by Amelia Walsh, a married woman, who said she was living apart from her husband, and had lived with deceased for the past two years at York Place, Walker Hill, Skipton. She last saw deceased on November 11th, when he left about 8 a.m. Two days later she received a postcard from him stating that he expected to be home again on the 15th inst. That evening she was informed that he was dead.

John Pickles, a boatman living at Bingley, said he was mate on the boat "Duke," owned by William Sugden, of Kildwick, and of which deceased was the captain. He got Lowick aboard on Sunday morning at Salterforth, and arrived at the Woodlesford Lock at 10.45 a.m. Witness was on the canal bank pushing in charge of the horse, while deceased was steering. The current emptied the sluice and was pushing the lock gate when he noticed that Hartley was missing. He shouted but got no reply. The cap of deceased was floating in the water, and at the moment I saw the body was discovered floating. A boat hook was obtained, and with this the body was recovered. Artificial respiration was tried but proved of no avail. A doctor was sent for but did not come.

A verdict of "Accidentally drowned" was returned. Pickles stated that he believed deceased had been pushing the boat from the side of the lock when he slipped and fell, striking his head on the lock side in his fall.

ROTHWELL DISTRICT WAR RELIEF COMMITTEE.

STOURTON, LOFTHOUSE, CARLTON, AND THORPE QUARTERS.

A meeting of the Rothwell Urban District War Relief Committee was held on the Council Offices, Rothwell, on Monday night. There was a small attendance, and the Chairman (Mr. J. Hirst) presided.

A letter was read from the Yorkshire Copper Works, Stanton, asking that the sum of £15 which had been forwarded to the fund, should be considered as the Stourton treasurer.

The Clerk stated that the money had been paid into the Central Fund, as the cheque had been made payable to the Rothwell War Fund.

Mr. W. Wade said that made no difference it would make if the transfer was made.

Mr. Hirst said he thought it would be the best to carry out the wishes of the sender, and if it was received into the Stourton treasurer.

Mr. W. Dodgson reported that the amount received up to date by the Stourton Committee was £436 17s. 7d., including the £15 from the Copper Works, while the expenditure was £20 8s. 6d. Carlton had paid out £1 15s. to dependents since the last meeting, and Thorpe £1 5s.

He (Mr. Dodgson) had received £1 from Mr E. Sutcliffe, of the Robin Hood Schools, a donation from the staff for the Belgian Refugee Fund. He had, he said, written to Mr Sutcliffe for a list of the names of those who had paid the amount to be credited as they had no refugee fund at Rothwell.

Mr W. Wade said that the Stourton fund had received £20 from the Stourton Rat-payers' Association.

This donation was included in the amount read out by the secretary.

A letter was read from Mr Howe, representing the Lofthouse Committee, stating that he had paid out £1 2s. for the relief of dependents, and he asked that his own cash book of rent could be found in the Central Fund

MANSTON CHURCH DEDICATION FESTIVAL.

POSITION OF THE NEW CHURCH FUND.

ADDRESS BY DR SADLER, LEEDS UNIVERSITY.

On Saturday the dedication festival of Manston Church, Crossgates, was celebrated, and three services were held in the church in the course of the day. In the evening the usual parish tea was provided in the Manston schools, which were tastefully decorated with flags and banners, and in the evening a largely-attended parochial gathering, at which representatives of all churches were present, was held. The Rev. H. H. Mills (vicar) presided, and he was supported by Dr Sadler, Vice-Chancellor of Leeds University, and Mr H. Mountcastle of the churchwardens. The proceedings commenced with the singing of the National Anthem.

The Vicar, in the course of a short address, gave some interesting information in regard to the position of the New Church Fund. He stated that the festival last year was a memorable one because the new church was then dedicated. This year's festival they might term the festival of the great war, and he hoped that next year this festival would be the festival of the great peace. (Applause). They had set themselves the task of clearing off the debt on the church, but the war had come and had created a new difficulty. They were, however, very fortunate in having received a loan on very favourable terms, and as they had coming in, through the kindness of Mr Wilson, a certain amount, he hoped it might be an annual sum —(applause)—they had no accumulation of interest against them, and all the money they received last year, and he hoped for the present year, would be for the purpose of the debt. For a long time it had been unable to tell them exactly what the debt was, because, as they all perhaps knew, there were, at the time of the erection of the building, certain items that were subject to discussion, and on these they sought arbitration, which had given them, he was told on good authority, quite as much as they had any right to expect. Their able treasurer had furnished him with the figures, and he was now able to state how they stood. The actual cost of the building was £6,849 0s. 6d., and towards that £4,251 11s. 6d. had been subscribed, and the debt was now £2,787 7s. 6d. (Applause). They were not going to make any great effort to remove the debt at present, but next year they were to have another sale of work. He would be very glad, however, if two-will offerings were regularly given, because they represented a steady income. While only some a large sum, they stood in a more favourable position, after building, than any new church in the neighbourhood of Leeds had done. (Applause).

Mr H. Hunt, one of the churchwardens, then explained the diocesan scheme of finance, and stated that it was intended to raise the Manston parish quota by asking communicants to contribute a minimum of 1s. per head.

Dr Sadler, Vice-Chancellor of Leeds University, who had visited the church, congratulated the parishioners on the building, and stated that it was one of the most beautiful of the modern churches in the neighbourhood of Leeds. (Applause). He then delivered a lengthy address on "The Issue of the War." He said that there were three main issues. The first was to maintain the neutrality of Belgium on two grounds, the first being that was that a neutral and inviolable Belgium and Netherlands were a necessary rampart for the defence of the freedom of Great Britain; and the second ground, because of certain international obligations towards Belgium, the upholding and honourable recognition of which were closely bound up with the public law of Europe, upon respect of which the future law of civilisation largely depended. The second issue of the war, and it was one which became clearer as the weeks went by, was to resist the aggression threatened it would seem for many years by some leading Germans, though not by all, to occupy the dominant position in the councils of Europe and to destroy the naval supremacy of the British Empire. (Applause). The third issue was to uphold the freedom of representative self-government as the wisest social ideal for the future—not the only ideal by any means, not an ideal free from the peril of failure, but in their judgment the wisest. (Applause). Dr Sadler went on to quote extracts from the diplomatic correspondence of the several nations involved in the war written prior to the outbreak of hostilities as tending to prove that down to the very last moment Germany's responsible officials protested that the neutrality of Belgium was secured and would not by them be violated. Belgium, he said, resisted, and whatever happened, Belgium would be proud that she had resisted. (Applause). He afterwards dealt with self-government, which Germany did not believe in. What they had to try to avoid in England was the giving of the officials of the State immunity from the common law of the land. It sounded rather an abstract thing, but it was not really. All over the Continent officials were not under the same law as other people. It made the wheels of the State work smoothly, but he believed that it was at the root of the mischief. The right thing was to be as England was. Any policeman and any civil servant was liable in this country to be brought up before the common courts and judged under the common law the same as any private civilian. That was the way safety lay. (Applause).

It was their business to bring the war to a final and successful issue. (Applause). The men in the trenches were saving the best in the world for them, but if they were not supported—if everyone was not willing to do what the State wished they would find that the things most dear to their hearts had been sacrificed by their fainthearted cowardice. They had got to do that, but they had got to do something else as well. They had got to make England so that the people could live healthy and noble lives and so that the boys and girls could grow up in the full measure of strength and power. These things, he admitted, did not depend entirely on material conditions, because in some of the most squalid quarters of Leeds they could find houses which were models of cleanliness and purity. There were certain things in this country which could only be done by party, and he did not see any way out for the future but party government. Certain things, however, could not be done by party but by the whole nation, and the housing question was one. He urged that while the nation was one they should begin on inquiry, followed by action, which in 15 or 20 years, would remove from the country the curse of bad housing. (Applause).

On the call of Mr Allanson, seconded by Mr Lee, a very cordial vote of thanks was passed to Dr Sadler for his address.

A short musical programme, arranged by Mr Barnley, the church organist, who played the pianoforte accompaniments, was gone through. The choir sang the Russian National Anthem and the Marseillaise, and Mr G. Robson rendered the song "The Bombardier" in pleasing style. Mr H. W. White gave a song, and Messrs G. Robson and E. Hooper contributed the duet "The Battle Eve," which was one of the most enjoyable items performed. Mr A. L. Sherrock was the humorist and his ditties, especially one about the Kaiser, caused much amusement, and he had to respond to calls for more. The meeting, which was a successful one, concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

CROSSGATES LITERARY SOCIETY.

SOME CHRONICLES OF AN ANCIENT KINGDOM."

"Some Chronicles of an Ancient Kingdom" was the subject of a lecture delivered by Mr Robert Mackay, of Whitkirk, before a large gathering of the members of Crossgates Literary Society in the Wesleyan Schoolroom, Crossgates, on Monday night. Mr E. Hook (Worsworth (President of the Society) was in the chair.

Mr Mackay stated that interest in the history of the ancient Kingdom of Elmet seemed to increase as the years rolled on, and in consequence of the new light thrown upon it by the Rev. J. S. C. Collins, rural rector of Barwick, and others, the whole of the early history associated with what was known of the ancient city of Elmet by Pendle, the pagan King of Mercia, and the battle that is supposed to have taken place on Whinmoor. At Peel Farm was an old ruined palace, where the warrior's followers were said to have quenched their thirst, and in the vicinity is Pen Wood, in which, according to local tradition, Pendle's body was cremated after the battle. But the lecturer remarked, amidst laughter, that he usually was in bed at that time, and he had none on the spot. A visit was paid to Barwick-in-Elmet on the occasion of the Roman invasion, and in Ripley Churchyard probably some relics of the Romans were to be found. Then there was Scott Hall, with its squint and numerous memorials to the Ryther family, and Cawood, its castle, and church were described. Bolton Percy, which in the time of the Kingdom of Elmet, has one of the most beautiful churches in Yorkshire, and the "devil's door" in it was shown. Mr Mackay stated that in ancient churches it was the custom to have this door open before the rite of baptism was performed in order that his satanic majesty might have an opportunity of fleeing from the church. In regard to the marsh land here, Mr Mackay, by an old bridge, he stated that it was the remainder of a bog which stretched away to Elmet. Mr Mackay exhibited a view of Lord Darcy's cross, which stood in a hedgerow at Towton. Several beautiful photos of the River Wharfe were greatly admired, and the old church of Ilkley, with its squint and numerous memorials to the Ryther family, and Cawood, its castle, and church were described. Bolton Percy, which in the time of the Kingdom of Elmet, has one of the most beautiful churches in Yorkshire, and the "devil's door" in it was shown. Mr Mackay stated that in ancient churches it was the custom to have this door open before the rite of baptism was performed in order that his satanic majesty might have an opportunity of fleeing from the church. In regard to the marsh land here, Mr Mackay, by an old bridge, he stated that it was the remainder of a bog which stretched away to Elmet. Mr Mackay exhibited a view of Lord Darcy's cross, which stood in a hedgerow at Towton. Several beautiful photos of the River Wharfe were greatly admired, and the old church of Ilkley, with its squint and numerous memorials to the Ryther family, and Cawood, its castle, and church were described. Bolton Percy, which in the time of the Kingdom of Elmet, has one of the most beautiful churches in Yorkshire, and the "devil's door" in it was shown. Mr Mackay stated that in ancient churches it was the custom

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.
Words. 1 week. 3 weeks. 6 weeks. 13 weeks
30 ... 0 6 ... 1 0 ... 1 4 0 ... 3 3
30 ... 0 9 ... 1 6 ... 1 9 0 ... 4 0
40 ... 1 0 ... 2 0 ... 3 8 0 ... 6 0
If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, WITH BOOKINGS FROM CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.
Wednesday, 25th Nov., 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby.
Saturday, 28th Nov., 12.30 p.m., to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby, 12.45 p.m. to Goole and Hull.
For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

WANTED SERVANT GIRL.—"Nordgarth," Marston Gardens, Crossgates.

WANTED Strong Boy Girl. No Sunday work.—Mrs Booth, 30, Hollyshaw Lane, Whitkirk. 2389

WANTED EXPERIENCED GENERAL, age from 20 to 25.—Apply, Mrs Crossley, Hill Villa, Kippax. 2612

WANTED Strong, Respectable GIRL, about 17.—Mrs Rodgers, 70, Hollyshaw Lane, Whitkirk. 3 2614

WANTED 3 Respectable ENGLISHMEN as LODGERS. No others need apply.—Mrs Flockton, 3, Bentley Square, Oulton, near Leeds. 2 2571

WANTED Good GENERAL SERVANT. Age 28 unless Reference required.—Apply, Mrs Grisdale, 27, St. Michael's Cres-cent, Headingley, Leeds. 2 2601

FOR SALE.

MOTOR CYCLE BARGAIN.—2¼h.p. Light-weight, sound and in good condition, new tyres and belt, and a good hill climber. Cost £38. To be cleared for £12 or any exchange invited.—Hudson, Aberford.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES, &c. MUSIC for Sale, 1/- copies:—Robin Hood 8, Earl King's Daughter 35, Inchape Rock 25. Practically new. Half-price or best offers.—H. Pawson, Micklefield, Leeds. 1 1864

CYCLE BARGAINS.—1 Gent.'s All-Black, 1913, 'Flea' model, "metal gear case, tools, bag, and pump, value £5 10s. Gent.'s "Fleet," with back pedal brake, value £6 10s. Above are new machines. To be cleared at a special reduction.—Hudson, Aberford.

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c., Post Free, 2 Stamps —(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

HEALTH! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free to us to daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs. W. Wood, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.
Consult MRS. WOOD, only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrapper, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.

Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. And at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
96 PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER, VICAR LANE, (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS).
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0 10 0	for	2½	per month.
£1 0 0	"	5½	" "
£2 0 0	"	10½	" "
£4 10 0	"	1/-	" "
£5 0 0	"	1/2	" "
£10 0 0	"	2/-	" "
£15 0 0	"	2/6	" "

Sums above £15 by Special Agreement.
Offices open Daily and Thursday Evenings.
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS, PLEDGE OFFICE LADY LANE LEEDS.

MR and MRS. TURNER 2 Lady Lane, Leeds, and 36, Horton Road, Bradford, Purchase for Cash Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited. Highest Price Given. Tel. Nos.: Leeds 4088; Bradford 3217

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS. obtained in all countries.
JOHN J. WILSON (REGISTERED PATENT AGENT), 25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS, and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX (the Oldest Established in Leeds). Handbook Free on British, and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks Designs Telephone: LEEDS 2018 HALIFAX 35Y.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at LAMB'S HERB HOUSE, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

I, DAVID BOOTH, of ROBINSON LANE, KIPPAX, MINER, hereby APOLOGISE and EXPRESS MY SINCERE REGRET to Dr. STEVEN INFIELD, of KIPPAX HOUSE, KIPPAX, for having made statements about him and his Governess, that he was of German nationality, and that his Governess was in possession of drawings for the use of the Germans. I now admit that THERE WAS NO TRUTH in those statements, and I UNRESERVEDLY WITHDRAW the same, and in consideration of Dr. Infield accepting this apology I am prepared to pay the costs as some retribution for the wrong I have done to him.
I am exceedingly sorry for any annoyance these statements may have caused him and his Governess.
Dated this 17th day of November, 1914.
DAVID BOOTH.
Witness—Joseph D. Atkinson, Clerk with Arthur Willey, Solicitor, Leeds.

GARFORTH SCIENCE LECTURES.
COUNCIL SCHOOL, GARFORTH.
MONDAY NEXT, NOV. 23rd, at 8 p.m.
Lecture—
"SIX MONTHS TOUR IN INDIA."
by Miss McAfpine.
Chairman—Rev. J. Miller Hamilton.
All heartily welcome. Collection

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.
Every Evening at 7 o'clock, except
SATURDAY: Two Performances at 6.30 & 8.30
WEEK COMMENCING NOVEMBER 23rd.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
"HE NEVER KNEW."
(In two parts).
A Splendid Vitagraph Drama, with many interesting incidents.
SECOND EDITION PICTORIAL RECORD OF THE WAR.
THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY.
"ADVENTURES OF KATHLEEN."
"THE UNWELCOME THRONE."
Children's Matinee on Saturday at 2.30.
Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

B A R K E R ' S
FIRST ANNUAL SALE
OF PLAYER PIANOS. PIANOS & ORGANS.

£10.—ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND, by Metzler. Tape check repeating action. Only slop-soaked. Cost double.
£45.—PLAYER PIANO, quite new, 65-note, with all the latest attachments and melody desires. Great bargain.
£20.—J. AND J. HOPKINSON, iron frame, check repeating action, walnut case; rare bargain.
£36.—BRINSMEAD OVERSTRUNG, ivory keys, rosewood case. List price, 55 guineas.
£18.—SCHIEDMAYER, second-hand rosewood case; had practically no use whatever, 90 guinea model.
£10.—KIRKMAN, mahogany case, very pleasing tone; exceptional bargain.
£14.—HADDINGTON ROSEWOOD PIANO, good condition. Very suitable for learner.
£13.—CONLAND AND COLLARD ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND, overstrung; only slop-soiled.
£12.—BEUSHER ROSEWOOD UPRIGHT GRAND. Discounted regardless of cost.
£19.—NEUSHER OVERSTRUNG UPRIGHT GRAND, ivory keys, in ebony case. Magnificent bargain.
£15 10s.—BISHOP, iron frame, walnut case, all the latest improvements; cost double; 15 years' warranty; a bargain.
£22 10s.—GERMAN OVERSTRUNG UPRIGHT GRAND, ivory keys, with all the very latest improvements, underdamper, check repeating action. 15 years' warranty.

PLEASE NOTE.—TERMS ARRANGED for any Piano in this Advertisement.
£19 10s.—GEORGE RUSSELL, UPRIGHT GRAND, in solid oak. Cost double; as new. Rare bargain.
BARKER'S BRITISH PIANOS, NEW STATION STREET, LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1 Garforth.

ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.
Established 37 Years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
23, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL.
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.
Insurance Brokers.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON.
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

Purveyors of Marmalade — To H.M. King George V.

Frank COOPER'S "OXFORD"
MARMALADE.

The "Oxford" has a distinctive flavour, has the home-made character, and goes farther — than any other. —

OBTAINABLE AT
Walter Jubb's, Austhorpe Rd., Crossgates
:: ALSO ::
S. BORDER & Co., YORK.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART

ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
50 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON THURSDAY NEXT.

GRIMESDIKE FARM, SEACROFT.
One mile from Schools and 13 miles from Crossgates Station, N.E.R.

Messrs BARTLE & SON
Instructed by Mr T. Coates, will Sell by Auction on Friday next, November 27th, 1914,
20 WELL-BRED STORE BULLOCKS, 21 to 3 years old, very forward in condition.
1 Shorthorn Bull (almost beef).
72 WHITE BERKSHIRE AND SUFFOLK PIGS,
60 Store Pigs, to 10 to 16 weeks old.
2 Berkshire Gilts in Pig.
Middle White Boar, to months old.
Also
TWO LARGE STACKS OF PRIME MEADOW HAY (1913 and 1914 crops).
SALE AT TWO O'CLOCK PRECISELY.

ON MONDAY NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
20 CHOICE BULLOCKS and HEIFERS.
80 FAT LAMBS, SHEARLINGS, and EWES.
PORK and STORE PIGS.
WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

W. A. F. BURDOWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON,
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

THREE GOOD LINES:
CINEMA GREEN PEAS,
Housewife Marrowfat Peas,
Id., 1½d. & 3d. Packets,
AND —
CROWN VINEGAR.
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
DEWSBURY ROAD, LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this:-

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists, and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET, LEEDS.

H. E. WALKER,
STURTON GRANGE, GARFORTH,
Agricultural Agent
— FOR —
THE DRIFFIELD PURE LINSEED, COTTON and UNION CAKE COMPANY, LIMITED.
Molassine Meal.
Dairy and Calf Meal.
Poultry and Dog Foods.
Manures, Peat Moss, Oils, etc.
Best Quality & Prompt Delivery.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ROTHWELL GAS.

APPLICATION FOR PROVISIONAL ORDER, 1914-5.

NOTICE is hereby given that the ROTHWELL GAS LIGHT COMPANY carrying on business at Rothwell (West Riding County of York) INTEND TO APPLY TO THE BOARD OF TRADE FOR A PROVISIONAL ORDER under the Gas and Water Facilities Act, 1870, to enable the said Company to increase the authorised Capital of the Company by the sum of £16,500 by the issue of 1,650 Additional Shares of £10 each under the same conditions as the Company's Additional Shares are authorised to be issued under and by virtue of the provisions of the Rothwell Gas Act, 1882, and the Rothwell Gas Orders, 1895, 1902, and 1908.
And also to enable the said Company to borrow proportionate sums of money in respect of such proposed additional Capital in accordance with and in the manner authorised by the said Act and Orders.
Printed copies of the draft Provisional Order will be deposited at the Board of Trade on or before the 23rd day of December next, and on and after that date copies can be obtained at the offices of the undersigned Solicitor and Parliamentary Agents at the price of 1s. per copy, and if and when the said Order is made by the Board of Trade, printed copies of the Order will be deposited for the public inspection, at the offices of the Rothwell Gas Company, and may also be obtained on application at the said office of the Clerk of the Peace for the County Rothwell, and at the office of the undersigned at the price of 1s. per copy.
Every Company, Corporation, or person desirous of making any representation to the Board of Trade, or of bringing before that Board any objection respecting the application, may do so by letter, addressed to the Assistant Secretary, Board of Trade Harbour Department (Gas Office), 7, Whitehall Gardens, London, S.W., on or before the 11th January, 1915, and copies of such representation or objection, and at the same time be sent to the undersigned Solicitor or Agents for the Company, and on forwarding such representation or objection to the Board, the Objector or their Agents should state the grounds of the same have been sent accordingly.
Dated the 19th day of November, 1914.
WM WRIGHT,
15, Park Row, Leeds,
Solicitor,
HAMLIN & CO.,
9, Fleet Street, London, E.C.
Parliamentary Agents.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21st, 1914.

In these days, when the avowed aims of German policy are so well-known in this country, it is astounding that any section of the community, no matter how small, should be so blind to the common interests as to declare that English workmen's homes are not worth fighting for. Somewhat similar sentiments have been expressed before—when the country was not threatened by a brutal foe, and the persons who expressed them might have been suffering under what they believed to be an injustice, but in the present crisis, when the very existence of the nation is at stake, it is remarkable to find Labour representatives in Parliament attacked because they have during the present political parleyings appearing on the recruiting platform. Many English homes are, unfortunately, poor, and thousands of the population live in squalid districts under wretched conditions. These homes may not appear to be worth much, and they may seriously handicap the people who live in them, but the question goes far beyond that. Only the man who is utterly ignorant of the living conditions in Germany would utter such sentiments. Are the disloyal prepared to sacrifice all chances of betterment by giving up the privileges which they, as British subjects, enjoy at the present time? The power in this country is now in the hands of the masses, and, if they desire it, they can have the legislation they want. In theory, some may say, this is true, but it does not work out in actual practice. There is, however, no getting over the fact that if the masses are determined no political party or organization dare stand in their way. If they became German subjects they would soon find that the higher orders did not regard them as sufficiently good to be intellectually associated with a part in the government of the country. Democratic government is unknown in the Fatherland. And when the Englishmen who set such small value on their homes started an agitation for political rights they would speedily discover that the freedom of speech which they had in tolerant England did not exist in Germany. At the present time Britons are appealed to from recruiting platforms to rise in their might and smite the ruthless enemy that has devastated Belgium and committed atrocities innumerable on an industrious population, whose only desire was to live at peace with their neighbours, and some of these disloyal say that their homes are not worth fighting for. It is the right of every man in this country—up to the present, at any rate—to refuse to serve his country, and even to condemn her, but Germany would not be so tolerant. These men would quickly learn the meaning of Conscription—the "manufacture of "cannon fodder," in order to maintain the prestige and power of the military caste, and they would understand that grinding and crushing of the individual, who is subordinated to the claims and demands of the State. They would have no opportunity of saying that their homes were not worth fighting for; they would simply have to go into training. Presumably they have never thought the matter out. England may not be a paradise, but it is the home of freedom, and it is the country to which all downtrodden people turn to for guidance and help. These disloyal Britons may cause some mischief, and their foolish talk may prevent a number of young fellows from joining the Army, but there are thousands who, whilst patriotic enough in their talk, are not doing anything to back up their faith in Britain. Writers in Germany have told us—it does not do us any harm—that they hate us, and the Prussians would no doubt, if they were permitted, bye England in the most sanguinary manner the inhabitants. They can only be cheeked in one way. The young men must defend our shores, and that can best be done in France, Belgium, and Germany. The cry is for more men—and more men they must be got if this country is to emerge successfully from this terrible war and crush Prussian militarism for ever.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d extra for all matter up to four lines

IN MEMORIAM.

LONGBOTTOM.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Edward Longbottom, of Great Preston, who passed away Nov. 18th, 1910.
"How the name brings back to memory
A kind and loving face."

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

Mrs. J. Batty, of Rothwell, has contributed 6s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Mr George Armitage, of Rothwell, has contributed £1 2s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Messrs J. W. Morkill (Chairman), J. R. Cross, and W. Evans.

Drink.—On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions Tom Thorpe, labourer, of Rothwell, was summoned for being born drunk and disorderly in Commercial Street, Rothwell, on Monday, November 9th. P.C. Bosomworth proved the case, and defendant was fined 5s. and costs.

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Application for a pocket matchstriker, an improved anti-corrosive composition. Patents accepted—Joseph Rafferty, Doncaster, improvements in means for facilitating exit from railway trains; M. A. Harper Mitchell, Otley, an improved skirt and blouse holder.

Button.—A junior team, representing the Rothwell Workingman's Club in the Oulton and District Billiard League, journeyed to Hope Town on Saturday night to play a match with the Reading Room cuelists. Out of the six games the Hop team won four, making an aggregate score of 548 against the Rothwell team's 492. The scores were as follows (Rothwell names first):—H. Bennett 100 v. Passmore 68, L. Thurwell 81 v. Benton 100, R. Deakin 100 v. Bush No. 2, Rhodes 100 v. Bloomer 100, F. Stringer 73 v. J. Ward 100, and F. Goodall 79 v. Bloomer 100.

Farewell.—Ensign and Mrs. Bridson, who have for the past six months had charge of the Rothwell corps of the Salvation Army, took farewell of Rothwell on Sunday, being compelled to vacate from public service for a while owing to ill-health. Although the Ensign in Rothwell has been very short, both the Ensign and his wife have been enthusiastic in their labours, endearing themselves to many of the members of the corps. They will carry with them the best wishes and the esteem of a large number. Special services were held on Sunday and each week-night up to and including Wednesday night. These were well attended, and after the service on Wednesday night, when the final "farewell" was held, the Army Band, of which the Ensign has been a member, played the two officers home. On Thursday morning they left for London. So far it is impossible to say who the new officers will be.

Rothwell W.R. Win.—Playing in the first round of the Leeds and District Senior Cup on Saturday, Rothwell Rugby Rose entertained Great Preston W.R. Since the Alerton Bywater Club disbanded several of their players have signed on with the Great Preston team, and these were included in the eleven at Rothwell. Hutchcroft started for the visitors before a very small attendance. The home-sters' tactics soon put the Preston men on the defensive

A RESIDENT AND SOLDIERS' WIVES.—Mr Harry Johnson, of Herbert Villa, Crossgates, has stated in the Parish Church that he was delighted to read "Mr James Graham's report of the work of the Leeds Local Committee of the National Relief Fund. What an answer to all the charges of drunkenness amongst soldiers' wives in the inside and front pews, and some of the literature posted on our walls, of the necessity of closing public-houses! The figures Mr Graham gives speak for themselves. He states that, out of 7,000 families registered, "I have not had occasion to warn more than 20 women. Of 300 families which were carefully inquired into in one of the poorest districts in the city there were only two doubtful cases of drinking, and these were cases of suspicion only." Is not this a fine testimony to the wives of our brave Tommies who are living down their lives for us?"

FERRYBRIDGE.

Mr H. S. Cudliffe Moss has been appointed stationmaster at Ferrybridge.

GARFORTH

On Monday evening Professor Ricardo will lecture at the Council School on "The Colleges of Garforth." See advt.

On Saturday afternoon Garforth footballers had a League match with Thorpe Hall Lees Albion, and Garforth won in our graphic one.

ARREARS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Thomas Edward Hick, miner, of Garforth, was summoned for arrears of wife's separation ordered by his son's detention in the Shadwell Industrial School. An order was made against Hick in March, 1910, for 2s per week, and the arrears, now represented 18 weeks' wait. Supt. Symonds proved the case, and an order was made for payment of the amount.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE—The attendance at the schools in Garforth area last month was not so good as in October a year ago, being 87.39 against 88.54. Garforth Council School, mixed, had a percentage of 04.87 against 91.46, and Infants' 79.80 against 84.84. The attendance being affected by measles. At East Garforth the figures were 86.58 and 04.20, chickenpox reducing the percentage, while at the Parochial School, mixed, the percentage was 06.12 against 86.17, and at the infants' school 02.11 against 86.20. The returns for Garforth R.C. were 02.31 and 93.33.

PICTURE HOUSE.—Capital programmes have been submitted at the popular Picture House this week, and for the week-end "The Range War" a sensational western drama, will attract large audiences, and the second edition of the topical record of the war will be the special attraction on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and "He never knew," a splendid vitagraph drama, will arouse keen interest. A fine programme has been arranged for the week-end, and among the principal films will be the "Adventures of Kathleen"—"The unwelcome throne." For timeliness and prices see advert.

A FOOTBALL OBJECTION.—At an emergency meeting of the Leeds Hospital Cup Committee, held at the offices, Park Square, on Friday night (Mr G. H. Ellis presiding), the protest by Garforth White Rose against the result of their match with South Milford, on November 7th, on the grounds of similarity of colours and unfair play, was considered, and the match was ordered to be replayed on Saturday, November 21st at South Milford. The South Milford or Garforth White Rose v. Fryston Colliery fixed to meet the winners on November 28th to December 5th to meet the winners of Waterloo Main Colliery who play Fryston, on November 28th, in a charity game.

GREAT PRESTON.

Mrs Lowther, of Little Preston Hall, has given £5 to the Yorkshire Hussars maxim gun fund.

A Great Preston School last month the percentage of attendance was 88.24 against 87.87 for October last year.

HALTON

FIREWORKS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Session on Tuesday, Hugh Bartlett, miner, of Halton, was summoned for discharging fireworks on the highway at Halton and was fined 2s 6d and costs.

A MENDICANT.—For begging at Halton on Monday afternoon, of no fixed abode, named John Joseph Johnson, was sent to prison for fourteen days by the magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday.

MONEY PAID.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions thirteen miners of Leeds, employed by the Waterloo Main Colliery Company were summoned for a breach of contract, and a claim of 5s. being made against each defendant. Mr Wright appeared for the Colliery Co., and said that all the defendants had paid the claims. The summonses were accordingly dismissed.

TRESPASSING POACHING AFFRAY.—Joseph Swaine, labourer, of Leeds, who is charged in connection with a poaching affray on the Templenewsam estate, was again remanded for a week in custody by the Skyrack magistrates on Tuesday. Mr A. Wilby, solicitor, who is prosecuting for the Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., stated that the two gamekeepers, who were injured in the affray, were still confined to their beds, although Dr Dean, of Crossgates, had intimated that it was most likely they would be ready to give evidence next week.

DISCHARGED.—A charge of loitering with intent was preferred against a driver of no fixed abode and named Malley McMahon, at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions. P.S. Haigh stated that a short time after midnight he saw the prisoner come out of a yard in Gloriett Avenue. Witness stopped him and questioned him as to his intentions. McMahon replied that he was going to York. He then was asked what he had in his pockets and the prisoner put his hands in them and held them there. On being searched a knife, and a box of matches, along with a candle were found. The magistrates dismissed the case, but stated that the officer had done the right thing in bringing the men before them.

KIPPAX

PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHURCH.—The Band of Hope meeting was held in the schoolroom on Tuesday evening. Mr E. Overton and Mr Arundale, of Methley, were the speakers, and Mr R. Firth presided.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—In connection with the ladies sewing society of this church a meeting was held on Monday, and tea was provided in the schoolroom, having been kindly given by Mrs Hartley. A good number of ladies attended.

BAND OF HOPE.—Mr H. Firth, of Methley, was the speaker at the Wesleyan Band of Hope meeting, which was held in the schoolroom on Monday evening. There was a good attendance, and Mr E. Plows presided. The subject dealt with was "The injury received from alcohol."

C.E. SOCIETY.—The meeting of the Christian Endeavour in connection with the Primitive Methodist Church was held on Wednesday evening, when Mr Richard Dawson, of Castleford, delivered an excellent address on "The Church in Sardis." Mr G. Prince was the soloist, and Mr A. Collinson presided.

On Saturday afternoon Kippax had a football match in the Leeds and District Cup-Tie competition, and they defeated Leeds Steel Works by two goals to one.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE—By invitation of the Earl Shaftesbury Lodge, Kippax, the autumn meeting of the West and North Yorkshire Grand Division was held in the United Methodist Church, Kippax, on Saturday. There were 70 representatives present at the meeting, and Mr J. D. Lofthouse, of Leeds, was the speaker, and Mr "Militarism and the Church" was debated at length by Mr H. H. Wilkinson, Mr T. Butterworth, and Miss Ford. A vote of thanks was moved to Mr Harrison by Mr A. Howson and seconded by Mr Allan Parker, and woefully approved.

WITHDRAWN.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, in which the case of James Lavin, miner, of Kippax, who was summoned by Edward Firth, of Kippax, for assault, was called, the prosecutor said he wished the summons to be withdrawn. He had been very friendly with the defendant's parents for over forty years, and as they had come and apologised to him he did not wish to press the case. Permission was granted to withdraw the case.

AN UNSAFE MEMBER.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Edmund Booth, miner, of Kippax, was summoned for having used obscene language at Kippax. P.C. Cockburn gave the hearing the defendant using the language. The Chairman (to Booth): Why can't you keep a clean tongue in your head? Defendant: It was a pcss. I let the word slip, and he was there as soon as I got it out. The Chairman: I am afraid your tongue is an unruly member. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

ANNIVERSARY.—The jubilee anniversary of the Primitive Methodist Church in connection with the Wesleyan Church was celebrated on Sunday. The preacher for the day was Mr A. Crabtree, secretary of the Yorkshire Band of Hope Union, and his subject in the morning was "When God wants a man," and in the evening "Is God with us." A P.S.A. meeting was held in the afternoon, when Mr Crabtree gave an excellent address on "How to win the battle." Mr J. Fawcett, of Castleford, was the elocutionist, while solos were sung by Miss Ackroyd, of Leeds, at the evening service. Mr I. Robinson, of Astley, presided. The collections were in aid of the Band of Hope Fund.

LEDSHAM

At Ledsham School last month the percentages of attendance was 95.55 against 93.62 for October last year.

MICKLEFIELD.

A sum of £4 10s. has been sent from the village of Micklefield to Leeds Belgian Refugee Fund.

At Micklefield Infants' school last month the percentage of attendance was against 92.08 for October last year, and at the mixed school, where some throat affected the returns, 87.69 against 91.06.

Albert Silverwood (32), who went to France with the 2nd Battalion King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry in October, has, according to a message received by his wife, who lives at 17, Bath Street, York Road, Leeds, been killed in action. He had worked at the Micklefield Colliery for a considerable time.

The ladies of Micklefield, along with their host, secs., Miss Violet Young, of New Zealand, Aberford, who are busily making Xmas gifts for the soldiers and Belgian refugees, thank Mr Pawson and the committee of the Micklefield Choral Society for the sum of £2 sent to help them on their good work.

OULTON

Oulton and Woodlesford Demonstration Committee have sent £43 to Leeds Infirmary.

LECTURE.—At a meeting of the Oulton Literary Society held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening an interesting lecture on Von Bernhardi's book "Germany and the War," was given by the Rev. H. T. Pattinson (curate). It was pointed out how extraordinary it was that, although the book was written in 1911, many of the ideas were prophetic in regard to the present war. Mr Pattinson gave an instance of how Germany was miscalculated. In his lecture, east to the war he had stated that the British colonies would only take advantage of the mother country's difficulty by breaking away from the Empire, but, as everyone knew, every part of the Empire was supporting Great Britain in the war.

ROBIN HOOD

A SEVERE DEFEAT.—On Saturday afternoon in the Leeds and District Football Cup Competition Thorpe Wesleyans played New Worlds, at Robin Hood. The Thorpe Wesleyans scored four goals to nil, and the New Worlds were not in the hunt before the interval. The Thorpe Wesleyans added to their score in the second half, and Spirit. Half-time score—New Worlds, nil; Thorpe Wesleyans, nil. In the second half the Gasworkers continued the procession and further goals were scored by Broughton (4), Millard, Spirit, Whitehead, Gascoyne, and Redman. New Worlds won by 15 goals to nil.

ROUNDHAY

Misses E. and M. Cowen, of Roundhay, have made a second donation of £2 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

A LADY'S MUFF.—Annie Nunns (22), living in a lodging-house, pleaded guilty at Leeds, on Tuesday, to a charge of stealing an umbrella and a lady's muff, the property of Miss Elizabeth Lupton, of Springwood, Roundhay, from a waiting room of the North Eastern Railway Station, Leeds, last Sunday, and was sentenced to two months' imprisonment with hard labour.

GLEDDOW.—On Wednesday the members of the Yorkshire Geological Society, under the conduction of a charge of Kendall, undertook a field excursion to Roundhay, with the object of examining an outlier of magnesian limestone that rests over Roundhay Grange upon lower coal measures. A marine bed in shales of the millstone grit series exposed in Roundhay Park was also examined.

THE FARMERS' RETURN.—On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions, William T. Holder, farmer, of Roundhay, was summoned for moving pigs without a licence from the Auction Mart at Whitkirk. P.C. Hattigan proved the case, and it was also stated if he had anything to say, Holder said that he would pay for the damage by putting up the price of pork. He was ordered to pay a fine of 1s. for each pig, seven shillings in all.

SWILLINGTON

At Swillington Parochial School, where the attendance was affected by scarlet fever last month, the percentage was 88.24 against 92.80 for October last year. Swillington Common School had the best figures for Kippax district, the percentage being 96.34 against 96.56.

STOURTON

FOOTBALL.—Stourton United, in the Leeds and District Senior Cup Competition, defeated East Leeds Old Boys by two goals to one. Stourton Albion were beaten by Moorend Celtic by four goals to three.

IN DARKNESS.—Frank Wallis, bramley, of Leeds, was summoned at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday for causing a vehicle to stand a fifty, on two fixed abode, was charged with begging. P.C. Sowray spoke to seeing the defendant crossing and recrossing from the stopping stations on the Leeds and Wakefield Road, Stourton, begging from people. When spoken to by the officer he said "I am sick of it; if you give me some pence I will take it." Tindall was sent to prison for one month with hard labour.

STOURTON RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION.—A sum of £43 3s. has been collected among the members of Stourton Ratepayers' Association in connection with the Belgian Refugees Funds, and it has been decided to give £20 to the Stourton District War Relief Fund and £23 3s. to the Belgian Refugee Fund. The following names gave the donations:—Councillor T. P. Wade £5, Mr W. Parker £1 1s., Mrs H. Baines 2s. 6d., Mr W. Atkinson £1 2s., Mr H. Robinson £1 1s., Mr T. Parker 2s. 6d., Mr A. Ledgard 10s. each, Mr W. Bland 7s. 6d., Mr H. Baines 6s., Mr W. Duffill, Mr J. G. Roberts, Mr G. Smith, Mr J. Wheeldon, Mr R. Wright, 5s. each, Mr W. Bland, Mr G. Dutton, Mr A. Greenwood, Mr C. T. Oates, Mr Jas. Parkinson, Mr O. Parker, 2s. 6d. each; Mr A. Clarkson 2s., and Mr J. Williams 1s.

SHADWELL

GUARDIANS AND SALARIES.—The members of the Leeds Board of Guardians on Wednesday discussed the recommendations of the Special Committee to advance the salaries of clerks, nurses, and others in their employ. A long letter was read from the Chamber of Trades and the other from the Master Bakers and Confectioners' Association, urging that the state of industrial affairs made it highly inopportune for any advance. Other letters, especially as many firms in the city had found it necessary to reduce them. The proposed increases amounted in the aggregate to £175. Mr A. Edmunson remarked that the proposals of the Committee had not been made public property, and expressed surprise that any member of the Board should have communicated to us extracts from the contents of a document marked "Private and confidential." Mr J. T. Buckton mentioned that a copy was laid on the table at the meeting of the Committee of Trades. The Chairman (Mr T. Moore) moved the adoption of the Committee's recommendations. Mr Alfred Hobson (Roundhay), moved that the question of increasing salaries be deferred until the close of the war. He thought it was an outrage to the ratepayers to advance the salaries officials at such a time. Many of the ratepayers, he declared, had difficulty in making ends meet, and new taxation had just been imposed which would place many ratepayers in a very awkward position. Mr Sugar-Musgrave (Shadwell) said he was in favour of certain advances, but he did not see how they could pass and choose between them. The principle applied whether the amounts was large or small, and it would be unwise to make advances. The motion to postpone the advances was carried by 20 votes to 7, and three members were neutral.

WOODLESFORD.

Mr James Hopke, of Woodlesford, has given £5 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Mrs Rose, Silcard, of Rothwell, has collected £25 for the Belgian Relief Fund.

A sum of £7, proceeds of a con cert in connection with Woodlesford Church, has been sent to Leeds National Relief Fund.

The infants at Woodlesford School, instead of spending money on fireworks, gave 3s. 6d. to the Leeds Belgian Refugee Fund.

AFTER SEEING HIS MOTHER OFF.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Session on Tuesday John Pritchard, of Woodlesford, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly. P.C. Leahy stated that on Saturday afternoon he found Pritchard in the worst state in Gilfett Lane. Pritchard said on knowing the man he asked him up. Pritchard said he had been drinking with some of his friends who had left that morning with the mineral battalion. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

WHITKIRK

WOUNDED BELGIAN SOLDIERS.—Lady Dorothy Wood writes to the newspapers as follows:—I should be very glad if you would allow me an opportunity to thank all those who have so generously given both clothes and the money to buy them, in answer to my appeal on behalf of the wounded Belgian soldiers. Through the generous help that has been given very much has been done to increase their future comfort, and the soldiers themselves are deeply grateful for the gifts. For the present I need not have any more sufferers of everything, except boots and shirts. May I also add a petition for French books for their amusement, if any of your readers should have them to send; we would gladly undertake to distribute them at the Leeds Mayoress's Office, 1, East Parade, Leeds.

WOMAN'S SUDDEN DEATH.—Jane Young, aged 40, wife of Wm. Young, labourer, of Gowthorpe Street, Selby, died suddenly on Saturday morning. She was in her usual health on retiring to rest on Friday night, but the following morning, while dressing in her bedroom, she turned ill and fell forward on her head. Her husband lifted her into bed, and found that she was dead.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.—The Local Government Board have sanctioned the Selby Urban Council's application for a loan to carry out a new road project for widening and improving the communication between Gowthorpe Street and Hirdley Road. The districts indicated will be opened up considerably by the new thoroughfare, and the Council are also of opinion that the Council are purchasing property with a view to the provision of further houses for the working classes. The new road will form part of the town planning scheme in connection with the Council House in contemplation.

SELBY ABBEY INSTITUTE FUND.—A subject work as a preliminary effort for the benefit of the Selby Abbey Institute Fund was held at the New Lane Schools on Saturday afternoon. The Vicar (the Rev. Dr Solloway), in opening the sale, said that the bazaar arrangements on behalf of the new Institute had had to be put off owing to the war. He thanked all those who had been working for some time on behalf of the object and the donors of gifts for the sale. Already the sewing guild had paid to the fund over £30. The sale, though planned only on a small scale, was very successful. Tea were provided, this department being under the direction of Miss Stansfield and Miss Parkes.

TEMPLENEWSAM ROLL OF HONOUR

EIGHTY MEN SERVING THE COUNTRY.

To the Editor.

SIR,—The Templenewsam War Fund Committee wish to compile an accurate list of all the men belonging to the parish who have come forward to defend their country in the hour of peril. The list appearing below contains all the names at present known to the Committee, and if there are any other names which ought to be included I shall be grateful if any of your readers will kindly inform me by post-card.—Yours, etc.,

W. B. PINDAR.

Clifton House, Halton, Leeds.

Adams, Milestone Yard.
Bell, Elias L., Wilfred Avenue; Bailiner, Charles, Primrose Road; Barrachaugh, Arthur, Colton; Batty, Sidney, Carlton House; Best, Robert, jun., Hollyshaw; Bevins, Walter, Colton; Bevins, William, Colton; Bolland, William, Overdale Terrace; Bowers, Edward, The Orchard; Bowers, Jack, The Orchard; Boyington, Fred, Primrose Lane; Broadbent, Gilbert A., Hollyshaw Lane; Brook, Clifford, Carter Mount; Byford, Geo. W., Graveley Square.

Carrol, Charles, Lane End; Chadwick, Wm. D., Green Lane; Coleridge, John, Colton; Collis, Arthur, Wilfred Avenue; Coultas, Cecil, Morritt Avenue; Coultas, Percy, Morritt Avenue; Cowell, Harry, Grove Road; Cuttle, Walter, Carter Avenue.

Daniels, Arthur, Templenewsam; Danks, Tom, Carter Avenue; Davies, Hugh, Park View Terrace; Dobson, Arthur S., Colton; Dodsworth, Arthur, Field End; Dunbar, Wm. H., High Street.

Ellis, Rowland C., Hollyshaw Lane.

Farndale, George W., Colton; Firth, Harry L., Carter Mount.

Gole, J. W., Milestone Yard; Goodall, Chas. A. Graveley Street; Goodall, Sidney H., Graveley Street; Grant, Harry, Overdale Terrace; Guest, Harry, Overdale Terrace.

Hall, Harry, Milestone Yard; Hardcastle, Geo., Primrose Lane; Hardwick, Alfred, Field End; Harrison, Alec., Graveley Street; Hamilton, Bernard St. G., Hollyshaw Lane; Heyward, Alan, Hollyshaw Lane; Hotham, Geo., Chapel Yard; Hunt, Geo., Lane End; Hunt, James, Lane End; Hyde, Wm., Springfield Place; Kettlewell, Fred, Colton.

Lamb, Herbert, Temple View; Leach, James, Morritt Avenue.

Masebedar, Norsaum Squire; Moore, Chas. A. Park View Terrace; Myers, Geo W., Hollyshaw Lane; Myers, Sam C., Hollyshaw Lane.

Nicholson, Fred., Morritt Drive; Noble, Zeba, Primrose Road.

Parr, Walter C., Cross Green Lane; Pullan, Charles, East Lodge; Pullan, Frank, East Lodge; Pullan, Fred, East Lodge; Pullan, Harry, East Lodge; Pinder, Ernest, Chapel Street.

Rhodes, Geo., The Orchard; Royston, Carter Terrace.

Simpson, Overdale Terrace; Smart, James, Wilfred Avenue; Stott, Edward G.; Morritt Avenue; Sunter, Norman, Dawson Square.

Tinker, Arthur, Jos.; Trowles, Geo. W., Chapel Street; Turner, Herbert N., Morritt Avenue.

Waddington, Geo., Lane End; Waddington, Stephen, Lane End; Wainwright, Fred., Selby Road; Watson, Wm. H., Whitkirk View; Wilson, Frank, Primrose Lane; Jones, Arthur C., Templenewsam Square; Wood, A. F. W., Cross Green Lane; Wright, Fred., Lane End; Wynne, Horace G., Carter Mount.

TEMPLENEWSAM WAR FUND COMMITTEE

CHRISTMAS GIFTS—FREE MEDICAL AID—BALANCE.

The treasurer begs to acknowledge the receipt of the following further contributions:—

Collected by	£	s.	d.
W. Verity	1	4	0
J. Fleming	3	11	3
P. S. Marsden	2	13	8
J. H. Pickles	1	13	6
J. Armistead	1	9	9
W. Baker	1	0	2
T. Rippon	2	7	6
S. H. Young	1	10	0
C. E. Eaton	1	0	2
Rev. J. M. Hamilton	1	0	0
Rev. B. Guyer	2	12	0
J. Gwrid	0	18	3
F. C. D. Atkinson	7	7	0
Mrs Ashmore	2	1	9
Mrs J. W. Parker	5	5	0
Mrs Pindar	1	14	10
Mrs A. Hyde	0	8	5
Miss Bull	0	14	0
Mrs Crosthwaite	1	4	0
Mrs Dickaray	0	10	0
Mrs Strickland	1	0	10
Nurse Bishop	2	12	6
Mrs Carr	0	12	2
Templenewsam estate workmen	3	8	3
G. Briggs and Son and employers	1	17	3
Whitkirk Rifle Club	0	11	6
Woodlesford	0	12	0
Travellers' Inn box	0	8	0
Relief repaid	0	2	0
	43	7	5
Amount previously acknowledged	72	1	0
	£115	8	5

Total to date

At the meeting of the Committee on Tuesday last it was resolved to send a further grant of £25 to the West Riding Central Fund.

It was also resolved that financial assistance be given, if necessary, to the local hospital for wounded soldiers, and that a suitable Christmas gift be sent to all the men from Templenewsam who are now serving with His Majesty's forces.

It was reported that a scheme of free medical attendance had been organised by the medical and pharmaceutical professions for the dependents of men serving with the colours, and five books authorising the holders to receive such free medical attendance had been given out.

It was also reported that a new Army Order had been issued, by which the War Office undertook to make a substantial allowance to the dependents of unmarried men in the service provided the men themselves made a reasonable allotment from their pay.

W. B. PINDAR, Secretary.

Mr Richard Riley Chambers, of Selby, left estate valued at £2,204.

Mr J. Boadell, of Temple Hirst, has been appointed stationmaster at Marston Moor.

The two shops on the north side of Selby Market Place, owned by Mrs. Dodgr, have been disposed of to T. and J. Building Company, who are to erect banking offices there.

Mr W. Bell (York), architect to the North Eastern Railway Company, has presented to the Selby Museum two interesting phot-graphs of the old Selby railway bridge as it stood thirty or more years ago, before the present modern iron structure was erected.

CROSSGATES AND DISTRICT FARMERS' CLUB.

HEAVY HORSE-BREEDING—A PAYING PROPOSITION.

THE GOVERNMENT SCHEME

On Wednesday night a meeting of Crossgates and District Farmers' Club was held at the Brown Cow Inn, Whitkirk—Mr J. M. Rayner, of Whinmoor, presiding—for the purpose of discussing the Board of Agriculture's scheme of horse-breeding. Mr W. R. Crawford, of Leeds University, attended to explain the scheme, and members present were Messrs Wright (secretary), J. W. Pollard (Moor Allerton), C. Scott (Colton), H. Umpleby (Seacroft), J. Appleyard (Austhorpe), G. Taylor (Halton), W. Stevenson (Halton), W. H. (Halton), W. Bickerdike (Osmondthorpe), Brown (Halton), R. Bickerdike (Osmondthorpe), I. H. Austin (Halton), F. W. Barraclough (Colton), Barron (Newsamhow), J. Nicholson (Barwick), W. Ransom (Osmondthorpe), E. Ransom (Halton), H. Tillotson (Osmondthorpe), J. Taylor (Halton), H. Read (Colton), G. Walker (Crossgates), and C. W. Austin (Knostrop).

The Chairman said that farmers had the reputation of grumbling a good deal, and he thought if they did a little less grumbling and tried to redress their grievances it might be better. The Government, which had brought forward several schemes for the benefit of farmers during the last few years, had now a scheme for having produce for the Army from farmers. It would do away with the middleman if it could be worked. He supposed, however, that the middleman was a necessary evil—he would not go further than that. Perhaps he was perhaps not—himself—(laughter) and he was not always as bad as he was painted. He had to try to satisfy both buyer and seller and he had himself to consider at the same time. If the scheme could be carried out and the Government dealt direct with the farmer, he was sure it would be beneficial to all concerned.

Mr Crawford said that his object in Yorkshire was entirely to improve live stock—horses, cattle, and pigs—and to get farmers to keep more milk records. The total amount of money paid by the Board of Agriculture to Yorkshire was £7,441, and this had been divided by the Live Stock Committee for the county, so that they were not going to provide stallions, £1,164 for bulls, £80 for boars, and £400 for milk records. In regard to milk recording societies he said it was very hard to get them organized in Yorkshire. The farmer could not see that he was to get any immediate benefit from them and he rather fought shy of them. Under the scheme the farmer weighed the milk each week and set it down in a form, and in this way got to know the good and bad milking cows. A cow that did not give a good quantity of milk was costing its head off. When the cow was tested for a year and the farmer wanted to sell it, he could have a certificate showing its milking capacity, and this should prove of value both in selling the cow itself or its produce. Having dealt with the scheme for bulls and boars, he said that to get a horse society could be £80 per annum. The first thing they had to do was to form a society and have rules, and then to get subscriptions from the members how many of them were prepared to take up nominations. If they arranged for a list of 12 they would be able to hire a horse for £200, and they could take two mares. He explained that the Government paid £80—£40 on a grant, and the remaining £40 went to pay half the fee (if it was £4) to forty members, who formed the list. Temple-newsam Estate Council, A. F. W., Cross Green Lane; Wright, Fred., Lane End; Wynne, Horace G., Carter Mount.

TEMPLENEWSAM WAR FUND COMMITTEE

CHRISTMAS GIFTS—FREE MEDICAL AID—BALANCE.

The treasurer begs to acknowledge the receipt of the following further contributions:—

Collected by W. Verity	£	s.	d.
	1	4	0
J. Fleming	3	11	3
P. S. Marsden	2	13	8
J. H. Pickles	1	13	6
J. Armistead	1	9	9
W. Baker	1	0	2
T. Rippon	2	7	6
S. H. Young	1	10	0
C. E. Eaton	1	0	2
Rev. J. M. Hamilton	1	0	0
Rev. B. Guyer	2	12	0
J. Gwrid	0	18	3
F. C. D. Atkinson	7	7	0
Mrs Ashmore	2	1	9
Mrs J. W. Parker	5	5	0
Mrs Pindar	1	14	10
Mrs A. Hyde	0	8	5
Miss Bull	0	14	0
Mrs Crosthwaite	1	4	0
Mrs Dickaray	0	10	0
Mrs Strickland	1	0	10
Nurse Bishop	2	12	6
Mrs Carr	0	12	2
Templenewsam estate workmen	3	8	3
G. Briggs and Son and employers	1	17	3
Whitkirk Rifle Club	0	11	6
Woodlesford	0	12	0
Travellers' Inn box	0	8	0
Relief repaid	0	2	0
	43	7	5
Amount previously acknowledged	72	1	0
	£115	8	5

Total to date

At the meeting of the Committee on Tuesday last it was resolved to send a further grant of £25 to the West Riding Central Fund.

It was also resolved that financial assistance be given, if necessary, to the local hospital for wounded soldiers, and that a suitable Christmas gift be sent to all the men from Templenewsam who are now serving with His Majesty's forces.

It was reported that a scheme of free medical attendance had been organised by the medical and pharmaceutical professions for the dependents of men serving with the colours, and five books authorising the holders to receive such free medical attendance had been given out.

It was also reported that a new Army Order had been issued, by which the War Office undertook to make a substantial allowance to the dependents of unmarried men in the service provided the men themselves made a reasonable allotment from their pay.

W. B. PINDAR, Secretary.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE

	£	s.	d.
Amount previously acknowledged	107	14	3
Underground workmen and boys and screen-men, Sisters and Isabella Pits, per Mr. C. H. Belsden (10th contribution)	6	16	7
Total amount to date	£114	10	10

We, Geo. Bosher, Hon. Sec. and Treas. 18th November, 1914.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS
£1/17/6 £3/3/ £5/5/ £10/10/
to £100 each.
SEE WINDOWS
Diamonds
BEST SELECTION IN THE COUNTY
Dysons
23 & 25 BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
Watches
10/6 TO 50 GUINEAS.
THE "ROUGHWEAR" 15/-
THE "UNIVERSITY" 25/-
OLD WATCHES & JEWELLERY TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.
RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WAINSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

CULTIVATORS, PLOUGHS, HARROWS, CHAFF & TURNIP CUTTERS, &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Price.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge,
Easy Terms £2 2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-
OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

Established 1835. GENERAL Established 1885.
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Liberal Benefits and conditions. Low Premiums.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE every 10th year to householders and private property owners.
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in connection with risks of Fire, Burglary, and accidents generally.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, combining profits and low premiums.
Workmen's Compensation, Motor Car, Burglary, Plate Glass, Employers' Liability, Driving Accidents, Live Stock, Plate Glass, and Fidelity Guarantees.
Chief Offices: General Buildings, Perth, Scotland. General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C.
Town Agent and Inspector: 101 Albion Street, Leeds.
Assets exceed £3,500,000.
Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager: P. NORIE-MILLER, J.P.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

RETIREMENT OF MR R. ROUTLEDGE.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS MANAGER OF GASWORTH'S GASLIGHT.

PRESENTATIONS CEREMONY AT GASWORTH.

Mr Robert Routledge, one of the best known gentlemen in Gasworth, and one who has filled many posts in positive or attempts at the negative direction, has made the resignant of a bomb under gasworth from the difficult and troublesome of a gasworth's life, and has retired from the gasworth, on Saturday night. Mr Routledge, who has gone to reside at Bridlington, is still a member of the Gasworth Borough Committee and of the Gasworth Urban District Council, in which he has for the past fifteen years represented, and for several years has been chairman, and he served the public in the Gasworth Education Committee, the Gasworth Assistance Public Council, and other bodies for a large number of years.

At the presentation ceremony Councillor J. T. Dobson, representative manager of the Gasworth Gaslight Company, who has been in charge of the Gasworth gasworks for fifteen years, and he served the public in the Gasworth Education Committee, the Gasworth Assistance Public Council, and other bodies for a large number of years.

At the presentation ceremony Councillor J. T. Dobson, representative manager of the Gasworth Gaslight Company, who has been in charge of the Gasworth gasworks for fifteen years, and he served the public in the Gasworth Education Committee, the Gasworth Assistance Public Council, and other bodies for a large number of years.

The Chairman, said that it was another sorrowful duty to perform of meeting in that room to congratulate Mr Routledge on his appointment as a justice of the peace, and with the Gasworth Urban District, and on the occasion they had to say Mr Richard Routledge's name, and Mr. Councillor Routledge's name, and Mr. Councillor Routledge's name, and Mr. Councillor

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal

— BY —

ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN

Shrubs, roses, trees, hardy perennials and bulbous roots, and bulbs in variety may be planted with equanimity this month. It is important that the work be pushed forward with all speed. Severe weather may be expected towards the end of the month, and any planting that is done in the latter month should be left until spring. The proper position of the ground is one of the most important points in rose culture. Soils with a scarcely sufficient do not require drinking, but where the soil is composed of clay, efficient drainage must be provided or failure will ensue. The fact that roses enjoy a stiff, heavy, and tenacious clay soil is not generally recognised, and I feel confident that in many gardens where rose growing has been given up in despair, failure might have been turned into success if the beds had been subjected by the addition of a liberal amount of pulverised clay. Firm planting is another important essential. The soil should be trodden firmly around the roots. This must not be taken to mean that stamping with the foot is necessary. Place the soil evenly over the roots and tread evenly round each plant. Finish off with an inch or two of loose soil. A few days after planting, the beds should be mulched with about 4 to 6 inches of rotten manure. This may seem a rather large amount, but it is not too much. A quantity of it will get washed away during the winter, and the remainder will provide food and shade for the roots, and prevent rapid evaporation of moisture during the following summer. Standard roses, of which would be difficult to make a selection of varieties to please all our readers. There are a few sorts, however, that grow so freely, and are so good in every way that we have no hesitation in giving them, and in saying that they should give general satisfaction. Take Baronne Rothschild as an example. This is a strong-growing, free-flowering variety. The blooms are large, well-formed, sweet, and of an exquisite pink shade. We have seen this variety growing and flowering freely in gardens where almost every other kind refused to grow. John Hopper is a sweet-scented, free-flowering variety, which should find a place in every town garden. The climbing variety is an ideal one for planting on a house front or on a south wall. General Jacqueminot is a beautiful crimson rose and is free-flowering even under the most adverse conditions. Caroline Testout, Captain Hayward, Madame Ravary, Hugh Dickson, Mrs John Laing, Frau Karl Druschki, Dupuy Jamain, and The Lyon would complete a really useful collection.

VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Carrots, turnips, and beet-root should be lifted and stored at once if not already done. Parsnips and Jerusalem Artichokes may be lifted as required for use.

Kale, sprouts, sprouts, and broccoli should be kept under observation. Decaying leaves should be picked off about once a week. The surface soil between the roses should be frequently hoed to remain in a caked condition. When it is necessary to walk between the rows the soil soon gets trodden down to such an extent as to prevent the air reaching the roots. This trouble can be remedied by freely using the hoe. A loose surface soil often makes all the difference between success and failure.

FORCING

As outdoor vegetables get scarce it becomes necessary to commence forcing it is continuous supply has to be maintained. The forcing of asparagus, seakale, rhubarb, carrots, radishes, mustard and cress, etc., is not difficult where good suitable structures and material are available. A hot-bed is required to produce asparagus, carrots, and radishes. Seakale, rhubarb, and mustard and cress may be grown in a temperature of about 55 degrees.—A moist atmosphere is also required. The seakale and rhubarb must be forced in total darkness.

A pinch of tomato seed may now be sown in a warm house to provide a few plants for early fruiting.

FRUIT GARDEN.

Fruit growing can scarcely be described as a profitable occupation in the vicinity of the majority of our northern town districts. Smoke, dirt, and chemical fumes are not conducive to the welfare of the trees. On the other hand, it is certain and probable that they do not get a fair share of attention. They stand for years at a time without receiving anything in the shape of manurial food. Wealthy trees would derive great benefit from a thorough soaking of liquid manure applied this month. Any that are making strong, gross, and consequently non-fruiting wood, may be root pruned. Such trees, if the roots are bared, will be found to have strong fibreless roots. These may be pruned back to about three feet from their base. Use a sharp knife for the purpose.

PLANTS UNDER GLASS.

BEDDING GERANIUMS.

This dull, damp weather experienced at this time of the year is to a great extent responsible for the many losses which occur amongst newly-rooted bedding geraniums. To guard against this difficulty watering must be practised with extreme care. The soil in the pots or boxes should be allowed to get almost dry before more water is given. About once a fortnight the plants should be looked over and have every decaying leaf, etc., picked off. This is very much the cause if the drooping portions were left they would soon afford other parts of the plants and general decay would set it. If the plants be kept free from droppings, is just what the plants require at present.

SCHIZANTHUS WISETONENSIS.

These are few more popular flowers during the spring months than the charming schizanthus wisetonensis. They young plants should now be occupying separate pots and should be put in a cool but fresh-aired, light position. The pots should be resting upon moist ashes, and although plenty of fresh air is good for the plants they should never be subjected to direct draughts. Any that are showing a disposition to run should have the lead pinched out. This will encourage a branching habit. It is inadvisable to repot at present unless they are getting root bound, in which case they may be repotted in a light compost, containing one part in 3 or 4 of old engine ashes. Any that are repotted at this time of the year must be watered very carefully until they re-establish themselves in their new pots.

THE CONSERVATORY.

Chrysanthemums are now at their best, and the object of the cultivator should be to preserve the show of bloom as long as possible. Much can be done in this direction by careful treatment in regard to watering. Overdoing and starving must be carefully avoided. A drink of clear soft water should be given only in dry weather, and then only when the soil is getting dry. Overwatering will quickly spoil their flowers. The ventilators may be left wide open day and night except during frosty or foggy weather. This, of course, will apply only where a house can be attended to strictly to their requirements. No fire heat is needed except during very severe weather, or it may be given for an hour or two occasionally with the object of drying up the floor and staging. Continue to feed until the flowers are half open.

CULTURE OF SCARBOROUGH LILIES.

Valotta purpurea, or the Scarborough lily, is a perfect plant for pot culture, and can be grown to give satisfaction with very little trouble. It is one of the very best of the autumn bloomers. A three-inch pot is large enough for a single root; and no shift as all be made until it is completely full of roots, when a pot only one size larger must be used. The great essential in the growth of the Scarborough Lily is to have it undisturbed, and to interfere with the roots as little as possible. When potting is done, the soil should be placed with the surface of the soil. During winter very little water is needed, and the plants must be kept in a room or greenhouse where they enjoy a light position, and are protected from cold frosts. One special advantage of the Scarborough Lily is that it is evergreen. Curiously enough, this is one of the relatively few plants that refuses to hybridise or to mix.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—A satisfactory demand, and prices advanced. Wheats 44s. to 45s., medium quality 43s. to 44s., malting barley 32s. to 35s., secondary barley 30s. to 32s., oats 25s. to 28s. 6d., and rye 34s. to 35s. per qr.

PROVISTONS.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs, 11d. and 6 for 1s.; butter 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. per lb.; chickens 4s. to 5s., ducks 5s. 6d. to 6s. per couple; celery 1od. to 1s. 1d. per dozen.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—A good demand kept prices on the up-grade. King Edwards made satisfactory prices. Up-to-Dates 47s. 6d. to 52s. 6d.; sand King Edwards 52s. 6d. to 60s., warp King Edwards 60s. to 65s. per ton; retail, 3s. per hamper.

CATTLE.

SELBY, Monday.—Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 89 beasts and 67 pigs. A rather better supply of stock, with the usual attendance of buyers. A sharp trade was experienced all round, best beef making up to 6d. per stone. The demand for store beasts was much better. A very small supply of lincolnred-polled heifers in demand. No sheep on offer. A good trade for pigs at late rates. Prices as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £21; fat heifers to £20, fat cows to £17, fat bullocks to £15, cows in calf to £18, bacon pigs to £7 17s. 6d., pork pigs £5 13s., store pigs to £6 11s.

WHITKIRK AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Bartle and Son had a good entry of dairy cattle and pigs, but sheet supplies of fat beasts and sheep at their fortnightly sale. Trade ruled firm for newly calves cows, the best making up to £36 5s. 6d.; useful kinds, up to £25 12s. 6d.; secondary sorts, to £17 15s.; presents calvers, to £21 2s. 6d.; January calvers, to £21 12s. 6d.; best fat cows, to £18 5s.; best heifers, to £17 7s. 6d.; young cows, to £16; old cows, 6d. to 6½d. per lb.; heifers, to £16 7s. 6d.; cows, to £24 15s.; small choice bullocks, to £18; heavier kinds, to 9d. and 9½d. to 7½d. per lb. Pork pigs met with a quick sale; choice useful weights, 8s. 3d.; large fat pigs, to 7s. 9d. per stone. Store pigs were plentiful and cheap, young sorts making to 13s. 6d. each, and stronger kinds to 20s. Breeding calves made 6s. to £2 5s. each. Numbers sold—102 newly calvers, calving, and store cattle, 42 fat beasts, 270 sheep, 288 pigs, and 5 calves.

WETHERBY, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a very good show of well-finished beef and mutton. The attendance of butchers and dealers was in excess of last mart, and a firm trade was maintained. Beef made about last week's prices, quality, up to 9½d. per lb.; second quality 8s. 6d. to 9s. Sheep made a good price, 9d. to 10d. per lb.; ewes made the money. Best calves to £20, and sh to 77s. each. Numbers sold—101 beasts and 238 sheep. Ten very grand bullocks from Bickerton Grange made from £23 5s. to £24 5s., viz.:—Mr. Dunnington, £23 5s., £23 15s., £24 15s., £24 5s.; Mr. Otter, Hunsingore, had six very grand finished bullocks, making £20, £27 17s. 6d., £23 2s. 6d., £23 5s., £24 12s. 6d., and £24 5s.; Mr R. Liversidge, Shaw-hall, had 12 grand Irish and Highland bullocks and heifers made £27 5s., £26 15s., £23 17s. 6d., £26, £24 12s. 6d., £27 2s. 6d., £25 5s., £24 6d., £27, £25 10s., £26, £27 5s., etc.; Mr R. Carr, Wighill, had a good bullock and a heifer, which made £25 5s. and £26 10s.; Mr. Thos. Dyson, Bramham, had four very good bullocks, which made £27, £26 17s. 6d., £24 15s., and £24 10s.; four exceptionally well-finished bullocks from Mr. E. Cass-Hammerton, made £26 15s., £26 15s., £25 12s. and £27 2s. 6d.; three bullocks from Mr. Jno. Jackson, Scotthorpe, made £23 15s., £24, and £26 12s. 6d.; Mr. J. W. Watson, Wighill Manor, had two ripe bullocks, making £24 5s. and £25; two heifers from Mr. Thurlbeck, Plumpton made £19 17s. 6d. and £18 2s. 6d.; three bullocks from Mr W. Dunnington, Marston Lodge, made £27, £26 17s. 6d., and £24 10s.; Mr. R. Bielby, Cattal, had four bullocks, making £26 10s., £23, £22, and £26 17s. 6d.; Mr T. Jackson, Scotthorpe, had two beasts, making £22 and £18 2s. 6d.; Mr. J. Norfolk, Tockwith, had a choice bullock, which made £25; three bullocks from Mr. J. Thurlbeck, executors, Tockwith, made £25 5s., £24 15s., and £23 12s. 6d.; four for Mr. Tindall, of Oak Pick, made £26 10s., £26 15s., £20 12s. 6d., £20 2s. 6d.; three bullocks from the northcountry made £26 2s. 6d., £24, and £27 7s. 6d.; Mr R. Bielby, Cattal, had three pens of choice sheep, which made to 77s.; Mr. J. Spawforth, Thorpe Arch, had two pens, making 76s. 6d.; Mrs Otter's prime sheep made to 77s.; sheep from Mr W. Kendall made to 69s.; Mr. J. Dyson, Bramham, to 72s.; Mr. J. W. Atkinson, to 64s. 6d.; Mr Beech, to 59s. 6d.; Mr J. N. Atkinson to 55s. 6d.; etc.

GARFORTH DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

NO DISTRESS IN THE DISTRICT

The monthly meeting of Garforth District Education Committee was held at the offices at Garforth on Wednesday evening—Mr John Wrathmell (Chairman) presiding. The other members present were Messrs J. W. Dobson (vice-chairman), H. Chappel, J. J. Dewhirst, C.C., H. Gascoigne, F. Richardson, and T. S. Slater (Secretary). Apologies were received (Schools), and W. Y. K. Young (Aberford), with the Clerk (Mr H. W. Powell).

Mr Dewhirst asked if there had been any cases of distress among children, necessitating the provision of meals.

Mr Dobson: I have not heard of any.

Mr Dewhirst: I am very glad.

The Clerk said that the attendance for October was down. With regard to the previous month's attendance, Mr Brown wrote stating that it was very satisfactory and was third best in the West Riding.

It was reported that owing to an outbreak of measles a part of Barwick School had been closed for two weeks.

With regard to the proposed alterations at Barwick School, a resolution was passed leaving the question in the hands of the West Riding Education Authority.

The Clerk stated that he had had correspondence with Mrs Lund in regard to a nursing association for Aberford district, and she stated that the meeting of the association had been postponed owing to illness. Nothing can be done in the matter at present.

With regard to the case of children requiring meals had been reported, but the Clerk had asked the head-masters of schools to let the Committee know if any cases did occur.

The Chairman: There is no extreme poverty in Garforth.

Mr Dobson: Things have not been so bad as we expected.

The Chairman: Better than we expected.

It was stated that the average attendance at East Garforth Evening School was 12 out of 15 and at Garforth 14 out of 15.

In regard to the starting of an ambulance class at Garforth, the Clerk said that so far as he knew only six persons had promised to join.

The Chairman said they asked for 35 members, and they could not entertain it for six applications.

Mr Dewhirst said it was a great pity, because it would have been good practice.

The Clerk said he had stated that if there were no more promises from people to join there would be no classes.

R.A.M.C. MAN AT THE FRONT.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

Private George Crosthwaite, of the R.A.M.C., who is well-known in the district, has written to his parents at Harrogate this week, and we have been asked to publish the letter. He is at the Front, and he writes:—"We are having a busy time here, and it looks like going on for a bit. We can't get more bad luck out here; it would be well appreciated if we could. We get billeted out sometimes, but mostly we have some straw or a barn. We don't mind where it is so long as we get a good sleep now and. The Germans have nicknamed the kilted men as "the ladies from hell." The reason I have put that down is because I have just heard that we are charged with bayonets. It is put they have got home with the point, for they deserve it. The Germans are on our hospitals and Red Cross carts, and also on us. We have to fix bullets many times until they have ceased firing before we can get at our wounded. The first day we went into action our company fetched no less than 30 wounded out of the firing line, and the shells were bursting all around us. We were a bit timid when the first shell burst not forty yards away from us and the earth, stones, and shrapnel flew about us. When we had been there about a quarter of an hour all fear left us, and we walked in to the firing as though we had charmed lives. Many shells were in the trenches told us we were the best men they had seen, and no one envied our job. Bullets were whistling off round us, and we came out, every one of us, without a scratch. We have been complimented on our good work by the general, so we have not done so bad after all. I was in guard all Saturday night over four bad cases who were too bad to be moved. One of the poor fellows died on the Sunday morning. He was shot through the lungs with a piece of shell or shrapnel. My lieutenant's name is Dr Greenlees, and I am his servant or his orderly. I am with all his kit and other minor things. All right' plenty of grub, but very rough, and we cook most of our own food on fires of our own. We make hospitals of churches, schools, farmhouses, and all kinds of things. All the people have deserted their homes, and many homes and villages are burnt down. I have seen as many as five villages all burning at once. There are horrid sights, hundreds of refugees running in all directions. It's simply heartrending to see all people leaving their old houses, perhaps never to see them again. Hundreds of cattle lying dead; goats running loose everywhere. Well, I am pleased to say we are giving the Germans a whacking here, and they are getting sent, just to send them off the earth. I don't care if the war is finished by Christmas. I should like to get home for Christmas, but my hopes will no doubt be dashed to that subject. Well, I am in good health, and that is all that matters out here. I must now conclude, with love to all. I cannot tell you much news or where I am for we are not allowed. Write letters as requested. Now send me a note and tell me how you are. I have just heard that Germany is seeking peace. I hope it's true.

HIRST.

Local Gentlemen and Drinking Facilities.

VIEWS OF MESSRS MORKILL AND DEWHIRST.

At a meeting of the West Riding Standing Joint Committee on Wednesday Mr J. W. Morkill, formerly of Austhorpe Lodge (Chairman of the Shaftesbury Bench), drew attention to the question of restricting the hours for the sale of intoxicating liquors. There was a universal feeling, he thought, in the riding in favour of restricting those hours, in the interests of the working classes and women. It had been represented in the press that the sale of drink to women had greatly increased since the war began. Those to whom he had spoken on the matter had also tried to get clubs to observe the same hours. (Hear, hear). They thought that on Sundays especially clubs ought not to be open when the public-houses were closed. (Hear, hear).

The motion was adopted unanimously, and the chairman was authorised to invite all Lord Mayors, Mayors, chairmen of petty sessional divisions, and chief constables of the riding to attend a conference.

MR LLOYD GEORGE AND WAR TAXES.

Presenting his financial statement in the Commons on Tuesday the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that he had to ask for £353,000,000 to meet the ordinary expenditure and the cost of the war. He proposed to double both the income-tax and the supertax. There would be a tax of a halfpenny on every half-pint of beer, a reduction of licence duty to publicans regarding decreased hours, and increased brewers respecting duty. There would be no additional tax on spirits or wines, but an additional threepence in the pound on tea. Having concluded the taxation proposals the Chancellor said he still had to meet a deficiency of £321,000,000. The War Loan to be raised was £250,000,000. Defendant said he would take the form of a 3½ per cent. security to be redeemed by the Government at par at the 1st of March, 1928. Already offers to the amount of £60,000,000 had been received. The total amount of the loan would be £350,000,000 at £95 per cent.

STOURTON

ASSIZES.—On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions Frank Bennett, labourer, of Stourton, was committed for trial on charges of indecently assaulting two children—one a boy in the Shadwell Industrial School and the other a girl in the Thorpeash Industrial School. Supt. Symonds proved the case. Defendant said he did not think he was justified in paying the amount as the woman who was the mother of the children, and with whom he had been cohabiting, had left him, and she had no affiliation order made against him. The Chairman made an order for payment, and said that if Bennett thought he was not justified in paying for the children, he should apply to the magistrates for the orders to be reduced.

BURING THE WAR USE
COLMAN'S POULTRY MUSTARD
AND SECURE MORE EGGS

"The Poultry Keepers' Account Book" and other literature, post free on application to

PRICE LIST. RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth Herts.

3lb. 2/8
1lb. 1/-
½lb. .... 6d.
Carriage Paid.

BRITAIN REQUIRES MORE FOOD!

ALLEN'S ROUP CURE, 2/1 Post Paid. Each package contains a sufficient to make 25 gallons of medicine, and is a guaranteed cure for this dreaded disease. Prevention is better than cure, and practical poultry keepers will accordingly give this preparation in the fowls' drinking water, and so render their flocks immune.

Full directions are given with each packet.
To be obtained only from R. M. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES, 1/6 post paid. Generally called "The Putnam Keepers' Friend." Immediately a bird is noticed off-colour a capsule (iron, quinine, and cod-liver oil) night and morning will speedily put it right. Fat is put on the breast and after shows they are invaluable.
To be obtained only from R. M. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

THE MOST PRACTICAL UTILITY POULTRY PAPER.
MONTHLY HINTS ON POULTRY
32 pages, profusely illustrated, art paper, &c.
2½ per annum, post free, from
THE EDITOR, Sawbridgeworth, HERTS.
Write for specimen copy.

Pure-bred Laying Pullets 7/6 each.
We can offer you selected Rhode Island Red, White Black, and Brown Leghorn, White Orpingtons, and White Wyandotte, March hatched Pullets, at 7s. 6d. each. Unrelated vigorous Cockerels, from 15s. each. Approval.
ALLEN POULTRY Co., Ltd., Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

GENUINE EAST INDIA RAPE NUTS.
A WELL-TRIED AND RELIABLE
AUTUMN TILLAGE.
M. SCOTT & Co., Seed Crushers, SELBY.
Prompt Delivery can be given to Rails Selby.
Ask your Manure Merchant for particulars.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Snow 26 a foot deep in the Thuringian Forest (Germany).

Anti-typhoid vaccination has been made compulsory in the French Army and Navy.

Herring fishing over the Firth of Forth has been forbidden during the whole of this winter season.

The Government has decided to ask Parliament to erect a national monument to the late Lord Roberts.

General Plumer, of the Northern Command, has asked officers to do all in their power to check the "cigarette evil" among soldiers.

Austria has decided to issue a war loan of £41,600,000, in which the population will have to participate according to their means.

At the Old Bailey a Whitechapel solicitor named Wm. John Hart was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment for perjury.

A labour organization in Australia has been fined £2,000 for aiding a strike. Ten of the officials were also ordered to pay fines of £50 each.

Twenty-five aliens of Turkish nationality have been registered in Leeds since the issue of the new order, and this, it is believed, is the full total of such persons resident in the city.

The Newcastle steamer Vera was boiled amidships in a collision with a mine-sweeper off the Norfolk coast, and was beached. The captain and crew of twenty-three hands were saved.

The naval collier Dagon sailed for Europe on Saturday with 1,200 tons of Christmas gifts from American children to children in Europe who have lost their parents through the war.

In Dublin Andrew Clarke was remanded charged with the murder of his wife, who died from injuries said to have been caused with a spade, after a quarrel between the couple.

The body of Walter Burbidge, an artillery man in the Canadian contingent, who broke away from camp on Salisbury Plain while undergoing detention, was discovered in the River Avon, near Bath.

The five-year-old child of Mr and Mrs Wharlick, Maltongate, Thornton Dale, was severely burned on Saturday, and succumbed to the injuries on Sunday night. The child's clothing caught fire.

German lists have contained 535,000 names, but this heavy figure does not include losses sustained during the retreat through Poland, or those which followed the last month's hard fighting in Belgium.

A mysterious shooting affair has occurred at Tipton, Staffordshire. Some youths were playing in a field when a gun was discharged close by them. A son of the lads fell, and they were taken to hospital.

The Vicar of Leeds states that in Woolwich, many years ago, he was told that Lord Roberts was the proud to belong to the Army of Queen Victoria, but prouder still to belong to the army of the King of Kings.

It is estimated that the total charge borne by seven groups of industries which come within the scope of the Workmen's Compensation Act amounted last year to £600,000. The amount paid in compensation was £3,361,650.

A man named Alexander Black, who attempted to pick pockets in a crowd which had assembled to see the funeral of Lord Roberts, was sent to prison for three months at Manchester. He was caught with his hand in a woman's coat pocket.

A bomb with the fuse almost burned out was discovered on Saturday in the court room of the Bradford Police Court, under the offices of the Governor-elect, Mr Whitman. A policeman carried the infernal machine from the building.

Among the men who enlisted in the ranks of the 4th Gorden Highlanders Territorial Reserve for foreign service is the Rev. James Vivian Rogerson, who was minister at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Harehills Avenue, Leeds, for several years.

There being no case for trial at the Bradford West Riding Court on Monday, the presiding magistrate was presented with a pair of white gloves. The Magistrates' Clerk said that in his 25 years' experience that was only the second time there had been a blank sheet.

Women blamed Lord Rosebery, speaking at Bradford, said that Yorkshire, as a whole, had not given its fair share of men to the services, and he thought partly attributable to the action of the women, who were keeping back the men. To such women he would say that they were not doing the right thing.

Mr H. J. Tennant, Under-Secretary of State for War, replying to an inquiry from the president of a Scottish football club, writes that no objection is taken by the military authorities to occasional recreation. It is considered, however, that professional football does not come within that category.

At Stalybridge, near Barnsley, on Saturday night, a motor-cycle and side-car, driven by Mr J. W. Gray, accountant, Barnsley, with whom was Mr Clifford Hirst, secretary of the Wakefield Automobile Club, collided with a waggon with such force that both men were killed on the spot. Mr Hirst had his neck broken, and Mr Gray was shockingly injured about the face.

It is understood that the War Office has determined to reverse its decision to South Wales that recruits from certain collieries in Glamorganshire are not to be accepted unless they can produce certificates from the mine managers that they can be spared. This decision is due largely to the fact that South Wales depends largely for coal supply upon these collieries.

At Bootle on Monday an inquest was held into the death of Mr Alfred Briggs (47), of Bedale, who was found shot through the right temple. The evidence showed that Mr Briggs had arisen at about seven a.m., and after getting the papers went into the middle room, where he was subsequently found lying on the floor shot, with a rook shooting gun under him.

Carl Gustav Ernst, bi-dresser, was on Friday, at the Old Bailey, sentenced to seven years' penal servitude for offences under the Official Secrets Act. Mr Justice Coleridge, in passing sentence, said the prisoner, a British subject, was a most dangerous spy, ready to betray his country to the enemy for money, and equally ready, probably, to betray Germany for an increased reward.

If you are a Poultry keeper, and your birds are not laying as you would like, or your profits from them are not what they should be, there is one thing you should do by

COVERDALE'S Egg-Producing Poultry Powder

From none at all to 40 eggs a week.

Dear Sir,—My hens had not laid a single egg for a month, but the last packet of Poultry Powder you sent me has worked wonders. They are now laying 40 eggs a week, and increasing. I will certainly continue to use it and recommend it.
Yours truly, J. LUND.

It is the best Poultry Powder I have ever had, and it use guarantees WINTER LAYERS. The cost is about 1d. per week for fowls.

Sold in Packages, post free, 8d., 1/4, 2/-, 3/6, including a 32-page booklet on "Profitable Poultry Keeping."

Coverdale's Poultry Powder, Ltd., PARLIAMENT STREET, YORK.
Also of Corn Dealers, Co-operative Stores, etc.

Agents—G. H. MOON, Grocer, etc., East Keswick, Wetherby, Aberford, Thorner, Crossgates, Tadcaster, South Milford, Barlby, Boston Spa, Bramham, and Scarthingwell; W. H. DICKENSON, 158, Meadow Lane, Leeds; T. B. SMITH & SON, Garforth; Mrs. HIRST, High Street, Tadcaster; G. HARGRAVE, Grocer, Station; J. HUGHES, 274, Hunslet Road, Leeds and TAYLOR'S ORDU Co's Branches.

VERY BAD LEG CURED.

5, Motcalfe Terraces,
Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

Dear Sir,—Some time ago I was suffering from a very bad leg. I could not walk without the aid of a stick, and I scarcely dare put my foot to the floor. I underwent a course of your splendid Herbal Treatment, and was cured in six weeks. You can make whatever use you like of this letter.

Yours respectfully,
F. FIELDING.

SKIN SPECIALISTS
MEDICAL HERBALIST
PROF. CROSSWAITE
84, KIRKSTALL ROAD, LEEDS
Moderate Charges. Call or Write.

£10 REWARD.—This Reward will be paid to the first person giving information leading to the conviction of a certain unscrupulous person at present calling upon householders in his name, and offering for sale Recipes, Medicines, Pills, Ointments, etc., falsely representing the same to have been prepared by Mr Crosswaite.

Information may be lodged at the nearest Police Station or Detective Office, Town Hall, Leeds, or Mr. J. Crosswaite, 84, Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

CORRESPONDENCE

COST OF LIVING IN KIPPAX.

Sir,—The letter which you kindly inserted in your valuable paper a fortnight ago dealing with the question of raising money to provide pensions for disabled soldiers and sailors from incomes as low as thirty shillings weekly was an endeavour on the part of the writer to state his convictions that such a small income was not sufficient in these days of costly food-stuffs, expensive wearing apparel, high rent and rates, to enable a small family to make ends meet. Kippax people, in particular, could not endure the strain that such an experiment would inflict upon them.

The village on the hill is the most difficult place outside London in which to keep body and soul together. We workers don't grumble at responsibilities we complain when the taxes are to pay, and express our surprise that the proposal when first introduced should have escaped our notice. Well, sir, the writer is one among many who has strong objection to any tax, direct or indirect, being placed upon the wage-earner, but I have no quarrel with those who wish to provide pensions, etc., for those who fight our battles on sea or land. I have a strong dislike for a proposal though that would raise for the purpose this money by taxing the wage earners.

The writer's reference to Kippax being an expensive place to live in needs qualifying. I agree to make it interesting, and I feel sure that could the careful housewife (we have many in Kippax), be persuaded to give out her thoughts in writing, on one hour them expressed in conversation from time to time, as to the cost of food stuffs, etc., they would certainly be backed by experience, and would be a revelation to many men. Here are a few prices:—Potatoes 1s. per score pounds, eggs 5 for 1s., milk per quart 4d. and butter 1s. 6d. per lb., and that in a place where grazing is rich and plentiful. Rents and rates average a fifth of the income where there is only one worker. I am not disposed to trespass on your space by giving you the full list of costly things which no other place outside London, I feel sure, can equal. The struggle here to make ends meet is real and abiding, and the people, be they old or young, who come here to end their days find conditions that will enable them prematurely to attain that object. "Kippax is a fine old village," said a traveller one day, "but it's a long way from the station, and it has healthy surroundings." There are redeeming features certainly connected with it, and if all other essentials were more easily secured, the fresh and unpolluted atmosphere and the fine landscape of which Kippax can boast would be, in the absence of despair, more truly a thing of beauty and a joy for ever.—Yours, etc.,

INTERESTED.

ENDLESS CHAIN PRAYER AT SHERBURN

Sir,—I am sending you a copy of a P.C. of the blasphemous rot which is being circulated extensively in this village. I remember some time ago that a similar thing was exposed in the Press. The harm such a thing can do to young people especially is incalculable.—Yours, etc.,

S.

Sherburn-in-Elmet, Nov. 18th, 1914.

"Endless Chain Prayer—Lord Jesus, I implore Thee to bless all mankind, and keep us from all evil and harm, and bring us to dwell with Thee."

"This prayer was sent to me and is to be sent round the world. Copy it and see what happens. It was said of old that all who wrote it should be free from all calamities, and all who passed it by should meet misfortunes. Copy it within 7 days and send to 9 different persons, and on the 9th you will receive some great joy. Sign no name. Please do not break the chain."

WHAT OCCURRED AT A SHERBURN DANCE

Sir,—As one who has known Mr J. J. Foster for the last 13 years I can, and I am glad to bear my testimony to his all-round sincerity. I know how sincerely he detests "nib-bearing" and how carefully he would avoid uttering or writing one word that would be likely to offend or wound.

To have him as a friend is to have one who is constant and loyal. I was deeply impressed with his first letter, and his reply to Miss Richardson is that of a Christian and a gentleman—nothing of the "cad-fire" nature in it. Those of us who know him best can detect the heart motive, and we understand.

I would like to say "Thank you" to "Pariahonor" and "Old Chap" for their sympathetic letters: "Thou hast a few names even in —— that have not defiled their garments, etc., etc." "here is a "pulpeteer test" in Mr Foster's letter for all of us in the question, "What is the reason, I wonder, that people are not as touchy about wrong itself as they are about its exposure?" This ought to shame all Mr Foster's critics into silence.—Yours, etc.,

OVER THE BORDER.

Correspondence will be found on another page.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES FOR THE FLEET

Sir,—I should feel very grateful if you would in so good as to bring under the notice of your readers the objects of, and work being done by, this organization, as set out in the enclosed leaflet. In the short space of one month we have established upwards of forty country branches by means of which, aided by many independent contributions, we have already despatched about two thousand large cases and barrels of fruit and vegetables to His Majesty's warships in the North Sea. We are also receiving a considerable quantity of jam and preserved fruit, but these are being held back until the fresh fruit supply slackens. In this connection it may interest your readers to know that Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra, is one of our best contributors.

The fresh fruit and vegetable season in this country is now almost at an end, after which our only resource will be imported fruits, etc., in order to keep up the supply which we find is so gratefully appreciated by the officers and men of the Fleet.

We are naturally most anxious to continue this supply with some regularity, especially to the torpedo boats and destroyers, submarines, and mine-sweeping trawlers which badly need fresh fruit, vegetables, etc.

Unfortunately, this will call for an outlay far beyond our present financial resources unless public sympathy for the welfare of the men of our warships enables us to cope with it.

I, therefore, appeal to your readers to kindly help us with subscriptions, and I beg you to generously assist us by giving our organisation as full a notice as possible in your widely read columns.—Yours, etc.,

CHARLES BERESFORD, President,
Vegetable Products Committee.

P.S.—All subscriptions to our funds should be made payable to "The Vegetable Products Committee," and sent to Messrs Jackson, Pixley, and Co., Chartered Accountants, 58, Coleman Street, London, E.C.

SUNDAY CONCERT AT ROTHWELL.

FOR THE RELIEF FUND.

A successful concert, promoted by Mr T. Barthram, in aid of the Rothwell Urban District War Relief Fund, was held in the Rothwell Empire on Sunday night.

When the idea of holding such a concert was suggested by Mr Barthram, the Relief Committee were somewhat dubious as to the results, but the effort turned out a great success, and the local fund will be better off to the extent of about £6. Mr Barthram is very well known in local musical circles, and is just the man to take up such an enterprise, and the artistes whose services he had obtained, were Miss Alice Hayes, a noted Leeds soprano, who has just completed an engagement at the London Halls; Madame Holroyd, a contralto, who needs no introduction to Rothwell people; Mr John Hickes, a Leeds tenor; Mr Nathan Whiteley, a popular baritone; and Mr Charlie Barthram, son of the promoter, who is a promising young violinist.

Mr J. Hirst, Chairman of the local Relief Committee, presided, and, in a short address, said that Mr Barthram, the promoter of the concert, who had done much for the musical side of Rothwell, was to be congratulated upon the excellent programme he had arranged. He was also sure that the concert committee would be delighted to see such a large audience and the financial result, he had no doubt, would be very satisfactory. Afterwards he was not one who was much in favour of Sunday concerts, but the object that evening was a worthy one.

The programme opened with the National Anthem, the first two verses being sung by the four principals, and the third being taken up by the audience. The hymn "O God our help in ages past" was also sung in unison.

In the quartettes the voices of the principals blended well together, their two contributions "God is a spirit" and "Come thy banner" (Mendelssohn) being very effective. Miss Alice Hayes was in excellent voice, and for her rendering of "How lovely are Thy dwellings" (Liddle) she was deservingly recalled and gave, in response, Jude's setting of "The Better Land." Later in the evening she received an encore for her interpretation of "Abide with me" (Liddle). Madame Holroyd gave a pleasing rendering of "Lead, kindly light," to which Mr Charlie Barthram contributed the violin obligato. Her other songs—"There's a land" and "Land of hope and glory"—were feelingly sung, and the latter song was given in response to an enthusiastic recall. As an additional item Miss Alice Hayes and Madame Holroyd sang in duet "Far 'neath alien skies." Mr Nathan Whiteley's songs were "How ur and arms" (Handel), and "The watchman." The latter was the better, and he was encored, responding with "Before you came." Mr John Hickes contributed "Sound an alarm" (Handel), and "The death of Nelson," and he had to re-appear after singing the last named, and he was loudly applauded for his fine interpretation of "Let me like a soldier fall." Mr Hickes and Mr Whiteley gave the ever popular duet "The battle ever," which was encored, and they gave "Watchman, whot of the night." Mr Charlie Barthram's violin solos were skilfully played, and were greatly appreciated. Mr A. Adamson was an excellent accompanist.

At the close of the concert a tribute of praise was paid to the artistes and to Mr Barthram, by the Chairman.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 14.

In this article we continue the subject of green food for poultry which commenced last week, the text being from the Annual Report of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station.

The practical problem then in feeding green food to poultry becomes to devise a system which shall insure a supply of green food for the birds at all seasons of the year. The following system of rotation in green food supply has been in use for several years on the poultry plant here with satisfactory results. It should be said that, owing to the small area of ground available for the poultry work at the Station in relation to the number of birds it is necessary that green food must be cut, and preparation practically throughout the year, not only for the adult hens in the laying houses, but also for the chicks growing on the range.

Beginning in the early fall when the pullets are put in the laying house they are given green corn fodder cut fine in a fodder cutter. Stalks, leaves, and ears are cut together in pieces averaging about ½ inch in length. The birds eat this chopped corn fodder greedily. It is one of the best green foods for poultry that we have yet been able to find. Its usefulness is limited only by the season which is as long as it is possible to get it. The feeding of corn fodder is continued until the frost kills the plants.

When the corn can no longer be used cabbage is fed. The supply of this usually lasts through December. In the worse of the supply of cabbage falling it is desirable to start the oat sprouter, the interval is filled out by the supply of mangolds. From about January 15th to May 15th green sprouted oats form the source of green food. From about May 15th until the corn has grown enough to cut, fresh clover from the range is used. During the summer the growing chicks on the range are given rape (Dwarf Essex) and green corn fodder cut as already described to supplement the grass of the range, which rather rapidly drive out and become worthless as a source of green food under our conditions. The very young chicks in the brooders are given the tops only of green sprouted oats chopped up fine.

Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Captain Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a reply by letter should enclose a sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown postal order. The name of the writer must in all cases be given).

SAXTON PLOUGHING MATCH.

The second annual ploughing competition of the Saxton and District Ploughing Society took place on Mr G. Firm's farm at Saxton. Winners:

Class 1, Champion (ploughs 25 miles)—1, J. Dalby, Wilke; 2, S. Walker, Shadwell; 3, H. Liversidge, Scarcroft.

Class 2, for ploughers who have never won a first prize (15 miles radius)—1, Jas. Bailey, Saxton; 2, H. Longfield, Saxton; 3, W. Green, Potterton; 4, J. Hawley, Barkston; h.c., J. Stephenson, Barkston.

Class 3, for lads under 18 years of age.—1, E. Farrow, Sherburn; 2, B. Hall, Aberford; 3, E. Mawson, Saxton.

Special for youngest plougher—G. Green, Potterton.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK
PERMANENT
BUILDING SOCIETY

96, ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street), Leeds.
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1. Saturday Evenings, 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
Prospectus on Application. JNO. EXLEY, President.
Tel. No. 253. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

HUNSLET RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL.

TEMPLENEWSAM AFFAIRS—WASTE PAPER NUISANCE.

The monthly meeting of the Hunslet Rural District Council was held yesterday afternoon at the Council Offices, Lock Street, Hunslet—Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Others present were Messrs P. S. Marsden (vice-chairman), D. W. Hargreaves, W. Verity, and J. Flanagan, with the Clerk (Mr W. R. Pindar), the medical officer of health (Dr J. Buck), the sanitary inspectors (Messrs W. Whitehead and P. C. Higgins), and the surveyor (Mr J. Nuttall).

Mr Whitehead reported that he had served eighteen preliminary notices on the owners of property in the Council's area, and six of the defects had been remedied, while the others were being attended to.

Mr Nuttall's report showed that the contractors had completed their contracts in connection with the private street work improvements at Woodlesford. This work, the surveyor reported, had been one of the toughest jobs they had had to see to; however, the work had been satisfactorily carried out and was a great improvement to the district.

Mr Hargreaves said he agreed as to the way the work had been done.

The Clerk stated that the Templenewsam Parish Council had written stating that they had been supplied with "school danger-signals" by the Automobile Association to be erected at Halton, and they asked the Council to fix them up.

It was resolved that the surveyor be instructed to fix the signals.

Mr Nuttall made an application on behalf of the Templenewsam men for "time and a half" for work done on Sunday in the clearing away of the snow.

The payment was allowed.

Mr Higgins, in his report, called attention to the nuisance caused by householders in the district not destroying waste paper, which was put into the bins.

The Clerk said that if the paper was burned it would keep the place tidier and would be a saving of expense.

It was resolved to call the attention of householders to the nuisance by handbills.

Dr Buck, who was not present at the last meeting of the Council, presented his report for September, during which there were fourteen births and six deaths. Four cases of infectious disease were notified, and five samples of milk were taken in Oulton. For the month of October ten births were registered—four in Oulton and Woodlesford, five in Templenewsam, and one in Middleton. Five deaths—three in Oulton and Woodlesford, and two in Templenewsam were reported. Infectious cases numbered four—being two cases of scarlet fever in Oulton and Woodlesford and Templenewsam. A case of diphtheria in Whitkirk and a case of tuberculosis.

The medical officer said he had compared the figures of the Council's area with those of the whole of the West Riding, and they were quite favourable.

Miss K. Marsh, of Thornor, has given £2 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Dr Scatchard, of Tadcaster, has given £2 2s. to the Yorkshire medical motor ambulance fund.

SAXTON School had the best attendance of all the schools in Sherburn district last month, the percentage being 94.29 against 94.59 in October last year. The figures for Barkston were 87.50 against 92.45.

THE WAR.—News has reached Monk Fryston that Private Geo. Fern, late Lascelles's Regiment, is a prisoner of war in Germany. He was a reservist, and lived at Leeds when the war commenced. His wife and child are staying with his parents at Monk Fryston.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.—The percentage of attendance at the schools in Sherburn district for last month was 90.00 against 91.40 for October last year. Sherburn Council had a percentage of 93.56 against 91.39, Sherburn infants' school 88.88 against 87, and Sherburn Endowed 92.52 against 93.10.

OFFICER WOUNDED.—Second-Lieut. H. G. Brooksbank, of the Yorkshire Regiment, who is reported wounded, is a son of County Alderman E. C. Brooksbank, J.P., of Healmgh Old Hall, Tadcaster, and who is also the owner of extensive estates in the Sleights and Whitby district. His brother, Mr Stamp Brooksbank, is also serving with the Yorkshire Regiment. Second-Lieutenant H. G. Brooksbank, who is the third son of Alderman Brooksbank, entered the Army last year.

MONK FRYSTON.—On Sunday at the Wesleyan Church special services were held in connection with the Wesleyan foreign missions, when appropriate sermons were preached by the Rev. C. E. Cook, of South Milford. On Wednesday afternoon a service was held, when an excellent sermon was preached by the Rev. W. B. Mattinson, of the Sheffield Mission, and formerly of the West Indies. Subsequently a public tea was provided in the schoolroom, and in the evening the annual missionary meeting was held, and Mr R. Batty, of South Milford, presided over a good gathering. The annual report was presented by the Rev. C. E. Cook, and an interesting and excellent address on missionary work in the West Indies was given by the Rev. W. B. Mattinson. Collections were taken in aid of the missions.

LORD HAREWOOD AND THE SPY PERIL.—The Earl of Harewood, who raised the question of the spy peril, in the House of Lords recently, supports the demand for the institution of a Committee of Public Safety. "I consider, frankly," he said to an interviewer, "that the whole of the east coast at least should be placed forthwith under martial law. It may be urged that this step would be too drastic, and that the public would not stand it. I believe, however, that no step would be too drastic to meet the emergency that has arisen, and that the public would cheerfully put up with anything that promised to mitigate this spy danger. That spying continues to be practised successfully there can be no question, and, from what I learn, something even more drastic and stringent than martial law is already in force in Germany."

DOYLE
The Noted China House
LET YOUR PRESENTS COST YOU LESS.
Now that economy is really necessary you will find their Gifts of China and Glassware, whilst forming the most acceptable form of present, will cost you quite a moderate sum. We have hundreds of useful goods suitable for gift purposes. Why not call and see them.
59, BOAR LANE LEEDS.

YOUR WEDDING
Should BE NICE whether it is at home or Caledonian. We are in most fallen at and the most thought of in the Trade. Call, sheet us; get our chiefs. BUCKTON, Claypit Lane (late of Cloudridge Street). Tele. 1877 Central.
"WE NEVER SLEEP."

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week a feature of the programme is a problem playlet by the Rev. A. J. Waldron, whose sketch "Should a Woman Tell?" has been one of the most widely-discussed plays of modern times. In "What Would You Do?" the problem is whether a man should enter into a forced marriage with a girl whom he has wronged, but for whom, he is convinced, he has not sufficient affection. The subject is delicate and controversial, but the author treats it as well as it can be dealt with on the public stage. The characters are admirably played.

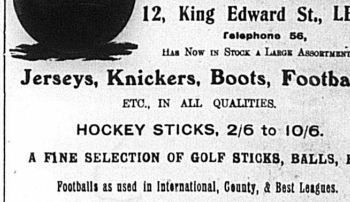
Georgie Wood, has an amusing series, "Winkles," in which he has abundant opportunity to display his personality and his versatility. It is as good a thing as he has given us. Carmen Turia, who has an excellent voice, sings English songs as one would expect a Spaniard to do, and Walter Aubrey is an unusually neat step-dancer. Others on a long bill are Harry Ford, comedian; Aldon and Loupe, barrel jumpers; Stacey and Williams, comedians; and Fred Wildon, phonofiddler.

An exceptional item in the programme to be presented by Mr Frank Allen at the Leeds Empire next week is that of Miss Zona Vevey and Miss Beard. One of the accessories to the entertainment is a "full cathedral" organ, undoubtedly the most perfect, as it is certainly the largest with which touring has been undertaken. George D'Alberti, a popular Leeds favourite, returns with some new numbers, which are likely to prove as successful as the many popular successes standing to his credit, and Cornalli and Eddie present what must laughable of tumbling turns, known as a "humpsti-bumpsti" act. Thornley Dodge contributes another item which is sure of popularity. His entertainment at the piano is of a kind which is always acceptable, and to many yields nothing in popularity to any item on the programme. Other excellent attractions include the Castilian Quintette, in a musical potpourri, "Ragtime Outdone"; Chas. Norton in "Pro's at the Races"; Magini, aptly described as "The Violin Wizard," and pictures.

LEEDS HIPPODROME

At the Hippodrome this week Mr Ernest G. Roberts, who was formerly in revues, presents the second edition of "Full Inside." Dainty dresses, kilting songs, pretty faces, and genuine rollicking fun are all there, and packed houses have testified their appreciation. Miss Jennie Benson (late of King and Benson) in song or comedy scores a decided success, Harry Brown, of "I'm very Happy" fame, is a comical waiter, and gives an extract from his vaudeville show; Stanley Brett is a capital comedian, and his insurance act with Miss Benson is splendid fooling. Others in the cast who are deserving of notice are Miss Ivy Deane, Mr Len Fisher, and the Misses More and Lea, who dance the triple waltz. Others in the bill are Fanny and Harry Dent, in their comedy act, "Murry and the Squaw"; Russell Carr, the military ventriloquist; Master James Garnett, a clever juvenile musician; and Woodward and Page, in a cycling set.

Next week at the Hippodrome Mr G. P. Huntley and Co. will present a new comedy sketch "A Burlington Arcadian," and Vasco, the only man in the world who can play any instrument ever invented, will appear in a wonderful act. Others in the programme are Minnie Muir, the original Tipperary girl; Jenny Lynwood, Scotch comedienne; Forest Tell, in coon songs and dances; Millie Ruby de Fontenoy, champion lady rifle shot; and Abel and Walsh.



FIRE AT POST OFFICE.—Damage amounting to £30 has been done by a fire which occurred at Cawood Post Office. The postmistress, Mrs Carnell, had taken a lighted candle upstairs, and it accidentally caught the curtains, setting them on fire. Neighbours went to her assistance and extinguished the outbreak with buckets of water.

SMITH BROS
HOLD A
LARGE STOCK of MATERIALS
— SUITABLE FOR —
Red Cross & Hospital Work.
SPECIAL DISCOUNT ALLOWED FOR QUANTITIES.
BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
AUTUMN FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

BROWNHILLS'
PLUM PUDDINGS
In 1/- Basins; and larger sizes.
— AND —
MINCEMEAT
In 1lb. and 2lb. reputed jars.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the
Huddersfield: " 1609. Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

HARRY HAYLEY,
Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,
12, King Edward St., LEEDS
Telephone 56,
HAS NOW IN STOCK A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF
Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,
ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.
HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.
A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.
Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.
FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.
STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.
BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Aasthorpe Road, Cromgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Alex Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier and Times"
IS THE
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 99—NEW SERIES [Registered as the G.P.O. as a Newspaper] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son
(Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT. AT 6.30 AND AT 9.

Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday at 6 p.m.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 30th, 1914
A Musical Military Mixture entitled:
"THE SOLDIERS' MESS"
or "KNUTS IN KHAKI."
JOHN TERRY & MABEL LAMBERT.
LILY BURNAND. NASH & NOEL.
TOM E. HUGHES. BENEDETTI BROS.
FRED RUSSELL.
JESSIE BROUGHTON & DENNIS GREEDON
In a Delightful Musical Entertainment.
Latest War News and Actual Films from the Front.

Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.,

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9.
THIS WEEK
Mr. G. P. HUNTLEY and CO.
In a New Comedy Sketch,
"A Burlington Arcadian."
MINNIE MUIR.
ABEL & WELSH.
JENNY LYNWOOD.
VASCO.
FOREST TELL.
Mdlle. RUBY DE FONTENOY.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11. CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1804.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor,
Residence:—
43, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established
SPARKLING HOSPERRIDE
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
ESTABLISHED THE HOTELS RESTAURANTS & BALLS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd LEEDS.

For TOWN or COUNTRY.
For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.
THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
IS AT
Fabor 45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Templenewsam has over eighty men serving the country, either the Army or Navy, and they represent all classes, from the squire downwards. The parish has done much better than Ingleby Kippax, but its record is not nearly so good as four of Garforth, Tadcaster, Wetherby, and Selby. To the gallant young fellows who have responded so willingly to the country's call all honour is due, and when they receive a gift at Christmas from the Templenewsam War Fund Committee they will realize that the residents on the are grateful to them. In the list the names of whose evidence one has no reason whatever to brother—Pullan, of East Lodge—appear doubt, but at Tadcaster recently a lawyer got so that Cressgates is not the only local village a man off because there was no corroboration that can claim to have four members of one family of a constable's statement. The sequel was serving with the Colours. The Beaumonts, of Crossgates, and the Pullans, of Templenewsam, dependent witness in such a case. One effect have shown a splendid example.

The Kippax correspondent, who styles himself "Interested," is one of the most generous humorists who ever expressed an opinion, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer should know him. "The writer," he says, "is one among many who has a strong objection to any tax, direct or indirect, being placed upon the wage-earner." That view one can understand, for a great many people have a rooted objection to even paying rent and rates, and what will they say to the 2d. extra on tea, and the half-penny extra on the half-pint of another beverage? "I out, have no quarrel," he goes on, "with those who wish to provide pensions, etc., for those who fight our battles on land and sea." Now nothing would be more repugnant to this representative than the idea of the "great and independent" than a suggestion that he desired to be pauperised, but it must follow that if wage-earners did not pay taxes, direct or indirect, they would have the benefits of all the public services as the recipients of the bounty of those who paid taxes. Well, he is no doubt a patriot, and every time he drinks from one cup or the other he will have the satisfaction of knowing he is doing a little bit towards crippling Kaiser Bill, and likewise helping those who have suffered by the war. The Kippax man cannot live to himself. What does he think of Mr Henderson's suggestion of a tax on wages?

In order to prove that Kippax is a costly place to live in, he submitted the prices of a number of commodities, but he must know that Kippax has no monopoly of high prices. Even in the market at Selby last week eggs were selling at 3 and 6 for a shilling, and butter at 1s 2d and 1s 3d per lb., and on the top of that the middleman puts his profit. Milk, too, unfortunately, quite as done in many places, and house rents are as high—it all depends on the town. Why in Selby and Tadcaster working-men cannot get houses, although they are prepared to pay good rents, and at the Moor Town the Urban Council have been compelled to undertake a building scheme. Why did the correspondent omit coal from his list of commodities? Therein, I think, the great majority of Kippax folks, being employed in the mining industry, score over the residents of many villages. I could name. Living is certainly very much dearer than it was, and it tells in a family where the income is limited, but I am not yet convinced that living is dearer in Kippax than in any place outside London.

Professor Moorman, of Leeds University, had a sly dig at the Rector of Adel the other night. The professor, who recently delivered a delightful lecture on the Yorkshire dialect at Crossgates, gave an address on "Broad Yorkshire" in Leeds, and of the efforts of the Rector of Adel to deplored the effect of elementary schools in causing the lapsing of dialect speech. Prof. Moorman thereupon stated that a beneficent influence might be exercised if our country parsons would occasionally preach a sermon in dialect. How many of them could do it?

Old customs die hard, but there is evidence furnished at Wetherby and Selby that the "hirings" will eventually be no more. I wonder what my farmer friends think about the matter, because I notice a clergyman at Carlisle has been denouncing the hiring fair. "It is an ungodly thing," he declared, "this public exhibition of young men and young women in the open streets for hire, with all the concomitant perils of concentrating a horde of young people of both sexes away from home with so much idle time on their hands and with nothing to do."

Should a small army of Garforthians be observed digging in the quarries and excavations in the neighbourhood, it must not be assumed that they are seeking lost treasure or searching it would be a rather heavy demand on local patfor coal. They will be making geological investigations to expect the residents to provide the vestigations in order to find corroboration of cash for the war and for lighting at one end Professor Kendall's remarks. This authority, the same time. Patriotism, national and local, who has a great deal more to tell about the has its limits, and Rawick did exactly what it geology of Garforth, says that more fossils of was expected to do. Still, there are people who the limestone magnesia can be found in a quarry say they are surprised at Barwick following at East Garforth than anywhere in Yorkshire, example of Crossgates, where, a few years shire, and for once in a way East Garforth also ago, the so-called "tin dukes" persistently recovers itself a place of some distinction. It is found to adopt public lighting because they would possible that the majority of the male popula- have to pay for it. tion think they have sufficient digging to do in the bowels of the earth, turning the remains of ancient forests to good account, without riotism of so many farm hands, finding a difficultyundertaking excursions to quarries, but, with his great opportunities, there is no reason why the miner should not turn an enthusiastic geowards. The parish has done much better than logist and cheer the heart of the good pro- Kippax, but its record is not nearly so good as

A new order of things has been established at Tadcaster. In numerous cases men—and women, too—have been convicted in our Courts of using abusive or indecent language because witnesses are not so generously inclined as to appear in Court without payment for their services.

One of the Tadcaster Guardians entered a strong protest against the increase in rates for education purposes at the meeting on Monday, and, if he does, to whom will it be sent? The County Council are not responsible for the increased rates, but it was stated that the belief was erroneous. While I think that higher education should be given to every boy and girl who really desires it, it is doubtful that all the money spent on evening classes is expended to the best purpose, and every District Committee should hesitate to take action unless they are satisfied a genuine demand for evening continuation schools exists. It is pitiful to see classes, started with large numbers of pupils, eager for knowledge, as one would expect, having to be closed, and it means money wasted, no matter whether it comes from rates or taxes, because it cannot be argued that, in such circumstances, the youths have gained any benefit.

Apropos of the note on the building of dances in the district this winter, I notice that Mr John Hutton, Chairman of the North Riding County Council, expresses very strong opinions on the subject. He says:—

"It was a very great shock to me to be told last evening that the Young Men's Club at —— proposed giving a dance. . . It is not the time for dancing and amusement, but for stern self-sacrifice and duty."

Similar opinions have been stated by leading men all over the country. Again, I say, there is time for everything.

Ancient Barwick, one of the few remaining strongholds in the district of the forces of darkness, has given an emphatic answer to those misguided mortals who sought to transform the quiet old village by the introduction of public lighting. One gentleman, who confesses to very conservative views, objects to the modern illuminant on archæological grounds, although, singularly enough, he does not hesitate to invite criticism by using an electric torch instead of the primitive turnip lantern, in walking about the old village after dark. Of course, the ratepayers do not adopt this gentleman's quaint view, because they were delighted when a generous lady a few years ago provided a powerful lamp and had it fixed on the shaft of the old cross, and they were indignant when the powers that be interfered and ordered its removal on the ground of vandalism.

It was admittedly an inopportune time to propose a lighting scheme for Barwick. As one respected resident occasionally tells us, the Rector of Barwick is a man of peace, and he does not believe in fighting, even in self-defence. An old village after dark. Of course, the ratepayers do not adopt this gentleman's quaint view, because they were delighted when a generous lady a few years ago provided a powerful lamp and had it fixed on the shaft of the old cross, and they were indignant when the powers that be interfered and ordered its removal on the ground of vandalism.

It was admittedly an inopportune time to propose a lighting scheme for Barwick. As one respected resident occasionally tells us, the Rector of Barwick is a man of peace, and he does not believe in fighting, even in self-defence. An old village after dark. Of course, the ratepayers do not adopt this gentleman's quaint view, because they were delighted when a generous lady a few years ago provided a powerful lamp and had it fixed on the shaft of the old cross, and they were indignant when the powers that be interfered and ordered its removal on the ground of vandalism.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE.

	£ s. d.
Amount previously acknowledged	204 10 10
J. Addison Barber, Esq., The Villas, Garforth, at present at Port Elizabeth, South Africa	4 0 0
Underground workmen, boys, and screwmen, Trench Pit, per Mr E. W. Ogden (3rd contribution)	2 1 0
Underground workmen, boys, and screwmen, Sisters and Isabella Pits, per Mr C. H. Hebden (12th contribution)	6 17 11
Mr Newdick (fourth contribution in box)	0 3 0
Total to date	£217 12 9

WM. GEO BOSHER, Hon. Sec. and Treas.
Nov. 25th, 1914.

The National Relief Fund now stands at nearly £4,000,000.

On Saturday afternoon Garforth and South Milford footballers replayed their match in the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition, and it was drawn—two goals each.

MOTOR CYCLE ACCIDENT.—An employee at the Selby Olympia Mills, Patrick Gallaghen, was knocked down on Wednesday by a motor cycle while he was on the way to work. He sustained severe cuts on the face, and a sprained wrist. His injuries were attended to at the Cottage Hospital.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.—The Selby Urban District Council at a special meeting have resolved to oppose the proposed application by a Yorkshire company for a provisional order authorising them to supply electricity in the urban district. The Council further agreed that they should themselves apply at the earliest possible moment for an order for lighting and power.

AN ASSIZE CASE.—On Monday at Leeds Assizes Arthur Sheard (41), shoemaker, was charged with burglary at Monk Fryston at the dwellinghouse of Joseph Laycock, and stealing spice, oil, bananas, and beer. Mr W. Beverley prosecuted and said the prisoner (who was very deaf) obtained access to the house by breaking and entirely removing a back window. When he got inside he seemed to have had some food and then left. Prisoner pleaded guilty and also admitted an offence of shoebreaking at Sipton, Huddersfield, between July 8th and 9th last, on which occasion he stole a quantity of tobacco, cigarettes, chocolate, etc. A number of previous convictions were recorded, and sentence of three months' hard labour was passed.

WHIST DRIVE AT SELBY.—A patriotic whist drive, arranged by the Selby Habitation of the Primrose League, took place in the Standering Hall, Selby, on Tuesday evening, and was a decided success, 240 ladies and gentlemen taking part. The room was decorated with flags, and a large Belgian banner stretched across the platform. The proceeds are to be divided between the Selby Belgian Refugee Fund and the Selby Women's War Fund. Mr R. Ludge officiated as M.C. The following were the prize-winners:—Ladies—1, Miss Ivy Douglas; 2, Mrs A. Walton; 3, Mrs Rockett; seated, Miss G. Ibbitson; 4, Miss L. Swift; consolation, Mrs Archer. Gents—1, Mr T. Gallagher; 2, Mr H. S. Kay; 3, Mr J. Armstrong; seated, Mr J. W. Button; 4, Mr J. Johnson; consolation, Mr E. B. Jackson. The committee thank the ladies and gentlemen who so generously gave the prizes and the refreshments.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market, Street). LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

SMITH BROS
HOLD A
LARGE STOCK of MATERIALS
— SUITABLE FOR —
Red Cross & Hospital Work.
SPECIAL DISCOUNT ALLOWED FOR QUANTITIES.
BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

HARRY HAYLEY,
Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,
12, King Edward St., LEEDS
Telephone 56,1
HAS NOW IN STOCK A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF
Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,
ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.
HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.
A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.
Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.
FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.
STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.
BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
AUTUMN FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED]

THE GREED OF CONQUEST.

By J. B. HARRIS-BURLAND

Author of "Dacoba," "An Angel's Sin," "Ruth Farjeant," "Under the Scimitar," "The Gold Worshippers," "The Financier," &c.

CHAPTER VI.

The subsequent inquiries into the death of Mr. Nofar elicited no facts that gave any clue to the identity of the murderer, or, at any rate, nothing was disclosed at the inquest. It was proved that the deceased had been poisoned by cyanide of potassium, and that the poison had been placed in the soda water, which had not been taken from a syphon, but from an ordinary corked bottle of the size known as "large." This bottle had been opened and brought into the smoking-room by the footman, who had received it from the butler. It was the first one of twelve which had recently been ordered from a new chemist in Sinchester, and who had asked Sir John Lowick to give his aerated waters a trial. None of the other bottles contained a trace of poison.

Suspicion was naturally directed to the new chemist, a young man of the name of Rowlands. Apart from the fact that he had supplied the soda water, his profession gave him exceptional advantages for committing the crime. He was, however, a young fellow with a good reputation, and was able to account for every grain of cyanide that he had purchased from the wholesale dealers. He was, moreover, not himself the manufacturer of the soda water, which was made in Wales at the source of a spring which had recently been acquired by an old and well-established firm. The bottles were not only fastened down with wire, but were sealed with wax. The footman testified that when he opened the bottle the seal was unbroken, and added that they were the only sealed bottles of soda water he had ever seen, and that he did not think they were likely to become general, as the was necessitated the use of a corkscrew.

The butler, in answer to a question, said that the soda water, which had been sent on approval, would not be drunk by anyone without Sir John's permission.

The circumstances of the case offered such a wide range of inquiry, reaching from the manufacturer down to the servants at Cranstead Hall, that it was quite certain that only a long and patient search would reveal the truth. Mr. Turnbull had swept down on Cranstead Hall with several policemen, and had reduced the servants to a state of abject terror, with threats of arrest and with a long and savage cross-examination. The only result had been that seven of them had given notice.

"As yet everything is in the dark," the inspector said to Lowick after the inquest. "One thing alone is certain, that the two murders are the work of the same gang, and you've got to be very careful."

"I shall be very careful," Lowick answered. "And even if these scoundrels have stolen the secret, they will find that I am the first in the field."

He was as good as his word. Directly after his father's funeral he thrust all thought of revenge out of his mind, and left the tracking down of the murderer to those who were best qualified to succeed in the difficult task. He had decided to devote all his strength and energies to the manufacture of another machine. He was in possession of plans—meantime he had destroyed those of his lost steam success. And that detail had been fully explained to him by his father. There was no doubt that he would be able to accomplish the work, provided he could protect himself from his enemies.

"My life has become of extraordinary value," he thought, as he sat one morning in the library with the plans spread out before him on a table. "Up to now it has only been of interest to myself and those who love me. But now the eyes of all England—the eyes of the world—are upon me."

He did not exaggerate. The two murders and the publication of the evidence given at the inquest had turned the eyes of the world upon him. He was known to possess a secret which would revolutionise all warfare, and render fleets and armies and even aeroplanes as useless as a child's toys. Already hundreds, thousands, of letters were pouring in upon him from every quarter of Europe—letters from men with money, letters from men who could get money, anonymous letters conveying threats and bribes and suggestions as to the way he could use his power, letters from women asking for his autograph and from women asking for his portrait. The leather case brought to him from Easterholme by the post-man was useless. Each day a cart arrived with a sack of letters. He had no time to read more than a few of them. They accumulated in a room like a fall of snow. It would have needed a secretary even to make a list of the writers, half a dozen secretaries to have read the letters, and an enormous staff to have written replies.

And this was only the froth on the surface. Lowick knew that the pile of letters represented little or nothing of importance. The men who mattered—the men to whom this great invention meant the supremacy of a nation—were men not likely to put anything on paper; but he knew that they were thinking of him, and that the chief men of every country in the world were waiting their opportunities to open negotiations with an obscure squire on the east coast of England.

And, as he sat at his large mahogany desk and pored over the plans, he tried in vain to shut out the thoughts of his danger. He had suddenly, by the death of his father, been lifted up to a lofty and responsible position in a situation hitherto occupied by no one else in the history of mankind. He had incurred a terrible and stupendous legacy, and it was more than probable that he would lose his life in the effort to preserve his secret. Those who could not buy him would endeavour to silence him, to secure their own safety by rendering him incapable of using his power against them. A sword had been hung above his head, and at any hour, at any minute, it might descend and cut him down into the darkness of death.

After two hours' work at the plans, he replaced them in the safe and locked it. He could not concentrate his mind on the complicated drawings. He was too covetous, and if it had been merely a question of facing death, he would have faced it bravely. But this life now meant more to him than mere existence. He owed a duty to his fellow men. As the sole guardian of a gigantic and terrible secret, he had to see that it did not fall into unscrupulous hands. So long as he was alive it was to be believed that he could do this. But heaven only knew what might happen if he were dead.

His thoughts were interrupted by the entrance of the footman one of the few servants who had remained after the inspector's vigorous onslaught.

"Mr. Turnbull wishes to see you, sir," said the man.

"Mr. Turnbull? You're sure it is Mr. Turnbull?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," the servant answered with a smile.

"Very well, then, I will see him."

The servant departed, and a few moments later the inspector entered the room. His face was quite impassive as he shook hands with Lowick.

"You're not looking well, sir," he said, gravely.

"That is hardly to be wondered at," Lowick replied. "It is only three weeks since my father's death—I am working very hard—and I am very worried."

"Well, I've some news that'll cheer you up, sir. The machine has been found."

"The machine has been found!" cried Lowick. "Oh, thank Heaven for that—thank Heaven for that! Where is it? Quick! Let me know all about it!"

"You shall come and see it," said the inspector, quietly. "I always fancied it was not far off, and for that reason I have had the island watched day and night lest the thieves should return to rescue their booty."

"And they did return! You've laid them by the heels?"

"I'm afraid not, but we may do so yet, unless they hear that the machine has been found."

"Where did you find it?" Lowick asked, eagerly.

"Buried in the sand, not more than five yards from the door of the bungalow. You know it is deep, because I dug there. In all probability it was just tumbled out of the cart, and buried where it fell."

"That might have been done by one man."

"Yes."

"It is odd he did not return to fetch it away."

"I expect he knew the place was watched. We must leave it where it is, and lay a trap," he cried Lowick, fiercely. "I won't permit that. There is too much risk. It must be put back here at once, and place it where no one can ever steal it again."

"Well, if you insist, sir, I daresay we can get it away without anyone knowing. But there is the chance that they will hear of it."

"Who found it?"

"I did, fortunately. You see, it wasn't buried very deep—the men hadn't had time. They left it on a high wind last night, the first we've had for weeks, and at times it probability it was just tumbled out of the cart, and buried where it fell."

"That might have been done by one man."

"Yes."

"It is odd he did not return to fetch it away."

"I expect he knew the place was watched. We must leave it where it is, and lay a trap," he cried Lowick, fiercely. "I won't permit that. There is too much risk. It must be put back here at once, and place it where no one can ever steal it again."

"Well, if you insist, sir, I daresay we can get it away without anyone knowing. But there is the chance that they will hear of it."

"Who found it?"

"I did, fortunately. You see, it wasn't buried very deep—the men hadn't had time. They left it on a high wind last night, the first we've had for weeks, and at times it must have blown half a gale. The sand was shifted, and a few inches of the box were laid bare. As good luck would have it, I was down on the island this morning and made the discovery myself. I've covered it up again."

"I don't know how to thank you," said Lowick, after a pause. "I owe you a tremendous debt, Inspector."

"I wish you'd repay it, sir, by allowing the box to remain where it is."

"I can't do that, Turnbull—indeed I can't. We must fetch it up as soon as possible. I'll take the cart over, and I think it can take the cart over, and I think it can. How is the tide?"

"You can get across now, and it will be dry in half an hour."

"Then we'll go at once. We can return before the tide comes up again. We must both be there now."

Three hours later the task was accomplished. The machine, apparently uninjured, was deposited in the laboratory, and Lowick and the inspector sealed themselves in with it.

"I wish you'd repay it, sir, by allowing the box to remain where it is."

"I can't do that, Turnbull—indeed I can't. We must fetch it up as soon as possible. I'll take the cart over, and I think it can.

GARFORTH SCIENCE LECTURES.

"THE GEOLOGY OF GARFORTH."

Under the auspices of the Garforth Science Lecture Committee an instructive lecture on "The geology of Garforth" was delivered by Professor Kendall, M.Sc., F.G.S., of Leeds University, before a large audience in the central hall of the Council School at Garforth on Monday evening. The lecture was splendidly illustrated, the lantern being operated by Mr Sissons.

County Councillor Dewhirst, of Whitmoor Lodge, presided, and, in introducing Professor Kendall, he said nothing was more encouraging to a lecturer than to see a huge audience, for it showed that the people were interested in the lecture, and he congratulated the committee on the large attendances at the lectures they had promoted. Professor Kendall was, he said, one of the greatest authorities on geology in England, and he thought the people of Garforth were very fortunate to have a gentleman of his standing to come down and lecture to them. (Applause).

Professor Kendall said that his principal object was to awaken in them some interest in geology. There was nothing mysterious about the work of a geologist; he did not employ any other method than an intelligent man would employ in carrying out an investigation; he simply employed the methods of the Boy Scout among the materials of the earth. If Garforth people dug in some one's back garden or looked at a sewer excavation they would see a great deal of clay, and if they dug a little deeper they would discover that the clay began to lose its stickiness. Then they come to rocks, and they found that they were all arranged in layers, and this, he explained, was due to the action of water. The first thing a geologist did was to ascertain whether the deposits were made in fresh water or salt water, and this he could prove by the kind of shells that were in the strata, both fresh water and marine shells being found. One slide showed some fossils from the coal measures of central England and another freshwater shells. He stated that on the occasion of an excursion in Barwick district, beyond the Manor Farm, he discovered some pond mussels, and these had a close relationship to some of the shells which were found in the coal measures. They would say that they were accumulated in a lake or the delta of a river. When they investigated coal they saw it was of vegetable origin—it was a great mass of vegetation, or peat growing in the marshes, and he pointed out how sometimes trunks of trees were discovered embedded in shale or sandstone. The land, they believed, was covered by dense forests, and the representatives of the giant trees of those days was now a small plant. Earth movements were going on, and the land fell, letting in the salt water, and this would account for the marine shells found. He also stated that round the British Isles there was a broad forest bed, and the question was as to how far it extended, for fishermen working on the Dogger Bank had fished up peat. Below the coal measures was the millstone grit, and it showed how the rivers had flowed. As the earth became cooler it contracted, and wrinkles were made. These wrinkles were hills and mountains, and he explained how the action of the climate upon them had affected its deposits, washing and wearing away the rocks, etc. He then spoke of the coal measures on Garforth, and stated that in one seam they appeared to have worked upwards, for horses working in a field on the Manor Farm had fallen into a hole. He was told about it, and he investigated the matter, and made his way into the coal workings. On the east side of Garforth there was a good deal of magnesian limestone, and he stated that they could find it in splendid development in the quarries at Micklefield, while gypsum could be seen at Hillam. The magnesian limestone bore evidence of accumulation in the over-salted waters of an inland sea bordered by desert. In some parts of the country, in particular near Selby, there were actual beds of rock salt in this limestone series.

Mr E. Hawksworth, of Crossgates, who is hon. secretary of Leeds Geological Society, proposed a vote of thanks to Professor Kendall. He said that they had had a most instructive lecture. It was full of suggestions, and that was the purpose of lectures of that kind. He had often pointed out at Crossgates that lectures were not for amusement, but to show that there were a great number of things in their midst that they did not know anything about, and as a rule people were densely ignorant about the things which were nearest their doors. Professor Kendall, he said, was looked upon in mining circles as a great authority on coal seams. In connection with the Royal Commission on Coal a few years ago Professor Kendall made a geological examination in order to prove the hidden coal field, and his researches showed that the coal supplies were much greater than had been known. The conclusion of the Commission was that there was such a vast coal field as would ensure the prosperity of the country for many years. They would find scattered about the district all sorts of pebbles that did not belong to the neighbourhood, and like-wise pieces of limestone from this district scattered across the Aire Valley, and he suggested that Professor Kendall should on some future occasion explain the cause of these things.

Mr H. J. Denby seconded the vote of thanks, and it was cordially passed.

Professor Kendall, in reply, said that there was one practical way of expressing their thanks, and that was by not believing what he had said until they had corroboration of it by their own investigations.

MURAL DECORATIONS AT ABERFORD CHURCH

DEDICATION SERVICE.

Aberford Church, which, by the way, is the only church in England dedicated to St. Ricarius, has received artistic ornamentation by a painting of the Crucifixion which has been placed upon the chancel arch. It is the work of Mr P. V. Whitehouse, who resides at Aberford, and has a studio in Leeds, and from first to last he has spent two years upon it. Mr Whitehouse, who studied mural decoration at Brussels, treated the subject from the point of view of the Sixth Week—"It is finished!"—depicting the Crucifixion of the Cross by the radiation of light from the central figure and the rolling away of heavy masses of cloud after the three hours' darkness. In this way it is interpreted allegorically as well as in the historic sense. The Saviour is a light, mystical figure, and the two malefactors are somewhat veiled in shadow; all the figures on the Cross are comparatively distant, and the foreground on either side of the arch is occupied by the people of different nationalities at the foot of the hill. Some of those catch the light, while others turn away from it. The larger figures are drawn with careful detail, and the colouring of earth and sky shows nice gradations of light and shade. The picture was presented by canons, and transferred to the chancel wall, and is a pleasing adornment of the interior.

The Bishop of Beverley on Thursday night conducted a special dedication service, assisted by the vicar of Aberford, the Rev. B. W. Shepherd-Walwyn. In a short address on the text "It is finished!" the Bishop observed that the picture represented the Crucifixion as a victory. The faces of those turned towards the Cross were illuminated by the light which was diffused by it. The suggestion was that the darkness was passing away, and that the true light already shined. Whether the work that the Saviour came to do on earth was completed in this great sacrifice, yet it must be continued by His Church, which had to share His sufferings in order to accomplish it.

A SINGULAR GARFORTH CASE.

STEALING BY FINDING.

BROTHER AND SISTER SENT TO PRISON.

Herbert Crossland, labourer, and Florence Crossland, spinster, brother and sister, living at Garforth, were at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday sent to prison for fourteen days on a charge of stealing (by finding) a watch valued at 15s., belonging to Nellie Smith, a domestic servant.

Supt. Symonds said he would prove that finding was stealing.

Nellie Smith, in service at Garforth, said that on Wednesday night towards the end of September she lost her watch, which was in a wristlet strap, while walking along Fiddler Lane, Garforth. She returned on finding her loss, along with a young man named Pickersgill, to look for it, and later they were joined by another young man named Kilburn. While they were searching about the lane the male defendant came up and asked her if she had lost something. She replied "Yes," and, on his making enquiry as to what it was, one of the young men said "A watch." After looking about for a few moments he went away.

Ally ett Pickersgill, Poplar Terrace, Garforth, said he assisted in the search for the watch. They met the male defendant, and he asked him for some matches. The defendant inquired what he had lost, and the other young man said it was a watch. Crossland then asked if he found it what reward he would get. Witness told him he would get something.

Charles Kilburn, Garforth, said that when Crossland came up and was told what had been lost he said "You will have to come in the morning."

Thomas Kilbride, miner, of Garforth, said he lodged with Crossland's parents. He remembered one Wednesday evening that the male defendant came into the house and said some one had lost something. The two defendants and himself went outside and searched about. The male defendant picked something up and gave it to his sister. When they got back to the house he saw the female defendant take a watch from a wristlet strap, put the watch in a drawer, and throw the strap into the fire.

Fred Midgley, assistant to Mr J. C. Ward, pawnbroker, Garforth, said that about seven o'clock on October 30th the female defendant came and offered a watch for pledge. He asked her whose it was and she replied that it was her own. He lent her 3s. 6d. on it.

P.C. Hogg said that on November 20th he saw the male defendant, who said "I found the watch. I never stole it. I gave it to our Charlie." The female defendant said "I never stole it. My brother gave it to me."

Asked if he had anything to say, the male defendant said he found the watch and gave it to his sister, as he did not want to have anything to do with it.

The female defendant said she pawned it, as she was "hard up."

The Chairman, in sending them to prison, said it seemed as if they did not want to find the owner.

A WRETCHED STOURTON HOME.

EIGHT PERSONS IN ONE ROOM.

CHILDREN PRACTICALLY "ALIVE."

At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday George Henry Dent, described as a fitman, and living in Stourton, was sent to prison for three months with hard labour for neglecting his six children.

Mr C. S. Haigh prosecuted on behalf of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and, in outlining the case, he said that the defendant was a widower, living at 16, Atkinson Street, Stourton. He had worked at the Yorkshire Copper Works, earning about 24s. per week.

Mr E. F. Moorhouse, sanitary inspector to the Rothwell Urban Council, said he visited the house on October 29th, and there he found the defendant's mother and his family. The children were in a wretched condition. There was no furniture in the house, and the old lady was unable to rise from the chair to answer the door. He saw the father and later informed the N.S.P.C.C., as it was a case he could not deal with.

Inspector Jones, of the N.S.P.C.C., said he visited the house in consequence of a report which he received. The children were well nourished but were verminous. In the kitchen was a fullsized bed covered with dirty rags, and this, along with a table and a couple of chairs, was the only furniture in the house. He saw the father, who showed him a note to say that he had spent 17s. on food in the previous week. On November 13th he again visited the house: about 2.30 in the afternoon, and found the children huddled up on the bed. They were in a verminous condition. As a result of his visit he called in Dr. Marshall, of Leeds.

Defendant asked what a man was to do. He had had to get a bed second out of the Children's Home at Rothwell or else go to prison.

The Chairman said he ought to have gone to prison if he could not look after them.

Dr. Marshall (Leeds) spoke to examining the children at their home. They were well nourished, but scantily clad. They asked to go back to the Homes. There were eight people living in one room. The children had been discharged from the Homes on August 29th.

Defendant said he had done his best to get some one to look after the children when they went to the homes. This he was unable to do, and was compelled to get his mother to come to the house. She fell ill and then he had the whole of them to see to.

P.C. Sowray agreed with the evidence given as to the children's condition. "They were practically alive," he said.

Miss Hirst, assistant matron at the Children's Homes, Rothwell Haigh, said the children were admitted to the Homes in the early part of the year, and discharged on August 29th. They were then in proper order and decently clad.

The Chairman asked the witness if she ever visited the children after they left the institution.

Witness replied that it was not her work to do so after they had left the Homes.

The Chairman said, in his opinion, it was unsatisfactory that the authorities (the Guardians) had not seen that the children were under proper care after leaving the Homes. They had in this case gone back to conditions as bad as they had been taken from. It was not in the best interests of the children that they let them go back to the father.

Mr F. W. Mee (Clerk to the Hunslet Board of Guardians), said that the matter subsequently had come before the case, and he had, when applied to, made various suggestions to them.

The Chairman said he thought it was a long time to leave a case—from August until November.

TEMPLENEWSAM POACHING AFFRAY

FIGHT IN HALTON MOOR WOOD.

PRISONER ATTACKS THE POLICE WHEN ARRESTED.

Joseph Swaine, who is charged with night poaching and unlawful wounding on the Templenewsam Estate, was again brought before the West Riding magistrates at Leeds on Tuesday, and he was committed for trial at the next assizes.

Mr A. H. Willey prosecuted on behalf of the Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P.

The prisoner Swaine is a labourer, living in the York Road district of Leeds.

Robert Robinson, Newsam Green, said he had been employed by the Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., for about five years. Early on the morning of November 9th, about five o'clock, he was watching with a keeper named Pullan, and a watcher named John William Day, when he heard a shot fired in the direction of the Halton Moor Wood. The sound came from a distance of about twenty yards in the wood. He and the other two men went in the direction, and subsequently came up with three men, one of whom he recognised as the prisoner Swaine. One of the men had a sack and the others had a gun each. They ran after the men for about fifty yards, and when about five or ten yards away he (witness) shouted to his companions "Come on, lads." The three men, including prisoner, turned round. Pullan, who identified one of the men, said "Now, then, drop that gun, Swaine." Swaine then sprang upon Pullan and struck him with a violent blow. He could not say which end of the gun Pullan had been hit with, but he thought it was the butt-end, as it was broken. Witness was attacked by one of the other men named Roberts, who struck at him with a gun. He warded off the blow with his arm. Pullan was then knocked down by Swaine, who came across to the assistance of his (witness's) assailant. He was struck on the left side of the head with the barrel of a gun, and he was knocked down. While on the ground Swaine kicked him on the shins and the back.

Witness said while still on the ground "You are a —— coward for striking at a man with a gun." He then got up, and the prisoner and the other man again attacked him, and they had "a right battle." He was struck a severe blow by a gun barrel. Swaine, during the fight, said "Kill the —— right out." Witness went on to say that he was rendered unconscious, and when he came round the men had gone. He was taken to the head keeper's house. As a result of his injuries he had been confined to bed about fourteen days, under the care of Dr. Bean. In addition to the four wounds on the head he had been bruised about the body. At the present time he was unable to follow his employment. He added that he was positive as to the identity of Swaine, as he knew him.

John Pullan, gamekeeper, living at the East Lodge Gates, also gave evidence, and said that as they came up with the three men they turned. He recognised Swaine, who held his gun up by the barrel with the butt-end over his shoulder, and he said "Put that gun down, Swaine." Swaine then sprang forward and struck him on the top of the head with the butt of the gun, which broke off by the breach. Witness was again struck on the top of the head and fell down, remembering nothing more. He was in bed for ten days.

John William Day said he was with Pullan and Robinson when they came up with the men. Pullan was struck by the prisoner. He himself went for the man who carried the sack. After Swaine and the other man had "finished" Robinson and Pullan they came for him and hit him with the barrel of the gun, and he fell down. He was not unconscious long, and on coming to himself he saw the keeper Robinson staggering about.

Dr. Walter Percy Bean, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, said he attended Robinson and Pullan, whom he found at the Lodge at Temple-newsam. Robinson had a cut four inches long on the left side of the skull, and the wound was bleeding profusely. He also had a wound at the back part of the head, and two wounds behind the left ear. There were also bruises on the left arm and shoulder. Pullan had an incised wound on the right side of his skull about five inches long.

P.C. Taylor, stationed at Halton, said he went to the keeper's house at Halton about 5.45 a.m. on November 9th, and he saw the injured men. He afterwards went into the Halton Wood, and he picked up the broken parts of two guns, two cloth caps, a "trilby" hat, and a handkerchief. One of the guns had a charge in it. The same day about 11.45 a.m. he saw the prisoner in York Road. Witness was with P.S. Mathews, and he said to the prisoner that he wanted to see him about two keepers who had been wounded in the Halton Moor Wood. Prisoner said "I can't talk to you both at once." Witness told him that owing to the men's injuries he would have to go to the Park Street Police Station at Leeds. Prisoner walked along York Road, and when they had gone about forty yards the prisoner struck out with both fists, saying "You —, I will have something to answer for this time." He kicked the sergeant. They got him on the ground, and put on the handcuffs. Prisoner then said that he would have to ride, as he would not walk. On the way to the car he again kicked Sergeant Mathews.

P.S. Mathews, who hobbled into the witness-box, corroborated the last officer's story about the affray.

Prisoner was then committed. He applied for bail, and Mr Willey said he did not object as the period between now and the next assizes was a long time.

The Chairman said bail would have to be substantial.

After a brief discussion the magistrates decided to refuse bail owing to the character of prisoner and the gravity of the case.

A SELBY FIRM'S APPEAL.

In the King's Bench Division on Friday, before Mr Justice Horridge and Mr Justice Rowlatt, arguments were heard in the case of Olympia Oil and Cake Company, of Selby, v. the Produce Brokers' Company (Limited), which was a motion by the Company to set aside an award of the Oil Seed Association. The appellant company purchased a cargo of soya beans from Manchuria, and the respondents, the sellers, purported to satisfy their contract by tendering documents of a cargo which, it appeared, was at the bottom of the sea. The Appeal Committee of the Association held that it was not, and remitted the award back to the Committee. The Committee made another award, holding that the appellants were bound by custom to accept the documents of cargo. The appellants now argued that the second award was bad in law, that the arbitrators had exceeded their jurisdiction, and that there was no such custom as that set up.

Mr Justice Horridge said the Court were of opinion that the arbitrator had not jurisdiction conclusively to settle this question. What the Court had to consider was whether or not, if such custom did exist, it was contrary to the terms of the contract. The Court had come to the conclusion that they would hear cross-examination on the question before coming to a decision, and the case would be adjourned so that both sides would have an opportunity of making fresh affidavits upon the alleged custom, and of giving notice as to cross-examining the persons who made those affidavits.

The Court made an order accordingly. An application by respondents' counsel for leave to appeal against the order was granted.

A SELBY SOLDIER'S LETTER.

NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT.

Private Wm. Murphy, writing to his sister at Selby, says:—

"This is almost a new regiment to me now. Almost all our officers who came out with us have gone, and our reinforcements are all strangers.

"This is a tremendous big battle in which we are engaged, and we are quite in the dark as to how it is going. Just here we are holding our own well, but I think it will be a long time before we know the final result.

"There is nothing to worry about. We are well treated considering. Plenty of food and tobacco, and a clean change of clothing and boots, so of course we might be a lot worse off."

ROTHWELL DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE

ATTENDANCE RETURNS—CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

The monthly meeting of Rothwell Education Sub-Committee was held in the Carlton Lane Schools, Rothwell, on Friday night, Mr J. Butterick (Chairman) presiding. Others present were Messrs T. Thomas, W. Lunn, J. Hirst, T. Ellis, J. Horner, J. Dobson, and R. McCullough, with the Clerk (Mr A. Angus), and the attendance officer (Mr H. Bryan). When the attendance returns came up for consideration the Clerk reported that the attendance was better still, improving as the winter came on rather than the opposite. The Board also intimated that as a result of the interviews with parents of children who were bad attenders, practically in every one of the cases the children had attended regularly.

The Clerk's report was considered highly satisfactory.

The percentages for the whole of the district for the past month was 91 as compared with 89 in the previous month. The attendance for the various schools was as follows:—Rothwell Council, mixed, 92; Rothwell Council, infants, over five, 87; under five, 92; Stourton Council, mixed, 90; Stourton Council, infants, over five, 91, and under five, 92; Robin Hood Council, mixed, 93; Robin Hood Council, infants, over five, 91, and under five, 85; Carlton Council, mixed, 94; Carlton Council, infants, over five, 91, and under five, 79; Thorpe Council, mixed, 90; Thorpe Council, infants, over five, 93, and under five, 85; Hook Lane Infants (Rothwell Haigh), over five, 95, and under five, 80; Rothwell National, mixed, 92; Rothwell National, infants, over 6d., 84, and under five, 69; Lofthouse National, mixed, 93; Lofthouse National, infants, over five, 93, and under five, 95; Middleton National, mixed, 94; and Middleton National, infants, over five, 96, and under five, 100.

The caretaker of the Rothwell Council Schools made application to the committee for an increase of salary, and the increase was recommended.

The county surveyor is to be asked to inspect the gateway approaching Rothwell Council School, as it is said to be in a dangerous condition for horses taking coke, etc., to the school.

The Clerk reported that the County Council had not sanctioned the increase of salary to the caretaker at the new Stourton School.

A vote of sympathy was passed by the committee with the headmaster of the Middleton Church School in his illness.

An application was received from the Middleton School asking that the Christmas holidays commence on December 23rd, and not on the Friday before Christmas.

Mr T. Thomas moved that the application be granted.

Mr Lunn, who raised an objection, said that it was only the teachers of the school who wanted to change the dates. The week before Christmas was one of the most important weeks in the whole year, the parents requiring their children to help them at home.

The application was not granted.

HOW WINTER WILL AFFECT THE TROOPS

RUSSIA'S ADVANTAGE—GERMANY'S DIFFICULTIES.

The troops engaged in the big war will have to undergo great hardships in the field this winter, especially those armies in Eastern Europe.

In East Prussia, Silesia, and in Galicia the frosts are severe. Strong, icy north winds often blow ceaselessly for many days, and snow covers the whole of East Prussia as in Siberia. The rivers, streams, and lakes become icebound in Silesia.

In the second half of November Russia and East Prussia are, with rare exceptions, covered with snow, and as a rule fairly deep snow. The winter begins in Silesia as well, where severe cold weather reigns from the middle of December to the end of January, and sometimes the beginning of February.

Of course, the German General Staff knows very well the great difficulties which the German Army must undoubtedly face with the approach of winter, and it is hastening to achieve some positive success before this trouble comes.

German people as well as French, English, Belgians, and Italians are not accustomed to extreme cold weather, except the inhabitants of East Prussia, who, comparatively, are not numerous.

In Germany, as is well-known, the winter is rather mild, and in the central part of the Kaiser's country frosts are very rarely harder than 25 degrees Reaumur, or 88 degrees Fahrenheit. So that the German Army has never had an opportunity of getting accustomed to really rough winter conditions, except in the extreme quarterend in the north-east of the empire.

The military operations during the winter, even if it is true there will be some considerable change of tactics, lightening some tasks on the one hand, but increasing the number of sick among the soldiers on the other.

The movement of troops in the snow is also more difficult, as well as the mussking of the march of the army. The loss of fires on the bivouacs or in the fortified positions, without which no army could exist during severe cold, also brings many difficulties. It attracts the attention of the enemy and the fire of his artillery.

Napoleon's army on entering Russia experienced the Russian winter, and, in fact, was destroyed by what the Russians called "red frost," which Germans fear more than Russian Cossacks.

The Russian people like the winter very much, Russian poetry is full of poems about the beauty of it, and the "Red Frost, and the Red Nose" is the principal hero of them. The whole Russian population is very glad to welcome the approach of winter, and the more intense the frost becomes the happier a Russian is.

The winter in Russia is also a "beauty in white and gold" (sarafan is the national dress of Russian women). It is also called by peasants "our little mother winter," and many pretty names are given to this great ally of the Russian might.

Russian soldiers also like the winter; they become like new men—more active and energetic. From his childhood the Russian peasant is quite familiar with deep snow, to temperatures of 100 degrees and 120 degrees, and the snow-storms of Russia, which are unique.

The Russian soldier can sleep in the snow with the same comfort as in bed in barracks, and he is specially trained for manœuvre and work in it.

In Russia there is a special period of winter manœuvres which coincides with the hardest weather of the season, and which lasts from the last half of February. These manœuvres last three weeks or a month, and are ordered for the whole of Russia.

Especially well trained in this respect are the troops of the Warsaw military district, which are now in contact with the Germans in East Prussia, and these winter manœuvres have the Russian soldiers complained of them. On the contrary, they always preferred them to the summer grand manœuvres, and came back stronger and without the slightest signs of fatigue.

A good illustration of how the Russian army can bear frost is the celebrated parade on the frozen Neva which takes place every year on January 6th, when the temperature usually is 50 degrees to 60 degrees below freezing point.

This parade is commanded by the Tsar himself, and it is famous because the whole garrison is dressed in full-dress uniform, and the whole army corps from 5 o'clock in the morning await the appearance of the Tsar from the Winter Palace, which often is only at 12 o'clock noon.

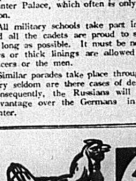
All military schools take part in this parade, and all the cadets are proud to stand the cold as long as possible. It must be noticed that furs or thick linings are allowed either to the officers or the men.

Similar parades take place throughout Russia. Very seldom are there cases of death or illness. Consequently, the Russians will have a great advantage over the Germans in the coming winter.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.



Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

40 EGGS FOR 6D

If you are a Poultry keeper, and your birds are not laying as you would like, or your pullets not so forward as they should be, there is one thing you should try—

COVERDALE'S Egg-Producing Poultry Powder

From none at all to 40 eggs a week.

Dear Sir,—Flaxton, near York, Nov. 8th, 1913. I have had a single egg for a month, but the 6d. packet of Poultry Powder you sent me has worked wonders. They are simply laying an egg a week, and increasing. I will certainly continue to use it and recommend it.—(Mrs.) LUND.

It is the best Poultry Tonic on the market, and it makes eggs plentiful. CERTIFICATES, including 16-page booklet on "Profitable Poultry Keeping."

Coverdale's Poultry Powder, Ltd., PARLIAMENT STREET, YORK.

Also of Corn Dealers, Co-operative Stores, etc.

Agents—G. H. HICKSON, Grocer, etc., East Keswick. Wetherby, Aberford. Thorner, Crossgates, Tarcaster, South Milford, Harrogate, post 2 opa. Branham, and Roundhay; K. H. JACKSON, Ltd., Leather Lane, Leeds; T. B. SMITH & SON, Garforth; Mrs HURST, High Street, Tadcaster; G. H. HARGRAVE, Grocer, Saxton; J. HIRST & Co., 178, Hunslet Road, Leeds and TAYLOR & SUGDEN & Co.'s Branches.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20 ...	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30 ...	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 5
40 ...	1 0	2 0	3 8	6 6

If Cash is not sent with above, ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.

Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13	weeks,	1s.	per inch per insertion.
26	do.	10d.	do. do.
52	do.	8d.	do. do.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.

Wednesday, 2nd Dec., 1.10 p.m. to York, Malton and Scarborough; 1.32 p.m. to Goole and Hull. Saturday, 5th Dec., 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby.

For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

WANTED GENERAL, age 18 to 20.—Apply, Mrs. George Carmichael, Woodlesford. 3

WANTED Three HAYCUTTERS, immediate employment.—King, Vernon Street, Leeds. 2

WANTED Strong, Respectable GIRL, about 17.—Mrs Rodgers, 70, Hollyshaw Lane, Whitkirk. 2 2014

WANTED GENERAL, age about 20, for Farmhouse.—Apply, Mrs Connell, Well House, Micklefield.

FEVER HOSPITAL, GARFORTH.—Wanted Strong Girl as WARD-MAID. Another maid kept.—Apply, The Matron. 2

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, chiefly housework. Three in family.—Apply, Green, "Jesmond," Selby Road, Whitkirk, near Leeds. 3

WANTED 2 Respectable ENGLISHMEN as LODGERS. No others need apply.—Mrs Flockton, 3, Bentley Square, Oulton, near Leeds. 1 2371

WANTED Experienced GENERAL, age 20 to 25. No cooking. 2 in family. Salary 7s. Plenty of liberty.—Apply, 12, Brunswick Place, Leeds. 3 1657

WANTED Good GENERAL SERVANT. All duties. Reference required.—Apply, Mrs. Grisdale, 27, St. Michael's Crescent, Headingley, Leeds. 1 2601

FOR SALE.

SINGER'S SEWING MACHINE for Sale, second-hand, very little used, large size with four drawers and folding table. Cheap.—Dale, High Street, South Milford, Leeds. 1655

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, L.R.C.P., should be read by all Married People. 2d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c., Post Free, 2 Stamps.—(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs. W. Wood, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special at 5d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S BRONCHITIS LOZENGES

Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.

Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.

All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

THOMAS MIDDLETON PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,

96 VICAR LANE, (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),

ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0 10 0 for 14d. per month.
£1 0 0 ,, 2d. ,, ,,
£2 0 0 ,, 10d. ,, ,,
£5 10 0 ,, 1od. ,, ,,
£13 0 0 ,, 1s. 0d. ,, ,,
£25 0 0 ,, 1s. 8d. ,, ,,
£50 0 0 ,, 2s. 8d. ,, ,,
£10 0 0 ,, 3s. 4d. ,, ,,

Same above £10 by Special Agreement. ONLY ADDRESS:—

96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.

PLEDGE OFFICE: 1 LADY LANE, LEEDS.

MR and MRS. TURNER 7 Lady Lane, Leeds, and 36, Horton Road, Bradford, Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited. Highest Price Given.

Tel. Nos.: Leeds 3188; Bradford. 241

PATENTS for INVENTIONS. obtained by CHARTERED PATENT AGENT.

JOHN E. WALSH, 25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS, and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX, the Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free, on British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.

Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 35Y.

Established 37 Years.

WM. DENTON & SON, 23, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL, Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.

Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application. Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc., Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free. Insurance Brokers.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CROSSGATES LITERARY SOCIETY

WESLEYAN LECTURE HALL—MONDAY, NOVEMBER 30th, at 8. Lecture—"FRIEDRICH NIETZSCHE AND HIS INFLUENCE ON GERMAN THOUGHT AND POLICY." by the Rev. J. Miller Hamilton.

For Session—Gentlemen 2/6, Ladies 1/-. Single Admission, 1/-.

CROSSGATES BAPTIST FELLOWSHIP.

LECTURE HALL, WHITKIRK.—TUESDAY, DECEMBER 1st, at 8 p.m. Lecture—"SOME EXPERIENCES IN NIGERIA." by Mr. P. HALL. Chairman - Mr. Berras.

TO THE LADIES OF CROSSGATES DISTRICT.

MISS MONKHOUSE having moved into Crossgates from Bradford, would be pleased to "MAKE UP LADIES' OWN MATERIALS."

EXPERT SKIRT, BLOUSE, and CHILDREN'S COATS and DRESSES. Fit and style guaranteed. Moderate charges. Work done at home, or by the day.

MISS MONKHOUSE (Over MOON'S, Grocers), CROSSGATES. 3

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

Every Evening at 7 o'clock, except

SATURDAY: Two Performances at 6.30 & 8.30

WEEK COMMENCING NOVEMBER 30th.

MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—"A BRONZE IDOL."

A thrilling Hepworth drama, featuring Stewart Rome and Chrissie White.

"A MAN'S WAY."

A powerful two-reel story of the Wild West.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY.

The Finest Picture dealing with the present Crisis yet produced

"SAVING THE COLOURS."

Children's Matinee on Saturday at 2.30. Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

BARKER'S BRITISH PIANOS, SALE. SALE. SALE. MAGNIFICENT BARGAINS.

GREATER REDUCTIONS TO CLEAR

£55.—AVILL AND SMART, London.
£53.—TOLKIN, London.
£51.—BISHOP, London.
£16.—COLLARD AND COLLARD, London.
£18.—ROBERTS AND ROBERTS, London.
£18 10s.—J. AND J. HOPKINSON, London.
£19.—NEUMAYER, overstring, ebony ivory keys.
£23.—KIRKHAM, overstring, London.
£26.—KNAUSS, overstring, ebony, ivory keys.
PIANOS by SCHIEDMAYER, RICHARD LIPP, STEINWAY AND SONS, ERNST KAPS, BECHSTEIN, WALDBERG, KNAUSS, NEUMAYER, WALDEMAR, discounted regardless of cost, in order to clear them from our showrooms.

BECHSTEIN, upright, again reduced to clear £58.
PIANOLA PIANO, by Orchestrelle Co., to clear £60.

SPECIAL OFFER. PRIVATE SALE.

BRINSMEAD, New Model, overstring, ivory keys, £46
COLLARD AND COLLARD, New Model, overstring, ivory keys, £46
SCHIEDMAYER, BABY GRAND, quite new, in rosewood case, original cost 110 guineas; inspection invited; rare bargain, only 60 guineas.

BARKER'S ANNUAL SALE, NEW STATION STREET, LEEDS.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.

ALFRED REED. Late Matthews.

CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR, GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET

Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire. Large and Small Parties Catered for.

YOU CAN SAVE MONEY BY BUYING AT

JOHN C. WARDE, PAWNBROKER, CLOTHIER, and JEWELLER.

Station Road, GARFORTH.

Below are only a few of the Bargains we have to offer:

Wool Blankets, very heavy at 10/6, 12/6, and 16/-.

Full-size Flannelette Blankets, from 1/11 each.

Quilts, extra quality, from 3/6 each.

Full-size Sheets, very heavy, at 2/11, 3/11, and 4/11.

Special line in Bedticks, from 2/6 each.

Men's Full Suits, latest style, from 17/11

Heavy Tweed Trousers, at 2/11, 3/11 and 4/11.

Men's Cord Trousers, splendid value, 4/9

Youths' Cord Trousers, splendid value, 3/6.

Men's Heavy Pit Boots, value from 5/6 per pair.

Men's Smart Sunday Boots, at 6/11, 8/11, and 9/11.

Splendid Selection of Men's Shirts, at 1/6, 1/11, 2/9, and 2/11.

Men's Overcoats, latest style, from 16/6.

Suits Made to Measure from 25/-.

Large Stock of Second-Hand Suits, Skirts, Boots, etc., always on hand.

Money Liberally Lent on Gold and Silver Watches, Jewellery, Furniture, Carpets, Clothing, Boots, Bedding, etc.

WEEKLY PAYMENTS TAKEN ON GOODS LAID BY.

SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART.

ON MONDAY NEXT, Messrs THOMLINSON & SON

Will Sell by Auction:—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Stores in HGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 11 O'CLOCK. WHITKIRK LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART (Near to Crossgates Station and within four miles of Leeds).

Messrs BARTLE & SON

Will Sell by Auction, in strict accordance with the conditions posted at the Mart—
545 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.:—
110 NEWLY CALVEN and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE BEASTS.
65 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and STORES.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
100 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
250 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
Auctioneers' Offices: Garforth, near Leeds. (Tel. No. 26).

THE AUCTION MART, WHITKIRK.

THE NEXT SALE OF HORSES will be held on WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9th.
Entry Forms may be had post free.
Offices: Garforth. BARTLE & SONS, Auctioneers

W. A. F. BURDOWS & CO., Auctioneers and Valuers, BOND PLACE, LEEDS. (Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).

Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.

Valuations made for all purposes.

To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.

Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Sundries always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON, AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS. SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

THREE GOOD LINES:
CINEMA GREEN PEAS,
Housewife Marrowfat Peas,
Id., 1½d. & 3d. Packets,
— AND —
CROWN VINEGAR.
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd., DEWSBURY ROAD, LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this:-

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD, Eyesight Specialists, and Earphone Exports, 20, DUNCAN STREET, LEEDS.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges. EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.

FIRTH & KENYON, GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.

Mr. J. DILWORTH'S Dental Rooms, CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS. Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8, and at 16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates. Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.

Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

Gent's, 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings Large Assortment always in Stock at J. WINTERHALDER'S, Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician, 13, New York Street, LEEDS (Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate). Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ROTHWELL GAS.

APPLICATION FOR PROVISIONAL ORDER, 1914-5.

NOTICE is hereby given that the ROTHWELL GAS LIGHT COMPANY incorporated by the West Riding Consolidated Act, 1897, INTEND TO APPLY TO the Council of Yorkshire (West Riding) THE BOARD OF TRADE FOR A PROVISIONAL ORDER under the Gas and Water Facilities Act, 1870, to enable the said Company to increase the authorized Capital of the Company by the sum of £1,600 Additional Capital, by the issue of 1,600 Additional Shares of £10 each under the same conditions as the Company's Additional Shares created under and in virtue of the provisions of the Rothwell Gas Act, 1882, and the Rothwell Gas Orders, 1895, 1903, and 1908.

And also to enable the said Company to borrow proportionate sums of money in respect of such proposed additional Capital in accordance with and in the manner authorized by the said Act and Orders.

Printed copies of the draft Provisional Order will be deposited at the Board of Trade Office on or before the 23rd day of December next, and on and after that date copies can be obtained at the offices of the Gas Company, the Solicitor and Parliamentary Agents at the rate of 1s. per copy, and if and when the said Order is made by the Board of Trade, printed copies of the Order, as granted for the purpose at the Gas Offices, Rothwell aforesaid, and may also be purchased at the Office of the Clerk of the Peace, the Gas Offices, Rothwell, and at the office of the undersigned at the price of 1s. per copy.

Every Company, Corporation, or person desirous of making any representation to the Board of Trade, or of appearing before that Board on objection respecting the application, Board on objection respecting the application, may do so by letter, addressed to the Assistant Secretary, Board of Trade Harbour Department (Gas and Water), 7, Whitehall Gardens, London, S.W., on or before the 15th January, 1915, and copies of such representation or objections must at the same time be sent to the undersigned Solicitor or Agents. The Company and any forwarding such representation or objections to the Board, the Objectors or their Agents should state whether a copy of the same has been sent accordingly.

Dated the 19th day of November, 1914.

WM. WRIGHT, 18, Park Row, Leeds, Solicitor, HAMLIN & CO., 9, Bridge Street, London, E.C Parliamentary Agents.

TENDERS

GARFORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

THE Garforth Urban District Council invite TENDERS for THROWING OUT and EMPTYING of PRIVIES, ASHPITS, and DUSTBINS, for 3 months, and also for 6 months, commencing December 1st, 1914.

The District is divided into 4 portions, and tenders may be sent in for either or all the portions, viz.:—1 and 2 only, or the whole of the four portions, as follows:—

Tenders for Throwing Out and Carting Away, 1 and 3 portions.
Tenders for Throwing Out and Carting Away, 2 and 4 portions.
Tenders for Carting Away only.
Tenders when the Council find a man for throwing out.

Each Contractor must find his own Tip.

All particulars and lists containing a description of the different parts may be had of Thomas T. Amott, Sanitary Inspector, Garforth.

Sealed Tenders to be sent to me at the Council Offices, not later than 10 o'clock on Thursday, December 2nd, 1914. The Council do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any Tender.

ALBERT EDWARD PARR, Clerk to the Council.

Council Offices, Garforth.
Dated this 26th day of November, 1914.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28th, 1914.

A British military man, writing recently, stated that the sufferings of Belgian women and children had aroused a fierce anger among our soldiers, and, one and all, they vowed that when they were brought face to face with the brutal Germans they would give them no quarter. Now, what happened? These very men were shortly afterwards engaged with the enemy, who departed leaving their wounded on the field, and the British soldiers, instead of allowing the stricken Prussians to die, bandaged up their wounds, fed them, and removed them to a place of safety. "And I am glad we did it," said the chivalrous British fighting man, who a short time before was determined to have reprisals on the enemy for their cruel treatment of the Belgians. No wonder the foreigner is perplexed; he simply cannot understand British character, which is something of a puzzle to even Thomas Atkins himself. Our soldiers, however, have been taught to "play the game," and they would no more think of defeating the enemy by means of the white flag trick than of bayonetting a wounded German. A great people, it is said, can afford to be generous, but many Britons are greatly perturbed lest our rulers should, when hostilities are over, give terms to Germany which will permit her to retain her power for mischief among the nations of the world. Learned professors are already advocating leniency for the enemy, and one even contends that no indemnity should be exacted from the foe. This will appear to the majority of people in the light of treason. Germany, it must be remembered, has only one aim—the domination of the nations of the world, and for years she has been preparing to instal herself in a position that will enable her to enforce her will. Everything has been subordinated to this purpose—even industry and education have been made to fit in with the military policy of the Empire, and, in their arrogance, the Germans blindly thought they had only to marshal their forces and march them against European nations and their object would be achieved. The Prussians, with their so-called culture, looked upon the British as a decadent race, who would speedily go under when attacked by the might of the Fatherland, and our Empire was to become the prize of the victors. The Germans believe that they are the most virile race in the world, they have been taught to worship might as represented by military force, and for the Britons they have had, although professing friendship, the utmost contempt. It is not necessary to recapitulate how they have, suffering from swelled head, made miscalculations disastrous to themselves, nor to show how they are fighting for their very existence. The feeling of contempt which they had for the British has been turned to hatred—such a hatred as we cannot understand, and all the while Britons are inclined to make a hero of the captain of the German cruiser Emden simply because he was more gentlemanly in his conduct to the robbers and murderers who pillaged Belgium and ruthlessly slaughtered its inoffensive population. The captain of the Emden was treated with every honour by his captors, and there the matter should have ended. He is an enemy who has caused millions of pounds damage to British shipping, and why should he be lauded for that? Not so much was said about our own brave men who risked their lives in saving sailors from the enemy's ships in the North Sea not so long ago. It is right to admire a valiant foe, but there is a limit to everything.

The militarism is smashed what is to be the attitude of the nation towards the enemy? Is the outrage upon Belgium, torn and bleeding, to go without fitting punishment? Despite the reports of the Commission on the horrible atrocities in Belgium, a number of people still affect to disbelieve them, but, supposing they were greatly exaggerated, there is sufficient evidence on which to hang every German officer who commanded the men responsible for the ghoulish deeds which were perpetrated. Belgium, whatever the settlement, will, we believe, be given a large indemnity, but it will be no compensation for what the German vandals have done. The widow and the fatherless cannot very well be compensated. A new and a greater Belgium may arise, but the loss caused by the war will be enduring. France and Russia were both attacked by the German legions and part of their territory laid to waste. Would they not be foolish if they did not exact the uttermost farthing from the enemy? The modern German Empire—the creation of Bismarck—will be shattered, and our Allies will no doubt demand and get their share. Will Britain receive an indemnity? To this country more than any other is German militarism a menace; its advocates have revealed their aims in all their hideous nakedness; and the Statesmen will insist upon surely our methods of a machine which is the destruction of a machine which is dangerous to the Empire. Indications have been given that this will be done, and for the safety of this country it is to be hoped that no half measures will be tolerated. The German Navy, a costly instrument, directed against Great Britain, must be either blown up or taken possession of, and, in fact, all necessary steps must be taken to reduce the Prussians to a position which will guarantee their helplessness to make mischief. Short of this, all the sacrifices which the country has made will be vain, because if the enemy's power for mischief is not absolutely removed Germany will attempt to regain her ascendancy among the nations of Europe. Justice and self-preservation demand the destruction of the German Empire, which has too long attempted to lord it over the nations of the Continent, and any movement which would seek to divert public attention from the real issues should be unhesitatingly condemned. Some good people found fault with Lord Roberts in the South African War for firing upon friends from which the foe had been shooting soldiers, and his reply was that his first consideration was the safety and well-being of his men. So in this case the first consideration of British Statesmen is the safety and well-being of the Empire.

FOR THE SOLDIERS.—The following comforts made by the Aberford working party have been sent this week to the Front for soldiers in the West Yorkshire Regiment:—7 helmets, 7 pairs mittens, 7 pairs cuffs, 12 pairs socks, 14 body belts, 3 mufflers, and 3 shirts.

ASKWITH PARISH ROOMS.—A very enjoyable evening was spent on Tuesday of a "smoker" arranged for the benefit of the Men's Bible Class. Tobacco and refreshments were provided, and the following contributed to the programme:—Messrs Thompson, Garbutt, Woodward, Worsley, Captain Pratt, Bilkey, Dodd, Stead, and Barnett. Messrs Worsley and Woodward were the accompanists.

COOKRIDGE MAN KILLED.—The body of Joseph Light (34), a farm labourer, of Cookridge, was found cut in two on the North Eastern Railway near to the level crossing from Brookfoot to Parker's Farm, on Monday morning. The inquest was held at Horsforth on Wednesday by Mr P. P. Maitland (Coroner), when Light's father said that since his son left to go to work he was in his usual health. He had to cross the line to get to Parker's Farm, where he was employed, and he supposed that the last he saw his brother about 9.25 on Monday morning about ten yards from the crossing. He spoke to him and passed on. About twenty minutes later he heard he had been killed. His brother had complained on Saturday of a sore hand, and stopped working. Jonathan Wearmouth, of Ilkley, the engine driver of the nine o'clock express from Ilkley to Leeds, said he saw deceased coming from the stile in the direction of the line about 9.31. He gave a long whistle for the second time at that section. Light approached and threw himself on his hands and knees on the line when about six yards in front of the train. The brakes were applied, but the body was dragged about 110 yards and was cut completely in two. Several jurors testified that deceased was not of a very strong mind. The Coroner said the very cause thing might affect deceased. "Suicide whilst of unsound mind" was the verdict, the driver of the engine being exonerated from blame.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.

Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each, prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.

Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each.

"In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

IN MEMORIAM.

BATT—In loving memory of our dear Percy, eldest son of the late Tom Batt, of Beech Grove, Oulton, and Margaret Batt, of Thornfield, Horsforth, who departed this life Nov. 23rd, 1905.

1633 From a loving mother, brother and sisters

SMITH—In loving memory of Madge, dear adopted daughter of John William and Hannah Smith, who died December 1st, 1911.

"Oft we sit and think of thee,
Of how thou died and suffered pain;
Thy longing look and lack of speech,
Eternal rest was best for thee."

1654 From father and mother.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

Reports of Rothwell Education Committee meeting, a Stanton Court case, and a Carlton recruiting meeting will be found on the inside pages.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Messrs J. W. Morkill (Chairman) F. M. Lupton, E. Parkin, J. R. Cross, and W. Evans.

APPOINTMENT.—At a meeting of the Rothwell Joint Cemetery Board held at the Council Offices, Rothwell, on Friday night—Mr J. Hirst (Chairman) presiding—Mr Wellington Dossor was appointed Clerk to the Board.

Patent List compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Application—E. M. Dossor, Doncaster, apparatus for cleaning and separating seeds and grain; and J. W. Lees, Gomersal, improvements in manhole covers, &c. Application completed—J. W. Harrop, Earlsheaton, improvements in motor rugs. Patents sealed—E. Stott, Otley, improvements in golf tees; and J. M. Cobb, East Ardsley, improvements in fire protectable tiles (1691).

BILLIARDS.—Seven close games were witnessed in a junior match in the Oulton and District Billiard League between the Rothwell Workingman's Club and Oulton Institute on Saturday. The match was played at the Rothwell Club, the home team losing by 24. In the six matches the Oulton men scored an aggregate of 552 against Rothwell's 528. Details (Rothwell names first):—H. Hall, 100, v. H. Morton 70. T. Naylor 71 v. H. Firth 100. R. Deakin 91 v. G. Wilkinson 100. L. Thurwell 100 v. F. Rucklidge 91. F. Stringer 100 v. P. Jeffrey 100, and O. Banks 100 v. S. Berry 88.

TEMPERANCE.—Under the auspices of the Rothwell Temperance Society an interesting lantern lecture on "Belgium in Peace and War" was given in the Temperance Hall on Sunday night by Mr J. J. Hatch, of Leeds. Mr Hatch, who has visited Belgium on several occasions, showed scores of very interesting slides, many of them being from photographs taken during the war. Under the heading of "Belgium in Peace," the lecturer illustrated his remarks with slides depicting well-known buildings and every day scenes. Part two, "Belgium in War," was also suitably illustrated. There was a large audience, who frequently testified their appreciation.

ROTHWELL OLD BOYS WIN.—Rothwell Old Boys accomplished one of their best performances of the season by beating Oulton in the second round of Rothwell Charity Cup Competition by 4 goals to 1 on Saturday. Included in the Allotts eleven were Deacon, at full back, and Hall, at outside right—two noted players, but the Old Boys pulled themselves together and brought off a fine victory. Armitage Bedford kept goal magnificently, and Dobson and Kilburn proved a good game at full back. Sidebottom, Wrather, and Gibson Taylor played well at half-back, and the forward—Newton, Ward, Sidebottom, Mrs Taylor, and A. Taylor—combined well together. It was an exciting game throughout, and thoroughly pleased the spectators.

BELGIAN REFUGEES.—The ladies on the local Belgian Relief Committee are an enthusiastic body, and they are taking up their various duties with zeal. Already a house has been taken (that of Mrs Newsome) for the purpose of housing refugees, and it is expected to accommodate some eight or ten, who will be of the working-class. The committee have given a guarantee to provide every necessity for twelve months. During the past few days the interior of the house has been well cleaned, a party of women giving their services for this work gratuitously, and it is expected to have all arrangements complete by the beginning of next week. A house-to-house collection is being made each week throughout the district, and it is pleasing to know that the money is coming in quite satisfactorily.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—The choir of the Wesleyan Church gave an enjoyable rendering of Dr. Rort's cantata "Daniel" in the chapel on Sunday afternoon, for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund. There was a large attendance, and the proceeds amounted to £4 16s. 6d. Mr A. W. Seanor presided, and addressed a few appropriate remarks, in the course of which he pointed out that Daniel was the leader of the choir did the cantata full justice, and the principal parts were taken as follows:—Miss Kate Ellis (Queen), Miss Kate Varley (Azariah's slave), Mr Thos. Kate (Azariah), Mr. Nelson Varley (King), Mr Rowland Firth (Daniel), Miss M. Wright, Miss Millie Armitage, Messrs Jackson, Blackburn, and Ellis. Mr Ellis presided at the piano, and the organ accompaniments were played by Mr L. C. Ward.

BOWERS ALLERTON

WHAT THE WOMEN ARE DOING.—The women of Bowers Allerton, Great Preston, and Hollingthorpe have been very busy during the past few weeks making garments for our wounded soldiers and sailors and those who are destitute in the country. The following garments have been made and sent to the Lady Mayoress of Leeds:—42 shirts, 12 nightingales, 14 children's dresses, 14 pinafores, 18 skirts, 3 pairs pyjamas, 7 night shirts, 20 pairs bedsocks, 3 pairs combinations, 19 pairs socks, and two body belts. The following letter was received from the Lady Mayoress:—"We are very grateful for the kind and considerate thought of clothing that you have sent us, and which will be most useful. We have already sent the Red Cross things for distribution to the V.A.D. depot, and the pyjamas were sent direct to the Leeds Infirmary, as the matron had written asking very urgently for such things for the wounded Belgian and English soldiers. I shall be greatly obliged if you will express to all your helpers how very much we appreciate their work, and how conscious we are of our indebtedness to all those whose individual help has enabled us to distribute many thousands of garments and comforts to the soldiers at the Front, and to the Navy, and to help in the equipment of hospitals and hospital trains and ships. The children's things are needed now the cold weather is coming, and we are very thankful to have this very generous supply." The people of the above districts are still busy sewing and knitting for this most worthy cause.

CROSSGATES

A lecture on "Some experiences in Nigeria" will be given by Mr P. Hall at the Baptist Fellowship on Tuesday night.—See advt.

At the Literary Society meeting on Monday evening the Rev. J. Miller Hamilton will give a lecture on Friedrich Nietzsche and his influence on German thought and politics.—See advt.

Crossgates Match was played between Crossgates Institute and Roundhay at the rooms of the Leeds Chess Club, and it ended in a win for Roundhay by 4½ to 2½. Details (Crossgates names first):—G. W. Beaumont 1, v. H. B. Williams ½. J. E. Walker 0 v. W. E. Letfer 1. C. Holliday 0 v. J. A. Brown 1, G. Willms 0 v. M. Walker 1. H. S. Bower 1 v. J. R. Hollings 0. E. Holliday 0 v. M. Musgrave 1, and E. Webster 1 v. F. Hodge 0. * Adjudicated.

Wesley Guild.—On Wednesday evening, in connection with the Wesley Guild, a musical treat was provided to a good audience in the Wesleyan Schoolroom. The programme was arranged by Mr E. Cook, of Whitkirk, and the proceeds of the effort were for providing a Christmas treat for the children at Saville Green Mission Room. Plants for the decoration of the room were kindly lent by Mr Stringer. Concertina solos were given by Mr G. Robinson, flute solos by Mr Ramsden, trios for violin, 'cello, and piano by Mr Yates' party, and songs by Miss Grace Lowe and Mr J. Clifford Jessop. The pianist was Mr H. Knapton.

A Chance for Crossgates Scouts.—The Scout movement in Crossgates, where at one time there was a strong troop, is at present under a cloud, and an effort is being made to arouse interest in it among the lads in the district. General Baden-Powell has written suggesting the formation of special Scout Corps for home defence, and old Scouts between the ages of 15 and 17 are invited to join. A feature of the new corps training is rifle shooting, a miniature range being provided, and practice will take place under proper supervision. The Scouts' uniform will be worn by the members, with a single red feather in the hat. This feather can only be obtained from headquarters. Before enrolment all members under 18 must produce the written consent of their parents or guardians. Mr Marsden, District Scoutmaster, 10, Chestnut Avenue, Crossgates, hopes that old Scouts will make a quick response, and all names of intending members of the new Scouts' Defence Corps should be sent to him.

Lecture.—Under the auspices of the Crossgates Baptist Fellowship a lecture on "A Six Months' Tour in India" was delivered by Miss McAlpine in the Baptist Church, Whitkirk, on Wednesday night. The Rev. J. Miller-Hamilton, the pastor of the church, presided, and there was a good attendance. Miss McAlpine's address was largely confined to a description of missionary enterprise in India, and she gave her experiences of a six months' tour among mission stations in the presidency. She explained its educational work that was going on among the boys and girls, and its influence on the population, and she also showed how much good being done by means of hospitals in helping the suffering. The lecture was illustrated by a number of beautiful slides, the lantern operator being Mr E. C. White. At the close Mr T. K. Diggle proposed a vote of thanks to Miss McAlpine, Mr Rogers seconded, and it was cordially passed.

An American "Tea" at Whitkirk.—What was styled an "American tea," which signifies that each guest brings at least one article for sale and is willing to purchase one, was held in the Crossgates Baptist Fellowship Schoolroom, Whitkirk (kindly lent for the occasion), on Thursday afternoon week. The invitations were issued by Mrs Young, Mrs Abbott, Mrs Atkinson, Mrs Giddings, and Mrs Stott (Halton), and Mrs Haygarth (Crossgates), and nearly two hundred ladies attended the function. The proceeds were in aid of the Lord Mayor's Belgian Refugees' Fund, and the guests were asked to let each article be of the value of 1s., but many of the gifts were of a much greater value. Lady Dorothy Wood sent a generous supply of very choice flowers, which found a ready market. The room was tastefully decorated with flags, plants, and flowers, and it presented a bright and animated scene, business being very brisk. A dozen young ladies rendered capable service as waitresses at the afternoon tea, whilst Mrs Collon, Mrs Bramley, Miss Green, Miss Bissell, and Miss Lloyd submitted an admirable programme of music, etc., and character delineations from handwriting were given by Mrs Bailey, of Leeds. The function was most enjoyable and successful, and as a result the sum of £20 7s. 6d. has been handed over to the Lord Mayor's Fund. The hostesses have expressed their keen appreciation of the help received from all concerned, including guests, artistes, waitresses, and the committee of the Baptist Church.

FERRYBRIDGE

Mr Edwin L. Poulson, of Dresden House, Ferrybridge, was on Saturday elected vice-chairman of the Pontefract Board of Guardians, in succession to the late Mr John Waller.

GARFORTH

Mr J. Addison Barber, of The Villas, Garforth, at present at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, has given four pounds to the Garforth Belgian Relief Committee.

B.W.T.A.—The members of the Y Branch of the Garforth B.W.T.A. held their fortnightly meeting at the United Methodist Schoolroom on Tuesday evening, and the following took the form of a "social." Various games were played, and light refreshments were served. A very happy time was spent.

Picture House.—Popular programmes have been submitted at the Picture House this week, and a feature of the first three nights was a pictorial record of the war. For to-night and to-morrow night some excellent films will be exhibited, and these include the "Adventures of Kathlen" ("The Unwelcome Throne."). On the first three nights of next week the thrilling five-reel drama—"A Bronze Idol"—featuring Stewart Rome and Chrissie White, will be a powerful attraction, and "A Man's Way," a fine two-reel story of the Wild West, will be popular, while "Caught in the Rain" will cause roars of laughter. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday crowded "houses" will likely be the rule to set what is described as the finest picture of the war—"Saving the Colours." A young scion of a noble house and his wife drift apart, and, after many adventures, they meet again on the battle field in France. For times and prices see advt.

Locked Out.—Norman Atack, miner, of Garforth, was summoned at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday for having used abusive language at Garforth on Tuesday, November 10th. P.C. Brewer stated that about 11.30 p.m. on the date in question he was on duty at the town end of Garforth when he heard defendant making use of the language complained of. When spoken to he said that he had been locked out, and he had nowhere to go for the night. The officer accompanied him home, and, after some considerable time, they knocked up the defendant's wife. Defendant was then told he would be reported, and he replied: "Never mind, you have got me in." A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

Primitive Methodist Church.—On Tuesday the Primitive Methodists of Garforth were favoured with a visit from the Rev. E. Dalton, D.D., of Hull. A service was held in the afternoon, and Mr Dalton preached from the well-known story of Ruth and Naomi, emphasising being laid on the Christian service is based on love as shown not only in words but in deeds. Tea was afterwards served in the schoolroom. In the evening Mr Dalton delivered his lecture entitled "John Bull, his Perils and Safeguards." In speaking of John Bull, the lecturer first drew attention to the vastness, wealth, and resources of the British Empire, giving some startling figures in support of his statements. Speaking of the perils of John Bull, mention was made of the drinking customs of the land, gambling, peril, and sexlessness. The safeguards were to be found in the avoidance of the perils, and he made an eloquent appeal for a consistent Christian life. Mr J. R. Thomas, of Leeds, presided. Both services were well attended. The proceeds were in aid of the special 2-ft. reduction effort.

HALTON

The Hunslet Lane station of the Leeds Athletic Force intend having a march to Temple-newsam Park on Sunday.

Skating the Ice.—The following members of the Halton Institute have joined His Majesty's Forces:—A. Dodsworth, J. Bowers, E. Ball, F. Nicholson, H. Guest, A. Snart, R. Pinder, N. Sumner, W. Newey, H. Cowell, A. Collis, and M. Guest.

Schools' Football.—On Saturday Halton Council School and Headingley St. Michael's, the undefeated teams in the junior and senior divisions of the Leeds Schools Rugby League, met in a "friendly" at Halton. The homesiders kicked off before a large crowd of spectators, from a scrum Hayes was put in possession, and he galloped over in fine style, but instead of touching down wide out, he tried to make the try behind the posts, and was pulled over the dead ball. Halton, however, were not long in effecting a score. The forwards heeling out smartly, gave Wilson an opportunity, and he passed out to Sanderson, who, after a smart run, transferred to Hayes. The latter gave a well-timed pass, which enabled Wade to sprint over at the corner. The homesiders kept up the pressure, and Barber, picking up, dashed over for a good try. Hayes kicking a capital goal. The visitors thereafter took play to the other end, Wade pushing Ring into touch. From the ensuing scrum, Wilson started a round of passing, and eventually Hayes was put in possession, and he showed his speed by scoring under the posts. He also added the major points. Headingley played up pluckily, and the Halton backs fumbling the ball, let in King, who opened the visitors' account with a grand try. At half-time Halton were leading by 2 goals, 2 tries, 13 points to 1 try, 3 points. After the interval Gwan dribbled over for a good try, Hayes goalling. Headingley pressed, and were unfortunate with a clearing kick, which rebounded off a defender, and Wilson were invaluable at this period, for their pluckly tackling. Halton ultimately gained the upper hand, and their forwards had complete mastery both in the scrums and in the loose. Barman dribbled to within a yard of the line, and tried to pick the ball up, thus forfeiting a fine chance of scoring away. The same player quickly put on two more tries, and Hayes added the major points. Halton won by 5 goals, 3 tries (28 points) to 3 points. On Saturday Halton play Jack Lane, at Halton, the kick-off being at 2.45.

KIPPAX

Primitive Methodist Church.—The members of the Christian Endeavour in connection with this church held a meeting in the Schoolroom on Wednesday evening. The address, which was given by the Rev. R. B. Farlow (circuit minister, of Castleford), was listened to with close attention. There was a good number of members present.

Kippax Central Working Men's Club.—A benefit concert, organised on behalf of a member, Mr A. Smith, who has been unable to follow his employment for ninety-six weeks, owing to sickness, was held in the Club on Tuesday evening. A capital programme was given by the following artistes, who very kindly gave their services, before a crowded and appreciative audience:—Song, "Trumpeter," Mr H. Jackson; song, "Death of Nelson," Mr F. Coupland; song, "How Belgium put the Kybosh on the Kaiser," Mr Burt Hurrell; recitation, "Belgium to Flag," Mr Charlie Lloyd; song, "Land of hope and glory," Mr R. H. Bickerdike; duet, "Watchman, what of the night," Messrs Jackson and Coupland; song, "Boys in the Lane," Mr Burt Hurrell; recitation, "Patriotic," Mr Charlie Lloyd; duet, "Two vagabonds," Messrs Jackson and Bickerdike; song, "Mountain lovers," Mr Coupland; song, "Never had a night like this," Mr Burt Hurrell—encore, "Tha mun marry a lass wi' brass"; song, "Star of Bethlehem," Mr R. H. Bickerdike—encore, "Mary Ann" duet, "Battle Bickerdike—encore, "Mary Ann" duet, "Battle Cry of Freedom," Messrs Coupland and Jackson. Mr H. Gummerson accompanied in a very able manner. Councillor John Cripsell presided. A vote of thanks to the artistes was proposed by the secretary (Mr W. Bellerby), and Mr Coupland suitably responded. The whole of the proceeds will be handed over to Mr Smith.

MICKLEFIELD

Micklefield Football Club has the following members serving with the Colours:—H. Mills, S. Johnson, R. Johnson, T. Hurst, H. Gummerson, all of the R.A.M.C., stationed at Aldershot), and E. Wall, who is at the front.

ROUNDHAY

Mr John W. Hervey, of Roundhay, has contributed £10 to the Leeds National Relief Fund.

Wednesday evening Ald. W. Penrose-Green was re-elected Chairman and Mr A. Hobson (Roundhay) deputy chairman of Central Leeds Conservative Association.

SCHOLES

Mr James Hawthorn Simpson, formerly captain in the 2nd West Yorks. Royal Engineers (Volks.), of Scholes, has been granted a commission in the West Riding Divisional Royal Engineers, the appointment to date from October 17th inst. Mr Simpson was gazetted second lieutenant in the 2nd W.Y.R.E. on April 14th, 1897, promoted to lieutenant 18 months later, and appointed captain in 1900, retiring after eleven years' service when the Territorial Force was formed in 1908.

STOURTON

Hard Labour.—On Monday at Leeds Assizes George Fox (62), labourer, was found guilty of having been in possession of house-breaking instruments by night without lawful excuse, at Stourton, and was sent to gaol for nine months with hard labour. There had been three previous convictions on a similar charge.

SHADWELL

Mr A. Heaton, of Shadwell, has sent a fifth contribution of £1 2s. 6d. to Lords National Relief Fund.

Mrs A. Barnett, of Stocks Hill, Shadwell, has received from Pte. Frank Privett T. Barnett, of the 1st King's Royal Rifles, who has been wounded in the leg by a shrapnel bullet and is now a prisoner of war.

SWILLINGTON

Good Work.—The following is a list of articles given to Mrs Lowther, of Little Preston Hall, when she appealed in Swillington and Great Preston for things to send to the hospitals, etc.:—Specially good, 24 pairs of socks to Colonel Wynn's Yeomanry; September 5th, old shirts, 8 pairs socks, and some clothes to the Belgian Refugees in Leeds; sent to the Red Cross Hospital in Rouen, France, 1 blanket, 12 sheets, 6 flannel shirts, 6 cotton (old), 26 pillow slips, 5 towels, and some old bits of blankets; October 12th, sent to Mrs Hay for a hospital in France, 12 sheets, 24 pillow slips, 6 night shirts, 2 day shirts, 8 new shirts, 4 pairs pyjamas, 3 comforters, 11 pairs socks, 1 feather pillow, and 12 half pillows. The people at the Old Engine collected £1 os. 6d., and Mrs Lowther spent it on material, which they made up. Several girls have been meeting at Mrs Lowther's house and Kirkhead (free of cost) the following Tuesday morning, at 7 a.m., for Wareham. It was a tiring journey, as it was a scorching hot day, and there were such crowded compartments. When we pulled up at a station there was a raid on the fire buckets. Our first meal was served out at Derby at 11 a.m.—"Every call is answered" (two biscuits off the Plasmon stock brand). When we arrived at Cheltenham at 3 p.m. we were again served with biscuits and a tin of bully beef to each compartment. We left Cheltenham station at 9 p.m., and then marched about four miles on a dusty road to a camp. Here we expected food, etc., but to our surprise, we had got to the wrong camp. There had been a mistake on the part of the officers. We had been brought a station too far. It was lucky for us there was a farm at hand, and we spent the night in the out-buildings. Next morning we set off to march to Wareham, a distance of six miles. I really thought we should never get there, as everyone was nearly fagged out, but we managed to stay the distance. Here, again, we had a bad reception, as there was nothing prepared for us, and just as we started to fix the tents the rain came down in torrents, and did not cease for two days.

For the first few days grub was very scarce, but after a week or so things were put in good order, and our lot has had little to grumble at since. We had to rise at six every morning, and parade at seven for a route march of about 6 miles, sometimes double that distance. To each tent of twelve men we got three loaves, plenty of jam, and also boiled bacon. Parade was at 9.30 for platoon drill, and this lasted until 12 o'clock. Dinner was a good meal, though we don't get a change. It is a good plateful of Irish stew and potatoes and about 4 ozs. of bread. After dinner we had to parade for drill for another two hours' drill. We had a month of this kind of training, and then we started skirmishing on the moors, and also had musketry practice and physical drill. Three nights a week we have night attacks, but when on these we miss the afternoon parade. It is an ideal country here for this work, as there is miles of heather on the moors. We have done a little trench digging, which is rather hard work for those who have never had the pleasure of using a pick and shovel before. Our duty ends at 12 p.m. on Saturdays, and 2 p.m. on Sundays. Every man has to be in camp at 9.30 p.m., unless on pass, and lights are out at 10.30 p.m.

For three weeks past we have been living in huts, thirty-two being in each. They are not yet properly finished, as we have not the gravel for the interior light in working order. We still "kip" on the floor, but by this we can sleep as comfortable as if in feather beds. Each man has four blankets, which he finds on the nights are at present very cold and frosty. As the days are now shorter we don't rise until 6.30, and finish the day at 3.30 p.m.

It is no uncommon thing to find the water taps frozen up early in the morning, as they are in the open. When one has a wash he generally has to double round the camp to get warm. There are about 60 of these huts, and so look at them at a distance they look quite a town. There is a fine body of men here, not men who have joined as a last resource, but who have left good billets to answer the call. There are here in the same regiment as myself from Barkston Ash, and a good number in the West Yorks, close at hand. Wareham is a very old town, but a busy one at present. We are well catered for as regards amusements. The Y.M.C.A. have a tent in the grounds, and are doing good work among the troops, and provide cheap refreshments, etc. Footballs are plentiful, each company having two or three teams. At present the game is quiet, as we have all been vaccinated.

Mr Arthur Maxwell Stuart, of Scarthingwell, has been on the grand jury at Leeds Assizes.

Boiling Spa has the following footballers serving with the Colours:—J. Teasdale, E. Thurlwell, G. Forster, A. Pawson, R. Helmsley, J. Marr, J. Carlisle, T. Smith, and T. Hare.

On Tuesday nine wounded soldiers arrived at Monk Fryston from Bickerell's Park Hospital, Leeds. They are located at the Concert Hall, which, as previously announced, has been turned into a hospital.

At the York Assizes John Thompson, accountant, indicted for the wilful murder of his wife and two children at Hull, was found guilty, but insane, and his detention ordered to be obtained during the King's pleasure.

Infirmary Committee.—A meeting of the Monk Fryston and District Infirmary and Nursing Committee was held last week on Monday evening. The Rev. B. Hemsworth presided. It was decided to again have a house-to-house collection in aid of the funds, and the date will be fixed. It was also resolved that, owing to the present state of affairs, not to press anyone to give, but any small contribution will be thankfully received.

Monk Fryston Institute.—On Thursday evening Monk Fryston Institute had a billiard match with Brotherton Institute at Monk Fryston. Monk Fryston were the victors, scoring 1,427 points to 386. The games were 75 up, and the scores were as follows (Monk Fryston names first):—H. Lupton 65 v. E. Steel 75, B. Jameson 75 v. W. Wales 72, H. Furnise 75 v. R. Wales 35, J. Stockdale 75 v. E. Thorpe 65, W. Berry 75 v. B. Terry 62, and C. Hester 62 v. T. Hunter 75.

A Local Soldier's Experiences

LIFE AT WAREHAM CAMP.

Mr Herbert Parkin, who is with the 7th Battalion Yorkshire Regiment at Wareham, Dorset, writes to us on Nov. 24th as follows:—

Being a native of the district, and a regular reader of your popular paper, would you, please, allow me through the medium of your paper to give a brief account of my experiences since joining the Colours. For the first fortnight I can't say that I had the best of it, but considering the number of recruits to be dealt with it was as well as might be anticipated. On arriving at Richmond (Tuesday, September 2nd), we were told there was no place for us, as there were already 1,800 men in barracks, with sleeping accommodation for only 400 men. They would not allow us back in town, so I managed to get a nap in the library. For meals we were all lined up in the square, and often had to wait nearly two hours before we got anything. For breakfast we received one slice of jam and bread with one pint mug of tea for two, and for dinner Irish stew and potatoes, but one was fortunate to get anything like a decent meal. At first I found it a difficult job to sit on the green with a plate on my knees (a somewhat loose one at that), but after a little practice I soon picked it up. Tea was much the same as breakfast, sometimes having biscuits (which we found difficult to break) instead of bread.

I was in barracks four days, and then 200 of us were billeted in an old laundry. The grub then was worse than in barracks, but there was one good thing—we got a bath. We left Richmond (four of us) the following Tuesday morning, at 7 a.m., for Wareham. It was a tiring journey, as it was a scorching hot day, and there were such crowded compartments. When we pulled up at a station there was a raid on the fire buckets. Our first meal was served out at Derby at 11 a.m.—"Every call is answered" (two biscuits off the Plasmon stock brand). When we arrived at Cheltenham at 3 p.m. we were again served with biscuits and a tin of bully beef to each compartment. We left Cheltenham station at 9 p.m., and then marched about four miles on a dusty road to a camp. Here we expected food, etc., but to our surprise, we had got to the wrong camp. There had been a mistake on the part of the officers. We had been brought a station too far. It was lucky for us there was a farm at hand, and we spent the night in the out-buildings. Next morning we set off to march to Wareham, a distance of six miles. I really thought we should never get there, as everyone was nearly fagged out, but we managed to stay the distance. Here, again, we had a bad reception, as there was nothing prepared for us, and just as we started to fix the tents the rain came down in torrents, and did not cease for two days.

For the first few days grub was very scarce, but after a week or so things were put in good order, and our lot has had little to grumble at since. We had to rise at six every morning, and parade at seven for a route march of about 6 miles, sometimes double that distance. To each tent of twelve men we got three loaves, plenty of jam, and also boiled brawn. Parade was at 9.30 for platoon drill, and this lasted until 12 o'clock. Dinner is a good meal, though we don't get a change. It is a good plateful of Irish stew and potatoes and about 4 ozs. of bread. After dinner we had to parade for drill for another two hours' drill. We had a month of this kind of training, and then we started skirmishing on the moors, and also had musketry practice and physical drill. Three nights a week we have night attacks, but when on these we miss the afternoon parade. It is an ideal country here for this work, as there is miles of heather on the moors. We have done a little trench digging, which is rather hard work for those who have never had the pleasure of using a pick and shovel before. Our duty ends at 12 p.m. on Saturdays, and 2 p.m. on Sundays. Every man has to be in camp at 9.30 p.m., unless on pass, and lights are out at 10.30 p.m.

For three weeks past we have been living in huts, thirty-two being in each. They are not yet properly finished, as we have not the gravel for the interior light in working order. We still "kip" on the floor, but by this we can sleep as comfortable as if in feather beds. Each man has four blankets, which he finds on the nights are at present very cold and frosty. As the days are now shorter we don't rise until 6.30, and finish the day at 3.30 p.m.

It is no uncommon thing to find the water taps frozen up early in the morning, as they are in the open. When one has a wash he generally has to double round the camp to get warm. There are about 60 of these huts, and so look at them at a distance they look quite a town. There is a fine body of men here, not men who have joined as a last resource, but who have left good billets to answer the call. There are here in the same regiment as myself from Barkston Ash, and a good number in the West Yorks, close at hand. Wareham is a very old town, but a busy one at present. We are well catered for as regards amusements. The Y.M.C.A. have a tent in the grounds, and are doing good work among the troops, and provide cheap refreshments, etc. Footballs are plentiful, each company having two or three teams. At present the game is quiet, as we have all been vaccinated.

AMUSEMENTS.

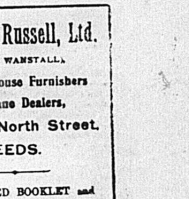
LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week a novel feature is Max Erard's first-annual "Cathedral" organ, announced as the most magnificent thing of the kind ever built for touring purposes. Its tone is certainly very fine, and Mr Erard makes the most of its multitudinous stops. Just at this time, too, it comes in useful for patriotic purposes, and when it pealed forth the opening notes of "Tipperary" on Monday night the audience were moved to vigorous applause. With Mr Max Erard is Miss Zona Vevey, who sings a few catchy and attractive songs. George D'Albert is here, too—always a pleasurable "turn," now devoting himself principally to war music. Chas. Norton is back again with his mimetic representation of well-known "stars," which he does very well. Cornalla and Eddie are as lively as ever, and the Castillian Quintette give a capital pot-pourri of songs and dances.

Military matters even, like most things, have their humorous side, and probably it is hardly necessary to say that in the hands of such past masters of English humour as Walter Alexander and Johnny Danvers a "Military Mixture" (the promising title of the new sketch) is bound to be a success. Nor is there any reason why that success should not be quite unalloyed, for the sketch is a capital one, full of humour, and the contribution of Jessie Broughton and Dennis Creedon fully merits its widespread popularity.—A bright collection of humorous impersonations, with an appropriate song for each, is contributed by those popular trans-Atlantic hustlers, Terry and Lambert, whilst the famous wax figurist, Fred Forest Tell is a most effective singer of coon melodies. Minnie Muir has a couple of rousing chorus songs, and Millie Ruby de Fonteroy gives a clever, and daring shoeing exhibition. Others on the bill are Jessie Lynwood, comedienne; and Abel and Welsh, a pair of clever professors.

As a special attraction, the management of the Hippodrome, Leeds, have arranged for Mr Horace Sheridan to present in the week commencing November 30th his spectacular fantasia "Trafalgar," in which Mr Sheridan will portray Lord Nelson. Nothing that may have in the past existed between our genial Allies and ourselves has long since been swept away. In honouring Nelson, we are honouring the traditions of the British Navy, whose silent work in guarding our shores and ensuring the safe transport of our commerce, is earning the same gratitude so justly due to the men who "Kept the Home Fires Burning" and to those who "Kept the Flag" on the main mast of the "Victory." The spectacle at the Hippodrome includes an extremely realistic scene of the "Battle of Trafalgar," a spectacular drill and ballet creation which introduces four charming young ladies, beautifully dressed, and two gentlemen, who, between them, compass about three octaves of simple musical "impressionism" that Leeds audiences like. One of the ladies sings sweetly. Of the others, one is an expert 'cellist, another is accomplished in the use of the flute, while the third is a particularly fine pianist. One of the gentlemen is an engaging baritone singer, and the sixth member of the party with a "musical" organ completes the ensemble of a notable combination of musical art and showmanship. The act is submitted in a superbly artistic setting and is very acceptable. The Australian Gentlemen, Captain Jack Kelly, is announced to give his daring stock whip display, and Dare and Lynton, "the tenor and the bugler," Leon Rogers, a unique exponent of mirth and melody, and the latest war news and incidents in picture, are also included in the programme.

GERMAN PASTOR AND LOFTHOUSE INTERNMENT CAMP.



The Rev. Martin, pastor of the German Protestant Church in Manchester, who has just been released from the internment camp at Lofthouse, near Rothwell, had nothing but good to say about the treatment of the detainees.

"I feel no resentment whatever," he went on; "on the contrary, I must say the authorities treated me very courteously. They were all extremely kind to me. The general commandant, the the captain, the doctor, and the censor were all I could wish in the circumstances. We were divided into companies for messes, and we appointed our own captains.

"There were about two hundred of us altogether, representing all sections of society. Among them were Poles, Ruthenians, and Hungarians, as well as Germans and Austrians. We had concerts, occasionally, and on Sundays we had religious services. Mass was celebrated by a Catholic priest, and I conducted service for the Protestants. We had religious gatherings also in the course of each week. There was a Rabbi for the Jews."

FAMOUS-HOUSE-FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS
£1/1/ £3/3/ £5/5/ £10/10/
to £100 each.
SEE WINDOWS
Diamonds
BEST SELECTION IN THE COUNTY.
Dysons
24-25-26 BRIGGATE. LEEDS.
Watches
10/6 TO 50 GUINEAS.
THE ROUGHWEAR 15/-
THE UNIVERSITY 30/-
OLD WATCHES & JEWELLERY TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.
RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. Wanstall.)
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft, LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

CULTIVATORS, PLOUGHS, HARROWS, CHAFF & TURNIP CUTTERS, &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

Purveyors of Marmalade
To H.M. King George V.
Frank COOPER'S "OXFORD" MARMALADE.
The "Oxford" has a distinctive flavour, has the real home-made character, and goes farther — than any other. —
OBTAINABLE AT
Walter Jubb's, Austhorpe Rd., Crossgates
:: ALSO ::
S. BORDER & Co., YORK.

H. E. WALKER,
STURTON GRANGE, GARFORTH,
Agricultural Agent
— FOR —
THE DRIFFIELD PURE LINSEED, COTTON and UNION CAKE COMPANY, LIMITED.
Molassine Meal.
Dairy and Calf Meal.
Poultry and Dog Foods.
Manures, Peat Moss, Oils, etc.
Best Quality & Prompt Delivery.

A Wesleyan Disagreement.

A Settlement.—On Monday at Selby, Mr Neville, farmer, Wistow Lordship, was summoned for assaulting James Pocklington, jun., on October 27th. Mr C. B. Bailey conducted the case for the complainant, and Mr C. H. Dodgson defended. It was alleged that the boy, aged 10, the son of Jas. Pocklington, was struck by the defendant, who complained that his daughter Bessie had been hit with a turnip by the boy. The case was dismissed under the First Offenders' Act.—Mr Bailey: I must appeal against that decision.

An Orderly.—G. Arumugand, of Hailey Lodge, Wetherby, writes:—"I am prepared to give limelight lectures, illustrated mostly with Indian slides, for any charitable object, on 'India and War,' to show, on historical basis, that Germany's dream is to acquire "world power." She firmly believes that the one great obstacle in her way is England and her Empire. She cannot establish her universal empire unless England is crushed and India is obtained as her possession. With this one aim and sole object she has been for a considerable time preparing and spending her energy and her national wealth to wage war against England, her enemy of enemies. Does present great European war is the outcome of it."

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

INCREASED RATES—A PROTEST.

PARLIAMENT TO BLAME.

The fortnightly meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held on Monday in Tadcaster.—Mr. C. C. Brookbank, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. The other members present were: Mr. Walter Cresland, J.P. (vice-Chairman), the Rev. C. D. Ash (Bramhope), Miss Bethell (Towton Manor), Messrs T. H. Priday (Farthinghoe), R. Seaman (Gallows Close), R. Parker, J.P., A. Townend (Ridgen), F. Myers (Sicklemgate), R. Wright (Barkston), W. S. Hutchinson (Healaugh), C. Ellis (Scholemoor), J. W. Dobson (Newthorpe), E. Parker (Lotherton), A. Lincoln (South Milford), W. Y. K. Young (Aberford), T. Hey (Sherburn), J. H. Schofield (Ledsham), F. Priday, H. Robinson, and G. Pearson (Riccarton Bywater), M. H. Copley (Ryther), J. Wordsworth and S. H. Lowe (Great Preston), Norman (Gateford), G. Webster (Shaddlethorpe-Bawtry), J. Stibbons and H. P. Clinch (Tadcaster), and T. F. Bramley (Tadcarger), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Bruce).

The treasurer was appointed to hand a balance of over £4,000 in hand.

THE HOUSE.

The master's report showed that during the fortnight there had been three admissions to the workhouse and two discharges. Two vagrants were relieved up in the house and 18 in the children's home—one against out of the corresponding date of last year.

The master reported during the last week were 31 and 14 vagrants in and 18.

The Relief Committee recommended that additional relief to Clifton-on-Ainsty at the rate of 1s. 6d. each adult and 6d. each child for allowed time in receipt of out-relief, and that those who are unemployed in the Union. This was adopted.

Correspondence was submitted in reference to the establishment of labour stations in the Union in connection with the tuberculosis scheme for vagrants, and the Clerk was to get more information.

A letter was received from a Board of Guardians asking the Union to support the establishment of homes for old age pensioners, and it was agreed to let the letter lie on the table.

VAGRANT RETURNS.

The vagrancy returns for the period ending 30th ult. were: Mr Bagshaw.

The Chairman said that Tadcaster was the only rural Union in the West Riding that had an increase. The increase during the last years was 108. It was not an increase that they had any extraordinary cause to object to, but the only reason in the rural areas.

The Clerk said that the expenses referred to were: 1908, 10 days, £107; 1909, 10 days, £108; 10 days, £108; 10 days, £104; 1913, 10 days, £104; 1914, 10 days, £104.

DISTRICT COUNCIL.

The District Council was requested to have a balance in hand of £6,350. It was stated that a sum of £30 had been spent on district roads during the fortnight.

The Highways Committee minutes showed that Mr Cox had given instructions for the repair of a bend of a culvert at Ledsham and the erection of a fence.—Permission was given for the opening up of roads at Hambleton for laying down of sewerage.—A letter was received from the County Council stating that application for compulsory powers with reference to the land required for the road improvement at Sherburn Cross must be made through them. It was decided that the application be made.

The minutes were approved.

SANITARY COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee it was stated that a bad house was reported at Sherburn, which, on visiting, was found to be in a very bad condition, and a number of notices of the nuisances were ordered to be given. Two houses at Kippax were reported to be unfit for habitation, and notices to quit were ordered to be given.

It was reported in connection with Lock Lane sewerage scheme that the work of connecting drains to the sewer had been commenced, and a good many houses had been connected. Plans of a surgery for Dr. Radcliffe in High Street, South Milford, were passed.—A letter was received from Kippax Council meeting a request to the village, and it was decided that no further arrangements could be made direct to the Council and not to officials.—The Garforth Water Committee accepted tenders for a galvanised pipe at 3/4pnd. and the laying of the same at 1s. 6d. with a sewer extension at Aberford the contractor were allowed that he had let on the work, and he asked for an allowance, but it was decided to make no allowance. An owner of property at Church Fenton, where certain improvements were ordered to be carried out, wrote asking that the matter should be deferred until next year, but it was decided that the notice should be carried out.

The minutes were approved.

Mr Hutchinson was appointed a member of Garforth Water Committee.

A CHURCH AND ITS NOTES.

Mr Frank Myers, of Hillcroagh, complained about the increase in rates, and said the ratepayers were dissatisfied about the allowance for higher education. It was unreasonable, and they must not send to it.

The Chairman stated that they had no jurisdiction in the matter, and he explained that a great deal of the expenditure was due to the feeding of school children. With regard to the police, the increase was owing to the giving of a day's rest to the men, more police being required to take their place. It was rather hard to blame the County Council, because they had to provide that local rate, and the only thing they could do was to keep this in mind, and when bills were brought before Parliament, to see that financial matters were made for other purposes than those that were proving popular measures in the House.

Mr Seaman, for the consideration of suffering—action of those who found out the deficiency—a sum was made, and the rest fell on the ratepayers.

Mr Wright said that if something was not done to avoid other applications for money, they were being forced into control until there was no living. Agriculture was thought to be a good thing, and he wished some of them would try it and then they would get a little sympathy. A man with a wife and nine had a little bit up, a week and nine had 4 children, and he had had a bill for 9s. 4d. for corn consumed by him. It was time they made a stand. He asked if they could not pass a resolution to prevent?

The Chairman: Against whom?

Mr Myers: The people at the top.

The Chairman said that he could bring forward a motion.

Mr Myers said that he was now getting half an income from his rates on the same property. He was 4d., Wages were rising, and they were getting no more for their produce. He said he would make a resolution of protest.

Mr Priday said the increase was not put on by the County Council.

Mr Myers said he quite understood where it was put on, but he wanted to know where it was to be taken off. (Laughter).

A HUDDLESTON FARMER CHARGED AT SELBY.

SEQUEL TO MOTOR CYCLE ACCIDENT.

Matthew C. Wellburn, farmer, of Huddlestone, was summoned at Selby on Monday for driving a motor cycle at a speed dangerous to the public on the Thorpe Road, Selby, on November 16th.

Mr C. H. March, solicitor, Selby, defended.

Evidence was called to the effect that Mr David Brodrick, of Cawood, was returning with his wife from the road in the evening in company with Mrs Eva Brodrick, a young widow who keeps a cabinet's shop at Selby. They were walking on the right side of the road near the kerb when the motor-cycle came at a furious rate upon them, struck Mrs Brodrick on the right side, knocking her and tearing her dress to pieces. She was injured. The motor cyclist was thrown with the machine on to the roadway, his face being cut. Both Mrs Brodrick and the defendant had to be removed to the Selby Cottage Hospital. Defendant had a bright light on his machine, but it was alleged that he did not sound his horn.

Mr March submitted that the motor-cycle made a great noise, but that Mr Murdock, who was driving a motor car behind, did not take notice of any speculation. The couple were evidently engrossed with each other's company.

Defendant maintained that he was at a moderate speed and he denied being in drink, as he had only had two glasses of beer all day.

The Chairman announced that as the justices were equally divided the case was dismissed.

TADCASTER PETTY SESSIONS.

At Tadcaster Police Session on Monday the magisterial business went on. Mr. E. C. Brookbank (Chairman) and Mr C. B. Land.

A great rate of an oil and oil spit was passed for Tenders.

An ale case, who stated his age was 24, was summoned by the Holbeagh overseers for non-payment of rates. He said he was very ill—ill and was not in regular employment, earning only 18s. last week. Defendant was ordered to pay the money in 7 days.

John William Gill, driver, a well-known Tadcaster character, was charged with using indecent language on Holbeck, Tadcaster, on the 27th inst. He did not appear. P.C. Bramley and John Goodhew gave evidence, and Supt. Slack said the case was a nuisance. He was ordered to pay 10s. 6d. and costs.

Patrick Judge, labourer, who is stated to be working at Towton, did not appear in answer to a charge of drunkenness. Supt. Slack said the case was an extraordinary one. Judge was a well-behaved man, possessing no vagrant on the Chart. P.C. Kitwood said that on Saturday he was in St. Joseph's Street, Tadcaster, and there he saw defendant. He was drunk. P.C. Bramley, of Towton, where he could get lodgings, and he took him to a lodging-house, but he was refused admittance. He then took the man to the police-station for his own safety. He was not drunk.

A young man named Joseph Simpson Maltby, of Tadcaster, appeared in answer to a charge of having been drunk at Wharfe Banks on the 22nd inst. Police-constable Kitwood said that on the date named he received a complaint about a man being drunk at Wharfe Banks, and on going there he found defendant lying on his back helplessly drunk. He was unable to walk, and he had to remove him to his home. Supt. Slack said this was a sad case. Defendant was a good workman and helped to keep his widowed mother. He ought to have known better. He would give defendant one chance, and he wished he could get to know who did it. The magistrates fined defendant 10s., but they remitted the cost.

BARKSTON ASH FARM WORKERS AND THE WAR.

LABOUR DIFFICULT TO GET AT WETHERBY

A special meeting to Wetherby on Thursday night, and been resolved that the proceedings of the first and second Angle-Saxon Northumbrian were so vastly taking place. Shortly after came, when the yearly contracts are usually most numerously entered on between master and man, there was only a few attendances and groups to the contractual market place, and apparently the farmers themselves were in the majority. The situation scarcely of labour—doubtless the quarrels with the employers—have to be the cause of the scarcity—appears to be the direct result of the war.

Evidence was easily forthcoming which pointed to the eligible young men working being joined the colours in large numbers, particularly when their total strength spread over a wide district is considered. And not only had they been enlisted from the ranks of agricultural labourers, but from their employers also. Their engagements averted twelve ago by patriotic agriculturists who did not allow questions of personal advantage to outweigh national needs, but these lords who were waiting until their employees were ready to join the colours before they were decided to adopt a similar patriotic. Especially was this to be noticed in the case of waggoners, and as a consequence they were numerically difficult to get.

Higher wages all round were asked for and received, and after adding the available information it may be estimated that there was an average increase of 2s. per week on that of a year ago.

The young horse-lads were, indeed, a much-sought and highly prized individual. He was approached from three aspects. Farmers wanted him because owing to the dry weather after the harvest there was a great deal of work to be done this essential preparing or considerably extended as compared with the conditions existing last year. Then there were the usual half-a-dozen farmers wanting lads to be brought on by "Binby lads," and their efforts were aided by vigorous speeches at a recruiting meeting. And, further, there were Wetherby lads for horse breeders who have been required for long if-regard purposes, skilled assistance in stud, as men, dressed in clothing with the colours, some of which are naturally hardened to fatigue, and accustomed to the neighbourhood. All these advocates were actively represented.

LADIES
BLANCHARD'S PILLS

AN ALLERTON BYWATER BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.

KIPPAX MAN HAS TO PAY DAMAGES.

In the Civil Court, at the Leeds Assizes, on Monday, before Mr Justice Horridge, an action was heard in default of payment, in which the plaintiff was Gertrude Ellis, for years of age, living at Allerton Bywater, and the defendant John Walter Ellis, of Kippax, who is employed at the Allerton Bywater colliery. The defendant was not represented by counsel.

Mr Paley Scott, who appeared for the plaintiff, said the promise to marry was made on May 14th last, and the refusal on September 19th. The families dated that he ever agreed to marry the plaintiff or that she agreed to marry him. The parties met at Kippax, in August, 1914, and they began walking out.

In October, 1912, she introduced the defendant at her home, and from that time onward he was a constant visitor. In the end of 1913 the young man spoke of being uncomfortable at home, and talked about other vacancy of marriage.

On April 12th, this year, her birthday, he said he would like to spend the day with her, and it was agreed they should marry when the young woman was 21.

There was no correspondence between them, counsel remarked, as the pair were hardly ever parted. Seduction took place under pretence of marriage. They visited a jeweller's shop at Castleford, and, at his request, the young woman selected a ring, which he placed on her finger. She had a ring on the first finger of her left hand, and, at his request, she took it off, as he said that the ring was not that finger when a young woman wanted a young man. Thenceforward everybody regarded them as an engaged couple.

Trouble, however, happening apparently with the defendant's parents, and from that time she was not a welcome visitor to their house. In August the defendant was on his holidays at Blackpool.

"I wish you were here. I feel lonely by myself. Let me have a letter back by return, and send your loving dark. Walt.

There followed a number of letters with the same go in London. There was also a postcard script to which he apologised for writing in pencil, and he made up for this by adding all sorts of fine symbols. Early in September he returned from Blackpool, and a change came over their relationship. Genuinely for the first time she found him cold. He asked her the gift's number if he thought he had acted rightly. He said "No." His words were a little over 30s. a week.

The plaintiff, in her evidence, said they both chose the ring outside the jeweller's shop, and he was her as to buy it, giving her 30s. Defendant's mother told him he had no business to buy the ring. She said that there was no engagement. His people made a commotion about it, and she had not been to his house since.

"When he spoke I cut," she said. "I loved to hear of him."

Asked what position he gave her, the plaintiff said they included a hearth, a blower, two pairs of glasses, and a clock.

Cross-examined by Mr Johnson, she said: "I hope that has been a good currency. (Laughter).

In cross-examination by the defendant, she admitted that he would rather she bought a bracelet instead of a ring. She also denied that he said, "Think on, it is not an engagement ring."

Plaintiff's mother, and Mrs Gisby's Council, of Kippax, spoke of the affectionate relationship existing between the couple.

Defendant's mother, the box and gave his evidence. He said that when he told plaintiff it was not an engagement ring she "took on," and would not speak to him. She picked up a ring and asked if it was the ring. He replied that it was that, but gave her 30s. When she came out with the ring she said it had cost another half-crown. She put the ring on her own finger.

Cross-examined by Mr Paley Scott, he said that there was trouble with his people over the engagement. He admitted that he wrote 40 letters after that, and he supposed they were to reconcile matters.

The jury, without leaving the box, awarded plaintiff £20 damages.

HUNTING IN THE DISTRICT.

RUN AT CHURCH BRYAN.

On Tuesday the York and Ainsty met at Skip Bridge, and among the local people out were the Hon. Miss M. Howden (Wighill Park), Miss Gunter (Wetherby), Mrs Edward Lane Fox, Mr and Miss Hutton (Bilbrough), Mrs Hall (Walton Hall), Mr Fairburn (Ledsham Grange), Miss Leach, Mr Foster, Miss M. Bethell, etc. After a short delay they went to Skip Bridge Wire for the first draw. Hounds had not gone far when they came to Red House Arcades trotted, and found at once. Taking a short ring to cover they got into the Bilbrough side of the wood. A blue fellow being about the country, and it was a very good run such a morning, all hounds made the best of it, and hunted the pace for some time. Crossing the Tadcaster road near Spring Court. The going remained most worth hounds had to work upon. Going within one field of the cover reynard went to the left, skirting the deer park, and leaving Bilbrough Farm, down to the road. Fortunately the bridge came to the line at last, the fox had crossed the bridge, running on nearly for a top brake, and the hard riders had a run of twenty minutes. Hounds were stopped with the exception of one. Reaching Poppleton Wood-house Grange, hounds came to a check, caused by a flock of sheep.

Hounds were hard to recover the line, but never failed altogether in giving up the ten, after a useful thirty minutes, they went and hunted their way to Red House. They were a second time, and ran to the left of the wood, Marston corner. Going down to the River Ouse hounds could only work the line just to keep the horses on the best up to the Red House. Reaching the Tadcaster Ferry, down to the river, the fox had crossed the bridge, running on nearly for a top brake, and the hard riders had a run of twenty minutes. Hounds were stopped with the exception of one. Reaching Poppleton Wood-house Grange, hounds came to a check, caused by a flock of sheep.

Hounds were hard to recover the line, but never failed altogether in giving up the ten, after a useful thirty minutes, they went and hunted their way to Red House. They were a second time, and ran to the left of the wood, Marston corner. Going down to the River Ouse hounds could only work the line just to keep the horses on the best up to the Red House. Reaching

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal BY ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

FOREST TREES.

Young trees rarely receive proper attention after they are planted in their permanent quarters. As they grow taller the lower branches should be carefully removed with a sharp pruning knife. Careless pruning may result in the bark getting torn or otherwise damaged. Crossing branches should be removed, and where the growth appears to be crowded some thinning may be necessary. So far as it is possible an evenly balanced top should be aimed at, and crowding should be carefully avoided. There is no better time than the present for pruning this class of tree. Where young trees have to be moved, or new plantations made, the work may be proceeded with any time during the next three months. It is a decided advantage to get the work done before the ground gets cold and saturated, and it should not be put off if time can be spared this month. Much damage is done by careless lifting. We have seen careless workmen tugging and pulling at a young tree until almost every root must have either strained or broken. It would be absurd to expect a tree to prosper after being subjected to such rough and unnatural treatment. The proper way to lift a tree or shrub is to commence by throwing out a trench all round it, at a distance where the roots just about reach. This is usually immediately under the extremity of the growth. Within the outer ring of roots is bared, gradually work under with the spade until the tree can be lifted out of the hole without straining a root. Even under careful treatment it is often necessary to cut through the top root, which grows straight down and is usually thick, strong, and fibreless. Cutting through the top root is often a difficult task, especially if the tree is well furnished with fibrous roots. If the root has to be chopped through the wound should be neatly trimmed with the pruning knife afterwards. The planting of the trees is not a difficult task. An important point is to plant them at the same depth as before. The hole should be wide enough to accommodate all the roots in a natural position, and the soil should be firmly trodden down a few spadefuls at a time. Young trees that are planted in an exposed position should always have the support of a firm stake. To avoid damaging the roots of the tree the stake should be placed in position before filling in the soil.

DECIDUOUS SHRUBS.

Deciduous shrubs have now cast their leaves and any necessary pruning may be carried out. In the case of shrubs there need be no hesitation in pruning them hard back. They will break into new growth even if cut back to the base.

BULBS.

There should be no delay in completing the planting of tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses, etc. The bulbs are now commencing to grow, and any growth that is made before planting is at the expense of the bulb.

Single irises are cheap, and deserve more general cultivation then they receive. They can be planted in separate colours if required for garden decoration, but are more useful if grown for cutting. In this case it is advisable to grow them in the kitchen garden, where they can be covered with frame lights just before they begin to bloom. They are useful to protect them from soot and rain. Plant them fairly close together in rows about nine inches apart. The English irises are much larger than the Dutch and require rather more room. A deep, light, rich soil will grow them to perfection, and they require very little attention after planting. The stems are firm and strong, and no staking is required.

Mice are particularly fond of crocus bulbs and a sharp look-out should be kept after the bulbs are planted. Their presence is denoted by the holes they make to reach the bulbs. They may be either trapped or poisoned.

ROSES.

Intending rose planters should make no delay in completing the work, or they may be compelled to postpone it until spring. The sharp frost and heavy fall of snow experienced on the night of this month may easily be the forerunner of a severe winter. It is very unusual to experience so severe a spell at such an early date. Rose trees are well established this year and will probably move well. If new trees come to hand while the ground is frozen no attempt should be made to plant them. It is impossible to perform the task thoroughly under such conditions. On the other hand they should be unpacked immediately they come to hand, and the roots should be plunged in soil in a cool shed or outhouse.

Ramblers may be pruned now whilst they are devoid of foliage. Pruning in their case consists of removing the old and weak wood. New growth may have the delicate tips removed, and should then be tied or otherwise fastened to secure supports.

LILY OF THE VALLEY CULTURE.

This well-known hardy and fragrant flower succeeds almost anywhere, but revels in a moist and shaded position. When planted out of doors the crowns increase, the larger of them flowering year after year without any attention, save an autumn top-dressing of manure.

Strong crowns are extensively forced for early flowers. They are placed an inch apart each way in boxes or pans, a little fibre or loose soil being shaken amongst the roots, and the tops being covered with moss. Water thoroughly, and place the pans or boxes in a cold frame or shed, where they can have a little frost without risk of severe freezing. A month later change them in a bottom-heat of from 50 to 60 degrees, increasing to 90 degrees before they come into flower. Some growers keep them in darkness; but the best flowers seem to be obtained when they have plenty of light and air are afforded. Tepid water must be given when requisite to keep the roots, moss and soil moist. Strong crowns may be forced in little later in the season. Harden off gradually after flowering; and put out in the open ground.

PLANTS IN POTS.

SPIREAS.

There are very few more useful decorative plants than the spireas. Their graceful feathery spikes of flower, and luxuriant deep green foliage, make them very attractive. There are several new varieties of great merit, the best of which is Philadelphia. The flowers are lavender pink, and are produced in great profusion and in huge plumes. Rose Perle, a soft rose-coloured variety, Queen Alexandra, a bright pink, and W. E. Gladstone, a beautiful pure white, are all well worth growing. The roots may be potted now for spring flowering. It is a mistake to pot them into large pots. They should be put into the smallest pots that will contain the roots with a little soil around them.

WINTER AND EARLY SPRING.

FLOWERING PLANTS.

There are numerous varieties of plants now arriving in this country from Holland which may be potted up for winter and spring flowering. Lilies are very popular for conservatory decoration. Charles X and Mario Legraye are the best varieties for this purpose. Deutzia Gracilis, Dielytra Spectabilis, Hydrangea Paniculata, and various of the Indica and Mollis sections, are all splendid forcing subjects, and none of them offer any difficulties in forcing.

GENERAL REMINDERS.

The management of the greenhouse calls for great care during the next few weeks.

Overwatering is worse than allowing the plants to get almost dry.

Increase the fire heat during foggy weather. This shall allow for the ventilators being opened and thus a circulation of air can be maintained.

Overhead spraying and syringing must be suspended during dull weather. This does not apply to a hothouse where a temperature of 65 to 70 is maintained.

Bulbs intended for Christmas flowering should now be growing nicely in the greenhouse. Roman hyacinths come into bloom quickly when placed in heat.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Prices showed little change. Wheat sold 450 to 456, secondary 418 to 426, malting barley 328. to 336., secondary 318. oats 261 to 298, and rye 330 to 336 per qr.

PROVISTONS.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 5 for 1s.; butter 1s. 3d. to 1s 4d per lb.; chickens 3s 6d to 5s per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—Leaving day on the farms resulted in little trade being done in the potato market. Seed Up-to-Dates 45s. to 52s 6d.; seed King Edwards 55s to 62s 6d, warp King Edwards 65s to 70s per ton; retail 2s. 6d to 3s per hamper.

CATTLE.

SELBY, Monday.—At this auction mart Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 83 beasts, 45 sheep, and 51 pigs. There was a good attendance of buyers. The stock being of a fine class. Trade was brisk, best beef making up to 8d. per lb.; leeahing cows and heifers were in demand, meeting a brisk trade at 10s all round advance. A good trade for milkers, best small up to 10d. per lb. Rather better trade for Prices as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £25, fat heifers up to £24, fat cows up to £20, store cattle up to £20 5s, heifers in milk up to £17 15s., cows in milk up to £18 15s., fat sheep up to £2 16s 6d, bacon pigs up to £7 17s. 6d, and pork pigs up to £5 2s each.

LANCASTER, Monday.—At this auction mart Messrs Thomlinson and Son had a large and miscellaneous stock in all classes. The attendance of butchers and dealers was in excess of the usual numbers, being especially noticeable and an advance in price was well maintained all through the sale. Numbers sold: 103 prime fat beasts, 1,000 sheep, 164 lambs and 11 calvers and store cattle. Bullocks made up to £20 15s., heifers £14 5s, cows £14 15s., sheep and hoggs up to £2 7s. 6d., pork pigs to £6 17s 6d, bacon pigs £10 17s 6d, and stores up to 45s each down to 10s each. Best beef made from 9s to 9s 6d per stone, medium quality 7s 6d to 9s per stone. Sheep met a good demand, making 9/d to 10/d per lb. Lambs 10/d to 11/d, £27 12s 6d, £24 17s 6d, £23 5s, £24 5s, and £22 10s; Jackson, of Gallows-laugh Grange, had four good beasts, making £25 2s 6d, £24 5s, £27 12s 6d, and £25; Mr J. Ladley, of Kirkby Wharfe, had ten good bullocks realising £23 12s 6d, £23 10s, and £22 2s 6d, £22 5s, and £21 12s 6d; Mr J. Swailes, of Healaugh, had two bullocks, which made £23 15s, and £22 10s; two bullocks from Messrs W. Dunn and Son, of Ouston, made £23 17s 6d and £23 10s; Mr J. W Watson, of Healaugh, had six grand finished bullocks, which made £23 17s 6d, £23 2s 6d, £22 7s 6d, £24, £23, and £22; Mr R. Dearlove, of Walton, had five useful bullocks, which made £24 10s, £24, £23, £23 15s, and £21 10s; Mr T. Richardson, of Healaugh, had three bullocks, which made £25 15s, £24 5s, and £22 7s 6d; Messrs Ireland Bros. had two bullocks, which made £24 10s, and £23 15s; Mr Wm. Hall, of Ouston, from Mr Weddell, of Hornington, made £22 15s, £20 17s 6d, £18 15s, £18 17s 6d, £17 15s; Mr Jackson, of Catterton, had five good beasts, which made £22 17s 6d, £21 10s, £21 5s, and £20 15s; two bullocks £21 10s, £21 5s, and £20 15s; two bullocks from Mr Simpson, of Newton Kyme, made £23 17s 6d, £20 15s, and £19 15s; a good bullock from Mr H. Bladen, of Healaugh, made £23 17s 6d; four black polled bullocks from Mr C. Gypson, of Grimston, made £23, £22 17s 6d, £22, and £21 17s 6d; Mr F. J. Watson, of Bow Bridge, had two very ripe bullocks, which made £24 10s and £23 7s 6d; two bullocks from Mr W. Thomlinson, of Wighill, made £24 15s, and £20 17s 6d; three bullocks from Mr G. Winter made £24 5s, £23 10s, and £22 15s; two very ripe bullocks from Messrs Ramsden, of Oxton Hall, made £26 5s., £25 2s 6d., and £24 5s.; six bullocks and heifers from the Auctioneers made £29 17s 6d, £23 17s 6d, £23 5s, £22 15s, £22 5s., and £22 2s 6d; a grand bull from Mr Jas. Holliday, of Castle Hill Farm, made £24 10s; three beasts from Mr W. Robinson, of Park Farm, made £24, £23, and £22; a grand bull from Mr Jas. Bramley, of Huddleston, had three pens of choice sheep, making up to 72s each; from Mr Holdsworth made to £5 13s.; Mr T. Silver, to 85s; Mr Warrington, to 61s 6d; Mr Gibson, to 75s; Mr W. Rodder, to £5 2s; Mr T. Richardson, to 72s; Mr Setterington, to 71s; Mr A. Richardson, to 68s 6d; Mr Ryder, to 66s; the Union, to £6 17s 6d; Mr Smith, to £5 15s; Mr Maclean, to £10 17s 6d; Mr W. Riley-Smith, to £5 5s; etc. Stores made from 14s. to 37s. 6d. each.

EVERY WOMAN Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by Simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Nerve Pain. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD, Chemist, Hove, Dalston Lane, London.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS

DISPUTE WITH ROTHWELL COUNCIL. SETTLED.

PASSES FOR RELIGIOUS WORKERS.

The fortnightly meeting of the Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the Union Offices, Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Others present were Mrs E. A. Dickenson, Father T. Cody, Messrs J. Gawin, J. Butterick, W. Schofield, T. G. Conyers, G. Armitage, D. W. Hargreaves, W. Verity, E. B. Wickersgill, W. A. Appleyard, J. R. Chappell, H. J. Fulford, W. Sweet, J. W. Verity, W. Lunn, G. W. Pease, and W. Hemingway, with the Clerk (Mr F. W. Mee).

CHILDREN'S HOMES.

At a meeting of the Children's Homes Committee a circular letter from the Local Government Board respecting relief to widows and children came up for consideration on a reference from the Board, and it was resolved that the matter be adjourned to the next meeting and that the Clerk be instructed to then report on the most salient points calling for attention.

The Clerk submitted a statement showing the cost of maintenance in the Homes during the past half-year, and it was resolved that it be accepted as satisfactory.

A letter was received from "Uncle Toby" stating that his Christmas distribution of toys had been suspended this year on account of the war.

A deputation, consisting of Messrs J. Hirst (Chairman) and the chairman and three other members of the Water Committee of the Rothwell Urban District Council, together with the Clerk and water inspector, waited on the committee by appointment, with reference to the demand of the Guardians for a supply of water for domestic purposes for the Homes by rent. Mr Hirst and Mr Dodgson stated that the Council were desirous of coming to an amicable arrangement, but that they could not see their way unless forced to give a supply to the Homes other than by meter without a further increase in the scale of charges for supplies by rent. The deputation having retired, the matter was further considered, and after certain informal enquiries Mr Sugden had taken place it was resolved that on the understanding that the Homes shall be furnished with an adequate supply for domestic purposes, the offer of the Council to supply such water by meter at 1s. per 1,000 gallons, less a discount of 7½ per cent., be accepted, and that the claim for a supply by rent be accordingly abandoned. It was further resolved that it be left with the Clerk to arrange with Mr Dodgson as to the application of these terms to past accounts.

The minutes were passed.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the House Committee the master reported that five deaths had occurred in the infirmary during the past fortnight.

Arrangements for a concert on Christmas Day were considered, and an offer from the staff to provide a concert as usual was accepted.

An application for passes from Staff-Captain Bird of the Salvation Army, at Leeds, for a renewed pass to visit the Institution, and it was resolved that permission be given to the officials to visit the Institution, and it was resolved on the motion of Mr W. A. Appleyard and seconded by Mr W. Verity, that seasons tickets be provided similar to those issued to the ministers and officers of religious workers authorised to visit the Institution, setting forth the conditions of the issue.

Father Cody, who said he was not present at the meeting when the Guardians had decided to issue the tickets to religious workers, and who did "religious workers" embrace.

Mr Conyers replied that the tickets would be issued to the recognised ministers and officers of the Salvation Army. It was through the application of Staff-Captain Bird that it was thought that the passes in such cases should be a good deal more restrictive in their own institution. The tickets would not be issued broadcast—perhaps only a dozen.

Father Cody said the cases would come before the Board. Formerly permission had been granted by letter, but these passes would be issued to persons with special missions. That, however, would not apply to everyone who produced ministers of any religious denomination who had a right to visit persons.

Father Cody said he hoped the passes would not be issued broadcast, as it would be unwise for large numbers of people to pass through the sick wards where people were perhaps dying.

The minutes were passed.

VARIOUS.

The appointment of a new superintendent nurse came up for consideration, and the post was given to Miss Eliza Lewis, Lowesoft.

It was decided to give extra relief for the outdoor poor for Christmas at the rate of 1s. for an adult and 6d. to each child for two weeks, similar to last year.

ROTHWELL

FOOTBALL.—Rothwell Wheat Rose gave East Ardsley, their opponents in a Leeds Senior League match at Rothwell on Saturday, a severe drubbing, scoring seven goals to one. The visitors' goal was defended by Joe Hudson, who, in a similar position, did good work for the Rothwell White Rose Club during the last two years. However, despite the fact that he let through so many goals he was able to stop several stinging shots. The game was started by the visitors, but the homesters' forwards were quickly on the aggressive, and Hudson was tested with a shot from Appleby. As the ball rebounded from the goalkeeper, Hughes caught it, but he dallied with the leather and lost possession. A fine movement only elapsed before Rothwell had the sphere back in the danger zone, and Wrigley scored from a pass by Appleby when the visitors' custodian was at a disadvantage. A penalty followed soon after, and Hudson had no chance with Appleby's shot. Hughes several times went away on the left wing, but he got little advantage out of his efforts. Once only did the visiting backs be missed practically on open goal. Ardsley seemed unable to get going at all, and Nunns, in the homesters' goal, had an easy time. Sam Hudson and Hutton had his work cut out. A hard shot from Wrigley was cleverly saved. The third goal for the homesters was netted by Moon, the White Rose's centre-forward, and Appleby scored a fourth. In the second half Rothwell team had the pull, and it was not until about midway through the half that the Ardsley men got a look in. Soon after the reinforcement Tiffany headed a "beauty" into the net during a melee around the goal. A sixth was added by Appleby, who, after a run up, rattled Abrams of a chance of gaining credit. Twenty minutes before the final the Ardsley men got away, the left wing once more being particularly active. Nunns was beaten once, Abrams scored the seventh goal for Rothwell.

On Saturday Oulton St. John's defeated Methley Perseverance Res. in the Leeds and District Football League by six goals to nil.

SERIOUS MOTOR ACCIDENT AT DRINGHOUSES.

A serious motor accident has occurred at Dringhouses as the result of which three men—two members of the National Reserve and a civilian—were somewhat seriously injured. The accident appears to have been caused partly by the absence of public lights in the village.

The names of the three injured men are:—Mr James McPherson, who is well-known in the village, having resided there for a number of years; and Privates J. Merrick and Private J. Storrs, of H Company of the National Reserve now stationed at the racing stables at Dringhouses. Both of these men come from the Bradford district, but they had been stationed at Dringhouses since the outbreak of the war. One of Mr McPherson's legs was broken. Private Merrick also sustained a broken leg, while Private Storrs is suffering from shock. The National Reservists were conveyed to the Military Hospital at Fulford, and, before they are allowed to be trained. Mr McPherson was removed home after the accident; but some time later it was considered advisable, in view of his injuries, that he should be removed to the York County Hospital.

The point at which the accident occurred was immediately opposite the parish church. There is no light at that point, and a resident in the village stated that the lamp on the church gates was usually lit in the evening for the convenience of the men of the National Reserve; but on the night of the accident it was not lighted.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK DEFENDS THE KAISER.

The Archbishop of York addressed a crowded meeting of men at the Opera House, York, on Sunday afternoon, on "Some Problems of the War." The Lord Mayor (Councillor J. Bowes Morrell) presided.

The Archbishop said the side which would win was the side whose people, apart from its armies, were capable of the most ready sacrifices and most steadfast endeavour. He believed we had reached the point at which every able-bodied man, between 18 and 35, must ask the question "Dare I stay away?" He had little doubt of the issue of the great combat, and he had no doubt at all as to the verdict of history upon the origin of the war.

"But I assert essentially," proceeded his Grace, "the grave and vulgar way in which the German Emperor has been treated in the newspapers, and particularly in some of the comic papers. I have a personal memory of the Emperor, very sacred to me, which makes me feel that it was with great reluctance he felt himself compelled to accept the fact that this conduct and the conduct of his Ministers had involved England in war with England. But it is very hard for a man to resist the voices which stood at his ear, which said persistently, 'The hour of your enemy's calamity has come; you dare not fail.' I put the blame not upon the Emperor, but upon his advisers." He believed the attitude of the German nation arose from the misrepresentation of the State. "At the present moment," added the Archbishop, "I speak with some personal knowledge of what is passing through the minds of educated men in Berlin, when I say they are wholly ignorant of the true state of affairs, because they take their facts from the facts which the State cares to give them. I heard a German still speak with admiration and chivalry about the great German people."

SIR O. LODGE AND LIFE AFTER DEATH.

Sir Oliver Lodge, speaking at the Browning Hall, Walworth, on Sunday afternoon, said it was unreasonable to think that the soul should jump out of existence when the body was destroyed. We were not limited to the few senses we lived on this earth. We should certainly continue to exist. "Why do I say that?" Sir Oliver proceeded. "I say it on definite scientific grounds; I say it because I have heard from friends of mine still existing, because I have talked to them. Communication is possible. One must obey the laws, and find out the conditions. I do not say it is easy, but I say it is possible, and I have conversed with them as I could converse with any one in the audience now. Being scientific men, they have given proof that this is real, and not subjective, not something emanating from myself. They have given definite proofs. Some of them are being published, many of them are being withheld for a time, but will be published later. I tell you with all the strength of conviction I can muster that it is so—that we do persist, that people still take an interest in things going on, that they still help us, and know more about things than we do, and are able from time to time to communicate with us. I know this is a tremendous statement and a tremendous conclusion."

Sir Oliver added that for many years, ever since the eighties, he had tried all sorts of other methods of explaining these facts by the usual laws, but had been eliminated one after the other, and no other explanation remained but that the people who communicated with us were what they claimed to be.

GREAT PRESTON

On Saturday afternoon Great Preston footballers had a match in the Rothwell Charity Cup Competition with Rothwell Haigh, and Prestoo won by two goals to nil.

ROTHWELL.

ROTHWELL P.C. v. Wk.—Rothwell Parish Church footballers, who faced Calverley at Calverley on Saturday, brought off a victory by one goal to nothing. Stringer, the captain of the Rothwell team, had to leave hospital to join the side, and he and his partner put up a strong defence. The half-backs—Rogers, Dawes, and J. Gregg—played a good game, and Bradley, the custodian, stopped well. Difficult shots were few, and Bradley won the toss, and Hitchin kicked off for Rothwell. Calverley were quick to gain the advantage, and Whitcomb essayed a shot that was charged down by Gregg. The visitors, however, retaliated, and a neat centre from Taylor saw Hitchin in possession of the ball, and with an excellent shot he scored. A skilful play and a fine run while, until about five minutes before the interval, when the homsters' outside right dribbled the ball down the field and centred. Jobe headed the ball for the net, but Bradley saved at the expense of a corner. Both sides played a good game in the second half. Hitchin succeeded in getting the ball away, and after dribbling down the field he put in a shot which Dufton, the Calverly goalkeeper, saved, a corner occurring. On the homesters getting away Bradley was tested, but he succeeded in maintaining a sterling defence.

GENUINE EAST INDIA RAPE NUTS.

A WELL-TRIED AND RELIABLE

AUTUMN TILLAGE.

M. SCOTT & Co., Seed Crushers, SELBY.

Prompt Delivery can be given to Rails Selby.

Ask your Manure Merchant for particulars.

All Men Joining the Army SHOULD HAVE WITH THEM

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

A Safe Protector from common hazardous ailments—Diarrhœa, Cholera, Dysentery, etc.

GIVES INSTANT RELIEF; EASES PAIN.

BLESSING TO HAVE SUCH A GRAND MEDICINE.

Brigadier Fortune, Royal Horse Artillery: "I thank you for the great benefit that Teasdale's Chlorodyne has not only done for myself, but also for many of my comrades to whom I have given it. It has indeed been a blessing to have such a grand medicine in my possession. I have used it in numerous cases of Dysentery, Rheumatism, Fever, the Bucks, Coughs, and Colds. It acted like a charm in every case."

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

THE MOST VALUABLE PRESENT YOU CAN GIVE TO A FRIEND GOING TO THE FRONT.

7½d., 1/6, and Large Bottles, 2/6.

Can be had of Purdy, Cromgates; Rennard, Halton, and other Chemists; Goodall, Backhouse & Co., and Teasdale's Depot Stores.

ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

Teasdale's Chlorodyne (repeated)

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.

The Great Cure for COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.

Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 2/6 and 3/6.

Telegrams: Optoline, Bradford. Telephone 87 Central.

On the Makers, J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Swan Street, LEEDS.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Tiers, County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT—No. 15.

At the moment of writing the temperature, outside, just touches freezing point, but at the same time it has been a nice, dry day, with several hours' bright sunshine—quite different to yesterday, when the cold was intensified by a cutting north-easterly wind and a steady fall of rain, and it is quite like this that lends one's careful handling if we would maintain them in health and profit. Of course, I do not expect this cold snap to last very long, and I daresay that by the time these notes appear in print it will have given way to the usual November weather, but I should serve as an incentive to my readers to make the necessary preparations for the coming winter, if these have not already been made. It is the men and women who are always fully prepared for any kind of weather that may set in that make their poultry pay handsome. Those that "wait and see" are caught while meditating, and before they have time to act the damage has been done. Therefore, get to work at once if you would have healthy fowls, and a full egg-basket this winter. Any roosting-houses that have thoroughly over-hauled, the roofs made quite watertight, and any cracks in the wood remedied, as draughts are very dangerous. Don't, however, labour under the mistaken idea that the birds need coddling, and in consequence make their dwelling arrangements. Fowls need the pure fresh air in the winter as much as they do in the summer, the winner as much as they do in the summer, the main requisite of the house being good dryness and of mine still exist, because I have talked to them. Communication is possible. One must obey the laws, and find out the conditions. I do not say it is easy, but I say it is possible, and I have conversed with them as I could converse with any one in the audience now. Being scientific men, they have given proof that this is real, and not subjective, not something emanating from myself. They have given definite proofs. Some of them are being published, many of them are being withheld for a time, but will be published later. I tell you with all the strength of conviction I can muster that it is so—that we do persist, that people still take an interest in things going on, that they still help us, and know more about things than we do, and are able from time to time to communicate with us. I know this is a tremendous statement and a tremendous conclusion."

Sir Oliver added that for many years, ever since the eighties, he had tried all sorts of other methods of explaining these facts by the usual laws, but had been eliminated one after the other, and no other explanation remained but that the people who communicated with us were what they claimed to be.

GREAT PRESTON

On Saturday afternoon Great Preston footballers had a match in the Rothwell Charity Cup Competition with Rothwell Haigh, and Prestoo won by two goals to nil.

ROTHWELL.

ROTHWELL P.C. v. Wk.—Rothwell Parish Church footballers, who faced Calverly at Calverley on Saturday, brought off a victory by one goal to nothing. Stringer, the captain of the Rothwell team, had to leave hospital to join the side, and he and his partner put up a strong defence. The half-backs—Rogers, Dawes, and J. Gregg—played a good game, and Bradley, the custodian, stopped well. Difficult shots were few, and Bradley won the toss, and Hitchin kicked off for Rothwell. Calverley were quick to gain the advantage, and Whitcomb essayed a shot that was charged down by Gregg. The visitors, however, retaliated, and a neat centre from Taylor saw Hitchin in possession of the ball, and with an excellent shot he scored. A skilful play and a fine run while, until about five minutes before the interval, when the homsters' outside right dribbled the ball down the field and centred. Jobe headed the ball for the net, but Bradley saved at the expense of a corner. Both sides played a good game in the second half. Hitchin succeeded in getting the ball away, and after dribbling down the field he put in a shot which Dufton, the Calverly goalkeeper, saved, a corner occurring. On the homesters getting away Bradley was tested, but he succeeded in maintaining a sterling defence.

Place my resignation in your hands. I shall be glad to do my best to continue the work until you have found a suitable successor, and have pleasure in sending cheque value £50 for expenses which may be incurred for the use of the office which has been set up at Northallerton."

In reply, Lady Bell wrote that she need not say how very grateful the branch were to Sir William for all he had done for them while County Director. With reference to his suggestion that he would be willing to continue his services to the branch until another Director was appointed, however, Lady Bell thought she does not think they could make that claim on him, as Major Hill-Walker, who is now acting as secretary until Major Rudd Exore's return, is quite willing to take him for the moment. "As to the cheque for £50 which you so kindly sent," Lady Bell said, "we all of us think we ought not to take it, as we intended it to cover the expenses of the office at Northallerton, from which you have derived no advantage—since you are now severing your connection with it. Also, when we first spoke of having the office, we thought we should have to pay for the rooms, and not that they would be lent us; and Miss Rutherford, we find, did not like to make a profit on the rooms, but only to cover out-of-pocket expenses. I shall be very glad, therefore, if you will let me return it to you with, all the same, very grateful thanks for your generosity."

To this letter Sir William Nussey replied expressing his appreciation of what Lady Bell had been good enough to say, and asking her to use the £50 as she thought best to further Red Cross work in the North Riding. But, alluding to a telephonic communication suggesting that before publishing his resignation he should receive the sanction first of Prince Hugh Bell as head of the Territorial Association, he says he did not accept his appointment from that Association, who rightly sanctioned not appointed it, and which gives no reason now why their sanction should be obtained.

ROTHWELL

On Saturday afternoon, in the Rothwell Charity Cup Competition, Rothwell O.B. overcame Altofts W.D. by five goals to one.

STOURTON

On Saturday afternoon Stourton United footballers were defeated by Swillington United by five goals to four.

METHLEY

On Saturday afternoon Methley Perseverance played a friendly football game against Wattwoo Main by ten goals to one.

MOOR ATTERTON

The members of Moortown Golf Club have sent £3 to Leeds National Relief Fund.

WETHERBY

Mr George Gunter, of Wetherby, was on the Grand Jury at Leeds Assizes.

ALLEN'S ROUP CURE, 2/1 Per Pail.

Each package contains sufficient for 2 gallons of water, and is a guaranteed cure for this dreaded disease. Prevention is cure for the fowls, and occasional poultry keepers should not be without a preparation of the well occasionally gives Thompson's Roup Cure. Fowls' drinking water, and no reader their Sacks increase.

Full directions are given with each packet.

To be obtained only from R. A. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES, 1/6 per box.

Generally called "The Parents' Friend." Immediately a bird is noticed out of colour, a capsule should be given, and feeding will occasionally give Thompson's Roup Cure. Fowls' drinking water, and no reader their Sacks increase.

To be obtained only from R. A. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

THE MOST PRACTICAL UTILITY POULTRY PAPER.

MONTHLY HINTS ON POULTRY

32 pages, profusely illustrated, art paper, 4d. 2/- per annum, post free, 2/6.

THE EDITOR, Sawbridgeworth, HERTS. Write for specimen copy.

Pure-bred Laying Pullets 7/6 each.

We can offer you pure-bred Rhode Island Red, White, Black, and Brown Leghorn, White Orpington, and Buff Orpington pullets, all hatched August, and in fine condition, from vigorous Cockerels, 7/6 each.

ALLEN POULTRY Co., Ltd., Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

CORRESPONDENCE

ROTHWELL DISTRICT WAR RELIEF COMMITTEE.

To the Editor.

Sir,—In your report of the meeting of the above committee, held on Monday, the 16th inst., you give your readers an impression that the money due to me for disbursements to soldiers' wives in Lofthouse comes out of the money collected by the Rothwell and District War Relief Committee.

This is absolutely untrue, as the money comes entirely from the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association.

JOHN L. HOWE.

Lofthouse District Secretary to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association.

An Oulton Soldier's Letter.

GERMANS FIGHTING A LOST CAUSE.

Writing from the Front to his friend, Mr R. V. Higgins, Oulton, Private Arthur Tomlinson, of the R.A.M.C., says:—

We have been having a very rough time of it, but we are getting on all right now, and I have come through it all safely with just a septic finger, which is all right now. We have had heavy rain, due to the firing, which has been so heavy. Our men are fighting like heroes against overwhelming odds, but we are steadily driving them back. The Germans have been mowed down in droves and our troops have suffered, too, but we have what they call "made good." I wish we could finish them off altogether and soth squdron again. The Germans are fighting desperately. I think they must realise they are fighting a lost cause. I am afraid we are going to spend Christmas out here, which will be rotten, but we shall have to make the best of things, and trust to providence.

SHERBURN PETTY SESSIONS

A PATRIOTIC CONSTABLE AT SHERBURN.

At Sherburn Petty Sessions yesterday the magistrates present were the Rev. B. Hemsworth (Chairman), Mr Walker Crosland, and Mr Wm. Crosland.

NEWTON MINERS IN TROUBLE.

John Haigh and Fred Dunwell, miners, of Newton, were charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 7th inst. in Main Street, Fairburn.

Haigh pleaded guilty, and Dunwell did not appear. Haigh was fined 5s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs, and Dunwell 5s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

A LESSERTON WOMAN'S CONDUCT.

Jane Jarvis, married woman, of Lesserton, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 21st inst. in High Street, Sherburn.

P.C. Parkinson stated the defendant was violently drunk and used bad language. He had to take her to the lock-up, where she was bailed out by her husband.

The Chairman said the woman was becoming a nuisance. She was fined 1os Court day. They would deal severely with her, and fine her 10s. and 5s. 6d. costs.

A PATRIOTIC CONSTABLE.

Police Constable Parkinson, who has been a painstaking officer whilst stationed at Sherburn, is leaving the force for the Scots Greys Regiment.

The Chairman, in addressing him, said he had nobly volunteered to go into the Army to defend his country. It was very creditable, indeed, that he had done so, and he hoped he would have good health and a safe return.

Inspector Cootham, on behalf of the police, said they were sorry to lose Parkinson. He had been a splendid officer, and he hoped he would return safely.

In reply, Parkinson said he had nothing against anybody in Sherburn. He had always tried to do his duty. He was a single man and he thought it was his bounden duty to join the Army.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Hodgson Watler, of Prospect Villas, Wetherby, has left £1,186.

Trooper W. Cooper, of the 20th Hussars, writing to his brother at Wetherby, says:—"About a week ago my squadron had a bayonet charge—our first experience with the bayonet. It is good sport.

TADCASTER MAN A PRISONER OF WAR.—Private S. Britton, of the 2nd Duke of Wellington West Yorkshire Regiment, a former employe at Messrs John Smith's Brewery, Tadcaster, has sent home a postcard saying he is a prisoner at a concentration comp at Gefangenelayer, Doberitz, Germany. He says he is quite well, and asks for some cigarettes.

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday afternoon Tadcaster had a League match at Heworth with the Parish Church team, and the sides were—Heworth P.C.—Hempsall, goal; Bolger and Peat, backs; Pedley, Hartley, and Booth, half-backs; Ridsdale, Brown, Simpson, Lindley, and Ware, forwards. Tadcaster—Moverley, goal; Clayton and Garbutt, backs; Aldous, Pearson, and Jolly, half-backs; Birdsall, Argle, Elberbeck, Sunderland, and Nettleton forwards. The homesters won the toss and elected to play towards the entrance. The first few minutes of the game was kept in midfield, but the visitors' forwards eventually got away, but Heworth's Nettleton was pulled up for off-side. The Bantams then became dangerous, and Lindley tried a shot which Moverley touched as it went over the line. Ware took the resulted kick, and placed the ball splendidly, but the visiting custodian fisted away. The ball went out to Ridsdale, who tried a shot from the right wing, which succeeded. The visitors then went for goal and succeeded in forcing a corner. Nettleton took the kick and a sharp struggle ensued, but Pedley eventually got the ball away. Again the homesters pressed, and Moverley, in saving a shot, kicked the ball on to Simpson's back. That player back-heeled the ball into the net, registering a second goal. The visitors then got the ball down and Garbutt fell to them, but Nettleton kicked behind. The homesters were soon on the aggressive again and Moverley saved a stinging shot from Ware. Simpson received a centre from Ridsdale, but Clayton robbed him of the ball and cleared. The visitors were allowed a free kick for hands, and Garbutt placed the ball well up. However, Peat handed, but the visitors did not benefit at all by this, and the homesters were once more on the aggressive. Simpson tried a shot which Moverley saved by knocking on to the upright, but on the rebound, the Bantams centre-forward made a mistake in scoring. Heworth were leading at the interval by three goals to nil, and afterwards Ridsdale netted twice, and Tadcaster were beaten by five goals to nothing.

The Quarrel.

It was just four months since we had been married. Now we were quarrelling in the most disgraceful manner.

"I must have been insane when I married you," said my wife furiously.

"It was a crazy thing to do," I assented, sarcastically—"rash indeed."

"For you or for me?" she demanded with flaming cheeks.

"For both of us; had I imagined I should have assisted at such a performance as this——" And I waved my hands contemptuously, as though words were too feeble to express my feelings.

"You began it," she said breathlessly; "it was all your unreasoning jealousy."

"Jealousy?" I interrupted with increasing sarcasm.

"Yes; you know you were angry because Stephen sent the flowers."

"Stephen can send you a whole conservatory if he likes," I retorted with assumed indifference; nevertheless I loathed Stephen, my wife's cousin, and hated nothing so much as the lavish attention of this kind that he persisted in extending to her. "If you let him know that you are so fond of orchids," I went on cruelly, "no doubt he will keep you well supplied with them."

"I don't hint for things," she said scornfully, but recklessly saying the thing she knew would hurt me the most; "if I really wanted anything badly, there is no one I would sooner ask than Stephen."

"Stop!" I said furiously, "I will not hear any more. Stephen is, I know, a paragon of excellence. Well, since I am acquainted with the fact, let it rest. I do not like Stephen, I do not mince matters. I do not respect Stephen; since we have entirely opposite views about Stephen, we will not discuss him at all. Understand, I do not wish to hear his name."

"You are a heartless, despotic fiend," said Elaine, beside herself with rage.

"It must have been a kindred resemblance that made me fancy you," I replied, with a cruelty I did not know I possessed.

"I wish that I had died before I met you!" she exclaimed, looking at me with her pretty young face absolutely transfigured with passion.

"No doubt death would have been preferable," I returned, but involuntarily I put my hand to my mouth, for I could feel my lips turning white.

Elaine flung herself upon the lounge, weeping bitterly.

It was horrible to see her in such a state, and yet all that she said was true. It was my jealousy, whether unreasoning or not, that was the cause of my quarrel.

Stephen was 20 years older than Elaine. He was in fact her guardian as well as her cousin.

It was no doubt this proprietary interest that Stephen felt for Elaine that irritated me. I wished to do everything for her, but it was not in my power to give her the luxuries he could so easily bestow. Then I had an idea, whether true or not, that Stephen regarded me as a fortune-hunter, and I resented an injustice I could feel, but which, not being openly declared, I could not refute.

"Despot" was the word Elaine always hurled at me when we had words about Stephen. There are some words I particularly dislike having applied to me. "Despot" is one of these words. "Fiend" I do not mind at all, but "despot" is mad ning.

With affected unconcern I took up a book that was lying near. It was a cookery-book, quite new. One page was brown with the stains of coffee, an eloquent and enduring sign of the struggle Elaine and I had one morning concocting the matutinal beverage, when our cook had failed to make her appearance.

"In order to make good coffee," I read, "the greatest care must be exercised. In order to make good coffee the greatest care must be exercised. In order to make good coffee——"

I read this over a dozen times at least before it conveyed the slightest meaning to my mind.

Elaine would rather be dead than living with me. My God! Was I so detestable?

Ah, thou sole!

Nothing is more frightful than to hear a woman one loves weeping bitterly and to be unable to console her.

Yes, I was brutal and cruel, and all the rest of it; but I resented the anger I had caused; I resented her tears.

And it was just four months ago! We were married on the 16th of the month; to-day was the 16th. The church, the flowers, the deep tones of the organ, our young companions standing about us, the immense company assembled, the thrilling, sonorous voice of the white-robed priest—"Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?"

These sacred sounds and emotions rushed in a fantastic whirl through my mind as I sat pretending to read the cookery-book. I saw Elaine as she looked, then, verified likeness of a dream, the consummation of all imagined idealities—and now! Four months ago—it was four thousand years!

How frightfully fast we live in times of great emotion! The dream was changed indeed; the idealities gone; life was henceforth a wreck!

I did not think of how I was affecting Elaine.

I was too much absorbed in the feeling of how she was affecting me. The hideous fact that she, who represented the constant, the faithful, the adoring part of humanity, had changed dominated my mind to the exclusion of everything else. The horror of human hate—Elaine had ceased to love me!

And through all of this, those terrible sobs!

She wished that she had died before she met me.

Already she was tired of my affection! Yes, there were a hundred things to prove it! She liked to go out and talk with others; she was fond of entertainments and society. As for me, I cared for no one but her; I could not tolerate society, and as a rule I hated people. Yes; it was all over, and Stephen——At this moment the gong rang loud and imperatively, and a few moments later I heard the servant coming up the stairs. Glad of any pretext to leave the room, I hastened to the door, and closing it behind me met the man, who handed me two telegraphic messages. I tore open the covers and read "Mother is very ill; bring Elaine." The second despatch announced the death of my wife's mother.

I crushed the papers into my pocket and returned to Elaine. The terrible fact of death and its shocking suddenness overwhelmed me. I experienced a violent revulsion of feeling. I was ashamed of my foolish and ungovernable rage. If I had been insane I was sane enough now. And Elaine, poor child, how she loved her mother! Yes, I admit with shame that I had been jealous of this affection.

Elaine, I said, sitting down by the couch and touching her shoulder, "forgive me for making you so angry. I see that I was very unreasonable. I dare say it is natural for you to be fond of Stephen."

But my face stiffening and my voice growing formal as I said this, so I abandoned Stephen. "After all," I went on, "we are foolish to make ourselves so wretched. God knows trouble comes fast enough."

Her hand lay cold and unresponsive in mine, and she drew herself slightly away from me. The movement was almost imperceptible, but it struck me like a blow. As yet I knew she would act just as she did. It lay in the nature of things to be violently abused for a moment, and accept the kiss of reconciliation immediately afterwards. The horrible part of quarrelling is the agony one is forced to undergo in the effort for installation.

I put my arm around her and held her with gentle force as I kissed her flaming face and smoothed her disordered hair.

"Forgive me, dearest, if you can; forgive me. Yes, it was all my fault!"

She looked at me in sheer amazement. Our quarrels did not usually end like this. They were long periods of protracted agony, while we tried to make each other as miserable as possible.

"Give me your handkerchief," I said, taking the tear-soaked bit of cambric from her with which she was tentatively wiping her beautiful eyes, and substituting a fresh handkerchief from my pocket.

"Don't cry about it any more," I urged, entreatingly. "I shall never forgive myself for being so unkind."

"What is the matter?" she asked, with anxiety, as she caught sight of my face, and she became conscious of the unusual gravereity of my behaviour. "What is the matter? Who rang the bell? Is anyone ill? Oh, is it mother?"

"It was a despatch from tom," I said, trying to conceal the changes in my face, and not to shew how deeply moved I was. "Your mother——"

"Give me the telegram," she said, looking at me with grief-stricken, imploring eyes.

I drew the papers from my pocket. The one with the big blot on the cover was the first despatch, sent to break the dreadful news. I gave it to her in pitying silence, but in my haste and agitation I had changed the despatches, and without any warning at all she read the terrible message: "Mother is dead. Come Elaine."

MONK FRYSTON AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

ANNUAL DINNER.

The annual dinner in connection with Monk Fryston Agricultural Show and Sports Society was held at the Crown Hotel, Monk Fryston, on Wednesday evening, and about forty gentlemen partook of an excellent repast, which was well served by Mr and Mrs Longbottom.

The Rev. B. Hemsworth, M.A., J.P. (President) was in the chair, and he was supported by Mr Jos. Todd (vice-chairman of the committee), Messrs T. Westoby, J. McCloy, G. Wanless, B. Stoker, T. Hopkinsall, H. Speed, G. Goodenough, T. and H. Stephenson, J. Longbottom (hon. sec.), and others. After the loyal toasts had been honoured,

The Chairman proposed "The Army and Navy." This toast, he said, was a special one, and, referring to the terrible war now raging, he remarked that if we had not had a good army and navy this country might have been in the same position as poor Belgium—a country of desolation. Our Army was wonderful. The men were made of real good stuff. We could not speak too highly of the poor Belgians. They were a gallant little nation, and he was glad all England had risen to do them honour.

Mr Longbottom read the annual report, which showed that the Society was in a satisfactory financial position. They had a balance in hand of £40 8s. 5d., and when the balance sheet was completed they would have over £50 in hand—(hear, hear)—as against £40 os. 5d. last year. This year there was an increase in gate money as compared with the previous year.

Mr Appleyard submitted the toast of "Monk Fryston Show and Sports Society." He was pleased to hear it in a flourishing state. He was a visitor last show day, and he saw some splendid stock exhibited.

Mr Wanless, on behalf of the Society, responded. At present, he said, the clouds were very dark, but he hoped by next show day that peace would reign. Referring to agriculture, he said he thought the farmers ought to breed more horses; for, in his opinion, this country was very short of horses.

Mr Todd submitted "Our genial President." He said Mr Hemsworth was an ideal president, and they held him in high esteem. They were lucky to have so able a gentleman, and they were greatly indebted to him for the position the show was in to-day.

The Chairman, in reply, said he was very grateful by the hearty way in which the toast had been received. He took a great interest in the show, and it gave him great pleasure to help the society. He thought everything was highly satisfactory. They always had a good show at Monk Fryston; in fact, everything did well at Monk Fryston. Referring to the present state of affairs, he said it was marvellous how we were facing. He thought there was very little to grumble about. He should not begrudge anything in reason, and such old crocks as he should not complain about the increased income tax. He was sorry about the breweers and landlords, and thought they had been hit too hard. Referring to recruiting in agricultural districts, he hoped all men would not be taken away, as someone should be left to work the land. One drawback to the present function was the unavoidable absence of Mr H. L. Lyon, chairman of the committee. They had recently formed a rifle club, and Mr Lyon and he had shared the cost. In conclusion, he hoped the society would prosper by gradual growth.

Messrs McCloy (Selby), The Chairman and vice-chairman of the Committee," and Mr J. Todd responded.

Mr Wanless proposed "The Secretary," and said they were very fortunate in having such an able secretary as Mr Longbottom. It was chiefly owing to his abilities that they were in so happy position at the present day. Mr Longbottom responded.

The Chairman proposed "The visitors" and mentioned the names of Mr Powell (South Milford), Messrs H. Skirrow and W. Appleyard (West Haddlesey), W. Dixon, W. Hotby, and T. Jackson (Sherburn). Mr Powell responded.

During the evening a musical programme was submitted by Messrs Goodrick (Castleford), W. Appleyard (Haddlesey), J. Todd (Birkin), and J. Longbottom (Monk Fryston). Mr Masterman (Castleford) was an able pianist.

On Wednesday evening Mr E. O. Simpson was elected one of the deputy chairmen of Central Leeds Conservative Association.

Canon Rotemyr, Vicar of Mexborough, who is shortly to be instituted Rector of Wistow, was on Tuesday night presented by his Bible Class at Mexborough with silver candelabras.

FOOTBALL.—Playing at home on Saturday, Aberford defeated Carlton (W.R. Res. by 5 goals to 2. Both teams played a good combined game, and the defence was sound. Aberford have not lost a match this season.

Cawood played on Tuesday afternoon and evening the Rev. E. J. Barry, rector, gave a lantern entertainment of pictures in France and Belgium, denoting the principal features of villages and towns before and after the Germans had entered the territories. A most excellent lecture was given. In the evening the society's war song was sung, which generated a good attendance. The choir boys sang the British, French, Russian, and Belgian national anthems in good style. Mr J. Wice presided at the piano.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK
PERMANENT
BUILDING SOCIETY
96, ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street), Leeds.
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1. Saturday Evenings, 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
Prospectus on Application. JNO. EXLEY, President.
Tel. No. 253. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

Useful Suggestions for Inexpensive Christmas Gifts.
If you wish to spend your money to the best advantage this Christmas, buy presents that are really useful and INEXPENSIVE. Doyles have a beautiful selection of China and Glassware goods which make the most attractive and appropriate presents. Why not call and look round?
Vases in Cut Glass or Fine China from 1/- each.
Dainty and Pretty Tea Sets from 10/6 per set of 40 pieces.
Dinner Sets, all sizes and all prices from 10/6 per set.
Toilet Sets from 5/- per set.
Trinket Sets from 2/6 per set.
A large selection of Butter Dishes, Tea Pots, Hot Water Jugs, Fruit Dishes, Cake Stands, Flower Pots, Bulb Bowls, Placques, Tumblers, Wine Glasses, Etc.
DOYLE'S, Ltd.,
59, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

Established 1835. Established 1835.
GENERAL
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Liberal Terms and conditions. Low Premiums.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE every sixth year to householders and private property owners.
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in connexion with risks of Fire, Burglary, and accidents to servants.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, including guaranteed options.
Workmen's Compensation.
Motor Car, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee, Driving Accidents, Live Stock, Plate Glass, and Farmers' Insurances.
Chief Offices—General Bdgs., Perth, Scotland. General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C. The Oldest and Strongest Independent Office. Assets exceed £2,500,000. Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager F. NORIS-WILLIAMS, J.P.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

YOUR WEDDING
Should BE NICE when it is MOTOR'S or CARLTON'S. We are the most talked of and the most thought of in the trade. Ask about our charges. BUCKTON, Claypit Lane (late of Cookridge Street). Tele. 1877 Central.
"WE NEVER SLEEP."

TIMPANE OF MACARONI.—Take two ounces of macaroni, one and a-half ounce of butter, one and a-half ounce of cheese, three eggs, one hard-boiled egg. Parboil the macaroni, drain it, and cut it into small pieces. Return it to the saucepan with the butter, cheese, and well-whisked eggs, and stir over a slow fire until thoroughly hot. Put ½ layer of this mixture into a buttered mould, cover with slices of hard-boiled egg, and add the remainder of the mixture. Sprinkle a little cheese on top, and bake in a moderate oven.

CHICKEN SALAD.—For chicken salad cut two ounces of white meat of chicken into dice, and mix with an equal quantity of celery cut not chopped, then season to taste with salt and pepper, stir in a dozen stoned and minced olives, and mix with a French dressing. Put on the ice for an hour, then serve in a chilled bowl lined with crisp lettuce leaves, and cover thickly with a mayonnaise dressing.

SPAGHETTI AND SCALLOPED EGGS.—Make half a teacupful of fine breadcrumbs. Mince a couple of anchovies, add two tablespoonfuls of Parmesan cheese, a dessertspoonful of finely chopped parsley, pepper, and a pinch of herbs. Moisten with the yolks of two eggs. In the meantime cook some spaghetti in boiling salted water. Boil three eggs hard. When the eggs and spaghetti are ready, shell and slice the former. Drain the spaghetti. Butter a fireproof au gratin dish, put in the paste as a first sprinkle with fine breadcrumbs. Place small pieces of butter here and there, and serve after browning in the oven.

LEG OF LAMB EN CASSEROLE.—First trim the joint neatly. Place at the bottom of a deep casserole some pieces of bacon, a little good fat, two carrots, two onions, a bunch of thyme and parsley, and one laurel leaf. Place the joint on this, and moisten with half a pint of stock. Put the lid on the casserole and cook the joint gently until the liquid is reduced; then add two tomatoes cut in halves and let half cover the joint. Cook slowly for five hours, with the casserole covered, and during that time turn the meat twice. Dish carefully and strain the gravy, removing all fat from it before serving.

BROWNHILLS'
PLUM PUDDINGS
In 1/- Basins; and larger sizes.
— AND —
MINCEMEAT
In 1lb. and 2lb. reputed jars.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
Huddersfield: " 1609.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten.
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW OFFERING
THE BEST VALUE IN YORKSHIRE
— IN —
BOOTS & SHOES for Present Wear.
We are SPECIALISTS in "FOOTWEAR for the COUNTRY."
Large Variety of Leggings, Gaiters, Slippers, & Dress Shoes.
FARMERS' BOOTS. NAVVIES' BOOTS. PIT BOOTS.
BOOTS THAT WILL TURN THE WET
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared.
BRAITHWAITE'S,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.
The Value for Money House.

Telephone No. 1129.
RHODES & SONS,
Commercial and General Printers
Lithographers, Bookbinders, &c.
Posters, Handbills, Circulars, Business Cards, Balance Sheets, Fixture Cards, Catalogues, Ball Programmes and . . Every description of . . General and Commercial Printing.
ORDERS BY POST OR TELEPHONE PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.
Magazines, Periodicals, &c., Bound to any Pattern.
"Rothwell Courier and Times" Office,
2, AIRE STREET,
LEEDS.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Asathorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier and Times" IS THE Only Weekly Newspaper PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 100—NEW SERIES [Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited), THE BREWERY, LEEDS

NOW READY IN BOTTLE.

East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.

Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.

Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.

In addition to the above 7½ per cent. on Small Bottles, and 5/- per doz. on Large Bottles will be charged.

Delivered Free to Families within 20 miles of Leeds

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT. AT 6.30 AND AT 9.

Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday at 6 p.m.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 7th, 1914. SIR HERBERT TREE'S Great Biblical Production "JOSEPH AND HIS BRETHREN." 80 Performers, 12 Magnificent Scenes. Camels, Donkeys, Sheep, etc., etc. Actual Production from His Majesty's Theatre, London. Latest War News and Actual Films from the Front.

Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.,

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9. NEXT WEEK.

BILLY WILLIAMS. HORTON & LA TRISKA. PERCY KORAH & HIS DANCING BOYS. Con. Conrad presents THE NOVELTY MINSTRELS. HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES. CHAS. GRANTLEY. GUEST & NEWLYN. CLIFFORD BROOKE presents "THE TRUTH ABOUT MR. WATSON." GREAT WIELAND.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

FRED BARBER, Pork Butcher, 11, CALL LANE, LEEDS. TEL. 1604.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED. SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting. James Smithies, Registered Plumber & Contractor. Residence:— 43, AUSTHORPE ROAD. CROSSGATES.

Wm. HELLIWELL, The Working Man's Friend, 212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS. WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE. Special Suits From 30/- NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established 1866. SPARKLING HOSPERADE. An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage. OBTAINABLE AT ALL HOTELS RESTAURANTS & BARS!! REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

For TOWN or COUNTRY. For BUSINESS or PLEASURE. THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT IT AT IT Fabor 45/- Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring. LOUNGE SUITS from 35/- COSTUMES from 2 Guineas. Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed. 24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Residents of the district have had papers sent for them in connection with the recruiting campaign, and they are asked to state how many, if any, members of the household are prepared to join the Colours in the event of their services being required. By bringing home to the individual his personal responsibility to the nation, it is not impossible that the plan will meet with a measure of success, but the appeal, it is to be feared, will be ignored in numerous cases in which it should meet with a prompt response.

It is very difficult to explain why recruiting should have been so good in some places and so unsuccessful in others, and the apologists for Leeds have, indeed, an unenviable task. One argument frequently trotted out is that trade is so good in the city that men are well employed, but if they were as patriotic as the lads of Garforth, Selby, Tadcaster, and Wetherby, who would not stop them from enlisting. When the Pals Battalion, in which a good many local men are serving, was being formed, the small-witted yoling men who had not pluck enough to volunteer, made disparaging remarks about the "feather-bed brigade," but the Pals are no cowards, and, should they be given the opportunity, they will, I doubt not, prove themselves heroes.

While I am aware that certain local places have no done their duty, Barkston Ash Division, as I have before stated, has made a noble response, and some villages have actually sent out one in twenty of the population, or one man in every five. How great Leeds contingent would have been had it given men in this proportion; The city is credited with having sent 8,000—"a shabby response," as an evening paper states—but it must be remembered that included in these figures are hundreds of men from our villages, so the city's position is worse really than it appears. It is sickening to hear young fellows say "I'll go when they send for me," "Let them do their own fighting," and "I'll go when the others go"—any excuse, so long as it covers the real cause of their inaction, will do.

In Rothwell, a resident states, the young men have been amazingly apathetic, and one wonders why it is so? They go on with their games as if things were proceeding as usual, and when the recruiting sergeant appears some of them actually make themselves scarce. One likely young chap, on being asked recently if he was going to a recruiting meeting, replied "Not me. They might catch me." This indifference to the great struggle that is going on is really remarkable. A feature of the recruiting among miners, who make first-rate soldiers, has been the large proportion of married men who have come forward, and the single men have very unkindly put this down to a desire to get away, if only temporarily, from the joys of matrimonial life. This, however, is not very convincing. Rather would one believe that the married men have a greater sense of responsibility than the fellows who really should go, and they put the stay-at-home shirkers to shame.

The squire of Monk Fryston, at the Agricultural Society dinner, expressed the hope that all the men would not be taken away to the Army, as it was essential farmers should have labour to work the land. According to reports from various parts of the country, agricultural labour is scarce and wages are rising, and this must, in a measure, be attributed to recruiting, but there is little fear of land going out of cultivation. Farm men have joined the Army by the thousand, and this must be regarded as their first duty at present. If the young fellows in the towns will not come forward the men in the rural districts, however unfair it may seem, must shoulder the burden. The only way to equalise matters is to have some form of compulsory military service, drawing men from each district according to its population, and apparently our Statesmen are reluctant to adopt such drastic measures.

Scores of farmers in Barkston Ash have released their men from their engagements, and paid what was due to them, in order that they might enlist, and that is a spirit to be commended. Of course, there may be exceptions to this. Last week I was told of one well-known farmer—one of the grumbling kind—who had actually refused to pay a man the money he had worked for because he had broken his engagement and joined the Army. Legally the man was wrong, but if the case had been taken to Court the farmer would have got such a "showing up" as the selfishness of the case fully merited.

A somewhat novel suggestion was made by a ratepayer at the Barwick lighting meeting. Full of indignation that the Garforth Gas Co. should have been allowed to invade the ancient place, he stated that the ratepayers should have had a public meeting and fixed the price of gas for themselves, but they had their choice and they made it. The Gas Co., no doubt anxious to increase their dividends, made a canvass of the residents, and a very large majority of them agreed to discard their lamps and use gas as an illuminant if they were given the chance. Had a majority declined to support them the Gas Co., for the safeguarding of their own expenditure, would not have ventured to place Barwick on equal terms with Aberford.

Although mains have been laid to Barwick, the Garforth Gas Co. have no monopoly, in order to obtain which they must secure a Provisional Order, and it is quite open to the ratepayers to oppose them were an application for those special powers made to Parliament. Personally I think it is a huge mistake to allow private companies to monopolise what are palpably public rights, but if the ratepayers are unenterprising they have themselves frequently to blame if they find themselves in a disadvantageous position. A Barwick resident states that an electric plant, costing about £150, is quite sufficient for the needs of the village, but he apparently cannot get capitalists to join him in launching the undertaking.

Why don't the Rothwell men follow the example of the Charlesworth family, who own the local collieries? Three sons of Mr. C. E. Charlesworth (Conyngham Hall, Knaresborough), who this year holds the office of High Sheriff of the County, are serving with the Colours. Mr John Stobart Charles-worth, J.P., of Wetherby, who has been appointed temporary major in the Miners' Battalion stationed at Farnley Park, was gazetted to the Queen's Yorkshire Dragoons in 1900, and became captain in 1908. Mr Charles Bertram Charlesworth also holds a commission in the Miners' Battalion. Lieutenant William Grice Charlesworth (Fysche Hall, Knaresborough), who has seen 14 years' military service, is with the Yorkshire Hussars. During the early stages of the South African war he enlisted as a private in the Hussars, and went through the campaign, earning the South African medal with three bars. After the war he joined the Yorkshire Dragoons, with whom he served until three years ago, when he was gazetted lieutenant in the Yorkshire Hussars. He married, in 1906, Lucy Estella, daughter of Major Stock, of Upper Shibden Hall, Halifax. The late Major Stock took part in the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava. Lieutenant Charlesworth has devoted a great deal of his time to municipal and public work, and has for some years been a member of the West Riding County Council, whilst he is also a J.P. for the Riding. Until recently he was a member of the Knaresborough Urban Council.

No doubt the public men of Tadcaster, Garforth, Rothwell, and Hunslet areas will hail as good news the report that a medical man has discovered what he believes to be the casual infective agent in scarlet fever, which costs the authorities enormous sums of money every year in connection with isolation. If this particular agent has really been found, it should be treated as a German spy and put out of the way, and one only wishes that could be done. It is yet too early, however, to say much about the discovery, because it might, after all, turn out to be of little account. On the other hand, it might result in a great decrease in the number of cases of scarlet fever, and it would be of extraordinary national value.

How many people in the district know anything about Friedrich Nietzsche, the philosopher who has undoubtedly influenced German thought and policy? Comparatively few, I reckon, and the members of Crossgates Literary Society were, therefore, extremely fortunate to have a first-rate lecture given them on the life and work of this wonderful man. It is extremely foolish—so fact, it shows one's ignorance—to try to belittle the intellectual power of a man because one disagrees with his opinions, but that is the attitude many people assume to thinkers, and they will not learn. The attendance at the meeting was good, but having regard to the quality of the lecture the hall should have been crowded. The Rev. J. Miller Hamilton, whilst criticising Nietzsche's teachings, dealt with the subject in an absolutely fair way, and in the short time at his disposal he managed to give, from the German's books, a good idea of what Nietzsche's philosophy stands for.

Nietzsche's philosophy appears to be so cold-blooded and repellent that it is surprising it appeals to even the "intellectuals," but they may be flattered into supposing they are over-men, and are really the only men who have a right to inherit the earth. It is an unlovely gospel, if one may put it so, with the crushing of all pity—not for the super-man, of course—for the poor and suffering, and the denying of affection to those who deserve and need it. It is a Godless thing, and if it were believed in the multitude of the people would have a sorry time of it before they quitted this world's stage. Everything would be subservient to the rule of the super-men, who would stride through the world just as the Prussians have marched through Belgium, destroying, pillaging, and murdering. That is the conclusion I draw from his teachings. When a philosopher decides that the work of the ages is to create a super-man, questions of morality, etc., must be made to fit in, and Nietzsche gives the whole hog.

No one can state definitely how far the philosopher has influenced German policy, nor to what extent Nietzsche was influenced by the opinions he discovered in the country when he began to think for himself. Germany was founded by the sword, rising from a petty State to an Empire, and the Prussians eventually got rather inflated ideas about themselves. As Sir Frederick Milner stated at York, the Germans believe that they are chosen by the Creator to possess the earth, and, in their unselfishness, they want to give the nations their "kulture," which is warranted by them to be the best on earth. Europe, however, is not having any, and the misguided people who have been led to think themselves super-men have already had a rude awakening.

The annual meeting of the Templenewsam Ratepayers' Association takes place on Friday, and it is not improbable that the officers will be reelected. The prize year, although not unfruitful, may truthfully be described as a lean one, and this may be partly attributed to the war. Through the agency of the Association a recreation ground has been acquired for the children of Whitkirk, and, while it has not been put to much use yet, it is hoped that it may prove a valuable playground for the little ones. The town-planning scheme for the parish is the only matter of great interest before the public at present, and it is admitted that the Association had some influence in the launching of this important scheme.

The Skyrack Bench of Magistrates have given a very plain intimation to Germans that our hospitality must not be abused. An old euphonium player, the relic of a German band that had tramped the country for twenty years or more, was charged with travelling more than five miles from his place of residence without a permit. "I have been in gaol for five days," he moaned, "and am nearly dead." The magistrates, however, were in no soft mood, and the old man was sent to prison for a month, with hard labour. "We want you and other people of your nationality," said the Chairman, "to know that these rules must be obeyed."

SKYRACK MAGISTRATES AND GERMANS

At the Leeds West Riding Police Court on Tuesday—before Mr J. W. Morkill (Chairman) and other magistrates—Adam Zink, aged 65, a German subject, living in Shannon Street, Leeds, was charged with travelling more than five miles from his place of residence without a permit.

Sergt. Clarke said he found the prisoner playing "a sort of euphonium" in Town Street, Horsforth, on November 26th. On speaking to him, witness found that Zink was a German subject, and that he had exceeded the five miles limit by about one and a half miles. He had in his possession 5s. 10d. in pennies and half-pennies. The prisoner said he thought he was only about 4½ miles from home.

The Chairman said the police found that the prisoner had been in the habit of coming to this country for many years to join a German band, which tramped the country during the summer months and returned to Germany for the winter. He had done that about twenty times, and for the last few years he had travelled over England alone, playing his euphonium in the streets.

The prisoner appealed to the Court to impose a fine. "I have been in gaol five days," he said, "and am nearly dead."

The Chairman: We want you and other people of your nationality to know that the rules have got to be obeyed. You must go to prison for one month, without hard labour.

The Parish School at Church Fenton closes for Christmas holidays after afternoon session on Wednesday, December 23rd, and re-opens on Thursday, January 7th, 1915.

Wages up! There was again a small attendance at Wetherby hirings on Thursday, though rather larger than in previous week. Girls were again very few in number. Wages, as a week ago, ruled at about £2 per head higher all round, but in one or two instances seven bigger increases were secured.

Tin, Tin.—The third monthly subscription of one pound has this week been forwarded to the treasurer of Sir John Horsfall's West Riding Distress Fund from the scholars and staff of the Church Fenton Parish School, and in addition a sum of twelve shillings and sixpence has been handed over during the month in support of the Belgian refugee family resident in the village, from the same source.

WETHERBY DOCTOR'S OPINIONS.—At a meeting of the West Riding Insurance Committee, at Wakefield, Alderman Ford presiding, a discussion took place in regard to the Medical Rules for the Administration of Medical Benefit, which the Medical Benefit Sub-Committee recommended for adoption. It was proposed that the clause, "He shall not summon the practitioner to visit him between the hours of 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., except in cases of serious emergency," should be eliminated. Alderman Dunn said these Sub-Committee had aimed at making the rules less stringent and less oppressive for the insured person.—Dr. Hargreaves (Wetherby) contended that an effort was being made to take advantage of the present distressing reasonable theory, and to put them in the position of having to attend patients both day and night. It would take a week to enter into the petitfogging complaints that were made against the doctors, but he challenged anyone to bring a reasonable complaint against the medical men of the West Riding since the Act came into force. The amendment was carried by 11 votes to 13. Mr Crossley observed that there would now be thrown upon the doctors and Sub-Committee a very serious responsibility.

YOUR WEDDING Should BE NICE whether it is Motors or Carriages. We are th most talked of and the most thought of in the City. Ask about us; get our charges BUCKTON, Claypit Lane (Top of Cookridge Street). Tele. 1877 Central. "WE NEVER SLEEP."

BEST & BOOTH Tailors & Costumiers, 119, KIRKGATE, — AND — 143, BRIGGATE (Corner of Market Street), LEEDS. Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE. Look Out for B. & B.

SMITH BROS HOLD A LARGE STOCK of MATERIALS — SUITABLE FOR — Red Cross & Hospital Work. SPECIAL DISCOUNT ALLOWED FOR QUANTITIES. BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

HARRY HAYLEY, Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse, 12, King Edward St., LEEDS Telephone 56, Has Now in Stock a Large Assortment of Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs, ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES. HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6. A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc. Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues. FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6. STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair. BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS, DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS "BY TEST THE BEST." THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of AUTUMN FOOT STYLES. Please Come Round and Inspect our Display ALL AT MODERATE PRICES. Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse 31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS. A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

CROSSGATES LITERARY SOCIETY

NIETZSCHE'S INFLUENCE ON GERMAN THOUGHT AND POLICY.

INTERESTING DISCUSSION.

"Friedrich Nietzsche and his influence on German thought and policy" was the title of an excellent lecture delivered by the Rev. J. Miller Hamilton, Minister of the Crossgates Baptist Church, before a large gathering of the members of the Crossgates Literary Society in the Schoolroom Hall on Monday evening. The President (Mr E. Hawkesworth) presided. The lecturer, at the outset, conveyed a deal of interesting information about Nietzsche, the philosopher, whose father was a minister of the Lutheran Church. A short description of his school days and university career was given and it was remarked that Nietzsche took part in the great war of 1870 as a nurse, and contracting dysentery and diphtheria there he was never really well again. He resigned a university professorship which he had held for a number of years, and having a private income he gave himself up to the writing of the books in which his philosophy is expounded. For the last ten years of his life the philosopher was insane.

Nietzsche's idea of morality, said the lecturer, was that the world was without morals, and that the world was without good or purpose. Nietzsche held that Christianity was simply superseded by conclusions which had come down from father to son. Nietzsche traced man along the lines of biology. Man, therefore, was something more than an animal, said the lecturer, for he had something that was spiritual. The philosopher had two kinds of morality. The "master morality" was the morality of the great men, and their morality was to do what they thought was right. If the master man wished to do a certain thing and succeeded that was right. The "herd morality" was that of the great mass of the people.

Nietzsche's attack on Christianity was threefold. The first was because of its morality—that Christianity was right if its morality must be right. He said it was the greatest enemy of mankind because it was the morality of the slave; it was the means whereby the lowest classes were taught and preached, and he declined that it was against the best interests of the world. Apart from his idea with regard to morality, he found that Christianity was the only force that confronted his philosophy. If Christianity was true his teaching could not be true. Christianity was hostile to life because it preserved the poorest sections of humanity, and had no lethal chamber for them. The greatest wrong Christianity had done was that it had gone against natural selection.

In one of his books Nietzsche dealt with the super-man or over-man, and he declared that the aim of his philosophy was —"Who is to be master of the world." Under his system it would be impossible to have parliaments for the saving of child life. Nietzsche justified his opinions by saying that there must be an upward trend and that was to the over-man, and the whole work of the ages was to be the creation of this over-man. The marvellous thing, said the lecturer, was that Nietzsche was an invalid for practically twenty years, yet he did not see the application of these thoughts to himself. Nietzsche's influence on England had been nil, but his books had been read in Germany by tens of thousands, although he (the lecturer) did not believe the German people as a whole understood the philosopher. While Nietzsche was not responsible for the present war, he had given expression to things which were in the men's minds and ruled men's actions. Germany had declared "We will be masters of the world. Our culture must rule the world, and it is the only culture worth preserving."

Mr J. M. Armistead, in proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, said they were very much indebted to him for the extremely good explanation of the philosophy of this famous German. They had read a great deal about him, and they had seen evidences of the result of his philosophy as it had influenced the mental bulk of Europe. The weakness of the philosophy was that every brutal bully might imagine he was a super-man.

Mr Harry Taylor, in seconding, gave a short sketch of Prussian history in order to show that the German probably believed he was the superman. Nietzsche had only expressed beliefs that had filtered down the years. Personally, he preferred Anglo-Saxon principle to the German philosophy.

Mr T. K. Diggle, in seconding, said that he did not know a single student who had gone to Germany who had not suffered. All had become more materialistic. As a result of the war, he hoped that their students would not find it necessary to go to Germany and bring back that kind of philosophy.

Mr Armistead said he knew several students who had gone to Germany and had been vastly improved.

Mr Diggle: I am only speaking of what I know.

Mr Armistead said he believed Dr. Sadler, Professor Moorman, and other leading educationists had been to Germany.

Mr Diggle said he was referring to ministers whom he had known.

Mr Armistead said he knew ministers and clergymen, too, who had been there.

The Chairman paid a very high tribute to the lecture, which he described as masterly. It gave evidence of long study and careful reading, and it had been lucidly explained. With regard to the German philosophy, he said that English ideas were best. They gave men the opportunity of rising physically, morally, and intellectually, so that they would not have a race of supermen, different from the others, but they all worked together, believing that mankind was to rise.

The lecturer, in reply to the vote of thanks, said that Nietzsche did an immense amount of good, for he made men see that conventional religion would not conquer the world. All German teaching, he said, was not the result of the philosopher, and there were many teachers whose work among students was good, but he admitted that many students who went to Germany lost their power for dealing with masses of men.

VICAR OF KIPPAX AND VISIONARIES.

MEN'S SERVICE AT WHITKIRK.

On Sunday afternoon the Vicar of Kippax (Rev. L. B. Smith) was the preacher at a men's service at the ancient church at Whitkirk. There was a large congregation of men from Crossgates, Halton, Whitkirk, and Seacroft, and Mr Smith, who is one of the most popular preachers who visit the district, gave an instructive address. "Your young men shall see visions" (Joel ii. 28) was his text, and he said this verse of the characteristics of the age was that it was practical. They dealt out short shrift to people whom they called dreamers and visionaries, and many contemptuous names were used about men and women who dreamt dreams and saw visions. They admired the man ready to deal practical in every sphere of life, and it mentioned some of the outstanding commercial men of the district. But if it was to be a success. In matters, whether vocal or instrumental, there should be regular and systematic practice, and they must be prepared to make sacrifices also, and they must begin at the beginning if they were to have ultimate success. The same was true in regard to the Bible area. No one became a great sculptor at a great painter at a short time. Excellence was only attained after years of labour. They must be practical if they would attain to excellence. But did they practical part of it? Was it true that the whole of his efforts after success in business, in the cultivation of his gifts, and in the conduct of his home life, were those things and every part of his life, were built upon a vision. There was ever before him the possible goal to which he might attain, and it was the only thing which enabled him to go on with a hard task of life. The vision gave one's practical position a dignity at all times, and it was only when sometimes the vision was blurred and indistinct that he had heart to give up. All the great men he knew were men of faith, and as Jesus what he could do. The world laughed at Matthew, because he ventured to say that he could send messages by witnesses, but he would not laugh at a man now. Lord Roberts was a practical man, but he had a vision—the greatness of the British empire, and he worked for it. He, however, had another vision, and would to God that the nation had been one with him in that vision, instead of flagging at him and saying he was only an old man and an alarmist. If this country had had half-a-million trained men to send to Belgium or North France when war broke out the campaign would have been a different aspect to-day. What was true in regard to these things was true of their religious life. Religion they had heard spoken of as being of a visionary character, and it was founded on vision. He guessed that the Lord had a vision of a world brought to the foot of the Cross, and it was gradually being realized. St. Paul had the vision of a converted Europe, and he did his best in his lifetime to realize it. Two great empires in the world at the present time had visions. The vision of the British Empire was not aggrandisement; it did not wish to bring nations to its feet, but to bring to them the best of its civilization. That had been strikingly illustrated with regard to Egypt. The German Empire had a vision of quite a different character. It was that of aggrandisement—of bringing nations under the spell of its militarism. Not one of its colonies had sprung to its side in this crisis, whereas the vision of the British Empire had been accepted by almost every one of its colonies, and Australia, Canada, New Zealand, etc., had sprung to the Empire's help. Their religious vision must be founded on love for other souls and the bringing of the world to the foot of the Cross. The clearer their vision of God was the clearer was the sense as to their practical duty in every stage of life.

A collection was made for the Belgian Refugees.

Mr Mulholland, the Conservative candidate for Burnley, who is engaged dispatch carrying, has been present with his brother, the heir to Lord Dunleath, when he died from wounds, and had the sad task of helping to dig the grave in which his elder brother was buried. Mr Mulholland has another brother in the army, and he is among the wounded.

A WELL-KNOWN WETHERBY FARMER

DEATH OF MR J. H. HOOLE, BUCKERTON.

The death took place at Pontefract, Stafford-shire, on Friday, on Mr John Henry Hoole, the owner of the Woodsom Stud, Bucketon Grange, near Wetherby.

Mr Hoole had been ailing for a considerable time past, and was on a visit for the good of his health. Deceased, who was 53 years of age, leaves a widow and six young children.

The Woodsom Stud has turned out many notable winners, and though two or three years ago his widow's trustees sold off the stud, Mr Hoole continued the breeding and had some very useful horses in his possession. Mr Hoole did not have many of the produce, but had entered several winners. The Woodsom Stud, which consists of 200 acres, and large numbers of fine cattle have been bred there and sent up to work in Wetherby, Boroughbridge, and Knaresborough.

Mr Hoole had not undertaken much public work, but had acted as District Councillor for his parish of Bickerton, and he had also been a member of the Parish Council. He had been buried on Tuesday.

His brother, Mr F. W. Hoole, retired from Bickerton many of three years ago, and now takes up his abode in Meols, which is another part of the parish. Mr J. D. Hoole, curate in Harrogate, and is the cricketer and footballer, has just left the Church and joined the Army as a recruit. There are several more brothers and sisters.

The funeral took place at the ancient church of Bilton on Saturday afternoon. The body arrived at Wetherby station from Penkridge, Staffordshire, on Thursday.

The Rev. E. P. Doudney (vicar of Bilton) and the Rev. A. O'Brien Newenham (rector of Cowthorpe), in which parish Mr Hoole farmed, and where he acted as churchwarden, conducted the service, the first-named in the church, and the latter at the grave-side.

Some of the deceased's children attended, but the mourners were Mrs Hoole (widow), Mr F. W. Hoole (brother), Louis Hoole (brother), the Misses Hoole (sisters), and other relatives. Among others attending were Col. Jerome and Mrs Jerome, Mr J. P. Heap, Dr. Hargreave, Dr. Steele, Mr. J. Leahy (Ellington), Mr. Hopkins (York), Mr. J. Thompson (Red Rigton), Mr. Holdsworth (Clifford Moor), Mr. M. Thomlinson (Escrick), Mr. H. Crossley, Mr. H. Hall, Mr. Triffit (Tockwith), Mr. Jewitt, Mr. Sturdy, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Burniston (all of Bilton), Mr. Peel (Hickerton), Mr. Lax (Cowthorpe), Mr. W. L. Kendall, and Mr. Downey (Bickerton), Mr. A. Kendall (Kirkby Wharfe), Mr. Rochelor, and the Misses Doudney (Bilton), Mr. Ridsdale (Tockwith), Mr. W. Coates (farm bailiff), Mr. Hutchinson (Wighill Park Farm), Mr W. Douthwaite (Moss Carrs).

The service was choral, the choir being in attendance, and Miss Doudney presided at the organ. The bearers were the deceased's workpeople. The coffin was of plain oak.

There were many beautiful wreaths, including one from Mr F. J. O. Montague. Mrs Murton (Wetherby) sent her carriage.

AN ANGRAM FARMER AND HORSE BREEDING

WANTS A GOOD MARKET.

Mr Cecil S. Fletcher, of Angram, near Tadcaster, writes:—"There are hundreds of British farmers who like to breed, rear, and sell good horses, so long as we can make the business a paying business.

"We know our Government have been granting now, for some years, some £40,000 per annum for thoroughbred stallion premiums, etc., and these horses have been a strong a great number of farmers' mares, for great to it. This is all very good indeed, and should have been a great inducement for farmers to breed light horses; but I have always thought that this was only one of the many mistakes our Government have been doing, and the trade has been done through dealers and at auctions. These foreigners got them very cheap, as they have had little or no competition in the trade. They, therefore, get all the good out of practically the whole scheme. After we fools here have bred and reared them they seems to me to be out of all order in every sense of the word.

"If our Government granted some £40,000 per annum in increasing the prices of the horses they buy by £20 each or a little more, as long as they are good for value, the British horse-breeding farmers would then go on breeding the class required. No one knows how to breed horses better than the British horse-loving farmers; they are the backbone of the rational horse supply.

"Farmers as a rule like to use stallions they fancy, also to arrange their mares and I do not think it is any inducement to them to have their mares served free, or at a nominal sum, a few pounds service fees. All we ask for is a good market price for our horses when ready for the market."

BARKSTON ASH FARM WORKERS' WAGES.

QUESTION OF HALF-HOLIDAYS.

Farm servants were engaged in large numbers at Selby on Monday on the occasion of the annual hirings. A fair amount of hiring was transacted at advanced wages, the rates being generally as follows:—Hinds, £18 to £22 per week, with cottage and extras; boosmen, £20 to £21 per week, with cottage; foremen, £22 to £24 per year; waggoners, £22 to £27; second waggoners, £20 to £21; young lads, £12 to £15 per year. For domestic servants the wages ranged from £10 to £20, and good cooks could command higher rates.

Mr Arthur Wilson, secretary for the Farm Workers' Union, delivered addresses from the Market Cross, in which the objects of the Union were explained, and a public meeting held, and advocated a weekly half-holiday for the farm workers. The hiring commenced about twelve o'clock, and there were many engagements struck by the speaker during the day. He pointed out that the fact that the workmen were getting better pay was evidence of the worth of the movement.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT AT TADCASTER.

A concert was given by the Tadcaster Choral Society in the Tadcaster Town Hall in aid of the National Relief Fund and the Belgian Refugees' Fund, last week, and was attended by a large and appreciative audience. The Tadcaster Choral Society has made good strides under the capable conductorship of the Rev. C. Daly Atkinson (vicar of Wighill). At the concert the members gave a very fine example of choral singing. The voices were admirably balanced, and of exceedingly good quality, with a beautiful blend. The singers entered into their work with zeal, and sang with judgment and taste. The programme opened with the Allies' National Anthems and airs, arranged by A. Faggie. When all was so well done it is difficult to award the palm to any particular item, but perhaps the most noticeable of the efforts of the chorus were "The Gosling-" (Sir F. Bridge), and "It comes from the misty ages" (Elgar).

The attraction of the evening was the performance of Mdlle. Hubertha von Kerkhove, the noted Belgian harpist. She escaped from Courtrai at the outbreak of the war, and was fortunate enough to be able to secure her harp. Mdlle von Kerkhove is a grand prize winner of the Brussels Conservatoire, and secured other distinctions in Belgium. She has gained a perfect mastery of the harp, her playing being marked by wonderful technique, firmness of touch, and artistic taste. These attainments were made evident in a fine piece by Saint Saens, in which the player displayed marked ability. Her other contribution to the programme was "La Source" (Hasselmans). In response to an encore she played the Belgian National Anthem, which was sung by the audience.

Madame Bell, of Leeds, sang several ballads most effectively, and Mr Hayle, of Leeds, created a great impression by his artistic rendering of three of Stanford's sea songs—"Drake's Drum," "The Old Superb," and "Devon, Oh Devon." He also sang "Arm, arm, ye Brave" (Handel). Mr Gale's excitations "The Revenge" (Tennyson), and "The Temptation of St. Anthony" (Ippolidi), were a feature of the concert. Miss Sykes, L.R.A.M., deserved great praise for her accomplished accompanying.

SELBY BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

The Selby Guardians at their fortnightly meeting on Monday—Mr R. L. Walker presiding—agreed to give during Christmas week extra allowances to recipients of outdoor relief, namely, 1s. to each adult, and 6d. in respect of each child.

Statistics of vagrancy for the past five years prepared by Mr Bagenal, Local Government Board Inspector, showed decrease in the Selby Union of over 1,000. This compared favourably with adjoining Unions.

Miss Eva Fell resigned the post of cook and general assistant to get married, and she applied for a testimonial.

Mrs Wright spoke highly of her services and the Clerk was directed to give Miss Fell a very good testimonial.

It was decided to issue an advertisement inviting applications for the vacancy.

A letter from the Local Government Board regarding British-born wives and children of interned enemy aliens, notified that the relief granted to these in distress would be paid out of Government funds and not from Poor Law funds.

These women at Selby had applied, and the Clerk was instructed to pay them the relief.

In the case of a man suffering from consumption, whose condition the Medical Officer (Dr. Todd) described as highly infectious, and who wished to leave the Workhouse, it was stated that the Guardians had no power to detain him. They could only use "powerful persuasion."

A ROTHWELL COUPLE'S DIFFERENCES.

SETTLED IN THE SKYRACK COURT.

WHAT OCCURRED IN A TRAM-CAR.

The chief case before the magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday was one in which three Rothwell people were the principal figures. It consisted of three summonses, the first being that of Betsy Priestley, a married woman, separated from her husband, against John Priestley, for assault, and the other two were issued by John Priestley against the prosecutrix in the first instance, and her son, Harold Butler.

Mr Ali Masser appeared for John Priestley, and explained that the assault was upon Priestley's wife, and this defendant Butler was a son of the woman by a first marriage. His client had joined the Royal Garrison Artillery but was discharged because he was unfit. Mr Masser suggested that the parties, if willing, should be bound over, but after they had been outside in the corridor to discuss matters, he intimated that they could not agree.

The first case—that of Betsy Priestley against John—was opened. Complainant stated that about 11.15 p.m. on Saturday, November 21st, she boarded a car at the Market Gates, Leeds, and when the car was on its journey the defendant jumped on. On seeing her he started calling her names, and when the conductor came round for the fare he said he was the —— man to pay. He also "up with his fist" and was going to send her head through the window. As he did so he said "I'll murder tha." She was so frightened that she got up and went to the other side of the car. Only four weeks before he had followed her out of the car and hit an old man who had been sitting near her, because he said the old man had been trying to take her off.

Mr Masser: Was you were so frightened did you make a complaint to the conductor?—Complainant: No.

Why?—Because I did not want to have anything to do with him.

It does not look as if you were frightened if you did not make any complaint. You have not been on good terms with the defendant?—Not for thirteen months.

And he has had to go to prison twice this year for you?—Yes, and there is an application against him now.

Do you know that he joined the Royal Garrison Artillery and you got more money than you would otherwise have done?—Yes.

And he said he had joined because you would then have a proper allowance?—Yes.

Was he put off the car did anyone attack him?—Yes, he struck my son, and my son struck him back.

What did you do?—I got hold of his collar and tried to pull him off my son.

Would it be true to say that while he was on the ground you were kicking him?—Yes, I did.

Mrs Parminter, who was called as a witness by the complainant, said that on the night in question she was in the car, and she heard the man Priestley use bad language. He said he would knock complainant through the window, and she told him that she was taking no notice of him. The defendant then said he would make her, and threatened to murder her.

The Chairman: Was the defendant sober?—Witness: He had had some beer.

Mr Masser: Did you interfere?—Witness: No, I was with my husband.

Did he interfere?—No.

Mr Masser: Then you must have been very frightened.

John Priestley then gave evidence, and, in answer to Mr Masser, said he ran after the car on the night in question and boarded it, and it was not until the car got to Thwaite Gate that he saw his wife. On the previous Saturday he had walked across the fields with her to her home. On the night of the assault his wife had had some drink, and he had had some, too. He accused his wife of having had some drink. He did not threaten to murder her.

Mr Masser: Had you any intention of doing so?—No. I have done my best for her. I paid her fare on the car.

At Sydney Lane, continued Priestley, he got off because his wife asked him. The son got off from the top deck and said to him "You are not coming to our house." He (the son) then struck at him, and his wife joined in. He was "knocked over. After the assault he had been in bed, and he had marks all over him where he had been kicked, and a plaster down one side of his face.

John Atack, gardener, Tyling-at Rothwell Haigh, said he was walking down Wood Lane, Rothwell, about 11.30 p.m., and when he reached Sydney Lane he saw Butler and Priestley fighting on the pavement. Mrs Priestley was also hitting her husband. As she kicked him, he said "Nay, Mrs Priestley, if they want to fight, let them fight fair." (Laughter).

Mr Masser: Did she look like a woman who was afraid of the man?—Witness: "No, she didn't, to be going at it like that." (Laughter).

Harold Butler: Did you see me strike a fight don't you?—Witness: Yes, but a fair one.

George William Hirst said that on the night in question he was at the house of Priestley's mother when Priestley came home. He had had to be helped home, and he was in a terrible state—bleeding from the face. He helped to get him to bed. There were marks all over his body. He (Priestley) was not drunk.

The female defendant, in answer to the Chairman, said she had nothing to say. She left the defendant Butler and their Priestley. Prabbed hold of his mother's arm and he went up to them. Priestley striking him.

The Chairman: You seem to have taken less marks away than him.

Butler: Yes, I have training at a gymnasium.

The Chairman: Have you enlisted.

Butler: No, I am only seventeen.

The Chairman: Well, I hope you will do so at the earliest possible moment, as you are such a fighter.

After a brief discussion, the Chairman described the assault upon John Priestley as an unprovoked one, and an order was made on Mrs Priestley and Butler to keep the peace for six months.

HALTON SCHOOL BOYS' SUCCESS

UNBEATEN FOOTBALL TEAM.

It was expected that the meeting of the Halton C.S. Rugby team, who are undefeated this season, and Holbeck Trades School, at Halton on Saturday afternoon, would produce an interesting game, and people went out to Simpson, who was pushed in touch inches short of the line. From the ensuing scrum Jones cleared with a lengthy kick into touch. Another attack gained possession, and, with a strong run, scored under the posts, Hayes goaling. Shortly after this, Holbeck were penalised for off-side tactics, and Hayes kicked a fine goal from near half-way. Holbeck then played with renewed vigour, and Simpson's attempt to get through was finely checked. They, however, kept play in the homesters' half for some time, but the Halton defence was very sound, and Halton had little difficulty in keeping them out. A passing round, in which the whole of the Halton backs participated, enabled Simpson to score in the corner after a very fine run. Alec Killerby was afterwards prominent with a splendid dribble, and he added Halton's third try. At half-time the score was—Halton 2 goals 3 tries (13 points) to nil.

Great restarted for Halton, and early on Wilson got away and dodged over, Hayes adding the major points. Holbeck tried to get away with passing, but Halton broke up, and Killerby lifted up, and, after a run, put in a short kick, and Kenney followed up smartly, and touched down under the posts, Hayes goaling. Holbeck pressed for a time, but Halton backs, who have relieved with a short kick into touch, Halton then attacked, and Burnan picked up in the loose and dashed over. Hayes again goaling Burnan again showed to great effect, and was tackled just short of the line. On playing the ball, he heeled out to Hayes, and the latter had no difficulty in making a score, while he also added the major points. Halton thus remain undefeated, this being their ninth successive victory. The Halton forwards played much below their usual form, but, overcoming their weight, the tackling of Nicholson and Wilson was of a high standard, whilst Kenney showed marked improvement in this department. Halton won by 6 goals, 7 tries (33 points) to nil.

LEEDS HOSPITAL CUP—DRAW FOR THIRD ROUND.

A meeting of the Leeds Hospital Cup Committee was held at the Hospital Offices, on Monday night, Mr W. H. Ellis presiding.

The draw for the third round resulted as follows:—

Garforth White Rose or Fryston Colliery v. Lock Lane Workmen. Referee, M. Joel.

Great Preston White Rose v. Methley Perseverance. Referee, W. Lupton.

Rothwell Parish Church or New Wortley Gasworks v. Woodhouse Britannia. Referee, R. W. Smithers.

East Ardsley or Ahotts Albion v. Clarence Ironworks. Referee, A. Holmes.

The first two games to be played on December 12th, and the other two on December 26th.

New Wortley Gasworks were fined 2s. 6d. for a 20 minutes late start at Rothwell Parish Church last Saturday, and were ordered to replay the game at Rothwell on December 12th. Ahotts Albion were similarly dealt with for being 35 minutes late at East Ardsley, and Heckmondwike were fined 2s. for being 30 minutes late at Great Preston.

It is stated that so far 416 German philosophists have been killed during the war. Six hundred and ten high school teachers have received the Iron Cross.

EVERY WOMAN

Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c.

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

The Danish Government has decided to prohibit the export of tea from Denmark.

An unusual case was dealt with at Aberdeen, on Saturday, when Sydney Skeates, a ship's cook, was liberated pending further inquiry, on suspicion of attempting, by fraudulent means, to obtain possession of German trawlers, which are lying at Aberdeen as prizes of war. It was alleged that Skeats pretended he was a Captain Thompson, and that he had been sent by the Admiralty to take charge of the prizes, and that by this means he attempted to secure four excellent German trawlers.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1872.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 0
40	1 0	1 9	3 3	6 6

Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do.	10d.	do.	do.
52 do.	8d.	do.	do.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.

Wednesday, 9th December, 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby. 1.32 p.m. to Selby and Hull. Saturday, 12th December, 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby.

For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

WANTED GENERAL, age 18 to 20.—Apply, Mrs GEORGE CAMPBELL, Woodsford. 2

WANTED Good GENERAL, 18 to 20.—Apply, ENGLISH, Beulah House, Crossgates. 1677

WANTED Three HAYCUTTERS, immediate employment.—KING, Vernon Street, Leeds. 2

WANTED Strong, Respectable GIRL, about 17.—Mrs ROBGERS, 70, Hollyhaw Lane, Whitkirk. 2014

WANTED Good, Strong GENERAL, 18 to 20. Furnished home. References.—Mrs. LUMB, Leyfield, Aberford.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, chiefly housework. Three in family.—Apply, GREEN, "Jesmond," Selby Road, Whitkirk, near Leeds. 2

WANTED Experienced GENERAL, age 20 to 25. No cooking. 3 in family. Salary 7s. Plenty of liberty.—Apply, 12, Brunswick Place, Leeds. 2 1657

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale Good SECOND-HAND ENGLISH PIANO. Walnut case, Iron frame, Check action. Cheap.—CAWOOD, 30, Marshall Terrace, Crossgates. 3 2035

FOR Sale 8-DAY GRANDFATHER CLOCK, Mahogany case; also 8-Day ditto, Oak case. Good going order.—Apply, Jackson, Watch and Clock Maker, Aberford Road, Crossgates. All Kind of Repairs done. 3 1672

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free, 2 Stamps.—(S) DAVIES & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs. W. WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.
Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE, (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 for 2½d. per month.
£1 0 0 ,, 5d. ,, ,,
£3 0 0 ,, 10d. ,, ,,
£5 10 0 ,, 1od. ,, ,,
£8 0 0 ,, 18. 0d. ,, ,,
£5 0 0 ,, 7s. 8d. ,, ,,
£8 0 0 ,, 2s. 8d. ,, ,,
£18 0 0 ,, 3s. 4d. ,, ,,
Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

MR and MRS. TURNER
7 Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited.
Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 241.

PATENTS for obtained by INVENTIONS.
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
Ex Oficer Established in Leeds. Handbook Free. or British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2718. HALIFAX 358.

Geat's 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CROSSGATES BAPTIST FELLOWSHIP.
LECTURE HALL, WHITKIRK—
TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8th, at 8 p.m.
LECTURE—
"In the Days of My Grandfather."
by Mr FRANK KIDSON.
Chairman - Mr. HAWKESWORTH.

GARFORTH SCIENCE LECTURES.
COUNCIL SCHOOL, GARFORTH—
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, at 8 p.m.
LECTURE—
"Some Aspects of Bird Life,"
by PROFESSOR GARSTANG, M.A., D.Sc. (Oxon.).

TO THE LADIES OF CROSSGATES DISTRICT.
MISS MONKHOUSE having moved into Crossgates from Bradford, would be pleased to MAKE UP LADIES' OWN MATERIALS.
EXPERT SKIRT, BLOUSE, and CHILDREN'S COATS and DRESSES. Fit and style guaranteed. Moderate charges. Work done at home, or by the day.
MISS MONKHOUSE (Over MOON'S, Grocers), CROSSGATES. 2

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.
Every Evening at 7 o'clock, except
SATURDAY: Two Performances at 6.30 & 8.30
WEEK COMMENCING DECEMBER 7th.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
"THE CAMEO OF THE YELLOW STONE."
An Exciting and Powerful Story of the West.
"A BUSY DAY."
Keystone Farce, featuring Charlie Chaplin, the King of Screen Comedians.
THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY.
ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN.
The second series of Selig's Sensational Jungle Picture, entitled
"THE TWO ORDEALS."
A Splendid Film Picturing the Gallantry of the Famous London Scottish at the Front, entitled,
"BRAVO, KILTIES!!"
Two-Reel Comedy
"LOVE, LUCK, AND GASOLINE."
Children's Matinee on Saturday at 2.30.
Popular Prices 2d., 4d., and 6d.

BARKER'S BRITISH PIANOS,
SALE. SALE. SALE.
MAGNIFICENT BARGAINS.
GREATER REDUCTIONS TO CLEAR.
£5.—AVILL & SMART, London.
£5.—TOLKIN, London.
£15.—BISHOP, London.
£16.—COLLARD & COLLARD, London.
£18.—ROBERTS & ROBERTS, London.
£18 10s.—J. & J. HOPKINSON, London.
£19.—SEILER, oversrung, ebony, ivory keys.
£23.—KIRKHAM, oversrung, London.
£26.—KRAUSS, oversrung, ebony, ivory keys.
PIANOS by SCHIEDMAYER, RICHARD LIPP, STEINWAY & SONS, ERNST KAPS, BECHSTEIN, HALDERG, KNAUSS, NEUMAYER, WALDEMAR, discounted regardless of cost, in order to clear them from our Showrooms.
BECHSTEIN, upright, again reduced to clear £38.
PIANOLA PIANO, by Orchestrelle Co., to clear £60.
SPECIAL OFFER PRIVATE SALE.
BRINSMEAD, New Model, oversrung, ivory keys £38
COLLARD & COLLARD, New Model, oversrung, ivory keys £36
SCHIEDMAYER, BABY GRAND, quite new, in reserved case, original cost 110 guineas; inspection invited; rare bargain, only 68 guineas.
BARKER'S ANNUAL SALE,
NEW STATION STREET, LEEDS.

"At Your Service!"

C. E. WALLIS,
Briggate, GARFORTH,
Begs to inform his old customers and the inhabitants of the district generally, that in consequence of Mr. SMITH DECLINING BUSINESS, and at the request of many old customers, he will re-open his premises
ON DECEMBER 4th, 1914,
with a very choice selection of
Best English Beef, Mutton, and Veal, in addition to his noted Pork Business. Everything in the way of Pork Pies, Polonies, Beef and Pork Sausages, etc., is Made on the Premises Fresh Daily.
Mr. WALLIS has confidence that the entire satisfaction which he has given in the past will be a sufficient guarantee for the future, and hopes to secure your esteemed patronage.
No Order too Small, None too Large for
C. E. WALLIS,
Beef and Pork Butcher,
Briggate, GARFORTH.
"The Shop at Your Service."

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
Dental Rooms,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8,
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates,
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

NEXT WEDNESDAY, AT 12 O'CLOCK.
THE AUCTION MART, WHITKIRK.
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will hold their Monthly Horse Sale on Wednesday next, DECEMBER 9th, when they will offer
50 to 60 VALUABLE HORSES.
Further entries should reach the Auctioneers', Garforth, not later than noon on Tuesday next.

ON MONDAY NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
20 CHOICE BULLOCKS and HEIFERS.
80 FAT LAMBS, SHEARLINGS, and EWES.
PORK and STORE PIGS.
WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers, and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON,
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

THREE GOOD LINES:
CINEMA GREEN PEAS,
Housewife Marrowfat Peas,
Id., 1½d. & 3d. Packets.
— AND —
CROWN VINEGAR.
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
DEWSBURY ROAD, LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this:-
The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.
There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.
Recommended by the Medical Faculty.
A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.
CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.
HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists,
and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

Established 37 Years.
WM. DENTON & SON,
23, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.
Insurance Brokers.
Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

Useful Suggestions for Inexpensive Christmas Gifts.

If you wish to spend your money to the best advantage this Christmas, buy presents that are really useful and INEXPENSIVE. Doyles have a beautiful selection of China and Glassware goods which make the most attractive and appropriate presents. Why not call and look round?

Vases in Cut Glass or Fine China from 1/- each.
Dainty and Pretty Tea Sets from 10/- per set of 40 pieces.
Dinner Sets, all sizes and all prices from 10/6 per set.
Toilet Sets from 5/- per set.
Trinket Sets from 2/6 per set.
A large selection of Butter Dishes, Tea Pots, Hot Water Jugs, Fruit Dishes, Cake Stands, Flower Pots, Bulb Bowls, Placques, Tumblers, Wine Glasses, Etc.

DOYLE'S, Ltd.,
59, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

Established 1824. Established 1885.
GENERAL
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Liberal Benefits and conditions. Low Premiums.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE every sixth year to householders and private property owners.
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in one mention with risks of Fire, Burglary, and accidents in servants.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, including guaranteed options.
Workmen's Compensation,
Motor Car, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee,
Driving Accidents, Lift Risks,
Plate Glass, and Farmers' Insurances.
Chief Offices—General Buildings, Perth, Scotland.
General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C.
The Oldest and Strongest independent Offices.
Assets exceed £5,500,000.
Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager — P. NORIE-MILLER, J.P.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, and ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5th, 1914.

Speculation concerning the influence of the forces let loose by the war upon civilization is already engaging men's minds, and there seems to be general agreement that it will be impossible to approach questions vitally affecting the nation from the old standpoint. Belgium provides a striking lesson. The land is devastated, towns and cities have been laid in the dust, and commerce and industry have been ruined; national wealth has been destroyed by the destructive invader; yet there remains the source of all the nation's true wealth—the brave, honour-loving people. Belgians, grateful for a temporary asylum in Britain, tell us that they will recreate their country on a new and greater Belgium, after the foe has been rolled back, and they will do all they say because their national integrity is unimpaired. They have demonstrated to the world that there are greater things on earth than wealth—nationality, honour, and freedom, and the Belgians would not barter away their heritage on any terms. The Belgian nation and in the case of the man whose business premises have been gutted by fire; they will have practically to begin again; but the indomitable spirit which made a small people resist the greatest military power in history will perpetuate that purpose, and the national life and freedom will be dearer than ever to them because of the enormous sacrifices they have made for it.

In this war of German aggression, France, too, has suffered enormously, but her sons, inspired by the highest patriotism, have shown themselves not less worthy on the battlefield than the veterans of Napoleon. They are under no delusion as to the magnitude of the contest, and the nation is absolutely united. Already French writers tell us they have glorious visions of a greater and nobler France emerging victoriously from the titanic struggle to play with equal success in the world's affairs the part in the civilization of the world when peace returns. Russia is a bigger problem, with its many races, but in that case, too, there is a united people. No word of Nihilism nowadays. What does it all mean? Surely opportunity for Russian statesmanship has never occurred, and indications are not lacking that the futility of coercion has begun to dawn upon the Slav mind. Self-government has been promised for a new and united Poland, and if the Russian leaders can realize that the preservation and cultivation of national life and aspirations are powerful factors in the welding of the empire they will accomplish a purpose which no war could have achieved. They have the example of the British Empire, but it must be remembered that in many parts of the vast regions of Russia there is a huge population, while kindly-disposed and industrious, sunk in ignorance and superstition, so the problem is one of enormous difficulty. Nevertheless, it may be confidently predicted that as an outcome of the war the great Russian nation will take a big stride forward.

—Germany and Austria are face to face with economic ruin—industry has been paralysed, and the dissolution of the Austrian Empire would cause no surprise. Although in Germany they are still playing the game of make-believe, the leading men know the empire is doomed, and if the Allies do what is expected of them, it will be destroyed for ever as an instrument of mischief. Never did a nation enter upon a war so fraught with disaster for itself, and the punishment will assuredly be no greater than is deserved, for the war is a horrible outrage upon civilization.

In this country, against which German aggression is really directed, sacrifices—insignificant when compared with those made by Belgium—have been demanded, and they have been gladly made. All classes are working together with wonderful unanimity, and for the first time in our history the nation is one. Hushed is political and industrial strife, and, despite the vapourings of a wretched partizan here and there, the people have concentrated upon one object—the successful ending of the war. Considerably more than a million men, including Territorials, have come forward like heroes to serve the country in her hour of need, and they have been drawn from all classes, and how eager they all are to get into the fighting line. Britain has the money, and she has shown that she has the men, too—the best fighting men in the world, and they are animated by the highest patriotism. Belgium has demonstrated to us wherein lies a nation's wealth, and already we have begun to learn. One manifestation of this is the more generous provision that is being made for disabled soldiers and the dependents of men who have fallen. No one was apparently satisfied with the revised terms offered, and a committee, representative of all parties, is now at work on a new plan, which, it is thought, will be adequate to meet the necessities of the case. It is, therefore, apparent that the nation has travelled a long way since the time of the South African War. It is an indication that already the war has had a powerful effect on men's opinions. A man has descended to the depths and suffered agonies he cannot help his being transformed—his attitude to many things is changed, and when a nation passes through such a crisis as that now upon us it must inevitably have a deep and abiding mark. Much will, of course, depend on individual leaders, but during the present generation, at any rate, a kindlier feeling should exist in remembrance of the sacrifices that have been made in a common cause. Differences of opinion will always exist, but partizanship should be less bitter. No single party or section can pretend to believe that it has a monopoly of patriotism, for all classes have demonstrated that love of country which we have always thought was inherent in Britons.

One fruitful result of the war has been the drawing closer of the bonds between the dominions over the seas and the mother country. Whether closer unity between the different parts of the Empire is desirable or not, the colonies have again proved that no material link is necessary to keep them to the mother land, and the world acknowledges that such a demonstration of affection was never shown by people thousands of miles apart to their own kith and kin. Blood is thicker than water, but one of the most remarkable things about the Canadian attitude has been the loyalty displayed by the Germans who have made their home in the great Dominion. In the Fatherland it is fervently believed that Germany has a mission in bringing its "kulture" to all the races of the earth, but, instead of the British Empire being Germanised, there is every evidence that Germans, under our rule, become good subjects of the Empire. All this is a triumph for the methods of British government, and the Empire will be stronger after the war than at the commencement. Even more striking is the response of India, which is not governed in the same way as the dominions over the seas. The Indian soldiers are tremendously eager to get to the war, for they deem it a signal honour to fight for the King-Emperor, and the Empire, and, again, it is a tribute to the justice and even-handedness of British rule. "I am an Indian," said one soldier, "but I am also a Briton," and this is an admission and a claim. It first admits the excellence of the methods applied to India, and it is a claim to the citizenship of the proudest empire the world has ever known. The Indian likes magnificence, and the idea of belonging to such an empire fills him with pride. Happy, indeed, is the mother country in her family—loyal and vigorous, and when hostilities are over we may be sure that the bonds which unite all parts of the Empire will become even stronger than they are because of the sacrifices that have been made to keep the soil inviolate.

At Tibthorpe Joseph Binnington (64), a joiner, hanged himself in his kitchen. He had been depressed.

The King travelled to France on Sunday night to visit the Generals & Headquarters of the British Expeditionary Force.

A tramcar at Devonport on Friday jumped the metals at the bottom of a hill, and overturned. A man was killed and 20 injured.

Sir Ernest Shackleton's South Polar expedition has been delayed, possibly until next year, by the dockyards strike in Australia.

It was decided on Friday that of football matches nothing beyond results will be published in any London morning or evening newspaper.

At the Coroner's inquiry on Friday into the circumstances attending the death of five aliens following a riot in the internment camp at Douglas, Isle of Man, the jury found that death was caused by justifiable measures forced upon the military authorities.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 1s. 6d. each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines

IN MEMORIAM.

GOODALL.—In loving memory of our dear brother, Thomas Goodall, who died December 4th, 1913.

"Two years have passed, but still we miss him,
Never will his memory fade;
Ever linger thoughts will ever linger
Around the grave where he is laid."
From his loving father, brothers, and sisters.

Mrs Ellison and family thank all members and friends for the kind sympathy shown to them in their sad bereavement.—Liberal Club, Garforth.

I wish to thank all friends for their sympathy and flowers in my sad and sudden bereavement.—George Hy. Kilburn, Barley Hill, Garforth.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL.

FOR LEEDS BELGIAN REFUGEES.—The concert held in the Old Band Room, Rothwell, on Wednesday, November 11th, in aid of the Leeds Belgian Refugee Fund realised a profit of £3, which sum has accordingly been forwarded to the Lord Mayor of Leeds.

FOOTBALL.—The draw for the second round of the Rothwell Charity Cup has resulted as follows:—Rothwell Old Boys v. Great Preston White Rose, East Ardsley United v. Garforth White Rose, Oulton St. John's v. Rothwell Athletic, Byes—Rothwell White Rose, Bowers Allerton, Altofts Albion, Clarence Iron and Steel Works, and Methley Perseverance. To be played on or before December 12th.

A WOMAN'S CONDITION.—Jane Bennett, a widow of Rothwell Haigh, was summoned at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday for having been drunk and disorderly. P.C. Bosomworth stated that about 6.30 p.m. on Saturday, November 21st, he was in Carlton Lane, Rothwell, where he found the defendant in a very drunken condition, leaning against a lamp-post. He ordered her away, and she went in the direction of her sister's house. Later he was called by a sister to eject the defendant because of her language. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

LOCAL BELGIAN RELIEF FUND.—The hon. secretary of this fund (Mrs Buck) wishes to acknowledge the receipt of £4 4s. 6d. from the Rothwell Wesleyan Choir, the proceeds of the performance of the cantata "Daniel" given in the chapel on November 22nd, and also £4 4s., per Miss Ryder, the result of the children's concerts held last week in the Wood Nook Infants' School. Mrs Buck has been in communication with the authorities at Wakefield, and as a result it is hoped to welcome a party of refugees shortly.

CONCERT IN ROTHWELL.—A children's entertainment was given in the Rothwell Wood Lane Infants' School on Thursday and Saturday by the children attending the school. The first part of the programme was of a miscellaneous character, and the second part took the form of a pretty operetta entitled "The Fairies." The stage was transformed into a fairyland scene, and the operetta proved a great success. The effort resulted in a sum of four guineas being handed over to the Rothwell Belgian Relief Fund.

BILLIARDS.—The junior team of the Rothwell Working Men's Club had a match with the Mechanics' Institute, Rothwell, on Saturday night, winning by 117 points. Out of the six games played the Working Men's Club won five, scoring a total of 581 points to 464. The individual scores were as follows (Mechanics' names first):—C. Berry 83 v. G. Pickersgill 100, G. Drury 100 v. T. Naylor 81, H. Taylor 51 v. R. Deakin 100, G. H. Palmer 77 v. L. Thurwell 100, J. T. Priestley 63 v. H. Bennett 100, and L. Elstob 90 v. O. Banks 100. H. Bennett made a break of 31, and his opponent, J. T. Priestley, compiled a break of 28.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—At the Wesleyan Church on Sunday missionary anniversary services were celebrated. The preacher for the day was the Rev. E. H. Mawson, the governor of the Headingley College. In the afternoon a service for the young folks was held, and various children of the Sunday School took part in it. On Wednesday afternoon a sermon was preached by the Rev. F. Brown, a returned missionary from China. Tea was afterwards served in the schoolroom, and in the evening the Rev. F. Brown gave a very interesting sketch of his twenty years' experience in China. Ald. Pickersgill, of Leeds, who is a Rothwell lad, presided, and the Rev. N. W. Thomlinson was also present and took part in the meeting. Miss Stephenson, the local secretary, read the annual report, which was very gratifying.

OLD SCHOLARS' FESTIVAL.—The annual effort arranged by the old scholars of the Rothwell Primitive Methodist Church Sunday School took place last week-end. A largely-attended tea was held in the schoolroom, and this was followed by a social evening, when songs, readings, recitations, and selections by the ladies' band were given. On Sunday the services proved a great success. The special preacher was Mr W. Denton, and in the afternoon a service of song, "A gambler's honour," was rendered by the old scholars' choir. Mr J. Southwart conducted the singing, and the organ accompaniments were ably played by Mr J. C. Hampson. Mr Ezra Naylor was the chairman, and the reading portions were contributed by Councillor W. Lamb. On Monday evening an enjoyable concert programme was gone through by Mr T. Hollings' quartette party.

MR F. HALL, M.P., AND THE WAR.—Mr Fred Hall, M.P. for Normanton Division, speaking at a recruiting meeting at Castleford on Saturday night, said he dared say that some of his audience had heard him more than once deprecate war, but he would say at once that in the present case there was no possible escape with honour from war. Everybody believed that our country was worth fighting for, and if the men who were now holding back could for the moment cast the Germans would come to England they would rise as one man. Well, the enemy had been very near. They were not far from Yarmouth a short time ago, and it was still possible that if we were weak in any one link they could break through. He did not think that we had shone so much at home. The Colonies had done well, and although he had always been an opponent of conscription, it rather shook his confidence when he saw the laxity that existed among the men in this country to-day.

In the Leeds Amateur Football League on Saturday afternoon Rothwell Haigh United defeated Wellington Athletic by five goals to one.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Messrs J. W. Morkill (Chairman), E. Parkin, J. R. Cross, and W. Evans.

FOOTBALL.—Consequent on the late arrival of the New Wortley Gas Works' team the Leeds Hospital Cup match with Rothwell Parish Church had to be curtailed owing to bad light and the match has been ordered to be re-played on December 12th at Rothwell. The match was timed to commence at 2.30, but the visitors did not put in an appearance until after three o'clock, and then they had a man short. Rothwell kicked off up the slope, and they were at once on the attack, and the Gas Workers' custodian was soon called upon to save. After a shot from Lunn had been turned, White tested Glancey from a corner kick, and the ball found the net. Soon after the visitors equalled through Broughton. A second goal for the homesters was scored by Hickin, and before the interval White had increased the lead. In the second half the Rothwell team pressed the Gas Workers hard, but five missed several good chances of getting goals. A fourth goal was scored by Davies, and the game ended with the Parish Church leading by four goals to one.

PROPOSED ROLL OF HONOUR.—With the sanction and approval of the Rothwell Urban War Committee, Mr A. Marshall is compiling a list of names of men who have gone from the Rothwell Council's area to serve their country in the present war. The list will comprise all persons engaged in the military, naval, ambulance, or reserve divisions, and will be divided into sections, showing the five wards of the Council's district separately. In order to make the list a correct record Mr Marshall has addressed circulars to numerous people in the district whose sons or husbands have gone, asking for full information as to rank, battalion, regiment, or ship in which the person referred to is serving. In making the idea known Mr Marshall states in the circular:—"It is intended to preserve this statement in a book set apart for the purpose, together with any additional particulars of interest; and at the close of the war, this record will be available for drawing up a permanent roll of honour, to be framed and hung in the Council chamber, to the glory of our heroic sons."

COAL MINING.—Mr Walter Hargreaves, President, was in the chair at the dinner of the Midland Institute of Mining, Civil, and Mechanical Engineers at Sheffield on Friday. In reply to the toast of "The Institute," he said the year to be considered all the problems of mining, but everything that had been done seemed to have gone in the direction of making the ton of coal cost more money than before, and it seemed to him that the energy of mining engineers of the future would be directed to the question of how to apply with the greatest economy the cost which they produced. He thought the effect of this economical use of coal would be very wonderful. He would not be surprised to see in the next thirty or forty years a great difference in the countryside. They would stop the waste that was going on. They would not allow 85 per cent. of the value of their coal to go up their chimneys, and be content to get only 15 per cent. of useful effect out of this national treasure, and if our future engineers gave proper attention to it we should find this country a very much pleasanter place to live in, and our power got with less money than it was today.

ALLERTON BYWATER

On Saturday afternoon in the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition Lock Lane W. defeated Pontefract by seven goals to one.

CARLTON

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—In connection with the Wesleyan Church special services were held on Sunday to celebrate the missionary anniversary. Sermons were preached by a student from the Headingley College. On Monday evening an interesting address was given by a returned missionary from South Africa, Mr Joseph Gibson, of Rothwell, presided, and the Rev. N. W. Thomlinson (resident minister of Rothwell) also took part in the service.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Playing in the senior division of the Oulton and District Billiard League the Temperance Hall team were defeated by Rothwell Mechanics' Institute. The home team (Carlton) scored an aggregate in the six games of 501 against 531. Scores (Rothwell names first):—W. Armstead 92, v. B. Pozzoni 100, E. Beckwith 88 v. I. Fox 100, W. Watson 100 v. A. Archer 67, S. Edwards 100 v. E. Brown 73, J. Ainsworth 100 v. R. Ellis 51, and H. Banks 98 v. W. Page 100.

CROSSGATES

Mrs A. E. Holford, of Crossgates, has given £20, and Mr G. D. Holford £5 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

A sum of £8 14s., the proceeds of a Cinderella dance at Crossgates, has been sent to Leeds National Relief Fund.

On Tuesday evening Mr Frank Rildon, of Leeds, will give a lecture on "In the days of my grandfather," at the Baptist Fellowship at Whitkirk.—See advt.

CROSSGATES AND DISTRICT SWEET 4PEA SOCIETY.—The annual general meeting of this Society was held in Abbott's Cafe on Thursday night week, and it was well attended. The year's work was reviewed, and in all departments substantial progress was reported. The new rose section had yielded a very gratifying response, as had also the experiment of having open classes for both sweet peas and roses. The programme for next year is full of interest, and is far and away the most attractive presented by the society. Several valuable special prizes will be offered for competition. A silver cup, to be won three times in all, will be given by Mr F. Parkinson, of Manston, for competition in the rose classes for members, and a gold medal will be presented by Mr F. Hardwick, of Manston, for competition in the sweet pea classes for members, while a special prize of a dozen rose trees will be given by Mr Walsh, Portadown, per Mr Chapman. The society is particularly fortunate in having such handsome special prizes given for the 1915 exhibition. Competition should, as a result, be much keener. The holding of meetings of the members from time to time was discussed, and the meetings are now placed on a better footing and new their continuance is assured. This decision is very satisfactory, when it is remembered how helpful the meetings have been to all who attended them. The secretary presented a scheme for finding out the best varieties of sweet peas, and this was unanimously approved of, and a sub-committee was appointed to carry it out. It will at once be recognized that this society is gradually increasing its sphere of work for the mutual benefit of its members and the district generally. A large number of people are interested in its work, and an increased membership is required. All the officers were re-elected.

GARFORTH

A recent performance at the Picture House for the local Belgian Refugee Fund realized the sum of £7 12s.

On Wednesday evening next Professor Gardiner will give a lecture in the Council School on "Some Aspects of Bird Life."—See advt.

FOOTBALL.—For the third time Garforth White Rose and South Milford met in the first round of the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition on Saturday afternoon. Garforth proved themselves the better side on this occasion, and won by four goals to nil.

THE LATE MR C. ELLISON.—The grave closed over the late Mr Chas. Ellison, steward of the Garforth Liberal Club, last week-end. He died on November 24th, in his 65th year, and a long and successful connection with the club was thus closed. When Mr Ellison was elected to the office of steward the club had been in existence about eleven years. It was making very little progress and was heavily in debt when Mr Ellison took charge, but he soon cleared the debt off, and all the premises were purchased and partly rebuilt during the first ten years. Following this a room was added, and a bowling green laid out, the club bearing all the expense, the seventh having taken place in July last.

LECTURE.—Under the auspices of the Wesleyan Temperance Society a lecture on "Belgium" was delivered by Mr J. J. Heath, of the U.K.A., in the Council Schools on Thursday night. Mr J. W. Dobson (Chairman of the Urban Council) presided, and, referring to the fact that the performances given for the Belgian Fund, he said that the Belgians had demonstrated that to-day they were as brave and gallant fighters as were their country-men in the days of old. A number of Belgians, who are resident in Garforth, were present. Mr Hatch's lecture was a very interesting and instructive one, and it was illustrated by splendid views. At the close a vote of thanks was proposed to the lecturer and Chairman by the Rev. E. Rees, and Mr Dibb seconded. Mr J. Wordsworth supported, and the resolution was cordially carried. There was a large and appreciative audience.

PICTURE HOUSE.—At the popular Picture House this week capital fare has been provided, and tonight (Saturday) there will be given a fine pictorial story will be charmed with the stirring and beautiful tale of the battlefield "Saving the Colours," which should attract crowded "houses." Other good items on the programme have obtained another highly attractive programme. "The Cameo of the Yellow Stone," an exciting and powerful story of the West by the famous Selig Polyscope Company, will be the chief feature on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and a screamer will be found in "A Busy Day," featuring Charlie Chaplin, the well-known comic comedian. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday a stirring picture of the war will be shown, and the gallantry of the famous London Scottish Regiment will be brought home forcibly to us. The second series of Selig's sensational jungle pictures "Adventures of Kathlyn," and the laughter-maker "Love, luck, and gasoline" will complete a fine entertainment. The manager and the patrons of the house will have a really good time. For particulars see advt.

GARFORTH ROLL OF HONOUR.—On Wednesday night at the meeting of the Urban District Council the Chairman (Mr J. W. Dobson) stated that the Distress Committee had decided to compile a roll of honour for Garforth, and the names of the men who had gone from the parish to serve in the King's Army and Navy now being got. They were, of course, endeavouring to get a complete list, but it was possible some names would be over-looked, and they desired that if anyone noticed any name left out he should at once let them have the name. A number of men had gone from the collieries, and as some resided in other parishes names might be missed, while in other cases the addresses of men who had gone had left Garforth to reside with parents or friends and the houses were closed, so no information could be obtained there. At the colliery a list of the men had been prepared so far as they knew. What they wanted was that every home should be on the roll of honour, and they asked the co-operation of the public in the matter.—Mr H. Gascoigne said that a list of names was required for another purpose. Application would be made for gifts to the soldiers' clothing fund, and a list was needed for that.—The list will, when ready, be published in the "Courier," and if the public note any omissions they should at once let the Distress Committee know.

CHILDREN'S CONCERT.—On Monday evening the children of the Parochial School gave a concert, under the direction of Miss M. Goulden, the headmistress of the infants' department, in the school large audience. The children were very nicely dressed by their parents, and all wore the Belgian colours. The following programme was rendered:—Sketch, upper school girls, C. Ballance, C. Dobson, and E. Thorpe; action song, "British Tars," infants; recitation, "The soldier's pass," infants; flag song, infants; dance, first class, and last was "Don't, don't," by infants; violin solo, Miss D. Robinson; sketch, "Dorothy's Dream," upper girls, D. Aikin, C. Ballance, C. Dobson, E. Thorpe, H. Simpson, and M. Shaw; mandoline solo, M. Clarke; flag drill, upper school girls; recitation, "An Awkward Case," first class boys; song, "The Carnival," Miss Goulden; recitation, "To India and Her Colonies," Mr Clarke; violin solo, Miss Robinson; recitation, "Belgium," S. Drury; "Belgian National Anthem," J. Whitwell; song, "Up with the Old Flag," upper standard girls; and "God save the King." Among the audience were the Belgians, who are being cared for in Garforth, and who had been specially invited by the headmistress. Miss Goulden was thanked for her services by assistants, Mrs Firth and Miss Binns. The proceeds, amounting to £6 9s., are to be divided among the local and Central Belgian Relief Funds and the Children's Xmas Tea. The sum of 4s. 6d. given by the children and other friends in a box kept in the school has been added to the proceeds, making a total of £6 13s. 6d.

GREAT PRESTON

On Saturday afternoon, in the second round of the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition, Great Preston W.R. defeated Hecklemoodwike by ten goals to one.

CHURCH.—A grand patriotic concert was given in the Infants' School on Monday evening. Councillor Dewhirst presided over a crowded audience." The expenses incurred in engaging the concert party, etc., were defrayed by the Chairman, so that the whole of the proceeds could be given to the Belgian wounded in aid of clothing and other requirements. Four wounded Belgians from Templenewsam were also appreciated the hearty welcome accorded them during the evening. In his introductory remarks, the Chairman emphasized the great part played by the Belgians in the initial stages of the war. Subsequently a most enjoyable concert was given. The Clifton Prize Quartette Party sang during the evening "Comrades in Arms," "Phyllis dyes her tresses," "Here's life and health," and "The long day closes." It is needless to say they were greatly appreciated for their well-balanced vocal efforts. Miss Jessie Allan proved a most acceptable soloist in the songs "Beloved, it is morn," "Castellano," and "Before you came." The soloist was thrice encored, and the Chairman proved a decided success in "The Trumpeter" and "Up from Somerset." "The sailor's grave" and "Love, could I only tell thee" were capably rendered by Mr Holloway. Messrs Holloway and Hoyle sang "The fishermen." Mr Bleakley Sayer was twice recalled for his clever recital of "The Day" and "The Mouse." The humorous part of the programme was provided by Mr J. Davidson, who proved a great favourite. He received quite an ovation for his clever impersonations. Mr Robert Allan proved a very capable pianist. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded the Chairman, artistes, and committee of the Great Preston Conservative and Liberal Associations for their efforts in promoting so successful an evening. Mr Talbridge and Mr Samuel Robinson heartily supporting the motion. The sum of nine guineas was cleared for the Belgian Fund, which included two subscriptions of ten shillings from Bailey Lowther and Mrs George Lane Fox respectively.

HALTON

PRESENTATION.—On Friday night at a meeting of the Leeds and District Amateur Bowling Association Mr Harry Thomas, of Halton, winner of the Leeds and District Individual Merit Competition, was presented with a gold medal. In the competition there were no fewer than 230 entries, which constituted a record.

WATERLOO COLLIERY EMPLOYEE'S END.—Private H. Oliver, of the 2nd Yorkshire Regiment, whose home was at 3, Bodle Street, Leeds, has been killed in action at France. The official intimation says he was buried at Ypres. Oliver had served eight years with the Colours, four of which he spent in Egypt. When called up he was employed at the Waterloo Colliery. He leaves a widow and one child.

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday afternoon a match was played between Waterloo Main and Fryston Welfare at Crossgreen. Clark opened hostilities for the home team, who, however, playing only ten men, were at a disadvantage from the outset. The visitors had no difficulty in scoring a goal. But, the Fryston centre forward, piercing Compey's defence by a fine individual effort. Slater, Platts, Clark, and McGregor did useful sterling work for the Waterloo men, but the home forwards were up against a capital pair of defenders in Holsden and Baker, and could make no impression. On the other hand, Burt managed to elude the opposition, and score two other goals. Fryston were leading by three goals to nil at half-time, but they failed to score afterwards, and Waterloo netted once—through Slater. Murfy and Holbeck P.C. played a drawn game—two goals each.

KIPPAX

WESLEY GUILD.—There was a capital attendance at the Wesley Guild meeting on Tuesday evening, when Mr Askew, of Methley, gave an address on "Wolfe-charade IV." solo was contributed by Mr Whitsley, of Methley. Mr H. Gummerson presided. A vote of thanks was given to the speaker and the soloist at the close on the motion of Mr W. Sharper, seconded by Mr Alan Parker.

PARISH CHURCH.—The women's service, which was held in the church on Sunday afternoon was addressed by the Vicar of Whitkirk (the Rev. B. Goyer), who was the preacher at the evening service. The choir rendered the chorus "And the Glory" (Messiah), and the conductor was Mr Keeble. The recit "Thus saith the Lord," and the air "But who may abide" were sung by Mr H. Wright.

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH.—At this church special services were held on Sunday, when Mr J. A. Burke, of Leeds, was the preacher. The occasion was the 23rd anniversary of United Methodism in Kippax. The first meeting was held in Mr T. Smith's house, and the first service took place in Mr C. Crossland's house in Leeds Lane. Mr G. Plows, of Kippax, preached the first sermon. Subsequently services were held in Mount Pleasant in the house then occupied by Mr J. Plows. The United Methodists have had Sunday services here for a considerable time, and the growth of Free Methodism in Kippax was rapid. They were fortunate in having an energetic secretary (Mr J. Farrant), who was supported by a small but enthusiastic membership, and the Free Church, which stands off High Street, was erected as the result of their efforts, aided by generous friends. On Sunday the cantata "The ruler's daughter" was rendered by the choir in the afternoon. The solos were sung by Miss Halliday, Miss E. Smith, and Miss B. Appleyard (soprano), Miss A. Goodall (contralto), Mr H. Smith and Mr D. Smith (tenor), Mr J. Ratcliffe and Mr J. Farrant (bass). The connective readings were given by Miss Myra Walker, Miss G. Mackintosh, and Miss M. A. Ratcliffe (violin). Mr J. Ratcliffe (choirmaster) conducted, while Mr W. Halliday was the organist. A public tea was held on Monday evening, and was served by Mrs A. Barton and Mrs E. S. Quinton. The collections on Sunday and the proceeds from the tea are to be devoted to reducing the debt on the church. Mr J. Farrant, in his report, said it was intended to raise £100 for this object, £30 being already assured.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE.—At a meeting of this committee on Wednesday Mr E. Parkin, J.P. (Chairman) presided, and the other members present were Mr W. Mc D. Mc A. Mack, Mr J. Harding, Mr I. Robinson, and Mr W. S. Blackburn. The county authorities wrote approving the appointment of Mr W. S. Blackburn as the representative of Great Preston on the committee. The Chairman expressed his pleasure at Mr Blackburn's appointment, and in the name of the members gave to Mr Blackburn a cordial welcome. He hoped that he would be able to give to the work as efficient assistance as his respected father. Mr Blackburn thanked the Chairman for his remarks.—An application sent in by Mr Wm. Firth on behalf of the Old Band for the use of the Council School for their annual hall in October, 1915, was granted. The Clerk stated that no case of distress connected with the feeding of school children had been made known to him. The committee were agreed that there was no distress in the district. A communication to the district nurses scheme was considered. Dr. Kaye reporting the appointment of a school nurse.—Mr W. S. Blackburn: How has this scheme originated and what area will it cover?—The Chairman: It is a complex area. Kippax, Great Preston, and Swillington are included.—The Chairman: The idea is to utilize the existing district nurses. Attendances at the cooking classes held in the Kippax Council School was considerd satisfactory, being 87.07 in the boys' department and 90 in the girls' department. Evening attendances at Bowers Allerton evening school were 17 for industrial and 14 mining. The Clerk stated that a course of five lectures on horticulture by Professor Somerville, Leeds University, were being arranged to be given at Bowers Allerton early in the new year. The professor would also give lectures on poultry keeping. Kippax might try a course of lectures on those subjects. Every assistance would be given representative men in the arranging for them. The committee agreed to accept the course of lectures to be given at Bowers Allerton.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—Special services were held in the Wesleyan Church on Sunday. The preacher at the morning service was the Rev. J. E. Clague (circuit minister), and in the evening Mr T. Dougill, a P.S.A. meeting was held in the afternoon, and the speaker was Mr T. Dougill, the recitor Miss A. Walker, the soloist Mr C. H. Nicholson, and the chairman, Mr J. W. Prince.

LOFTHOUSE

SOLDIER'S CHRISTMAS BURST.—A sad story was told at a Wakefield inquest, on Monday, concerning the death of a girl named Ivy Hartley, three years old, daughter of Fred Hartley, miner, Outwood, now with the 4th Battalion K.O.Y.L.I. The child's mother on Saturday morning went to Lofthouse pit for her husband's allowance, leaving the child in the care of an elder sister. Unobserved, the girl got a box of matches in a bedroom and was terribly burnt before help arrived. She died a few hours later. A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

TOPCLIFFE

Two sisters, Ivy and Ethel Mitchell, attending Oulton St. John's School, have this week sent £1 to the Belgian Relief Fund. This is their second contribution. The money has been raised by the sale of coloured bows made by the two girls.

LITERARY SOCIETY.—An interesting paper on "The meaning of life" was read by Mr T. H. Killingbeck at a meeting of the Literary and Debating Society, held in the Institute on Thursday night last. The Rev. H. T. Pattinson presided, and a good discussion followed the reading of the paper.

THE INSTITUTE.—The senior team of the Institute in the Oulton and District Billiard League had a match with the Rothwell Mechanics' Institute on Friday evening, losing by 84 points. The scores were taken four out of the six matches, scoring an aggregate of 522 points to 441. The scores were as follows (Rothwell names first):—S. Edwards 100 v. H. Rackleday 62, J. Ainsworth 97 v. T. Cain 91, W. Armstead 64 v. J. Nuttall 100, H. Banks 100 v. W. Jopling 67, J. Ainsworth 58 v. P. Higgins 100, and E. Beckwith 100 v. H. Wright 77.

OULTON AND WOODLESFORD WAR FUND.—The following is a list of things which have been made by the ladies of the Oulton and Woodlesford Working Party and sent away:—40 flannel day shirts—these shirts were sent to Lady Mayoress for some of his men, and 8 went to the Lady Mayoress' Committee. Sixty-nine pairs of socks—3 pairs were sent to the Lady Mayoress' Committee, 28 pairs to Major Simpson, and 30 pairs to Queen Mary's Fund. Eighteen red flannel bedjackets, and 23 white nightshirts and 2 red flannel belts were sent to the Lady Mayoress Committee, and 20 cloth dressing gowns for wounded soldiers to the General Infirmary. Fourteen flannel under shirts were given for boys to Sir Edward Brotherton, and 26 garments for girls, 8 garments for boys, 2 for women, and 2 pairs white bed socks to the Lady Mayoress' Committee, and 22 garments for women and girls to Oulton Hall for Belgian Refugees. To the Lady Mayoress' Committee there were also sent 4 knitted body belts, 8 scarves, 2 helmets, 6 pairs mittens, 8 pairs socks, 1 flannel day shirt, and 2 women's garments; while to Lady Jellicoe, for the sailors, were forwarded 12 pairs mittens, 14 flannel under shirts, and 6 scarves. Sheets, towels, pillowslips, and vests also made for Oulton Hall for the refugees, Major Calverley paying for the material.

TENNIS CLUB.—The annual meeting of the Oulton Tennis Club was held in the Institute on Friday night.—The Rev. H. T. Pattinson presiding. The secretary (Mr R. V. Higgins) reported that nearly one-half of the male members of the club have joined the Colours. He reported the club had a balance of 11s. 5d. in hand. Major Calverley was re-elected President, and the Rev. W. R. Capel-Cure, Mr. J. Farrar, J.P., and Mr. Wm. Higgins were elected vice-presidents. Miss A. Bell was appointed treasurer, and Mr R. V. Higgins was elected secretary. The following were appointed to serve as the committee:—Mrs E. Abbey, Miss E. Cain, and Miss M. Greaves, and Messrs J. Chaver, H. Higgins, W. Roper, and F. Tasbey.

THE BOWLING CLUB.—The annual meeting of the Oulton Bowling Club was held at the Three Horse Shoes Inn, Oulton, on Thursday night last. Mr A. Sharpe presided. The following officers were elected:—President, Major Calverley; vice-presidents, the Rev. W. R. Capel-Cure and Mr J. Farrar, J.P.; committee —Messrs T. Brown, J. Nuttall, W. Smith, and A. Sharpe; captain, Mr W. P. Peters; vice-captain, Mr J. Ellis; captain of the Mowley Trophy team, Mr T. Collins; vice-captain, Mr G. M. Abbey; treasurer, Mr C. G. Cameron; hon. secretary, Mr J. Randerson. After a short discussion, it was decided that a special meeting be called to consider the membership and finances, on Saturday, December 12th, at eight o'clock, in the Institute.

SCHOLES

A sum of £1 16s., proceeds of a whist drive held by the Scholes Tennis Club, has been sent to the Belgian Relief Fund.

SEACROFT

FARMER IN TROUBLE.—James William Farrington Beck, farmer, of Whitmoor, was summoned at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday for having been drunk and disorderly. Defendant did not appear, and Superintendent Symonds made application for a warrant, which was granted.

STOURTON

On Saturday afternoon Stourton United defeated Methley Perseverance Reserves by two goals to one, and Stourton Roseville overcame Hunslet Juniors by five goals to one.

P.S.A.—At the weekly P.S.A. meeting held at the Primitive Methodist Chapel on Sunday afternoon an address was given by Mr Seaman, of Crossgates. Roads and Roadmaking formed the subject.

WHAT WAS HIS MESSAGE?—At a meeting of the Leeds magistrates on Friday the landlord of the Crooked Billet, Hunslet, asked for permission to extend his house so as to build a bathroom. The Chairman pointed out that the alteration would add to the monopoly value of the licence, and the applicant left the Court, on the suggestion of the Chairman, for a period of consideration at that point. Later on his name was called, and he did not appear.—The Chairman asked if he had left any message?—Mr Wood: He did, but I dare not repeat it! (Laughter).

SWILLINGTON

QUEEN MARY'S NEEDLEWORK GUILD.—Under the leadership of Miss Bergheim, who is a prominent member of the Guild, good work has been done by the parishioners, including those residing in Swillington Common, Astley, and Flockingley Beck. Commencing on September 3rd, 1914, collections have been made in the parish and districts by Messrs Boyes, Watson, and Mellor, Winn and Wilson, Firth and Noble, Oliver Smith and Sowerss, and Marsden and Burke, and they amounted to £39 5s. 9d., in addition to which Sir C. B. Lowther has given £1, Captain J. G. Lowther £3, and Mr R. W. Bower £10, making the amount subscribed to date £53 10s. 9d. Materials have been bought, and 461 articles have been made by the working party, including 55 men's shirts, 30 overalls, 38 petticoats, 62 pairs of socks and stockings, 14 mufflers, 38 pairs mittens, 123 bandages, 66 swabs, and 12 articles of underclothing. All these articles have been forwarded to the Guard's and other depots. A subscription of £7 has also been made to the Swillington and District Rifle Club. It is very gratifying to know that this good work is being carried on in Swillington.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.—Collections at St. Mary's Church on Sunday were made on behalf of Princess Mary's Fund for Christmas boxes for the sailors and soldiers at the war, and £41 13s. 8d. has been forwarded to Her Royal Highness. In addition to the above, collections were made on August 16th for the Prince of Wales' War Fund, and £5 14s. 2d. forwarded to His Royal Highness.

WHITKIRK

THE Athletes' Volunteer Force, Whitkirk section, drilled at Templenewsam on Saturday afternoon by kind permission of the Hon. E. Wood (M.P.) A section of the Athletes' Force, Leeds, marched to Templenewsam from Hunslet Lane on Sunday morning.

A PHOTO CASE.—On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Police Courts William Hinton, junior, farmer, living at Hunslet, was summoned for having moved five pigs from the Whitkirk Auction Mart on Monday, November 16th, without a license. P.C. Taylor proved the case, and defendant was fined 1s. for each pig and costs.

WHITKIRK AND DISTRICT RIFLE CLUB.—The Whitkirk and District Rifle Club have received the certificate (army form B. 1314) of safety of range. The plans have been inspected and approved. A certificate of affiliation with S.M.R.C. (No. 1824) has also been obtained, and in consequence members of the club will be regarded by the Board of Inland Revenue as exempt from payment of licence duty in respect of rifles used for musketry practice in their range. In response to an invitation from the C.E.M.S., Whitkirk Church, a large number of members attended a service on Sunday afternoon. The President has also placed more "possibles" and has secured another Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs' spoon.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week Walter Passmore and Johnny Danvers are a comical couple as soldiers in a sketch entitled "The Soldier's Mess." The sketch is rather thin, but the comedians, admirably assisted by Agnes Fraser and Mandoline Rees, make plenty of fun out of it, and the finish is very laughable. John Terry and Mabel Lambert are here again, and their character sketches are very good indeed. Jessie Broughton and Dennis Creedon give a tasteful musical entertainment, which proves highly appreciated. Brother and brother give a clever Scotch turn, and their business is commendably neat and finished. The songs of Tom E. Hughes go very well. Fred Russell's burlesquing of Lily Burchard, burlesque actress; and Nash and Noel, comedians, also appear with success.

The inherent beauty of the story of "Joseph and his Brethren" enthrals theatregoers in the play of Louis Napoleon Parker, staged with the usual lavish magnificence by Sir Herbert Tree, which will be presented next week at the Empire Palace. Wonderful pageantry, of high dramatic value, and reverent treatment of one of the most intensely human and interest-compelling stories of Scripture are the characteristics of a play on which has been brought to bear all the resources associated with the famous theatre at which it won such signal success. The glamour of the East fails on the eyes of the ancient story, which is unfolded, and the trials and triumphs of Joseph's life, the intrigues of Potiphar's wife, and, not less interesting, the everyday life of Egypt under the Pharaohs is reconstructed in our sight, and the play moves forward, through scenes which are a riot of Eastern splendour, to its close. Tableau is due to the enterprise which affords Yorkshire playgoers the opportunity of seeing in its entirety the much-discussed play which established once and for all the undying interest to-day in the great drama of Sacred History. It proved the possibility of their presentation—in proper hands —in a manner which must command the approbation of all to whom such history is not merely a matter of romance, but a living, breathing reality. "The life of the wandering shepherds," writes a famous critic, "takes shape and form before our eyes, and we see a beautiful musical art, born of passions in that mingled family. Strangest of all, we see something of the conviction of a mighty destiny which dominates those not altogether unlike Jacob and Joseph." The matter which the Scripture leaves rather vague, the rescue of Joseph from the pit, has a new development. For it is Potiphar's wife who begs that he be drawn out to the upper air before his brothers' eyes. Later on, when we reach Egypt, a sentimental interest is provided for us by the early appearance of Asenath, and affectionate passages between her and Joseph."

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week is a fine dramatic sketch entitled "Trafalgar," in four scenes. The story tells of Lord Nelson and the most famous naval battle in history, and of the signal which is so appropriate at the present time. There is quite a warlike element, and the crashing of cannon and the smell of powder is something new to Hippodrome audiences. "Symphonic" proves to be a beautiful musical act, which introduces the organ, piano, 'cello, and violin, whilst Mr Henry J. Corner interpresses a few songs. It is one of the most delightful items of the evening's show. Capt. Jack Kelly and his wife manipulate stock whips cleverly, and John C. Glass, in a burnt cork makeup, has two good songs and some comical patter. Others supporting are, Burley and Burley, in a body-twisting show; Dacre and Lynton, in a musical scena; Leon Roger, an expert in musical instruments; and Francis and Alfred, comedy jugglers.

Next week at the Hippodrome the great Wieland, the famous dexterous humorist; Billy Williams, the man in the moon; Gulliver's Gnandys, the erratic comedian; and Guest and Newlyn, "the triflers," will appear. The sketch "The truth about Mr Watson"—a story of retribution—will be abandoned, and Con Conrad will present the Novelty Minstrels, a capable company of clever artistes; while others in the bill are Horton and La Tricka, the clown and the human doll; and Percy Korah and his dancing boys.

A Blue Book issued on Monday states that, considering its complications, the Insurance Act is, on the whole, working as smoothly as could reasonably have been anticipated.

A passenger train travelling from Gorebridge to Edinburgh on Saturday evening had a collision with a light engine. The train was damaged and several passengers injured.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS £1/1/ £3/3/ £5/5/ £10/10/ to £100 each. SEE WINDOWS

Diamonds

BEST SELECTION IN THE COUNTY

Dysons

24,25,26 BRIGGATE LEEDS

Watches 10/6 TO 50 GUINEAS.

THE ROUGHWEAR 15/- THE UNIVERSITY 30/-

OLD WATCHES & JEWELLERY TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.

(LATE A. C. WANSTALL),

Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,

201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.

ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,

King Charles' Croft, LEEDS.

TELEPHONE No. 1522.

Catalogues free on Application.

CULTIVATORS, PLOUGHS, HARROWS, CHAFF & TURNIP CUTTERS, &C.

By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

Purveyors of Marmalade

To H.M. King George V.

Frank COOPER'S "OXFORD" MARMALADE.

The "Oxford" has a distinctive flavour, has the real home-made character, and goes further than any other.

OBTAINABLE AT

Walter Jubb's, Austhorpe Rd., Crossgates

AND

S. BORDER & Co., YORK.

H. E. WALKER,

STURTON GRANGE, GARFORTH,

Agricultural Agent

— FOR —

THE DRIFFIELD PURE LINSEED, COTTON and UNION CAKE COMPANY, LIMITED.

Molassine Meal.

Dairy and Calf Meal.

Poultry and Dog Foods.

Manures, Peat Moss, Oils, etc.

Best Quality & Prompt Delivery.

BARKSTON ASH MEN AT THE FRONT

NEWS CONCERNING SELBY, LINTON AND WETHERBY MEN.

LETTERS FROM THE FIGHTING LINE.

Private Robert Hennigan, of Selby, who was with the King's Own Scottish Borderers, has been taken prisoner by the Germans.

Private Fred Inmate, of the 2nd Duke of Wellington's (5th Division) and of Linton, Wetherby, is at home suffering from a form of tetanus, or lockjaw. At the battle of Mons he had his helmet ripped open by a fragment of shell, and on another occasion a companion on each side of him was shot dead.

Writing to his brother, Mr. J. F. Mason, of Wetherby, Corporal T. F. Mason, of the 10th Hussars, says:—"On November 10th we had the Germans within 20 yards of us, so you can guess we gave them something to go on with."

SPOTFORTH SOLDIER'S FATE.

Private Charles Jenkinson, of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, second son of Mr. John Jenkinson, of Spofforth, is reported to have been killed in action. Jenkinson, who is 25 or 26 years of age, took part in the battle of Mons and several other engagements. His wife is resident in Ireland.

On returning he was himself hit by shrapnel. Gunner H. Jenkinson, of the Royal Garrison Artillery, was wounded in the left foot, thigh, arm, and face, a shell hitting his company's gun, killing three and wounding five men. Gunner Jenkinson is still in hospital in France.

SELBY MAN WOUNDED.

William Alfred Nutt, of the King's Royal Rifles, a Selby reservist, who until called up was an employee at the Selby shipyard, has been wounded in the fighting in Flanders.

He was standing in the trenches with an officer when the latter was struck down by a shell bursting close by. Nutt carried the wounded officer a quarter of a mile to the field hospital.

On returning he was himself hit by shrapnel, being wounded in the leg. He lay until found some time after by a British search-light party, and spent a month in the hospital at the base.

A letter received in Selby by the soldier's wife states that he has gone back to the fighting line.

A PROUD SELBY MOTHER.

The King has caused the following letter to be addressed to Mrs Long, of Selby:—

"Madam—I have the honour to inform you that the King has heard with much interest that you have on this present moment five sons in the Army.

"I am commanded to express to you the King's congratulations, and to assure you that His Majesty much appreciates the spirit of patriotism which prompted this example in one family of loyalty and devotion to their Sovereign and Empire.

"I have the honour to be, madam, your obedient servant, F. M. Ponsonby, Keeper of the Privy Purse."

A SELBY TROOPER'S LETTER.

Trooper Geo. Haynes, eldest son of Mr J. H. Haynes, of the George Hotel, Selby, has written to his father from the 2nd Division B Squadron 15th Hussars in France.

"Since my last letter to you," he writes, "our division has been withdrawn from the firing line to partake of a well-earned rest. We are billeted in a fairly decent place about the same size as Selby, so we are having a little of the French life.

"It is quite a change to be away from the din of shell fire; where we are now we can just hear the boom of our heavy guns. The fighting of the last three weeks has been terrific. The Germans have tried every move possible to break through to the coast, and every attempt has resulted very disastrously for the enemy. We are anticipating a great victory very shortly.

"We are informed that the enemy are fortifying positions in their rear—in fact, everything points to a general retreat. There is a great rumour that our division is to have a big move. I hope it is true—it will be much warmer than it is here. We are doing practically nothing at all now, simply looking after our horses. The hardest work we have is to keep ourselves warm; the weather at present is intensely cold."

A WETHERBY RECORD.

Mrs. Murphy, of Victoria Street, Wetherby, has three grandsons (sons of the late well-known Wharfedale figure), who are doing their duty to their country, and in fourth, after being in camp some time as a member of Kitchener's Army, has been discharged with a good character as being medically unfit for training.

Of the three, Driver H. Murphy, of the Royal Field Artillery, was reported several weeks ago to have been killed in action, but happily this proved to be incorrect. He is now a prisoner of war in Germany, and is safe and well.

The second, Pte. J. Murphy, of the Durham Light Infantry, is still serving with his regiment at the front.

Of the third, Pte. W. Murphy, of the 1st West Yorkshire Regiment, the news is not so good. At Ypres he was most severely wounded, and he now lies in the York County Hospital with a bullet wound through the muscles of the left arm, a second through his left lung, while his left leg has been crushed and broken in two places by shell fire. After receiving the wounds he had to lie out in the open all night before he was picked up. At first it was thought that his leg would have to be amputated, but this has been avoided. Though now progressing favourably, it is expected that it will be six months before Murphy is convalescent.

Murphy's regiment, it will be remembered, was badly cut up owing to the white flag treachery of the Germans, but on that occasion he was one of the few who escaped.

SELBY SOLDIER'S INTERESTING STORY.

Private Thomas Smith, of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, had a narrow escape from death while on the front. Smith was a Reservist employed at the Selby Olympia Mills before the outbreak of hostilities. On going out to France with his regiment, which formed part of the 14th Brigade, Fifth Division, he was for 17 days in the Aisne trenches. About 2,000 prisoners surrendered to the Brigade, the Germans commencing to sing with joy on being captured. On moving to the left flank in North-West France, fighting went on from day to day, the Intense desire—as he knew, as every man in Brigade eventually reaching La Bassee. Here they were opposed by a large force of the enemy, who outnumbered the British by ten to one.

Describing what happened, Private Smith said:—"My brother, Private Joseph Smith, who is also in my regiment, was lying a few yards away on my right. We were posted in a field with a little hood cover, and holding a huge force of the enemy in check. I saw that my brother was shot, and as I tried to go to his help I received a rifle shot in the lower part of the back, the bullet emerging at the right shoulder." (Private Smith exhibited his coat, showing the two bullet holes plainly).

Continuing the narrative, Private Smith said: "I have reason to think that my brother Joseph was shot dead, though the War office have received no information of it. I was taken to a village near, and a doctor attended to me in a cottage. The wound I was then able to walk, and along with other wounded made my way to the main field hospital. We had not got more than half-a-mile from the village when it was fired by the enemy by means of incendiary shells. But the Germans, notwithstanding their numbers, were unable to take the village, being repulsed with heavy loss. I, for one, shipped home. I was landed with a party of wounded at Queenstown, and sent to hospital in Cork. Thousands of people gave us a reception in Ireland, and we met with very kind treatment and received many welcome gifts."

Private Smith added that he had another brother, Private George Smith, who is also in the Duke of Cornwall's, and he is engaged in the work at the base in France. A fourth brother is in the 10th Lancers, and has been wounded.

Private Smith said that wounded comrades of his who were brought into the field hospital the day after he received, related very ugly stories of the way British wounded had been murdered by the enemy. On the Germans being driven back from ground which they had temporarily held, some of the British wounded were found pinioned to the ground with their coats by swords, and others had their heads mashed in with the trenching tools lying near. This happened near La Bassee.

Among the Germans captured on the 14th was a boy who said he did not know how he was going into battle, as he had been told he was going for training to Paris. Another German captured had worked for six years as a hotcher in London, and said he was anxious to get back to his wife and children.

Private Smith said the present generation of French people would never forget the sorely needed help rendered by the British "Tipperary" soldiers since it set out. They had picked it up, and it was very amusing to hear them sing it with the Gallic accent. In France the remembrance would always be linked with the remembrance of British valour and high spirits.

GENEVA AND THE RED CROSS MOVEMENT.

HOW INFORMATION ABOUT MISSING SOLDIERS IS OBTAINED.

Geneva saw the birth of the Red Cross. This was in 1864, just 50 years ago (writes a correspondent), no one can be ignorant of the services this magnificent institution has rendered, even in this, so speak, human ferocity to make it a place for gifts and the heart of its Empire. But until to-day the Red Cross had only occupied itself with material wounds. It looked after the body; it did not foreseen the possibility of softening the suffering of the soul. Who can tell that the sum of sorrow which, in a single day, causes the uncertainty of the fate of missing loved ones represents? Fathers, husbands, brothers have they fallen never to rise again? Will no one ever bring back the beautiful token (the identification disc which each soldiers wears on campaigning) the article of which is a family means "nascitur ogni speranza"? Or, indeed, wounded, have they been picked up by the enemy, and are they at this moment being nursed in some French or German ambulance. To these torturing questions, until now, silence alone has replied.

To-day it is no longer so. The International Agency for Prisoners of War attached to the Red Cross in Geneva, gives information to more than 800 families daily of the fate of missing soldiers. And after having informed the families it endeavours by every means for sending to the prisoners letters, money, and clothing, and transmits to the friends concerned thanks and news.

The Ruth Museum in Geneva—where the Agency has installed itself after being obliged to leave two buildings which successively became too small for its growing work—has the air of a government office, where the work is at the same time intense and rigorously regulated. The post, Jacques Chenevière, one of the workers from the start, and one who helped in its foundation under the direction of M. Gustave Ador, President of the Red Cross, wished me to visit the rooms where, from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., the cheerful activity of 350 benevolent workers is in full swing.

Here is the room for the opening of correspondence, men and women, bend over long tables on trestals upon which letters arrive, pigeon-holes which are heaped, as each one sorts his letters which are brought out in packets, not in sacks, but in cardboards. From some hundreds of missives daily, the numbers have grown to three thousand, then ten thousand, and now nearly fifteen thousand are received. And yet this Belgian Agency limits itself to prisoners in France and Belgium; a second one in Copenhagen undertakes German prisoners in Russia and Russian prisoners in Germany; a third in Paris takes care of the interests of Austrian prisoners through diplomatic channels, by way of Rumania, is established for Australia, Servia and Russia, and the English and German Red Cross correspond, equally through diplomatic channels, about the prisoners of their respective nationalities.

The letters opened, the names of the missing are underlined in red ink, then the letters are classified according to the nationality of those about whom information is needed. The letters, in basket-loads, are then sent to another room. Here where those of prisoners are occupied in making "slips" of them. These slips, in their turn, are sent to the various departments relating to French, German, or Anglo-Belgian missions.

The "slips" are classified in alphabetical order and pigeon-holed, and carefully posted up to date, from day to day, come requests for information on one side, and the lists of wounded and prisoners, communicated by the Agency through the intermediary of the various national Red Cross Societies on the other. Immediately the arrival of a list permits of a response to a demand for information a message is sent, if need be a telegram, to the anxious family.

The work of the "Treasury" is no light duty to those who have undertaken it. There are received gifts, commissions, cheques, to be sent to the various destinations, for the general welfare of the Agency is looked after.

A little further on we find the office of the correspondence to be forwarded. The letters of French prisoners in Germany and German prisoners in France mount up each day to thousands.

In another place visitors are received, questions are answered, and information given. From morning to night through the central hall of the Ruth Museum pass a crowd of anxious fathers, mothers, wives, friends, who have made the journey there rather than trust only to writing. To what heroic, what sublime, what sadden hours have these walls been witnesses, where once smiled beautiful marbles and luminous landscapes.

The letters daily arrive in crowds, some signed by the humblest names, others, by celebrated or princely ones, express the same sorrow or perhaps the same hope, to know at all cost, even if certainty must be that of hope lost and ended. What joy for these workers when they can give happy news, and what emotion, also, when they have to send a mournful message!

Geneva, in truth, can be proud of this new institution of pity, born in the heart of the horrors which desolate our world. "If our town," said M. Jacques Chenevière, of whom I spoke a little earlier, "attaches her name once again to a work of humanity, we shall have thus done in our way, modestly, our duty, where to-day so many are laying down their lives simply for this word."

BARKSTON FARM HANDS ENLIST.

Colonel Dimmas (Tesko) was present at the Selby Hiring Fair on Monday and spoke to a crowd from Market Cross, appealing for recruits for Earl Kitchener's Army. At the morning meeting Colonel Dimmas was supported by other speakers, Mr Richard Lodge and Mr Wm. Earles.

At the second gathering, held at the Market Cross in the afternoon Mr W. J. Taylor, of Selby, presided, and Mr J. Taylor (Bessy) delivered an address in which he said this was the greatest war in the history of the country. The dead of our soldiers in France formed one of the most glorious chapters in the history of the British Army, but it was necessary to send reinforcements to their relief, and put fresh forces in the field.

Colonel Dimmas said recruits drawn from the ranks of farm servants would be very valuable in the Army because they understood so well the management and care of horses. He appealed to them, therefore, to respond themselves and to see that others who might go to the aid of our gallant Army on the Continent.

Four recruits offered themselves at the morning meeting, and other names were given in during the day.

RECRUITING AT ROTHWELL.

SPEECHES BY THE VICAR, MR SHADWELL KEEN, AND MR H. J. MARTIN.

Under the auspices of the Imperial Maritime League—an organisation which in times of peace advocates the policy of a strong Navy, but which at the present time is devoting its energies to a campaign for recruits for Kitchener's Army—an interesting lecture on "The War, its causes and responsibilities" was given in the Council Schools, Rothwell on Saturday night. The lecturer was Mr Shadwell Keen, who had acquired with him a number of splendid slides, being photographs taken both at home and at the seat of war. Despite other attractions there was a fairly good attendance.

Mr H. J. Martin (headmaster of the Rothwell Council School) presided, and said that so far as he had read the history of England, he did not think there had been such a critical time for this country—they had at present. "The papers give us the impression—and impressions go a long way," he said, "that we are quite safe, and so long as our Navy is safe certainly we are all safe.

But even then we should be ready, as the evening papers say that the enemy is once more attempting to come along the coast of the North Sea, under a critical time for this country. Whatever may be the result of this war the enemy has been preparing for it. If they were to land it would not take a great army to overrun England." He had no audience were visit the Continent they would be impressed by the immense forts. He remembered the forts of Cologne, but where were these fortifications around Leeds and our other great towns? All Germans were trained to produce their bodies, and so long as our Navy is safe certainly we are all safe.

But even then we should be ready, as the evening papers say that the enemy is once more attempting to come along the coast of the North Sea, under a critical time for this country. Whatever may be the result of this war the enemy has been preparing for it. If they were to land it would not take a great army to overrun England. He had no audience were visit the Continent they would be impressed by the immense forts. He remembered the forts of Cologne, but where were these fortifications around Leeds and our other great towns? All Germans were trained to produce their bodies, but we in England had neglected to do that. One of the objects of the Maritime League was to prepare ourselves for any foreign foe. He thought it should be known that the West Riding of Yorkshire was at the present time the last of the counties in England and Scotland for recruiting. If that was so they ought to be ashamed. Out of all the recruits who had joined since the war began only 30 per cent. were married men, and 75 per cent. were married men. What were the single men doing? Surely they did not want to see their mothers and sisters suffer. They knew the latest in New Zealand, and from North America—from every part of the world where Englishmen have settled—they always carry with them some longing that one time they would come back to the old country, and now they saw them coming to fight for England.

Mr Keen was then called upon to give his lecture, and was accorded a hearty reception. The first slides were those of all the important persons in connection with the war on the side of the Allies:—The Tzar of Russia, King Albert of Belgium, President Poincare, the Emperor of Japan, the King of Servia—the latter said the lecturer, having the first half of the lecture, the cause of the war. Mr Keen followed up the incidents from the assassination of the aged Austrian Emperor's nephew, and the consequent arrest of the war—how Austria made demands upon Servia which the latter country could not meet. Then followed the portraits of Lord Kitchener, Lord Roberts, General Sir John Jellicoe, General Joffre, and Lord Roberts. Commenting upon the Navy, the lecturer remarked that people who said the Navy was doing very little did not know what they were talking about. If the Navy had not held the supremacy of the sea England would have been faced with the worst of all eventualities—the enemy of ourselves. (Applause). The remainder of the pictures revealed some interesting incidents in connection with the war.

During an interval the following resolution was moved by the Rev. E. G. W. Bone (vicar of Rothwell):—"That all present at this meeting desire to place on record their unswerving determination to use all possible means at their disposal to support the Navy and Army in the war until peace has been restored by the unconditional surrender of the enemy, and thus for all time crush the arrogant military despotism of Prussia and Germany, under which she is seeking to devastate the whole world." He said there was no doubt that the whole of civilisation was being threatened by the German nation, and yet there were still not realise the seriousness of the situation. Supposing that Germany did invade England and effect a landing, there would be ten thousand times more suffering in this country than had been the horror of the world. No one would be respected—women, children, old men, and civilians would be murdered and tortured in the most awful and abominable way. Moreover, the point they would strike at would not be London, as it was only a great clearing house. It was not there the manufacturing districts. They manufactured goods came from the north, and the big cities on the east coast of England, and they would try to paralyse and destroy these districts in order to murder. What advantage would their victory have on trade and the working-men who had, by industry and hard work, laid by for later years? No, they had a great say in the trade of this country, had a people the Germans come and a man dared to say anything about his wages or his trade, he would be cast into prison or shot down like a dog. That was the danger which threatened Yorkshiremen and Yorkshire trade. There had been a great many young fellows belonging to Yorkshire who had gone out to defend their country. He could not help feeling anything but admiration for and gratitude to them. (Applause). Why was it that so many of these splendid fellows had been killed or were suffering? Many would not have been killed or wounded if there had been more to stand shoulder to shoulder. They read in the papers: "We are getting on well—keeping our stand, but we must have more men." Some of those present were past the age of going; some were not allowed to fight, but they could do just as much by spreading knowledge and arousing public opinion in regard to this matter. (Applause).

The resolution was seconded by Mr Keen, who said they were not only fighting for honour but for existence. In his appeal, he said that if the enemy were to invade this country, and the women and girls suffer they could do just as much death they would fight then, but it would be too late. If they realized their duty he was confident they would do it. If peace was obtained and they got into Germany, it would mean peace for 100 years.

The resolution was unanimously passed.

SIR FREDERICK MILNER DENOUNCES GERMANY.

NOTHING SACRED TO THE PRUSSIANS.

Sir Frederick Milner, Bart., formerly of Nun Appleton, Bolton Percy, in the course of an address at York on Monday night, said it was proved up to the hilt that Germany, and Germany alone, was responsible for this, the most wicked and the most terrible war waged in the history of nations. The fact of the matter was that the Germans got a vast idea of megalomania, and believed that she was specially set apart by God to possess the world, and for 40 years had made the most elaborate preparations for waging this war. Russia got into troubles and was seething with discontent; England was on the verge of civil war, and had serious labour troubles also; and France was unprepared for war. Therefore Germany thought her hour to strike had come, and she rushed into war. To Russia this was a holy war. She had fought with enthusiasm and valour, and for them were no excesses altogether against her. France fought as she always did—with courtesy and humanity. What should we say of England? Was there a man or a woman in that room whose blood did not thrill within them when they thought that they came from the same stock as the men who had suffered hardships and sufferings to hold the banner of English freedom, and had carried it triumphantly with honour and with glory. Loud applause). He would refer them to a letter written by an Army surgeon who had been in the thick of the fighting since the beginning of the war. He wrote:—

You speak of brave men. Those men are brave. If the people of the United Kingdom could see the million under which these men fight, how they fight, and how they die, I swear that every head would uncover to the Colours, and to that regiment bearing the names of these battles. For those names were won with the blood of heroes. I assure you that the Victoria Cross is won over and over again in the same day. These men are brave. They are glorious brave.

Sir Frederick then read the letter issued to the British troops by Lord Kitchener during mobilisation, and said that was the spirit of that letter that the British Army went out to war, and right nobly had they lived up to that spirit. How different might have been the history of the conduct of this war if the German Emperor—the German War Lord—issued the same instructions to his troops as the English War Lord.

Atrocities were committed in Louvain, but the worst atrocities were committed in Belgium. Murder, outrage, arson, looting, destruction of property damned their footsteps wherever they went. He did not think it was too hard a thing to say that they had shown themselves to be entirely without any sense of chivalry, of honour, of humanity, or of decency. They had constantly infringed the laws of honourable warfare.

They had violated the laws passed at the Hague tribunal by sowing the North Sea with mines, to the destruction not of British battleships, but of neutral vessels and innocent English travellers. They had shot at a vessel crowded with unhappy refugees, and no more damnable crime than that had been recorded in the annals of history. They had been guilty frequently of offences against the white flag, and our men who had gone to parley with them under the white flag had been shot down. Then, as they knew, Zeppelins had flown over defenceless cities, dropping bombs and murdering women and children, and they had even forced women and children to march in front of their troops. All these things faded into insignificance, when compared with the barbarities recorded in the reports of the Belgian Commission. It was almost impossible to believe that such deeds could be committed by a people calling themselves Christians. It made him absolutely sick to read about them.

Nothing seemed to be sacred to the Prussians. Churches all through Belgium, all the world, historic churches, glorious cathedrals—all deliberately destroyed by these vandals. These were the acts who considered that they were specially selected under the protection of the Almighty. They had the motto "God with us." When he thought of the things that had been done with the name of God on their lips, of weapons that were the unspeakable, never committed, of war waged not upon a day, but upon the centuries of faith that had reared glorious cathedrals to the honour of God now destroyed, women and children by dropping upon the reeking altars of inhuman passion, and all these things in the name of culture, the culture of the super-man, who considered himself above the law, and who said: "Might is right. God grant that the guilty nations which bears such guilt may perish on the face of the earth." (Loud applause). These abominable crimes called to Heaven for vengeance, and he believed that they would receive the vengeance of Heaven. We had to crush the Germans, or they would crush us. We had incurred their undying hate, and they had vowed to be avenged upon us. Until every citizen of this country combined to assist his country with heart and soul, she would be successful. (Applause). It might be a long war, and every single man in the country should recognise his duty and do it.

The manufacturers and business men of the provinces of Kieff, Podolia, and Noltynia have combined to boycott German and Austrian goods.

LADIES
BLANCHARD'S PILLS
Are instrumental for all Irregularities, &c., they speedily afford relief and never fail to alleviate all suffering. They supersede Pennyroyal, Pil Cochia, Bitter Apple, &c. "BLANCHARD'S are the Best of all Pills for Women." Sold in boxes, 12s. by Beale' Broadway, Taylor's Drug Co., Boswedone, and all Chemists, or post free, same price from BEALE MARTIN, 144, Strand, W.C., & HALTON, LONDON. Free Sample and valuable Booklet, post free, 1d. Stamp.

WALL PAPERS.

New Designs for Christmas.

You will find the Best Selection,
Prices the most reasonable in Leeds,
And the best attention at

COULDWELL'S

159, Briggate, LEEDS.

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

All Men Joining the Army SHOULD HAVE WITH THEM

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

A Safe Protector from common hazardous ailments—Cholerale Diarrhœa, Dysentery, etc.

GIVES INSTANT RELIEF; EASES PAIN. A BLESSING TO HAVE SUCH A GRAND MEDICINE.

Brigadier Fortune, Royal Horse Artillery: "I thank you for the great benefit that Teasdale's Chlorodyne has not only done for myself, but also for many of my comrades to whom I have given it. It has indeed been a blessing to have such a grand medicine in my possession. I have used it in numerous cases of Dysentery, Rheumatism, Pains in the Back, Coughs, and Colds. It acted like a charm in every case."

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

THE MOST VALUABLE PRESENT YOU CAN GIVE TO A FRIEND GOING TO THE FRONT.

7½d., 1s¼d., and Large Bottles, 2/6.

Can be had of PURDY, Cromgate; RAMSDEN, Halton, and other Chemists; GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & Co., and TAYLOR'S DRUG STORES.

ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Prices underwent little alteration. Wheat 42s. to 45s., medium 41s., inferior 39s. to 35s., medium 34s. to 32s., oats 26s. to 28s., barley 32s. to 36s. per qr.

PROVISIONS.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 5 and 6 for 1s.; butter 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. per lb.; ducks 5s. 6d. to 6s. 6d., chickens 4s. 6d. to 5s. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—Little trade done in the potato market. More demand, however, is experienced, and prices advance. Sand Up-to-Dates 55s. to 60s., sand King Edwards 60s. to 65s., warp King Edwards 65s. to 70s. per ton. Retail 2s. 6d. to 3s. per hamper.

CATTLE.

SELBY, Monday.—At this mart to-day Messrs. Richardson and Son disposed of 57 beasts and 79 pigs. There was a rather better attendance of buyers than usual, but the stock all round was hardly up to last week's standard. Trade was brisk, best beef making 8d. per lb. No sheep on offer. A better supply of pigs, which sold at late rates. Good quality heifers in call were scarce and dear. Sheep realised as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £23 2s. 6d.; fat heifers up to £23 17s. 6d., fat cows up to £22 7s. 6d., store cattle up to £16 5s., heifers in calf up to £25, cows in milk up to £19 17s. 6d., bacon pigs up to £9, pork pigs up to £9 5s., and small store pigs up to £8 5s. 6d.

WHITKIRK AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Bartle and Son had an improved entry of cattle, but smaller supplies of sheep and pigs. A large attendance of buyers. Young dairy cattle were in good demand, but older beasts were not so good to sell. Best newly calvers cows to £27 10s., secondary to £19 19s. 6d., present calvers to £19 15s., forward ones to £18 12s. 6d., fresh store bullocks £14 15s. to £17 17s. 6d. Fat cattle fully realised last fortnight's quotations; best heifers and bullocks 7½d. to 8d., second best 7d. to 7½d., young cows 7d., old fat cows and bulls 6½d. to 6¾d. per lb., bullocks to £21 7s. 6d., heifers to £20 15s., cows to £15 10s., bulls to £21 7s. 6d. Sheep realised dear; choice small shearlings 10d., heavier sheep 9d., and ewes 6½d. to 7½d. per lb. Fat pigs met a good demand; small choice porkers to 8s. 3d., large bacon pigs 8s. 2d., stronger ditto to 8s. 1d., fresh pigs 6d., stronger ditto to 5s. 6d. Breeding calves made 22s. to 37s. each. Numbers sold—95 newly calven, calving, and store cattle, 70 fat cattle, 109 sheep, 158 pigs, and 6 calves.

WETHERBY, Monday.—At this smart to-day Messrs. Thomlinson and Son had forward a splendid display of choice beef, a smaller show of sheep, and a light show of pigs. The attendance of butchers and dealers was well up to the average, and a firm trade for beef was maintained; sheep and pigs making about late rates. Best beef made from 9s. to 9s. 6d., secondary quality from 8s. 9d. to 9s. per stone; sheep from 9d. to 10d. per lb.; pigs 6s. 6d. to 7s. per stone.

Bullocks made to £33 17s. 6d., and sheep to 79s. each. Numbers sold: 100 beasts, 236 sheep, and 15 pigs. Mr. H. Maskill, late of Old Thorpe, had four splendid quality bullocks which made £31 17s. 6d., £33, £32 15s., and £29 15s.; three ripe bullocks from Mr W. L. Kendall, of Cowthorpe, made £26 15s., £24 and £23 10s.; Mr T. Dowson, of Walshford, had five bullocks, which made £28 2s. 6d., £27 5s., £26 15s., £26 15s., and £24 17s. 6d.; eleven beasts from Hall Garth Farming, made £31 5s., £24 15s., £23 2s. 6d., £23 5s., £23, etc.; four bullocks from Mr R. Dearlove, of Walton, made £24 17s. 6d., £23 10s., £23, £22 17s. 6d., and £22 15s.; Mr E. Liversidge, of Shewark, had six grand bullocks, making £26 2s. 6d., £25 17s. 6d., £25 5s., £26 5s., £25 5s., and £23 10s.; four heifers from Mr W. Hall, of Sharlston Lodge, made £22 7s. 6d., £21, £21 7s. 6d., and £20 7s. 6d.; Mr J. Jackson, of Northlands, had two bullocks making £22 12s. 6d. and £22 10s.; six well-fed black polled bullocks from Mr Elwess, of Ingmanthorpe, made £20, £19 5s., £19 5s., £18 10s., and £18 10s.; Mr R. Bielby, of Cattal, had two bullocks and a cow, which made £21 10s. and £19 7s. 6d.; Mr J. H. Holmes, of Linton, had three bullocks, making £20 9s. 6d., £23 7s. 6d., and £22 17s. 6d.; six grand quality bullocks from Mrs Otter, of Hunsingore, made £26 17s. 6d., £25 7s. 6d., £24 17s. 6d., £24 17s. 6d., £25, and £24 15s.; Mr R. Carr, of Wighill, had two bullocks making £23 17s. 6d. and £22 17s. 6d.; Mr J. H. Elridge, of Walton, had two bullocks, making £23 10s. and £22 17s. 6d.; four bullocks fed by the Auctioneers made £30 2s. 6d., £29 15s., £29, and £26 7s. 6d. Prime fat sheep from Mr R. Bielby made to 79s.; from Mr Buck, to 79s.; from Mr Hardcastle, to 57s.; from Mr E. Spink, to 55s. 6d.; from Mr W. Walker, to 51s. 6d.; from Mr J. Robinson, to 52s. 6d.; from Mr J. Thompson, to 59s. 6d.; from Mrs Otter, to 67s.; from Mr J. W. Atkinson, to 64s. each. Fat pigs from Mr Warrington made to 8s. 6d.; from Mr Dalby, to 7s. 8d.; and from Mr Wiggins, to 7s., etc., etc.

HUNTING IN THE DISTRICT.

MEET AT ASKHAM—A STORM.

On Tuesday the York and Ainsty Hunt met at Askham Richard, and Mrs Walker-Fairbairn gave a most cordial welcome and sumptuous spread to the members. A very large field turned out, including Mrs Jerome, the Hon. Mr. Hawke, Mr Harold and Mrs Nichol, Mr and Miss Dawson, Mrs Harold and Mrs Walker-Fairbairn, Miss Lorna Walker-Fairbairn, Mr Guy Fairfax, Mrs. P. Wormald, Miss Payne-Gallwey, Miss Paget, Mr H. Parker, Mr R. Sutton, Mr Lindsay Foulis, Mr Cundell, Mr Foulis, Mr Frank Bussey, Mrs. Wickham-Boynton, Mr and Miss Wheatley, Mr Richard Armitson, etc.

Many Belgian refugees looked on at the meet, and they appeared to be very excited when hounds moved off to draw. Hounds found their first fox in Askham Whin, going away at the Angram corner, and they were very quickly Running by the White House, Rufforth Grange Wood, and over the Grange farm the fox was lost by the Acomb Road after 40 minutes' hunt. Going to the Bogs for the next draw, Mr Lycett Green and Colonel Wilkinson had any amount of foxes, which went away in every direction. While hunting a fox back to the Bogs from the Kennel Wood a very heavy thunderstorm was experienced. The lightning being very vivid made a great sensation amongst the fields. Horses would not face the storm, and those that sheltered under trees got a great fright when the crack of thunder came. A few of the field had been fortunate to gain shelter in Mr H. Taylor's buildings. Hounds kept going through the storm, and after the storm had passed over ran well in cover. So many foxes in cover kept hounds at work. Hounds could not be got away on the foxes that broke cover. A ballon from the middle ride did not improve matters, scent was getting wretched, and no chance of sport. Fortunately hounds killed one before they left the bogs.

A MORLEY CASE OF TUBERCULOUS GLANDS CURED

57, Commercia Street,
Morley,
Nr. Leeds, 16th July, 1913.

Mr Crosswaite,

Dear Sir,—

I beg to write you a line to express our thankfulness for the splendid cure you have made of my child.

We had almost given up in despair the idea that his face would ever be right again, but thanks to your treatment, during the time he has been under your care, we can see a week by week a gradual improvement, and now the wounds have completely disappeared.

I am sure we are more than satisfied and our only regret is that we did not come to you twelve months sooner.

I shall always feel proud to recommend any similar case to you.

Yours truly,
WM. D. HOLROYD.

SKIN SPECIALIST
MEDICAL HERBALIST
PROF. CROSSWAITE
84, KIRKSTALL ROAD
MODERATE CHARGES

£10 REWARD.—This Reward will be paid by Mr. J. Crosswaite to the first person giving information leading to the conviction of a certain unscrupulous person at present calling upon householders in his name, and offering for sale Recipes, Medicines, Pills, Ointments, etc., falsely representing the same to have been prepared by Mr Crosswaite.

Information may be lodged at the nearest Police Station or Detective Office, Town Hall, Leeds, or Mr. J. Crosswaite, 84, Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

GARFORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

WATER FOR BELGIAN REFUGEES—REFUSE TIP.

THE NUMBERING OF HOUSES AGAIN.

COLLECTION OF RATES—SUGGESTED INSTALMENTS.

The monthly meeting of Garforth Urban District Council was held on Wednesday night at the offices—Mr J. W. Dobson (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs R. Routledge, jun., E. R. Archer, W. Goodall, T. S. Slater, W. W. Hartley, H. Gascoigne and H. Chappel, with the Clerk (Mr A. E. Carr), the surveyor (Mr T. Abbott), and the sanitary inspector (Mr Naylor).

COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

At a meeting of the Highways Committee it was resolved that the Clerk write to Mr Lamb, solicitor, Leeds, asking him to convey away surface water from property at Springfield Place.

At a meeting of the Fire and Lighting Committee it was agreed that a number of hydrants be procured for the pipes, to be used in case of spills, that two hydrants be attended to—one at Green's Buildings and the other at the Colliery School, and that instructions be given to the gas manager to move the lamp in Coupland Road and place it pursuant to Mr Abbott's instructions.

WATER FOR BELGIAN REFUGEES.

At a meeting of the Water Committee it was decided that Mr Bosher be instructed to charge a scale rate for water for the house occupied by the Belgian Refugees.

On the reading of the minutes Mr Gascoigne moved that the Council do not charge for water to the Belgian refugees' house. They had plenty to do to get the money to keep those people without paying water charges, and it was a little for the Council could do to give the water.

Mr Slater seconded, and Mr Routledge supported.

Mr Chappel said that the public were keeping the refugees, and they would have to pay the deficiency in the water charges. If the amendment was carried. It was like taking money out of one pocket and putting it in the other.

Mr Gascoigne said that was not so. The whole parish would have to pay the deficiency, and they were not exactly identical with the people who subscribed to the Belgian Fund.

The minutes were adopted without the part relating to the matter discussed.

A RUBBISH TIP.

At a Sanitary and Building Committee meeting a letter was read from Mr T. Herbert Prater with regard to refuse tipping, and the committee recommended this for the Council's acceptance.

The letter from Mr Prater was read, in which he stated his was quite willing to let this Council have a rubbish tip in a field on the north side of the Cliff at a charge of 5s. per annum.

Mr Hartley discussed the area of the land, its capacity as a tip, and the good to it, and said he thought the Sanitary Committee should visit the field and give a report.

Mr Archer said that it was a question that required careful consideration, and he moved that the committee make such a report as indicated.

Mr. Hartley seconded, and this was agreed to, the minutes being adopted without the part relating to the tip.

MEDICAL OFFICER'S REPORT.

The medical officer was not present, having some professional duty to attend to, and he sent his report. Only a case of erysipelas was notified during November, and so far as he could learn no fresh cases of enteric had occurred.

There had been 15 births (10 males and 5 females) and 4 deaths, three of whom were males.

Dr. Pickersgill stated that he considered the health of the district highly satisfactory.

Mr Chappel complained of the absence of the medical officer, whom they had not an opportunity of asking questions. The last medical officer attended practically every meeting, and answered any question that they might put, but he did not think Dr. Pickersgill had attended half the meetings since he was appointed.

The Chairman said that was owing to his residing at a distance from Garforth.

Nothing further was said on the matter.

WATER INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Mr Naylor stated that up to November 30th (35 days) the consumption of water was 1,557,000 gallons, an average of 44,485 per day.

It was decided to purchase washers and leave them with Mr Bosher, who would supply them to water consumers as required. This is to check waste of water, and was brought forward by Mr Archer.

SCAVENGING CONTRACT.

In reply to the advertisement only one tender for the scavenging work of the area was received, and Mr Alfred Reed offered to do it for £160 for three months and £160 for six months.

Mr Archer proposed that the tender for six months be accepted.

Mr Goodall seconded, and this was adopted.

NAMING STREETS AND NUMBERING HOUSES.

A letter was received from the postal authorities complaining of the inconvenience to postmen owing to the houses in Garforth not being numbered.

A discussion ensued on the matter, and Mr Gascoigne stated that an estimate got out when the question was up before showed the work would cost about £25.

Mr Slater asked if they could get the cost of numbering the houses from the owners.

The Chairman said he did not think so. When it was up before they thought it should be uniformly done.

Mr Hartley: If the Council take as long to spend £20 on every thing we shall save a lot of money. (Laughter).

Mr Chappel said the cost was not much more than a farthing rate, and it would be very beneficial.

Mr Goodall said that at present they should not spend money on what they could do without.

Mr Gascoigne said it was three years since it was passed. Could they ask the owners to do it?

Mr Archer said that every owner would do the work in his own way, and it would be one-eyed. He had heard Garforth called an one-eyed place, and if the numberings were done in the way he indicated it would really be one-eyed.

The Chairman said that all the colliery houses were numbered, as well as those in a number of the streets in the place.

The Clerk pointed out that it was decided when the estimates were adopted the work should not be done this half-year.

Mr Gascoigne said they were considering whether it could not be done at the owners' expense.

The Chairman said they could take the work into consideration next half-year, and the matter then dropped.

PRIVATE STREETS.

Mr Gascoigne asked if the Local Government Board had fixed the date of the inquiry into the application for a loan for making-up the private streets?

The Clerk said they had not.

Mr Gascoigne said that nothing had been done to the streets, and they were hardly fit to walk on.

THE COLLECTION OF RATES.

Mr Hartley said that last half-year he understood 131 persons had been summoned for non-payment of the district rate. He thought the rate might be taken in instalments. People who had been summoned had said they could have paid in this way, and it would have saved trouble. A rate collector had told him that he collected money in that way. He was not saying anything that would reflect on Mr Bosher, but he thought he should be seen and asked if he could not deal with the matter in the way indicated.

The Chairman: The difficulty would be with the rate books.

Mr Slater said that the collector had to show the amount collected and when collected, and how could he do it if it was paid by instalments?

Mr Hartley said he would not have to enter it until he received the full sum.

The Chairman said it would be a good thing if they could take payment by instalments, but it would lead to irregularities.

After further discussion, the matter was allowed to drop.

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal

— BY —

ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Border chrysanthemums have retained their freshness until late in the season, but are now practically over. It is not generally known that many varieties will live through the severest winter if they are protected with a few inches of rough ashes. The Musse family are very hardy, and we have known them live for years without being disturbed. In very exposed districts it is advisable to remove a portion of the plants to a cold frame for protection. They may be placed in pots, or planted in the frame bottom. Border varieties are easily increased. All that is necessary is to divide them up in spring, and plant the young shoots either in nursery beds or in their flowering quarters. Many varieties produce a large number of young shoots from the base, and if large clumps are desired, for flower garden decoration, it is a good plan to plant about half-a-dozen shoots about six inches apart. It must be remembered that all chrysanthemums are gross feeders, and the ground for them must be heavily manured. Where old plants are left in the ground they should be manured in spring.

AUTUMN DUTIES.

With the advent of December usually comes the weather that effectually puts a stop to outdoor gardening operations. No time should be lost when the weather is favourable in completing the necessary cleaning of shrubberies, herbaceous borders, rockeries, etc. Thoroughness should be the watchword when cleaning operations are on hand. Decaying leaves, weeds, dead wood, and all unnecessary litter should should be cleared away, and where it is possible the soil should be turned up to give it a fresh appearance. It is not possible to do this in the herbaceous border without disturbing a quantity of the roots, and this should be avoided. In many shrubberies and plantations the same difficulty exists and it would be a mistake to sacrifice the roots for the sake of appearances. On light soils the herbaceous border should now receive a good mulching of rotten manure. Heavy soils may be dressed with bonemeal, or if that is not available the mulching must be postponed until spring when a dressing of manure may be given.

All necessary planting of bulbs, plants, shrubs, roses, trees, etc., should be hurried on without delay.

THE KITCHEN GARDEN.

Early digging is an important point in vegetable cultivation. We desire to impress upon our readers the fact that frost plays a very important part in bringing the soil into good heart. The ground should be dug deeply, but no attempt at breaking the lumps of soil, too exciting cut, should be made. The rougher it is the deeper the frost can penetrate to a good depth. Frost is a purifier, and in addition, destroys thousands of insect foes, even in a small garden. Any irregularities that exist may easily be rectified out with a fork in spring.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

So many shows have been cancelled this year that it has been difficult to form an idea as to the merits of the new varieties. A large number were introduced last spring, and if the shows had been held as usual it is very probable that some striking new subjects would have been exhibited. The drawback to growing these new single varieties is that very few of them are decorative enough. Because a variety may be grown to a large size, and gives a fine flower by being disbudded, it does not follow that it would prove satisfactory if allowed to develop as it pleased. Many of the various pompons, Pompon, Porta, and Mermichum Yellow. The latter will produce a quantity of bloom it is true, but unless it is disbudded its pretty incurve is developed as mass. Pompons in an ideal exhibition variety, but it grown as a bush plant it is disappointing. On the other hand there are many varieties which are disappointing if disbudded, whereas if they were allowed to bloom naturally they would be classed as first rate sorts. Ideality is one of these. When disbudded the flowers are coarse, and do not open freely. Grown naturally the flowers are produced freely in large sprays. The habit of the plant is all that could be desired—dwarf, free-branching, and sturdy. We commend this variety to readers who desire a good white for cutting purposes. Another white, which may be grown either for exhibition or table decoration, is Lilian Billington. This variety has been raised by a northern exhibitor, and will take a prominent place in the near future. The flowers are exceptionally large and well-formed, and are produced in great profusion. The old favourite Mensa is still one of the best white, and its primrose sport, Mrs Lou Thompson, should be in every collection. As a purely decorative, Kitty Boorer would be hard to beat as a yellow, whilst a companion variety, which, which may be used for exhibition, is Miss M. Otter. This is a large, flat flower, and of a rich yellow shade. It would be extremely difficult to make a selection of varieties to suit everyone, and the few we have mentioned include several of the older ones. They are well worth growing, however, and to the list may be added Symphon Radiance, Chas. Kingsley, J. B. Lout, R. B. Burge, Mrs Hulmes, and Snow Queen. The latter is really an anemone, but the centre is so small that it has been placed amongst the singles.

JAPANESE.

The beautiful large, white Queen Mary is perhaps the most popular Jap. in existence. We have seen some splendid blooms of it, and others that cannot be carefully satisfactory. To get the best results the cuttings should be rooted early and first crown buds must be secured. Second crowns show an eye. Mrs R. Luxford is another good white variety. It has long, broad petals, and builds up into a huge bloom. Mrs J. G. Day is a large variety and a vigorous grower. The soft pink Mrs Alfred Jones is expected to be this become a favourite. His Majesty is a rich velvety crimson, large and with long, broad, evenly reflexed petals. This is perhaps the richest coloured variety of its section. Miss A. Roope is a decidid acquisition to the yellows. First crown buds are best, and when well grown this variety is almost as large as Queen Mary. Frederick Dorrell is a beautiful purple with long curling florets. D. B. Crane we still consider to be one of the best. The exceptionally long, twisting florets make it very attractive. Francis Felliffe is another huge variety of great merit.

DECORATIVE VARIETIES.

For general usefulness the decorative varieties are far the best, and amateurs who have no ambition to pose as exhibitors of the large Japanese varieties would do well to confine their efforts to these and the singles. There are scores of really good varieties, and the cultivation of this section is extremely simple. A few of the best are: Bilton's Favourite, Parson's White, Hortus Tophusanus, Professor Fillet, Source du Pentrenge (in various colours), Precheuter, Source d'or, Doris Rexburn, Mrs. H. Turner, Market Red, Mrs W. Wells, Niveus, Mrs Greenfield, and David Ingamells.

The mammoth order recently given by the Government for the supply of cotton flannel and coarse for the British troops has created extraordinary activity in the fur and clothing trades. These coats are being made of grey goat skins, the ordinary cloth being lined to 45 inches in length with the fur.

THREE SELBY BROTHERS IN THE ARMY.

Private Tom Welch, and Gordon Highlanders, who is 39 years of age, has been a prisoner of war in Germany since August 26th. He was in the Army for twelve years, and subsequently passed on to the Reserve, and prior to rejoining the Colours he had been employed as a parcels postman at York station, while later he was employed at the Olympia Oil Mills, Selby.

Private Ben Welch, who is 31 years of age, is also in the 2nd Gordon Highlanders, and was made a prisoner of war at the same time as his elder brother. Prior to rejoining the Colours at the outbreak of the war he had worked at the York Post Office and also as a porter at Stourton Bridge. He served for seven years with his regiment before joining the Reserve.

Corporal Herbert Welch, who is 33 years of age, served for seven years in the West Yorkshire Regiment, and was in action throughout the Boer War, while he also saw active service in India. Leaving the regiment he returned to York, and for some time was employed as a tram conductor, but about two years ago he went to Selby, where he obtained a situation at the Olympia Oil Mills. At Selby he joined the Territorial Force, and on the outbreak of the war was called up on the mobilisation of the Yorkshire units. He has been stationed with the Yorkshire Brigade at Stranraal, but is now quartered with his company at St. Mary's, Bishophill, York, having recently been promoted corporal.

THE ARCHBISHOP AND THE KAISER.

In his monthly letter to the diocese, the Archbishop of York says:—"There are signs of a very un-Christian spirit of malignity towards our enemies. I will give you one instance of what I mean. On Sunday, November 22nd, while addressing a memorable assembly of over 2,000 men in York, I made a passing allusion to the German Emperor. I had been speaking of the origin of the war, and insisting that history would record the verdict that the responsibility for its calamities must be laid upon the German Government; but in saying this I deplored the gross and vulgar abuse which had sometimes been heaped upon the Emperor personally, and I quite incidentally expressed my own feeling—nothing more—that he was with great reluctance he felt himself compelled to accept that fact that his conduct and the conduct of his Ministers had involved himself in a war with England." This allusion to the Emperor, isolated from the context of the whole address, appears to have been widely reported in the newspapers throughout the country. The impression seems to have been thus created that a long address spoken with the sole object of inspiring my hearers with a strong faith in the justice of our cause, and enthusiasm for its support, was mainly intended to defend the German Emperor!. This in itself is only a conspicuous instance of the way in which the isolation of single sentences from their context can pervert the whole character and object of a speech.

"I allude to the matter here because these misleading reports have let loose upon me a torrent of extraordinary abuse. Of course, such abuse does not give me personally the slightest concern; but the volume of it has been a sombre what sinister sign of that spirit of malignity towards our enemies which seems to me to be quite incompatible with any kind of Christian principle. The responsibility of the Emperor and of his advisers for plunging Europe into this awful war, and for the ruthlessness with which in unhappy heroic Belgium it has been waged, is —God knows—heavy enough; and some share of that responsibility must rest with the whole German nation in so far as it has allowed itself to be poisoned by the principles of Prussian militarism. But the most full, and, as I believe, just sense of the Christian duty of responsibility does not justify either the spirit or the language of blind prejudice and bitter hatred. Our cause is too sacred to be dragged down thus. If we are to win worthily, we have need for ourselves and for the whole nation, to pray 'From hatred and malice and all unCharitableness, Good Lord, deliver us.' I have had in my mind ever since the war began, and have often quoted, the words of that great citizen-soldier, Abraham Lincoln—"With malice towards none, with charity towards all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive to finish this work we are in." That is the true temper of Christian patriotism. Let us try to keep it.

A verdict of "Death by misadventure" was returned at an inquest in London on Monday on an Indian woman who, the evidence showed, was greatly addicted to the opium habit. The principal witness was Mr James Sidney Lee, civil engineer, of Redcar, who stated that the woman, whom he met in India, had lived with him for eighteen years. He found her unconscious last Wednesday. He had, he said, known her to take ten grains of cocaine in a day.

EMPIRE,

LEEDS.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 7th.

6-50 & 9 O'CLOCK. PRICES AS USUAL.

SIR HERBERT TREE'S

GREAT BIBLICAL PRODUCTION,

JOSEPH AND HIS BRETHREN

80 Performers. 11 Magnificent Scenes. Camels, Donkeys, Sheep, &c., &c.

ACTUAL PRODUCTION:

— FROM —

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LONDON.

EMPIRE.

GENUINE EAST INDIA RAPE NUTS.

A WELL-TRIED AND RELIABLE

AUTUMN TILLAGE.

M. SCOTT & Co., Seed Crushers. SELBY.

Prompt Delivery can be given to Rails Selby.

Ask your Manure Merchant for particulars.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.

THE GREAT CURE FOR

COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.

Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.

TELEPHONE 57 CENTRAL.

OR THE MAKERS,

J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

THE DRINGHOUSES FATALITY.

At an inquest held at the York Military Hospital, on Tuesday, into the death of Private J. Storrs, of Chesham Street, Horton Road, Bradford, a member of H Company of the National Reserves, who died in that institution as the result of injuries, received in a motor accident at Dringhouses, on November 20th, it was stated that about ten o'clock at night, Mr Storrs and another Reservist named Mr James Merrick were assisting a civilian named McPherson, who was under the influence of drink, to get home, when they were run into by a car owned by Lieut. Moor, of Huddersfield, of the National Reserve.

The night was foggy, and the car was travelling very slowly, pulling up immediately. Mr Storrs had also had some drink.

Dr. W. G. Micklethwait said that when he examined Storrs the man was suffering from concussion and the effects of alcohol. His ankle was crushed and bruised. He did well in the hospital for four days, and then developed delirium, which caused his death. The delirium supervened on alcoholism, and was accelerated by the injuries.

The injuries were not such as would have caused death to a healthy man.

In summing up, the Coroner said it was pathetic that encased should have met his death while assisting a friend.

The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death," finding that the cause was as stated by Dr. Micklethwait.

Mr Scott, on behalf of Lieut. Moor, expressed sympathy with the relatives.

LICENSED HOUSES IN LEEDS

At the close of a meeting of the Leeds Licensing Committee, held at the Town Hall, on Tuesday, to consider the situation which has arisen in regard to the proposal to restrict the sale of intoxicants at the public houses and clubs of the city, the following official statement was issued to the Press:—

It having been reported to the committee that matters have much improved since the making of the proposed order, and that the conditions with regard to the billeting of troops in licensed places have been altered, the Licensing Committee think the proposed order, and adjourn the further consideration of the question for the present.

Fourteen of the professional players of Bradford Northern Union Football Club have joined the colours.

Sir James B. Dougherty, until recently Under Secretary at Dublin Castle, was on Monday returned unopposed as Liberal member for Londonderry City, in place of the late Mr D. C. Hogg.

An English lady, who has just reached her Hampshire home from Germany, in an interview on Saturday, said the German public were still being deluded as to the real state of affairs. They believe that the German army practically smashed the British Navy that it is quite an easy matter to cross the Channel, and they expect to conquer England by Christmas. The public have great faith in their Zeppelins.

An official return issued at Belfast, shows that the number of men who have joined the Army and Special Reserve in the Province of Ulster from the beginning of the war up to Saturday last total 20,768, of whom 14,460 represent the strength of the thirty-sixth division which has been raised from the Ulster Volunteer force. In Belfast alone, 15,445 recruits have been enrolled, including 65 who have joined the Irish Horse Service Battalion Black Watch (Territorials).

At Thorp Stapleton! The fact that the Leeds City Council have accepted a tender of £141,908 in connection with sewage disposal is a reminder that the Corporation will have on hand the big sewage scheme imposed upon them by the West Riding Rivers Board. Begun in 1909, the sewage works at Knostrop have already involved the carrying out of fifty contracts and the expenditure of £1,250,000. The total cost of the scheme, when completed, is estimated for at a figure of £1,277,000, but some few years will have passed before that money will have been borrowed and spent. Meanwhile, sewage treatment to a considerable extent is going on both at Knostrop, Rodley, and Killingbeck.

40 EGGS FOR 6d

COVERDALE'S Egg-Producing POULTRY POWDER

Is the best Poultry Tonic on the market, and its use guarantees WINTER LAYERS.

From none at all to 40 Eggs a week.

Flaxton, near York.

Dear Sirs,—My hens had not laid a single egg for more than a month, but the 6d. packet of Poultry Powder you sent me has worked wonders. They are already laying 20 eggs a week, and increasing. I will certainly use it and recommend it.—Yours truly, J. LUND.

Sold in Packets, 6d., 1s., 2s. 6d. and 5s., post free, including a 32-page booklet on "Profitable Poultry Keeping."

Coverdale's Poultry Powder, Ltd., York.

Agents—G. H. MOON, Grocer, etc., East Keswick, Wetherby; Aberford, Thorner, Crossgates, Tadcaster, South Milford, Harrogate, post-o. spa, Bramham, and Roundhay; M. H. DICKINSON, Ltd., Meadow Lane, Leeds; T. D. SMITH & SON, Garforth; Mrs HU. T. High street, Tadcaster; G. HARGRAVE, Grocer station; A. WEST & CO., 171, Harrogate Road, Leeds and TAYLORS' DRUG Co.'s branches.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN,

Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 16.

In last week's article we saw how to prepare for the coming winter. This week, I propose to deal with the question of feeding the birds during the dark, dreary days of December, which are now with us. Many poultry-keepers make the mistake of feeding their birds in exactly the same way and on the same old diet all the year round, little thinking how tired the birds must get of the menu, and that they need a variance of food quite as much as we do, and that with the change of seasons they also need a change of food—that which was suitable in the summer is not equally as suitable in the winter. Another big mistake made by many poultry-keepers is that of flying to mash as soon as the winter arrives, and giving it all day, until the warm days of spring induce them to give something different. Mash is a very useful food—in fact, a valuable food—if given judiciously, but when given to excess, especially to birds in close confinement, it tends to increase fat, and, as you know, fat hens are not laying hens—the kind you want, and want badly. The first meal of the day should always be a soft mash, and given as soon as day breaks, which is not very early just now. It should also be served warm, and may consist of (1) scalded biscuit meal, dried off with sharps; (2) ground oats mixed up and dried off with sharps; (3) "special laying meal," similarly mixed and dried off. If green food is scarce, dry clover chaff should be scalded and mixed in the mash, and for a few birds any household scraps may be cut into small pieces and utilised. Of course, to any of the above you will add Coleman's poultry mustard at the rate of one heaped teaspoonful of mustard to every six birds. Only give the birds just as much as they will eagerly eat, as fine feed for much the birds become sour, stand about, and catch colds. Bury a little corn in the litter of the scratching-shed, so as to keep the birds busy and continually on the move, as exercise is the key-note to success in winter egg-production. At noon, on allowance of fresh cut green bone or lean meat and short white oats should be given on alternate days. Never feed the last meal a smack, and any green food available may also be given. The last feed, about an hour before roosting time, should consist of good red wheat; one night, white oats; the next, maize. On very wet, cold, or wet days small round maize may be substituted, and, by way of a change, it may be boiled and given warm, as also may the wheat. The drinking water should not be overlooked, and the drinking water needs careful attention, and to prevent colds a little of my roup powder should be added as per directions supplied with each packet.

(Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Captain Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free. But those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown postal order. The name of the writer must in all cases be given).

DURING THE WAR USE

COLMAN'S POULTRY MUSTARD

AND SECURE MORE EGGS

"The Poultry Keepers' Account Book" and other literature, post free on application to

PRICE LIST. RALPH R. ALLEN,

2lb. 2/8
8lb. 9/7
12lb. 12/8
24lb. 23/0
Carriage Paid.

Sawbridgeworth Herts.

BRITAIN REQUIRES MORE FOOD!

ALLEN'S ROUP CURE, 2/1 Post Paid.

Each package contains a sufficient to make 25 gallons of medicine, and is a guaranteed cure for this dreaded disease. Prevention is better than cure, and practical poultry-keepers will order a packet of PELTIS this preparation in the fowls' drinking water, and so render their flocks immune.

Full directions are given with each packet.

To be obtained only from R. R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES, 1/6 post paid

Generally called "THE POULTRY-KEEPERS' FRIEND." Positively a boon. Restores all colour a parasite (iron, quinine, and cod-liver oil) should be given every morning while the bird is right. For a day or two before and after shows they are invaluable.

To be obtained only from R. R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

THE MOST PRACTICAL UTILITY POULTRY BOOK PUBLISHED

MONTHLY HINTS ON POULTRY

32 pages, profusely illustrated, art paper, 6d. 2/- per annum, post free, from

THE EDITOR, Sawbridgeworth, HERTS.

Write for specimen copy.

Pure-bred Laying Pullets 7/6 each

We can offer you selected Rhode Island Red, White, Black, and Brown Leghorn, White Orpington and White Wyandotte, March-hatched Pullets, at 7s. 6d. each. Unrivalled vigorous Cockerels, from 12s. each. Approval.

ALLEN POULTRY Co., Ltd., Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

ROTHWELL WAR RELIEF FUND.

COLLECTIONS IN NORTH AND SOUTH WARDS.

The following is a list of collectors and the amount collected for the Rothwell Urban District War Relief Fund by the North and South Wards Committees:—

Royds Street (Misses G. W. Stallings and Brown), £3 3s.

Black Bull Yard (Mrs Bailey and Miss Cromwell), £2 2s. 10d.

Kington Yard (Misses Wilson and Wilson), £1 7s. 6d.

Holmes' Square (Mrs Young and Miss Bussey), £2 2s. 8d.

Mackenzie (Messrs. Robinson and Southward), £2 19s. 3d.

Sycamore Street (Misses Wood and Blenkinsop), £2 9s. 3d.

Woodhall Lane (Misses Harrison and Wilson), 19s. 3d.

Carlton Lane (Misses Ellis and Allenbury), 3s. 6d.

Bramley Lane (Misses Goodall and Feildhouse), £2 3s. 3d.

Grass Street (Misses Tasker and McWilliams), 19s. 10d.

Gilbert Lane (Misses Hare and Whitehead), 19s. 9d.

West Parade (Misses Taylor and Goodall), £2 3s. 3d.

Commercial Street (Misses Satterthwaite), £1 2s.

Mill Hill (Misses Shirley and Smith), 19s. 8d.

Paddock (Mr and Miss Marshall), 5s. 4d.

Churchfields (Misses Tilbury and W. Goodall), £1 19s. 9d.

Haigh Road (Misses Watkins and Hoare), £1 19s. 6d.

Wood Lane (Misses Hirst and Hartley), £1 18s. 6d.

Woodland Crescent (Misses McCullough and Walker), 19s. 9d.

John O'Gaunt's (Misses Lunn and McWilliams), 19s. 6d.

The total is £35 19s. 8½d.

CORRESPONDENCE

THE NEW BEER WAR TAX.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—I was astonished to read the statement of Mr Lloyd George that the brewers had not objected to the extra new tax which has been placed upon beer. The indignation of the "trade" as a whole is only to be equalled by the indignation of the beer-drinking public.

To any thinking mind the following output of the Farnsworth United Breweries for the second and fourth weeks in November, the first entirely without the new tax, and the second under the war tax, will prove that the increase is not going to matter to the Exchequer the amount anticipated by the Chancellor. For the second week November 14th, 1914, 7,433 barrels or 72 cwt. duty amounts to £950. For the week ended November 28th, 1914, but 6,618 or 70 cwt. 3qr. 16lb. amount to £846.

This gives Mr Lloyd George an increase of £80, on own week, and for this £80 a sound business is destroyed, the property depreciated to at least one-fifth of its value, the value of the capital, and the number of employees reduced in the county of ——. In addition to this there are no fewer than 700 customers who are traders seriously injured, with nothing but rude scowls given to the beer.

Speaking for our brewery alone, it is worth £80 per week to destroy the commercial value of a brewery? Is it worth £80 per week to destroy the financial resources of our brewery when, why endeavour to be loyal and support their country on all occasions?

And may I say, it is quite time the relatively paltry sum by destroy a national business, to put an end to liquor beer-drinking, and to encourage the working men to exercise spare drinking, which has increased enormously.

The United States Legislature is doing something in its power to discourage spare drinking and to promote the use of beer, which is looked upon as food, and it is recognised by users of beer in this country in the same light.—Thanks, etc.,

W. T. Dewar.

Crossgrove, Farnsworth.

MELBY LIBERALS AND WHIST DRIVES.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—I am surprised to learn that the Liberal Party in Selby are holding weekly whist drives at a time like the present, when it is generally understood that all energies ought to be put forward.

Moreover, I understand that it was known to their officials that the Conservative Party in Selby had decided not to run their usual weekly whist drives during the war, except one or two for some particular object.

The only consolation that can be placed on the action of the Selby Liberals is that they are helping an enemy although the party purports.—Yours, etc.,

Observer.

WATER AND SEWERAGE IN BARNSTON AND VILLAGES.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—I take the liberty of writing you on the above subject, as many of our inhabitants villages in this District, under the control of the Tadcaster authorities are apparently very indifferent stimulated to.

As a recent resident from a town with its own water, gas, electric supply and sanitary arrangements, I may say our chief complaints in the above matters are consistently neglected by the authority for dealing with such matters. Whatever the cause may be suggested on I am at a loss to understand, though such matters are certainly not in comparison with even the smaller towns.

Permit me to mention—no pure water in the vicinity of good wholesome drinking water (undesirable in many cases) has to be had from messenger, emptying his own closets, in many cases sewage draining into open trains which the cattle have to drink, and if new house property is to be built we have without submitting plans to any authority and provide his own arrangement for dealing with the sewage, provide his own drinking water, this being simply surface water obtained by a sump as well as of no use for dog, which in rainy weather the water in the fields stands inside drop, and then, of course, finally drains through our wells, and is used for drinking. I have in mind some new property recently erected in our village, where two different lots of property pumps to new joints of each other have four different wells of this nature, one of which I have, is likely to be a mineral water (unless contaminated), and the Wesleyan cannot water in her brewing (tea), so that Harrogate only have to look out.

Other cottages have adopted the locket system, instead of dry mine closets, and though at present

BROWNHILLS'
PLUM PUDDINGS
In 1/- Basins; and larger sizes.
— AND —
MINCEMEAT
In 1lb. and 2lb. reputed jars.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1048. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
Huddersfield: " 1000.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten.
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW OFFERING
THE BEST VALUE IN YORKSHIRE
— IN —
BOOTS & SHOES for Present Wear.
We are SPECIALISTS IN "FOOTWEAR for the COUNTRY."
Large Variety of Leggings, Gaiters, Slippers, & Dress Shoes.
FARMERS' BOOTS. NAVVIES' BOOTS. PIT BOOTS.
BOOTS THAT WILL TURN THE WET
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared.
BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money : Boot Stores, :
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK
PERMANENT
BUILDING SOCIETY
96, ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street), Leeds.
DAILY from 10 to 3. Saturdays 10 to 1. Saturday Evenings, 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
Prospectus on Application. Jno. Exley, President.
Tel. No. 253. Wm. Mason, Manager & Secretary.

Telephone No. 1129.
RHODES & SONS,
COMMERCIAL AND . .
GENERAL PRINTERS,
" Rothwell Courier and Times " Office,
2, AIRE STREET.
LEEDS.

CROSSGATES DISTRESS COMMITTEE FORMED

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE COLLECTION TO BE MADE.

SPLENDID WORK BY CROSSGATES RED CROSS WORKERS.

For several months the lady workers of the Crossgates Red Cross Society, consisting of members of Moorlais Church and Crossgates Wesleyan Church, have been making a weekly Rothwell Inland pertinent, for the purpose of making garments for our soldiers and sailors, and for the year ended up to November 5th they had actually distributed no fewer than 500 garments. They have accomplished splendid work, and, with the assistance of the Red Cross Society, Mrs Elliott (Secretary Road) is the secretary, Mrs Chadley and Mrs Moore work secretaries, and Miss Hulbert, treas.

An interesting and enjoyable function took place in the Wesleyan Lecture Hall on Wednesday evening, when the members of the Red Cross Society, who contributed to an excellent tea provided by Mrs Dewhurst, Miss Jessop, Miss Gillett, Miss Hulbert, Miss Moore, Mrs. H. H. Mallinson (chair), Rev. E. Bell (Wesleyan minister), Rev. Dewhurst, Mrs. Dewhurst, Mr. W. G. Brownhouse, and Mr S. H. Young. After the evening was held—Rev. E. Bell presiding—a concert was given by members of the choir, being transacted the ladies were heartily congratulating.

The Chairman, after expressing their appreciation of Mrs Dewhurst's services, stated that when the Vicar came to him and said it would be a gracious thing if the ladies of the two churches would work together to the Red Cross cause he was only too glad to accept the suggestion, and he was delighted to find how quickly the ladies had responded, with what a great amount of work they had done. It had been suggested that they might do a little more in the way of raising money which could eventually be disbursed to those who needed it most, and he stated how funds had been got in Dunsley, by means of weekly subscriptions, and the evening adopted such a scheme, a total of 1s. per week would be required for the week.

The Vicar said that they had had the opportunity for raising money, and he thought, not only for the sake of the objects, which they all knew were most deserving and very worthy, but in the highest sense of the word, but for the sake of the givers they should act in such. For the last few months the people of England, rich and poor, educated and unlearned, had wonderfully realised the fact that they could be self-sacrificing. Of course, in years gone by there had been a great deal of self-sacrifice, but it had been confined to the few. In Church work, as they knew, the work generally fell on the few. Everyone was told that they could give, and they were beginning in the way of raising money which could eventually be disbursed to those who needed it most, and he stated how funds had been got in Dunsley, by means of weekly subscriptions, and the evening adopted such a scheme, a total of 1s. per week would be required for the week.

The Vicar said that they had had the opportunity for raising money, and he thought, not only for the sake of the objects, which they all knew were most deserving and very worthy, but in the highest sense of the word, but for the sake of the givers they should act in such. For the last few months the people of England, rich and poor, educated and unlearned, had wonderfully realised the fact that they could be self-sacrificing. Of course, in years gone by there had been a great deal of self-sacrifice, but it had been confined to the few. In Church work, as they knew, the work generally fell on the few. Everyone was told that they could give, and they were beginning in the way of raising money which could eventually be disbursed to those who needed it most, and in connection with the Red Cross Society great and useful work had been done. There was, however, many people who had not been touched. In Temperance and Schools it had been shown that people were ready to give, and were only waiting to be asked. He suggested a house-to-house collection; they would be glad of wool from the ladies, and of money from the men. The money there was the question as to how it was to be distributed. It had been suggested that it would be a nice thing for them to send a little Christmas present to each of the boys at the front, or those in training. Most of them had some from comfortable homes, and would get Christmas gifts, but he thought it would be excellent if they could send a present to each of the parish. They would be a good way of starting. He paid a tribute to the relief workers—Messrs. Brownhouse, Lee, and Chadwick—of the local War Service Committee, and said there was no fear of distress in the parish. He suggested that they should have a house-to-house collection, with three or four ladies, should be entrusted with the distribution of the funds.

Mr S. H. Young, in response to the call of the Chairman, said he was pleased to be present at a meeting held in Crossgates. He said that in Temperance they did not get much to do, but the wisdom was there, but from experience they learned a thing or two. They decided that they would have a collection, and that the money should be spent there or in the district. In their collections, but subscriptions on a weekly basis. Every part of the parish was represented on the committee, and every house would be visited. He concluded in the scheme of collection, house given weekly, and very thankful they were to receive the proposal. They were very glad to help and others gave assistance. They had raised £40 a month collected in small sums. It had required them to deal with all sorts—conditions and circumstances in the parish. They allowed the Crossgates Red Cross Society £10 a month collected, and, in addition, they had given £15 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

The Vicar said that in Crossgates they ought to exclude any backwardness, which could be dealt with by their church funds. He felt that any money raised should go for the relief of the families of those who had gone to the war, viz., of soldiers, etc., the Queen's Fund, etc.

Mr Young said that in Templetown-wards there had been little distress, and it had increased lately the last two months.

Mrs. Dewhurst asked if they should consult Seacroft in the district.

The Vicar said he did not see why they should not do so.

Mr Dewhurst said another question was the purchase of clothing for wounded Belgian soldiers, and he stated that he had arranged that the Belgian Committee should be given to the Red Cross Society in Tadcaster, and said he had received applications for clothing for the soldiers, and they should do their utmost to help her. His wife, he said, had done a great deal in connection for their friends in the church, and she had remarked, "My word, they can work." He thought the ladies would do the same for the Belgians, and if they worked together, and they would be able to appreciate each other's work. Whilst the soldiers were in the trenches he thought it was the duty of every non-combatant to do something at home, and there was work for every man and woman.

Mrs Dewhurst said that the amount of work done had been marvellous. They had had twelve machines at work, as they would see by the list. She was sorry to say she did not go in much with the ladies (Laughter). The meetings had been a great pleasure and she had thoroughly enjoyed them. They had got to know the ladies from the church, and she did not think that in future they would clash in their meetings and work, because they would know each other. She was very much in favour of a house-to-house collection being made. A great many people in the district, she was sorry to say, did not go to a church, and they had not an opportunity of giving. They had been doing something in summer, but a great many could do more than they were doing.

It was resolved to form an organization called Crossgates and District Distress Committee, and Mr Brownhouse was appointed secretary, Mr Chadwick treasurer, and Mrs. E. Bell and Miss Vicar were appointed Chairman, and Mrs Dewhurst, Mrs Mallinson, Mrs Moore, Mrs Chadley, and Mrs. Elliott were elected on the committee. Collectors will be appointed in the several districts to make a house-to-house collection.

Thursday's issue of the work of the Red Cross Society was given. Mrs. Dewhurst, on behalf of Mrs. Elliott, stated they had sent a subscription of £5 to the Lord Mayor's Fund. They received from the Lady Mayoress material for making sixty-nine shirts and bed jackets. Other work turned out by the Society was as follows:—Linen and bandages to the St. John's Ambulance Society, 75 garments to the Belgian Refugees at Harrington Hall, 118 garments to Belgian Refugees at Keighley, 48 garments to Belgian Refugees at Leeds, 25 garments to Belgian Refugees at Templetown, 250 garments to Belgians in Belgium, 80 garments to wounded in Templetown-ward, 13 garments to military base hospital at Rouen, 61 garments to soldiers at Grimsby, 50 garments to soldiers at Colwell, and 134 garments to troops in the front. The total distributed to November 5th was 900 garments. She explained that they had four trunks full of garments, and other things, for the Belgian distribution, and she expressed their gratitude to people who had sent them cloth, etc.

Miss Hulbard stated that the receipts were as follows:—Collections at Wesleyan Church £2 12s. 3d., donations 10s. 7d., 13s. 9d., £1 1s. 6d., £1 1s. 6d., collections and donations at Moorlais Church £1 1s. 6d., and sale of flags £1 10s. 6d., the total being £27 9s. 2d. The expenditure was:—Goods for Leeds Hospital Fund £1, and goods bought and carriage £17 2s. 2d., leaving a balance in hand of £9 7s. 0d. She stated that there was £1 10s. 6d. in the bank, money in hand, in the several money for wool, etc.

It was decided, on the motion of Mrs Mallinson, seconded by Mrs Chadley, that the sewing meetings should in future be held once a fortnight.

A song recitation by Miss Campbell, and Misses A. Taylor and Tudor played a pianoforte duet.

MIDDLETON MINER'S EXCITING ADVENTURES.

STIRRING STORIES OF THE BATTLE-FIELD.

A Middleton miner, Harry Hartley, a reservist, who was called up with the old Leinster Regiment, has had some thrilling experiences at the front. He was wounded, and has been in an hospital at Edinburgh for a month. He got to the front just after the retirement from Mons, and his division assisted in driving the Germans back to the Aisne.

"And it was a hot time we had there, and no mistake," he says. "For 14 days and nights we were confined to the trenches, and it was a case of fight, fight, fight all the time. Such a thing as getting food in the day time was out of the question, for if a finger went up above the trenches it was a thousand to one on the bring shot off. We had to wait for the night, and we could after darkness fell. When you had got it you might not enjoy it, for probably as soon as the scene time had been put on the fire a shell would burst there every one and the canteens to smithereens."

"Yes, it's quite true that the Germans won't face cold steel. Many times at the Aisne we would allow the enemy to advance in their usual way, and then charge with the bayonet at a couple of hundred yards. They would open fire, and after throwing them out advanced beyond in front. You should have seen them turn tail and bolt. In Germany they are driven like sheep. Nearly every German soldier has been enabled in the back. That doesn't sound like facing cold steel does it?

"After being entrenched in the trenches on the Aisne, we had the peculiar, almost uncanny, experience of being as near dwellers for about five days. These caves were the only places where we could get any rest. Sometimes that we were safe from the 'Jack Johnsons.' Very remarkable places these caves are, too, one in particular being of such tremendous dimensions that a large crowd could assemble in it. There were shops and all sorts of things going on in the whole week there, I never saw daylight. I think they had been used as wine-cellars at some time.

"From there, up went to the village of ——, where surprisingly enough, a lot of the farmers were Germans. And a remarkable fact, though nevertheless true, is that whilst that part of the village where these Germans lived was badly severely shelled, that occupied by the French farmers was bombarded. Spies had evidently given the German gunners the tip. As a matter of fact, we found a number of spies hereabouts, our sergeant-major 'bagging' two himself.

"Handing this district over to the French, we were moved to the north-west, travelling by train via Calais, and afterwards by motor-omnibuses to Hazebrouck.

"We drove the Germans out of a place here described—I forget the name—and the poor people who had been hiding in the cellars told us of the debauchery and wholesale looting that had taken place there. We could see for ourselves, without being told.

"In many cases, the Germans had gone into the houses and pitched the bedding through the windows, and then used the rooms as they could in spare it. Their losses may have been heavy, just as ours were, but nothing could justify the wrecking of a place as this was wrecked.

"It was at this place that I was one of a reconnoitring patrol of three. On reaching a farm-house the other two kept watch outside whilst I went into a sort of barn. I was on my chances of Pop to a cover wanted to see his pigeons, as I guess it a peak with my bayonet. My suspicions were justified, for there was a squeak—evidently I had pricked a pigeon—and coming the bird I found two Germans, in drunk as lords. They were not in a state to fight, so we merely took them prisoners.

"At Armentieres the 9th Brigade and the old Leinsters got surrounded by several thousand Germans, and it became a question of charging them or being taken prisoners, and our chaps were not having any of the latter. Our cousin guns assigned and his men therefore did a fine thing that night. They crept out of the trenches, and on to the Germans machine-gun, killed all the men who manned it, and turned it upon the enemy. Then the rest of us charged for it and we got them. Unfortunately, we had a fair number of casualties, but it was better than surrendering."

It was in this thrilling bit of fighting that Hartley was wounded in the right arm, one of the bullets wounds being almost completely torn out. Now Hartley is getting strong again, and he hopes that by Christmas he will be able to go out again and "see the thing through."

Hartley speaks in great praise of the ambulance arrangements of the Royal Army Medical Corps. He says, are in marked contrast to those which existed in the South African war, through which he served.

He is also loud in his praise of the entertainments arranged for the wounded that is taken to see that the men's worn-out boots are quickly replaced with new ones.

It is interesting, too, to hear his declaration emphatically that the Germans have got inexperienced youths in the fighting-line. "There can be no doubt about it," he says, "because I have seen them. They are young enough to be the sons of our chaps, and you can tell they are only fresh to the war, because of the fact that everything they have is brand new."

CARLTON PIGEON FANCIERS' SHOW.

THIRD ANNUAL SHOW.

The third annual show of flying homers, was held in the large room of the Unicorn Inn, Carlton, on Saturday afternoon, and turned out to be a great success. Competitors were present from in the previous year, and the entries numbered 224, which is an increase of about 70 birds compared with last year.

The exhibits were judged by Mr Soloway (Henry Worsdon District Federation), and the secretarial duties were ably carried out by Mr P. Hopton, of the Unicorn Inn. The judge's awards were as follows:—

Cock or hen (hens not miles), open:—1 and two specials, R. Briggs; 2 ; J. Colladon; 3, Fox Bros.; reserve, Slater Bros.

Cock (any age), open:—1, H. Tasker; 2, W. Moorhouse; 3, Dudley Bros.; reserve, Slater Bros.

Hen (any age), open:—1, F. Cruse; 2, E. A. Metcalf; 3, Fox Bros.; reserve, J. Colladon.

Cock (young entry), open:—1, E. G. Howarth; 2, A. Jackson; 3, Slater Bros.; reserve, Wilson Bros.

Hen (young entry), open:—1, J. Colladon; 2, W. H. Hartham; 3, S. Nicholson; reserve, W. Dinsdale.

Short distances:—1, S. Nicholson; 2, Rinder; 3, S. Groomings.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE.

	£ s. d.
Amount previously acknowledged	127 12 9
Underground workmen's hope, [illegible] per Mr E. W. Ogden (4th contribution)	1 0 6
	£128 13 3

Wm. Geo. Broome, Hon. Sec. and Treas.
2nd Dec., 1914.

Mr Jackson, of Rimswiby, has given £10 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

In Londesborough Street, Selby, there are 33 houses, and 20 men are serving the country in the Army from that street.

Progress is being steadily made with the construction of the municipal golf course at Rimsby, but it is improbable that play will be allowed thereon before the Spring.

Colonel Gascoigne, of Lotherton Hall, has taken a generous part in the scheme for helping a hospital near Boulogne, and he is also assisting the authorities to form soldiers' clubs at Hazes and Rimes.

Mrs Gascoigne has formed a hospital at Lotherton Hall for the use of wounded soldiers, and, under two trained nurses, the Voluntary Aid Detachments have kindly offered to assist her in the work. There are now sixteen patients under treatment.

Memorial Service.—A memorial service to the late Admiral Vernon Inwat, a private in the Royal Marine Light Infantry, was held on Thursday night at St. Judith's Church, Rossall Grove. Private Inwat perished on H.M.S. Monmouth, which was lost in the naval action off Chile on November 1st. The large congregation included representatives of the Lords-in-waiting whose were Inspector Inwat, of the Leeds City Police Force, and Mrs Inwat—representatives of the Royal Army Medical Corps, of which division Inwat had been a soldier, and of the Church Lads' Brigade. Amid the cries of the Monmouth, and several members of the City Constabulary. The impressive choral service was conducted by the vicar (the Rev. T. T. Pilcher), assisted by the Rev. C. S. Chappell, of St. Wilfrid's Mission Church.

A Crimean Fusion Hero.—The name of Sergeant George A. Cook, 1st Essex Yorks., has been undoubtedly associated with gallantry. Last printed in our columns of the gallant young men serving the King and country, and of whom the people of Church Fenton are proud. Sergeant Cook is now lying in the Hospital, Staithes-bridge, near Hoddon, suffering from wounds received in action. In a letter to the master of the Parish Church, the sergeant says:—"I am very sorry to cause vigoration, he says:—"I am very proud to think I have done a little for my country. I am not troubling about the wound. We had a rough time trying to get the worst experience I had was being "buried alive," the effects of which I am suffering from yet. I hope and trust the young men of Church Fenton will follow my lead and join the Army. I spent 21 and a month's leave when I have been, when I hope to still end we you. The experience we have had has opened my eyes, and my outlook, and the inhabitants of the country are something dreadful. I will, however, relate my story when I see you." Sergeant Cook is only 22 years of age. He is a grandson of the late Thomas Ambler, who for nearly 30 years was a bellringer at the Parish Church.

Printed and Published by Arthur Knox Rawson, of 46, Aberdeen Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier and Times"
IS THE
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 101—NEW SERIES. [Registered at the G.P.O.] a Newspaper. SATURDAY, DECEMBER 12 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son
(Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.
In addition to the above Prices, WAR TAX 6d. per doz. on Small Bottles, and 1/- per doz. on Large Bottles will be charged.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 miles of Leeds

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT. AT 6.30 AND AT 9.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
MONDAY, DECEMBER 14th, 1914.
FRED KARNO'S COMPANY, in the Latest Production, entitled
"THE DENTAL INSTITUTE" or "TEETH."
SISTERS ROYCE AND SID.
CHAS. R. WHITTLE. THE FINDENS.
LITTLE FREDDIE HACKIN.
HAPPY TOM PARKER. CHAS. MILDARE.
MAZUZ AND MAZETTE.
Eccentric Comedy Duo.
Latest War News and War Films.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.,

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
SCOTT AND WHALEY.
FRANCES LETTY.
FRANCO PIPER.
ELSIE STEAD.
THE GREAT HOCKNEYS.
LILLIAN CARTER.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
WILSON HALLETT.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11. CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor
Residence:—
43, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established 1815 SPARKLING HOSFERRIDGE 100 Years
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
OBTAINABLE FROM HOTELS RESTAURANTS & BUFFETS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON LTD LEEDS.

For TOWN or COUNTRY.
For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.
THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
IS AT IT
Fabor!
45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Rolls of Honour are being compiled for Garforth, Rothwell, Templenewsam, and other parishes, and it is intended that a permanent record shall be made and placed in an institution, so that future generations may have an opportunity of reading the names of the men who were sufficiently patriotic to respond to the call of King and country. Many men are ineligible for military service, but there are a greater number who are qualified but still not go—some folks call them "slackers"—and it is the duty of the community to honour those who are willing to make the supreme sacrifice for love of home, good faith, and liberty. These men are a class apart, and they should be made to feel that we have for them a respect which cannot be given to men who shirk their duty.

In Barkston Ash a scarcity of labour exists, and the surveyor for Tadcaster rural district states that he cannot get enough men for the work upon the roads. A gentleman connected with a colliery undertaking in the district says that men cannot be got, so it seems that every man who will work can at the present time obtain full employment if he desires it. Of course, a large number of men have gone from the district to the Army, and their withdrawal from the labour market is having its effect.

Is it possible to form an Association of Rifle Clubs in Barkston Ash Division? This question was raised in our last issue by Mr Watson, of Swillington, and I suppose it has been discussed by the officials of clubs. The movement at present is not very strong in the district, there being organizations at Cross-gates, Whitkirk, Swillington, Monk Fryston, and Wetherby, but, as Mr Watson says, the formation of a Divisional Association might have a stimulating effect. At Garforth, I am assured, a very large membership could be obtained were a club started, but the range difficulty in this, as in many other cases, has proved an insuperable one to the formation of an organization. So far as the setting up of a Divisional Association is concerned, it would be easy to get into communication with the officials of the clubs in the district, and their views could be ascertained on the matter. Were they favourable to the suggestion a meeting could be convened at Crossgates—the most convenient place for all the clubs—and, in this way, something practical might be done.

In our last issue a correspondent in the Tadcaster rural area directs attention to the sanitation in villages, and he states that a man can build a house without submitting plans, etc. Plans must be submitted for property in the more populous places, but it is a fact that the bye-laws have no application in many parishes—a very unsatisfactory state of things in these progressive days. How this operates can be seen at Austhorpe, near Crossgates, in Templenewsam and Scarcroft, on the other side of the road, as well as in Cross-gates, on the opposite side of the railway, bye-laws are in force, but in Austhorpe one can build any sort of shanty so long as it is not a nuisance. This is not fair to the people residing in the neighbourhood, nor does it reflect credit on the local authority. A resolution was passed several years ago making the bye-laws applicable to the whole Union, but an agitation was got up in a few small villages, and the Local Government Board refused to sanction the resolution. Modified bye-laws could be got for rural parishes, and it is time the Council made a move in this direction.

As to water-supplies for the villages, the Tadcaster District Council have certainly not been enterprising. Conflicting interests have retarded progress, and the only large water scheme that has been carried out has been that at Tadcaster. A large portion of the rural area wants water—from Barwick to Sherburn—and if a good number of parishes were brought into a scheme it could be carried out at comparatively small cost, whereas if a number of little schemes are adopted they will cost a fair sum, and the work will eventually have to be done again. It is a mistake to tinker with water and sewerage schemes, as could easily be proved from the district, and the District Council will act wisely if they adopt a bold policy and give effect to it as speedily as possible.

Cross-gates is benefitting by the war. To many people this will not be apparent, but if they had been at the Red Cross Society meeting the other night they would have been enlightened. The ladies of the parish—workers in connection with the Marston and Wesleyan Churches—have been brought together to work in a common cause, and it has had the usual influence where sympathy exists. Knowledge has come from acquaintance, and a mutual respect has been born which will operate for good in the parish in future. It is often surprising how one religious denomination fails to assist another—I do not say it is so at Crossgates—because they are all engaged in a common work. Infinitesimal bazaars are generously supported by all classes of people, and huge sums are raised in this way, but in many of our local villages, churches are almost entirely dependent on the efforts of their own members.

A pretty incident at Wetherby, as showing the fine spirit manifested by the children, is related by Lady Gunter. She states:—"I have been in the habit of giving the children of the Wetherby Church School an annual entertainment in the form of a tea and Christmas tree, and when visiting the school, wishing to test the children, I suggested that this year perhaps some of them might be willing to forego their treat in order to benefit the soldiers and sailors, and the poor Belgians, who had done, and still are doing, so much for us. I was met by a whole-hearted response from the children, not one of whom (out of 270) suggested having the usual entertainment, although they were told they could have it if they wished. They seem quite delighted at the idea of being able to do something, and on the matter being put to the vote, more than half the school suggested the money being sent to Princess Mary's Fund, while the rest voted for the Belgian Fund. On their being asked if they were disappointed I was met with cheerful faces, and a ringing response of 'No.' Under the circumstances, I could not deprive these generous children of the whole of their treat, so have decided to give the tea as usual, and devote to the funds in question the amount which would otherwise be spent in presents." At various schools in the district children have sent the money which would have, under ordinary circumstances, been spent on fire-works on November 5th, to some of the Relief Funds, and at numerous local schools the children are making a monthly collection for the same purpose.

The way-ticket system among vagrants is in operation in the district, and tramps are now supplied with food at what are styled bread stations. Two of the fraternity turned up at Tadcaster on Monday and presented their tickets, entitling them to a meal of bread and cheese. They were humorists. Said the first one, on handing in his ticket, "Fetch me some roast beef," while the other, looking well-shaved to Christmas-time, remarked "I'll have a leg of goose."

Private Daniels, of Beamham, who was wounded in action, has had one of his legs amputated.

Tadcaster Grammar School has made a sixth contribution of 10s. 5d. to the West Riding Distress Fund.

Mr C C Schofield, of Tadcaster, won second prize for ox or heifer, under two years, at Leeds Smithfield Show on Tuesday.

Owing to an epidemic of measles the Church School at Barwick had to be closed last month. The percentage of attendance dropped to 83.33, while for November last year the figures were 91.03.

Captain Thomas Scotchard, R.A.M.C., of Tavistock, Hants, and formerly of Boston Spa, killed in action near Paris on the 8th September last, youngest son of Dr Scotchard, of Boston Spa, left £1,190.

A HERO.—Lieut. Arthur Lefevy, Pritchard Griffith, 56th Brigade Royal Field Artillery, son of the Vicar of Thorparch, has been given the D.S.O.—On 14 September, being wounded, he gallantly assisted in man-handling guns out of action until exhausted.

AN OFFICER.—Mr T. L. Wickham-Bowrron, J.P., of Boston Spa and Burton Agnes Hall, who has been gazetted a captain in the 5th Battalion of the Yorkshire Regiment, is very well-known throughout the East Riding as a landowner, and particularly as an agriculturist. He is regarded as one of the best judges of horses in the county, and takes the keenest interest in hunting horses. For many years he has advocated and practised the breeding of light horses on an extended scale. He was previously a lieutenant in the 3rd Battalion Yorkshire Regiment (Militia).

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire this week the great attraction is the pageant play "Joseph and His Brethren," written by Mr Louis N. Parker, and recently produced at His Majesty's Theatre by Sir Herbert Tree. There are eleven scenes depicting the familiar incidents in the life of Joseph, and over eighty performers take part in the play. In the first scene we are introduced to Jacob and his family in the tents of Sichem, and the patriarch's great love of Joseph arouses the brothers' jealousy and hatred. Then follow in succession the putting of Joseph in the well, and his rescue by Potiphar's affianced wife, the selling of him into bondage, his resistance of the lady's overtures and subsequent imprisonment, the interpretation of Pharoah's dreams, and Joseph's ultimate triumph as Lord over Egypt, before whom the brothers come to buy corn. As a spectacular show the play is very fine indeed. The primitive life of Jacob and his family is very faithfully reproduced, and later, in the house of Potiphar and the Court of Pharoah, the scenes are magnificent in every detail. The principal characters are in good hands. Mr Arnow McMaster makes a very handsome Joseph, and he is quite equal to the passionate scene with Potiphar's wife, an unpleasant role cleverly taken by Miss Rosabelle Budd. In the part of Simeon, the ringleader of the plot to get rid of Joseph, Mr Alfred Danville assumes the hatred very cleverly. Miss May Fairclough is charming as Asenath, the maiden loved by Joseph, and the whole company do their work very thoroughly.

An item of especial interest on the Leeds Empire programme for next week is "The Dental Institute," the latest production of the Karno fun foundry, and on its first visit to Leeds. Mazuz and Mazette, from the London Hippodrome, are a turn which can confidently be described as unique. The act has been scoring heavily in the West-end, where the extraordinary oddities of the principal performer, and the unusual form of humour he composes into the turn have met with invariably flattering receptions. Among other notable attractions are Chas. R. Whittle, the popular singer of chorus duties; Little Freddie Hackin, in his protean scena, "All Change"; Sister Royce and Sid, vocalists and dancers; Chas. Mildare, in some of the best of song-bird imitations; Happy Tom Parker, comedian and eccentric dancer; and the Findens, popular comedy artistes.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Leeds Hippodrome this week Billy Wilkins, who styles himself as the Man in the Velvet Suit, is appearing in the chief position. He is one of the few comedians who can keep an audience entirely with him, and the way he makes them sing his choruses proves that there is the proper understanding between the two. The great Wieland, a humorous juggler, besides doing clever feats, creates many a laugh with his whimsical ways. "The Truth about Mr. Watson" (written by Harry Vernon, author of "Mr Wu"), is a fine dramatic sketch, full of vigour, telling of a story of retribution, and how a newspaper man gets the pull of a shady business man. It is finely acted by Lewis Fielder and Ewan Brooke. Guest and Nowlyn are a comical couple. Con Conrad's Novelty Minstrels have been seen before, and their turn is a capital one. Horton and Le Triska, he clown and the human doll, are good; Charles Grantley, the erratic comedian, go with; and so do Percy Korah and his dancing boys.

Next week at the Leeds Hippodrome the artistes will include Scott and Whaley, comedians; Frances Letty, character comedienne and dancer; Franco Piper, great banjo soloist; Elsie Stead, comedienne; the Great Hockneys, Belgian novelty acrobatic cyclists; Lillian Carter, soprano; and Wilson Hallett and his company of invisible children in "Juvenile Concerts."

SPECIAL DISPLAY OF
Fancy Goods for Xmas.
LADIES' SCARVES, GLOVES, & FANCY NECKWEAR.
DOWN QUILTS & CUSHIONS.
FANCY LINEN GOODS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.
SMITH BROS. (Drapers) Ltd.
BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

STEPHENSON'S
XMAS BAZAAR and TOY FAIR
NOW OPEN FOR THE SEASON.
Let "Christmas as usual despite all" be your guide this year, and, "as usual," remember to make the Kiddies Christmas-time this year the best they have struck yet.
BRING THEM TO SEE OUR GREAT DISPLAY OF DOLLS, TOYS AND GAMES.
British Made Toys have always been a Speciality with us, this year more so than ever before.
CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR ALL.
It is just as well to remind you NOW of the near approach of Yuletide—so that you may take advantage of the complete selection of Presents which OUR SPECIAL XMAS DISPLAY in all Departments affords you. It is a Splendid Collection of Gifts—and here are some of the very attractive values we are offering. FURS MAKE EXCELLENT GIFTS and our selection of FUR WEAR is noteworthy for QUALITY, STYLE and VALUE.
Pretty BLOUSES for Evening Wear, in Silk and Lace, etc., specially produced for the Xmas Season, from 2/11 to 18/6 each.
Endless choice in CHILDREN'S SILK, LACE, EMBROIDERED, and LAWN MUSLIN PINAFORES, very dainty styles, from 6½d. to 4/11 each.
CHILDREN'S SILK and CASHMERE DRESSES, for Party wear, in great variety at popular prices.
A choice collection of Fashionable FURS, in the latest shapes, with Muffs to match, from 3/11 to 8 Guineas the Set.
LADIES' UMBRELLAS, with Sterling Silver and Gold Plate Handles, in large choice from 3/11 to 12/6 each.
LADIES' LINEN HEMSTITCHED HANDKERCHIEFS, put up in Fancy Boxes for Presents, containing half-dozen, 1/11½ and 2/6 the box.
HAND-EMBROIDERED HANDKERCHIEFS, very dainty, boxes containing half-a-dozen handkerchiefs, 1/4½, 1/6½, 1/11½, 2/3, 2/9, and 2/11 per box.
Smart styles in MUSLIN APRONS, from 8½d. to 3/11.
MAIDS' CAPS, in great variety.
HOUSEMAIDS' DRESSES, always acceptable as presents, made in Hard-wearing, Fast-coloured Cloths, from 2/11 to 6/11 each.
LADIES' IMITATION SILK KNITTED SCARVES, in all the New Colours, fringed ends, from 6½d. to 3/11 each.
GENT.'S SILK MUFFLERS, in White and Colours, in Fancy Boxes, from 1/04 to 5/11 each.
A sensible present for a lady is a pair of our well-known KID or FABRIC GLOVES, which can be had done up in Pretty Boxes, from 1/04 to 3/11 per pair.
LADIES' LEATHER and SUEDE HAND BAGS, in great variety, from 11½d. to 21/- each.
LADIES' BRUSH and COMB BOXES, from 11½d. to 8/11 each, fitted with superior Brush and Comb, &c.
WRITING CASES, from 11½d. to 3/6 each.
SEE OUR WINDOWS THIS WEEK
for Evening Dress Materials, Silks, Hosiery, Laces, Lace Neckwear, Gloves, Ribbons, Corsets, Underclothing, Costume Skirts, Infants' and Children's Outfitting, Muslin Aprons and Caps, &c.
TABLE CENTRES and SIDEBOARD COVERS, in Silk, Linen, Canvas, and Lace.
VELVET PILE TABLE COVERS, DAMASK TABLECLOTHS, and SERVIETTES.
TEA COSIES and CUSHIONS, in great variety.
MANTEL BORDERS, SHEETS, QUILTS, TOWELS, &c., &c.
A choice lot of Five o'clock TABLE COVERS, in Linen and Lace, at Special Prices.
EMBROIDERED LINEN CRASH TABLE COVERS, DUCHESS SETS, SIDEBOARD COVERS, TABLE CENTRES, and MATS, the latest designs at popular prices.
STEPHENSON'S DRAPERY MARKET
(ALL DEPARTMENT ON THE GROUND FLOOR),
THE CROSS ARCADE, extending from KING EDWARD St. to QUEEN VICTORIA St.,
Fifty yards from BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

A SERIAL STORY.

THE GREED OF CONQUEST.

By J. H. HARRIS-BURLAND

Author of "The Angels Sing," "Rich Relations," "Love the Criminal," "The Good Samaritan," "The Financier," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Sir John Lowick, a quiet student of science, discovered the secret of controlling and avoiding the magnetic currents in the air and forming them into a definite weapon of destruction, accompanied by him and his friend Jean Ralph Milne, to give a demonstration of the powers of his invention. It is a marvellous success.

The experiments has taken place late at night on a small island adjoining Sir John's estate. Ralph escorts Jean home, leaving Sir John alone with his model. On the way, Jean, who at first was horrified at the awful possibilities of the invention, tells Ralph that he rather should give the secret to England, but that no credit is given for the invention. Ralph replies that he could not expose the secret of his self-sacrifice, as his father will never do this, and answers that his father will never forgive him. Jean suggests that a attempt on the life of Sir John would make it easy for Ralph to step into his father's place. Ralph in his rage tells Jean that a bungalow is horrified to find that he loves her.

Ralph discovers that the model has been destroyed, and strongly intimates that he made it. Jean and strongly intimates that he made it. Jean and Ralph escape from the bungalow, leaving Sir John alone with his model. On the way, Jean, who at first was horrified at the awful possibilities of the invention, tells Ralph that he rather should give the secret to England, but that no credit is given for the invention. Ralph replies that he could not expose the secret of his self-sacrifice, as his father will never do this, and answers that his father will never forgive him. Jean suggests that a attempt on the life of Sir John would make it easy for Ralph to step into his father's place. Ralph in his rage tells Jean that a bungalow is horrified to find that he loves her.

Ralph discovers that the model has been destroyed,

PATRIOTIC CONCERT AT GARFORTH.

MR DEWHIRST, C.C., AND THIS COUNTY'S DEBT TO THE BELGIANS

On Monday evening a concert in aid of the Garforth Belgian Refugee Fund was held in the Council School, Garforth, and the large central hall was crowded, visiting those present being the Belgian refugees residing in the village, now a number of wounded Belgian soldiers from Templenewsam.

County Councillor Dewhirst, who had paid the expenses connected with the concert, explained the object of the effort, and said that Garforth people had done very well to maintain seventeen refugees. It was his opinion that but for the gallantry of the Belgian soldiers the Germans would have been on the shores of England, and he thought they ought to help them all they could, and make them comfortable and happy while they were in this country. That was not a recruiting meeting, but he thought the snipers of the West Riding had done very well. Out of 12,000 enrolled by the Miners' Association 10,000 had enlisted. Each man should do as his conscience dictated with regard to joining the forces. Lord Kitchener had said he was satisfied with the number of men who had joined, but he still wanted more men. He said the English held about 20 miles of the battle line, and the French held 200 miles, and he had heard the English could have suffered heavier losses if the French had not sent help on many occasions.

An excellent musical programme was submitted as follows:—Pianiste solo, "Hungarika," Mr R. V. Allan; quartette, "Comrades in arms," Clifton Prize Quartette; song "Your King and Country need you," Miss Jessie Allan; song, "The trimpeter," Mr Chapman; recital, "The drum," Mr Brealey Sayer—encore, "Helio," and "A suggestion"; humorous songs, "Cuckoo" and "The countryman's holiday," Mr George Listerl; song, "The sailor's grave," Mr Rogers Holdsworth—encore, "My dreams"; song, "Castellino," Miss Allan—encore "Perfect day"; humorous quartette, "Phyllis dyes her tresses"—encore, "Little Tommy went a-fishing"; pianiste solo selection, Misses National Anthems, Mr Allan; quartette, "Here's life and health"; humorous song, "What a garden," Mr Lister; duet, "The battle eve," Messrs R. Holloway and Mr Chapman; recital, "The green eye of the yellow god," Mr Sayer—encore, "The mouse"; song, "Up from Somerset," Mr M. Chapman; song, "Before you come," Miss Allan; song, "The veteran's song," Mr Holloway; humorous songs, "Murder" and "The poulticer," Mr Lister; quartette, "The long day closes."

Mr Wordsworth said he had much pleasure in proposing a vote of thanks to Mr Dewhirst for the treat they had had. As Chairman, he said it had been a pleasure to him to work with such a committee, and he thought Garforth people had responded very nobly to the call, and they were doing everything to help the Belgians in Garforth.

Mr H. W. Powell said he knew Councillor Dewhirst in two capacities—as a business man and a public man, but he thought he had discovered him in another capacity—as a Boy Scout, as not a day passed but what he did some good deed. He had offered to make arrangements and bear the expense of the concert without having been asked, and the committee had jumped at the generous offer. He had pleasure in seconding the vote of thanks to the Chairman, the artistes, and to the members of the committee who sold tickets.

The resolution was cordially passed, and the concert concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

LOCAL GENTLEMEN AND DRINKING HOURS.

VIEWS OF MR MORRILL AND MR DEWHIRST.

At Wakefield on Monday an important conference was held of Local Mayors, Mayors, Chief Constables of the Riding and boroughs, together with the chairmen of Licensing Benches up and down the Riding, to consider the question of restricting the sale of drink in the county.

The conference was called at the instigation of the West Riding Standing Joint Committee, who urged that action by the Licensing Justices or any town or district must often be ineffective unless corresponding steps were taken in neighbouring places.

Mr T. H. Morris, of Holitax, presided over the conference, at which over fifty representatives were present, including most of the Mayors, chairmen of Licensing Committees, and Chief Constables in the Riding.

Mr L. W. Morrill, chairman of the Skipton Bench of magistrates, led off the discussion. He did not approach the subject, he said, from the point of view of the licensed trade, but, short of a general order for the whole country, he thought some restriction was necessary. Two temptations assailed the soldier—the temptations of Bacchus and Venus. Speaking of a small town in which many troops are quartered, he was convinced that there were temptations of both kinds to assail the soldiers, and it behoved licensing authorities to curtail both of them. The West Riding ought not to be behind Russia in protecting its soldiers from drink. Out of a list of 270 places where hours had been restricted, he found that the usual restriction had been from 9 p.m. to 9 a.m. With regard to the charge of drinking among women, it was a fact that many wives had now control of once many more than they had before, and no one could not doubt that the evil did exist. He proposed a resolution suggesting the restriction of licensing hours between 9 at night and 8 a.m. in the morning—this to include clubs.

The Chairman said that in the West Riding area the convictions for drunkenness had fallen from 2,076 in 1912 to 1,060 in 1914.

Alderman F. W. Pease, speaking on behalf of the borough of Pontefract, where a large number of troops are quartered, said the earlier closing there had had a good effect, and seemed to have satisfied the military authorities.

Mr Dewhirst, of Whitmoor Lodge, Scarcroft, (a member of the West Riding Standing Joint Committee) seconded Mr Morrill's resolution, and said that drinking in clubs was very extensive indeed, and those places ought to be put on the same basis as public-houses.

Alderman B. Turner (Mayor of Batley) proposed as an amendment that the closing time for public-houses and clubs be ten o'clock at night. He had not seen much drunkenness amongst the soldiers, and he thought there was no cause to slander them or maligh women.

Mr T. D. Norton (Doncaster) seconded.

Mr Turner's amendment was carried.

Mr Morrill proposed, and Sir George Fisher Smith seconded, an further resolution that the opening hour should be 8.30 a.m., but as the conference had partly broken up this was withdrawn.

WETHERBY

Mr E. Lee, of Wetherby, has sent £5 to the Belgian Relief Fund.

GARFORTH SOLDIER AND ROTHWELL MEN.

AN APPEAL TO THEM TO JOIN THE ARMY.

Private J. Johnson, of the 5th Notts and Derby Regiment, writing to us from the front, says:—

"Sir,—I beg to send to express in my humble manner my surprise with the young men in Rothwell. I say I cannot do this, for I am a soldier, and I am proud to say I am one of Derby's finest regiment's each. To us, you are Derby's finest soldiers. "They are backward at coming forward," and why should it be?

The other villages in the district have done exceptionally well, and in my own native village, Garforth, to-day there are particular young men needs to be proud of. We, the 5th Notts and Derby, at Harpenden, Herts, are having a ripping time—plenty of work, plenty to eat, and plenty of spare time for recreation, and why the Rothwell young men should be afraid come out I think is the trouble I cannot understand. Of course, it is not all money, but there is something is worth having it is worth fighting and struggling for, and if we can assist our beloved England in so noble a cause, why not do so. I am sure the kindly feeling of the landships we received whilst in training must be to hard.

We rise at 6.30, and are out of quarters on our physical drill. Following we come in for breakfast, after which we have barely hours at least, and plenty of good fun. At 11.45 we parade again for route marche. We usually go about 10 or 12 miles, and as we have full kits and rifles to carry, we are always ready for our dinner on arriving home at 12.30 to 1 o'clock.

We have for dinner roast beef and potatoes, and if the field is a good one, we are to the landlady often makes puddings which is very acceptable, particularly Yorkshire puddings.

After dinner we parade again at 2.30 for company drill. We are dismissed at 4 o'clock when we are at liberty to do as we please until 9.30, when the corporal of the guard comes round to see if all are in.

All the food is cooked by the lady of the house, and today (Sunday), though the gentleman of our landlady, we have had Yorkshire pudding, roast beef and potatoes, and apple tart. Not bad, is it? Of course, all the billets are not as good as ours, but anyhow everyone is getting enough to eat, and moreover can have it in comfort.

We are certainly not expecting it always to be like this, but whatever comes in the future we are having a glorious time now, and are feeling in the very pink of condition.

I hope this may have the effect of persuading some of the Rothwell "boys" to make a move and to join the colours at once.

If it has the same effect on some of the Garforth young men I shall be doubly pleased.

SHERBURN AGRICULTURAL CLUB.

"USES AND ABUSES OF ARTIFICIAL MANURES."

At a meeting of Sherburn Agricultural Club on Friday night Mr G. A. Cowie, M.A., B.Sc., of York, gave a lecture before the members on the "Uses and abuses of artificial manures." Mr C. W. Helm (the vice-president), in the unavoidable absence of the president, presided.

At the outset the lecturer referred to the duty of farmers to do everything possible to maintain, and, if possible, increase the food supply of the country next year. In this connection the question of manuring was of extreme importance and should receive as much consideration as possible. There were four elements of plant-food requiring special study, viz., nitrogen, phosphates, potash, and lime. The importance of lime was not due so much to its nutritive properties as to its powers of destroying the acidity in the land, thus rendering the soil conditions suitable for plant growth. Undoubtedly a great deal could be done to maintain the lime-content in the soil by the use of lime containing artificials such as basic slag and nitrolim. Not only did these manures not remove lime from the soil, but they actually added to it. For example, nitrolim contains about 40 per cent. slaked lime, and consequently in every cwt. used 1 cwt. of free, useful lime was applied to the soil. The continuous use of acid, and other lime-robbing manures, without the replacement of the lime in the soil, was to be condemned as tending to encourage such diseases as "finger and toe."

With regard to the different elements of plant food nitrogen was to be considered the most important, as there was generally in soils a greater deficiency of available nitrogen than of the other constituents. The best results, however, were generally got from applications of nitrogen, when there was a sufficiency of available phosphates and potash in the soil to work upon. Comparing the various combined forms of nitrogen, the lecturer explained that nitrolim was now produced in a granular form, free from dust and unpleasantness, and very suitable for sowing and drilling. With the more advanced of its sowing and drilling difficulties, it would now enter into much more serious competition with the older forms of nitrogen manures, while its high nitrogen-content gave it an additional value. Granular nitrolim (as it is called) was sold with a guarantee of 15½ per cent. nitrogen or 19 per cent. ammonia, or the equivalent of 3 cwt. of nitrate of soda per ton. Nitrolim could be applied at any time of the year to suit the convenience of the farmer to give this manure a trial next year.

Touching on the phosphatic manures, the lecturer referred to the wide popularity of basic slag. While its suitability for heavy soils had become generally known, it had often been found effective on light land when supplemented with potash. The usual form of superphosphate, however, was an important factor and it could always be easily replaced on many types of soil, owing to the stoppage of supplies from Germany, by the use of basic manures. A season would be a fairly safe one in order to compensate for some extra cost for this. Fortunately farmers would be wise to refer to the value largely for Lincolnshire and other arable districts. Time had hardly to follow the land in such districts as well. A dressing of soil would last out in such districts as well. A dressing of 10 cwt. per acre.

At the close questions were put by Mr Cowie touching on different points of the lecture, and numerous instances were given of the beneficial manures applied. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer, and Mr F. Brealey, concluding, it was carefully agreed.

SWILLINGTON HOUSEKEEPER'S THEFT.

A WOMAN WHO WANTED TO GO TO CANADA

At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Sarah Ann Dade (42), no settled home, of no fixed address, was charged with obtaining £21 6s by going to Henry Atkinson, Swillington.

Supt. Simonds stated that prisoner had obtained a situation as a housekeeper to the prosecutor's brother, and shortly after her engagement she disappeared, taking the money with her.

Henry Atkinson, a lumpman, living with a brother at Swillington, said that in December of last year his brother, to whom prisoner was engaged to keep house by means of an advertisement. The prisoner was the woman engaged. About fortnight after, January 13th, he had been to Leeds, and returned home with some money, which he counted out in the presence of the prisoner in the kitchen. There was £21 6s, and this he put back in a cupboard. The next morning he removed it to a box in his bedroom. On the following Friday morning, January 16th, he returned home shortly before 9 a.m. The front door was open, and the prisoner had gone. He examined his money and found that £21 was missing. He gave information to the police, and took out a warrant.

George Marsden, father of the last witness, and a colliery labourer, living at Swillington, said he engaged the prisoner as housekeeper about the end of December last. He knew his brother had some money before her. Prisoner remarked, "He thinks we are honest." On Friday morning, shortly after five o'clock, he left the house to go to work, locking the door and putting the key in an outhouse.

P.C. Eadon, stationed at Swillington, said he held a warrant for the prisoner's arrest, and that morning he had confronted her and she had made no reply.

Prisoner handed up a written statement which the Clerk read to the magistrates. The statement was to the following effect:—"I am sorry to say I took the money. Mr — left the money loose in the kitchen for over a week, and I took the money, as I wanted the fare to take me boy and myself to Canada. When I got to Liverpool I was afraid, as I had said I would like to see my mother in Canada. I find it very difficult to get a suitable situation as I have the little boy. As soon as I get this trouble over my friends are going to look after me in Canada."

The Chairman pointed out that she had been convicted four times for stealing, and sent her to prison for four months, remarking that he need not say much further over a new bad when she got out to Canada.

STOURTON

Stourton Sobs Club has made a second contribution of one ton to the West Riding Distress Fund.

ROTHWELL

On Saturday afternoon, in the Amateur Football League, Rothwell Hoigh United overcame Batterell S. by six goals to one.

WHINMOOR FARMER AND THE BEER.

KNOCKED HIS HEAD AGAINST A TELEGRAPH POLE.

James William Farrington Beck, farmer, of Whinmoor, was brought up on a warrant at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday charged with having been drunk and disorderly at Whinmoor.

P.C. Stimpson stated that about 2.10 p.m. on Saturday, November 21st, he saw the prisoner, who was drunk, at Whinmoor. Beck shouted, "Stop you——, I want to speak to you." The officer told him to behave himself and that he would speak to him when he (defendant) was sober. Witness walked away, but defendant shouted something after him, and the officer expected him.

Asked if he had anything to say, Beck said "It was like this. I received a note from a man saying that if I did not pay a sum of money on a certain date he would put me into the County Court. I went to pay him and this man gave me a glass of beer. I then walked home, and as I got to the Wetherby Road it spun round, and I knocked my head against a telegraph pole. (Laughter). I did not know anything what I did after that."

The Chairman: That is a very lame story.

Beck: It's true. Instead of getting into the County Court I have got here. (Laughter).

The Chairman: It is extremely disgusting for a man of your position.

Beck: Very likely the language came out of the beer. (Laughter).

A fine of 20s. and costs was imposed.

TOCKWITH GOLDEN WEDDING.

CAN BOAST A FIVE-BARRED GATE.

Mr and Mrs Wm. Arnold, of Tockwith, on Monday evening held their golden wedding. Mr Arnold was born at Boroughgate, near Hemingbrough, in 1839, and Mrs Arnold was born a year earlier at Aramyn, near Goole.

Mr Arnold said to an interviewer: "I am an old miner, but can look built of the young men. I can jump over a five-barred gate."

Mr and Mrs Arnold were married at Drax Church, near Selby, on December 25th, 1864. Afterwards they went to New Grange, and have resided in Tockwith eleven years. Mr Arnold has been foreman at a farm near Tockwith for 28 years.

Mr Arnold referred to the seriousness of the present war, and said: "I should like to go to the front and do for the Kaiser."

Mr and Mrs Arnold have had a family of eleven children, and four sons and three daughters are still alive. The latter also eleven grandchildren. Mr Arnold gets up about 5 o'clock each morning, and many times in the summer can be seen doing his daily work in the fields. About 2 and a quarter a.m. Mrs Arnold is also an early riser.

WHAT A SELBY SOLDIER SAW.

GERMAN CULTURE.

Private A. Simpson, of the Coldstream Guards, has sent a letter to his wife in Selby which that he is in Liverpool convalescing from injuries. He says:—

"I am very glad to tell you I am going on all right. We were in the trenches in Belgium 24 days, over our boot tops in water, till the 24 days. Several of the men had to be carried out of the trenches; they could not walk owing to frost-bitten feet and rheumatism. I have had an attack of rheumatism, as well as frost-bitten feet, but am getting better. How it happened was in this way. While three of us were talking together in the trenches the Germans sent us a 'Jack Johnson' over, and it dropped in front of our trench. It buried us up with earth, with the result that I lost the use of my left leg. But I am now regaining the use of it again. You will wonder what I mean by a 'Jack Johnson.' Well, it is a German shell weighing about 9olbs., so it is not a small one. Where it bursts it makes a hole large enough to put a horse and cart in. So you can imagine what it is like.

He states that he saw a German prisoner brought in with a little dog which he wore on his breast. In the dog were a German Prayer-book and four bloodstained rings, which he haughtily admitted he had torn from the fingers of a dying woman.

He knew, too, that there were three baby children, between three and five years, playing on the road with Belgian flags, and that the poor old grandmother clattered out of her cottage at the sound of the troops, and that the shrill shrieks of the enemy killed her.

Private Geo. H. Maltby, of Selby, writing to his parents, says he hopes it won't be long before he is sitting in the old somewhat trifling there all about his adventures, if only he has the luck to get back.

They were having some very hard times at present, and it made things worse by having awful weather and much rain. He was, however, trying his best to stick it.

They would not know him if they saw him, as he had only had one shave since he came out there, and it was up to the eyes in mud.

"I often wish," he adds, "I had a bit of your sweet cake and some Yorkshire pudding. Once I get into that old bed of mine I won't shift out of it for about six months—as I keep it well aired."

MIRFIN'S VISIT TO GARFORTH.

OULTON MAN'S 57th CONVICTION.

On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions John William Mirfin, a labourer, who is a native of Oulton, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly at Garforth.

P.C. Bowers stated that about 1.45 p.m. on December 5th, he saw the prisoner, who was drunk, being ejected from a stackyard. He made use of abusive language, and was taken into custody. While in custody he became violent and had to be handcuffed.

The Chairman: This is your 57th time here, and you have been before the court three times this year.

Mirfin: Give me another chance.

The Chairman: You have said that too often. There ought to be an Act of Parliament to deal with you.

After a discussion with the Clerk, the Chairman ordered Mirfin to stand down.

Mirfin was brought up later, and he was told that the magistrates were considering the question of sending him as a habitual drunkard to some home. The question could be decided either at that court, or the Quarter Sessions, and the prisoner could take his choice where the matter was settled.

Mirfin decided to let the magistrates deal with him.

He was sent away for two years.

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

The fortnightly meeting of the Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held on Monday at the workhouse—Ald. E. C. Brooksbank, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. The other members present were Mr Walter Crosland, J.P. (Vice-chairman), Miss Bithell (Newton Kyme), Rev. Canon Greenwood (Grimston), Messrs T. H. Prater (Parlington), F. Myers (Hillbeough), J. Wordsworth and H. E. Isaac (Barkston Present), H. Sandy, F. Phillips, W. Robinson, and Pearson (Alkerton Bywater), S. Midgley (Colton), R. Wright (Bastwick), J. Nettleton and J. H. Bigsby, J.P. (Tadcaster), A. Johnson (South Milford), G. Webster (Haddleston-cum-Lumby), E. Parker (Ledsham), J. E. Cawthorne and T. Hey (Sherburn), J. Lindley (Kirkby Wharfe), J. W. Dixon (Newthorpe), Mrs Townend Kippax), and J. Y. Wheatley (Appleton Roebuck), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Friend), the surveyor (Mr T. South), and the sanitary inspectors (Messrs Driver and Wood).

THE HOUSE

The master's report showed that during the fortnight there were three admissions to the workhouse, one birth, and one discharge. The remains in the house numbered 95 and in the children's home 18—213 against 102 at the corresponding date last year. The tramps relieved during the two weeks were 34 and 17 against 23 and 28.

At a meeting of the House Committee it was decided that the usual Christmas fare be provided for the inmates. Miss Corcoran was appointed to come on a month's trial as ward maid.

At a meeting of the Bilbrough Honey Committee it was decided that the usual Christmas fare be provided for the children.

DISTRICT COUNCIL

At a meeting of the District Council the treasurer was reported to have a balance of £7,931 in hand, and a sum of £76 14s. was expended on district roads during the fortnight.

The Highways Committee had before them a request as to the making of a footpath to the Police Station at Tadcaster, and the work is to be done when the weather is suitable. It was stated that the tubes in one of the road rollers were leaking, and tenders are to be got for its repair. Permission was given to open a road at Lock Lane to fix gas mains.—In regard to the proposed improvement at Sherburn Cross, a letter was read from Messrs Bentley, on behalf of Mrs Pearson, stating that she did not wish to sell the land required, but if the expenses connected therewith were paid, she would agree terms. The Clerk has replied. The County Council act to be asked to sanction the re-construction of the York Road from Tadcaster East to Copmanthorpe Lane end.

Mr J. H. Ingleby raised the question of the Station Road at Tadcaster, and said its condition had been deplorable. He thought a better scheme for taking the extraordinary traffic off the roads, and he asked if it had been dropped.

The Chairman said that he was informed negotiations were going on with the N.E.R. Co. He asked Mr Scott if he had heard of anything being done.

Mr Scott said he had not heard of anything.

Mr Parker: Cannot we write to the Railway Co. and ask them to do something?

On the motion of Mr Ingleby, it was agreed that the Clerk should write on the matter.

SANITARY COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Sanitary Committee plans for the erection of the White Swan at Kippax were passed. Recently a closing order was passed for a house at Kippax, and now notice is to be served on the occupier that it will be enforced.—A letter was received from Dr. Infield explaining the delay in sending the notifications of several cases of infectious disease.—The Rivers Board's scheme for dealing, with reference to Kippax sewage scheme, if the negotiations with respect to the land had been completed. It was referred to the local representatives to report at the next meeting.—Plans and estimates for a water scheme at Askham Bryan were approved, and application is to be made to the Local Government Board for permission to borrow the necessary money to carry it out.—In regard to a sewer in Mill Lane, Tadcaster, Mr Ingleby gave permission for a tank to be constructed on payment of 1s. per year.

CORRESPONDENCE

WOODLESFORD SOLDIER'S END—FAMILY'S PROUD RECORD.

To the Editor.

Sir,—In the 2 cords of your paper you will find a paragraph referring to the events from the Boer War of Trooper H. G. Nicholson, No. 1,097, Queen's Own Yorkshire Dragoons, June 1901.

I shall esteem it a favour if you will now place on record another member of that family, Private Colin Nicholson, No. 6951, 1st Battalion Scots Guards, killed in action, November 12th, 1914, France.

He is the youngest son of Benjamin Nicholson, 66, Church View, Woodlesford, and enlisted in the Scots Guards on the 15th of October, 1907, sent to the 1st Battalion in the interval. He was passed to the 2nd Battalion to finish his training; nine months later he was video to Major Arbuthnot, of that Regiment, and stayed with him until he retired two years after. He then went as valet to Capt. Ashley Corbett, to be transferred at the out-break of war to the 1st Battalion Scots Guards, and went with his captain with the 1st Army Corps from Aldershot.

He took part in the Battle of Mons on the 23rd of August, and the heavy fighting to the gates of Paris, then back to the Marne, and the Aisne, on all the fighting up to his death on November the 12th.

He was married and leaves a wife and one son, at the Guards' Depot, Caterham.

There are four sons and one daughter living, two with the Guards at Windsor, and is expecting to go to France shortly), George William, a gunner in F. Battery, Royal Horse Artillery, in France; Colin, killed; and I served eighteen months in South Africa.

Previous to enlisting we all worked at the Belle Hill Colliery, Rothwell (Charlesworth), where my father works at the present time.

Colin was born in Woodlesford about 24 years back, and was educated at the Church Board School. Three of my sisters are married and live in Rothwell, viz., Mrs John Rollinson, wife of a Rothwell colliery under manager; Mrs John Gowen, Archer Lane, Rothwell; and Mrs William Hanks, 28, Royds Lane. Others have married Mr Harry Stubbs, 111, Ella Street, Hull; and Mr George Barker, Malton, York. Elsie, the youngest, married Mr Percy Smith (of Woodlesford), and is now a widow living with my father. George William married Miss Woodall, School Lane, Woodlesford, and three of her brothers are on active service.

This war is a terrible business, and before it is finished thousands of the flower of our Army and country for Empire will be mutilated or slain. If the Kaiser and his sons don't commit suicide they should be banished to St. Helena.

My brother has died for a good cause, and I don't think he would have preferred a finer death. He was a good soldier and will be greatly missed by officers and comrades in his Battalion.—Yours, etc.,

DICK G. NICHOLSON.

78, Portico Road, Sheffield, December 6th, 1914.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c.

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Prices inclined to be somewhat lower. A slacker trade. Wheat, 42s. to 43s., medium 41s to 43s, inferior 39s. to 40s. Barley, grinding 30s. to 32s., extra good to 34s., seconds 27s. to 29s., fine 30s. to 32s., per qr.

PROVISIONS.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 5 good 6 for 13; butter to 1s. 2d to 1s. 3d per lb.; chickens 4s. to 5s. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—Prices steadily increase. The demand was fair. Sand Up-to-Dates 55s. to 60s., sand King Edwards, 60s. to 70s., white King Edwards 75s. to 80s. per ton; retail, 2s. 6d. to 3s. per hundred.

CATTLE.

SELBY, Monday.—At this fortnight mart Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 67 beasts, 2 sheep, and 95 pigs. There was a good attendance of buyers. Trade was quick for best beef, making 5s. per lb.; good quality Lincoln feeding cows and heifers in demand. Local requirements for sheep could not be supplied. A better supply of pigs, which met a good market at late rates. Prices as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £22 10s., fat heifers up to £20 10s., fat cows up to £15 2s 6d, store cattle up to £15, cowmilk cliff up to £43 10s., heifers in calf up to £18 5s., cows in milk up to £23 10s., fat sheep up to £1 10s. 6d., bacon pigs up to £8 15s., pork pigs up to £8 2s., and store pigs up to £1 8s 6d each.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—

WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words. 1 week. 13 weeks. 6 weeks. 13 weeks.
20 ... 0 6 ... 1 0 ... 1 10 ... 3 3
30 ... 0 9 ... 1 6 ... 2 0 ... 5 0
40 ... 1 0 ... 2 0 ... 3 3 ... 6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.

Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks, 1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do. 10d. do. do.
52 do. 8d. do. do.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.

Wednesday, 16th Dec., 1.10 p.m. to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Saturday, 19th Dec., 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby. 12 noon to Selby and Hull. For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

WANTED GENERAL, age 18 to 20.—Apply, Mrs GEORGE CAMPBELL, Woodle-ford. 1

WANTED Good GENERAL, 18 to 20. —Apply, ENGLISH, Beulah House, Crossgates. 1697

WANTED Three HAYCUTTERS, immediate employment.—KING, Vernon Street, Leeds. 1

GENERAL, Good, Strong, required. Able to bake. Other help kept.—Apply by letter to The Hotel, Askwith, Otley, near Leeds.

WANTED Strong GENERAL, 17 to 19, for small Public-house in Leeds.—Apply, Box 170, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds. 1700

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, chiefly housework. Three in family.—Apply, GREEN, "Jesmond," Selby Road, Whitkirk, near Leeds. 1

WANTED Experienced GENERAL, age 20 to 25. No cooking. 3 in family. Salary 7s. Pieces of liberty.—Apply, 12, Brunswick Place, Leeds. 1 1637

GOOD GENERAL. Wash and Plain Cook. Good references. Write or apply personally after 7 p.m.—Mrs TOWNSEND, The Drive, Crossgates. 2

WANTED to buy HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, any quantity; also carpets, antiques, outdoor effects, or lumber of any description. Don't bother us goods you have no use for; turn them into cash. Distance no object. Drop postcard, we will call.—Yorkshire Furnishing Co., 39, Dewsbury Road, Leeds. 3 1688

ROTHWELL DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

WANTED Full time CARETAKER for Rothwell Council School. Salary £78 per annum, to include supply of all cleaning materials.

For application forms, apply on or before December 16th to

ALEXANDER ANGUS,
West Riding Education Offices, Wakefield.

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale Good STORE PIGS, 9 weeks old. S. H. WATSON, Micklefield. 2641

FOR Sale Four Good LOADS of STABLE MANURE, 20s.—G. MAKIN, Fish Shop, Briggate, Gorforth.

FOR Sale about 150 yards of WIRE NETTING, 7ft. high, with posts.—Apply, at once, H. MOSLEY, Gorforth.

FOR Sale Good SECOND-HAND ENGLISH PIANO. Widnut case, Iron frame, Check action. Cheap.—Cawood, 30, Marshall Terrace, Crossgates. 2 2635

GOODWIN'S PURE BRED INDIAN RUNNER DRAKES; also, Pure Bred Rhode Island Red Male Birds, 4s. each.—HILLS, Barkston Ash, Tadcaster. 1 2644

DOUGLAS MOTOR CYCLE, 15 months old 2-speed clutch, kick starter, new tyres. Fully equipped and perfect in every way. £38, no offer.—DEMAIN, Gorforth Ga-works.

FOR Sale 8-DAY GRANDFATHER CLOCK, Mahogany case; also 8-Day ditto, Oak case. Good going order.—Apply, JACKSON, Watch and Clock Maker, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates. All Kind of Repairs done. 2 1672

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free. 2 Stamps —(S) DAVIES & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of Irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Strictly address—Mr and Mrs. W. WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 5s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

MR and MRS. TURNER
7 Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited. Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 241.

EDMUND BOGG,

3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.

Is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTIST'S' MATERIALS.

Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

MR THOMAS ABBOTT, of Garforth, begs to announce that he is Certified, by Examination, as regards Sanitary Knowledge, and competent to discharge the duties of INSPECTOR of NUISANCES under the PUBLIC HEALTH ACTS, 1875. Mr Abbott also holds First Class Certificates for the Elementary and Advanced Stages of Building Construction, gained at the Leeds Mechanics', under the Education Department of Science and Art, London.

TO THE LADIES OF CROSSGATES DISTRICT.

MISS MONKHOUSE having moved into Crossgates from Bradford, would be pleased to MAKE UP LADIES' OWN MATERIALS.

EXPERT SKIRT, BLOUSE, and CHILDREN'S COATS and DRESSES. Fit and style guaranteed. Moderate charges. Work done at home, or by the day.

MISS MONKHOUSE (Over MOON'S, Grocers), CROSSGATES. 1

CROSSGATES LITERARY SOCIETY.

WESLEYAN SCHOOLROOM—MONDAY, December 14th, at 8.

LECTURE—
"Architecture and Some Examples of it."
(with Lantern Illustrations).
by the Rev. BERTY GOYER, M.A.
Non-Members, 6d.

CROSSGATES BAPTIST FELLOWSHIP.

LECTURE HALL, WHITKIRK—
TUESDAY, December 15th, at 8.
LECTURE—
"THE HISTORY OF SONG"
(with Musical Illustrations),
by Mr. J. A. Mackay, of Harrogate.
Chairman—Mr. A. Chadwick.

EAST GARFORTH MISSION CHURCH.

ANNUAL SALE OF WORK.

in ST. MARY'S HALL, on TUESDAY, 15th inst.

Will be opened by Mrs GASCOIGNE, of LOTHERTON HALL, at 3 p.m.

In addition to the various Stalls a suitable Entertainment Programme will be arranged. Admission before 5 o'clock, 1d.; after 5, 3d.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHAPEL, GARFORTH.

LECTURE
in aid of the Belgian Refugees in Garforth, on THURSDAY, Dec. 17th, 1914, by Rev. JOSEPH REVELEY, of York, entitled,
"THE WAR—EUROPE TO-DAY AND AFTER."
Chair to be taken at 7 p.m. by J. W. Dobson, Esq., (Chairman of the Urban District Council). Silver Collection.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

Every Evening at 7 o'clock,
SATURDAY: Two Performances at 6.30 & 8.30
WEEK COMMENCING, DECEMBER 14th.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
"THE EXPRESS MESSENGER."
"THE SCOUTS' MOTTO."
THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY.
"LIFE."
A Three-Act Drama.
One of the Finest Pictures in the whole history of Animated Photography.

Children's Matinee on Saturday at 2.30.
Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

BARKER'S, PIANO EXPERTS.
SOLE AND EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR
ALLISON PIANOS. THE GREAT ENGLISH PIANO.
GEORGE RUSSELL PIANOS.
JOHN CROWLEY UPRIGHTS AND GRANDS.

SALE BARGAINS.

CRAMER, upright Grand, full steel casting ..... 22 Gns.
CHAPPELL, rosewood, Sheraton design 28 Gns.
BECHSTEIN, Cabinet Grand, our price 68 Gns.
BECHSTEIN, Upright; rosewood; our price ..... 39 Gns.
KAPS, Overstrung; 7¼ octaves ..... 45 Gns.
SCHIEDMAYER; rosewood, upright; 2 years old ..... 48 Gns.
PIANOLA; rosewood; Orchestrelle ..... 50 Gns.
STEINWAY; rosewood ..... 50 Gns.
BRINSMEAD; overstring; Latest design 50 Gns.
COLLARD; overstring ..... 36 Gns.
CRAMER PIANETTE, in oak ..... 20 Gns.
J. & J. HOPKINSON; Upright Grand 18 Gns.
METZLER; Upright Grand; rosewood 18 Gns.
HILTON & HILTON; walnut; ivory keys ..... 19 Gns.
BISHOP; Upright Grand; walnut ..... 14 Gns.
NEUMAYER; ebony case; overstrung 18 Gns.

TERMS ARRANGED.
BARKER'S NEW STATION STREET, LEEDS.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.

Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, VALLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8,
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate)
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART.

ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction,
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 11 O'CLOCK.
WHITSUNDAY LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
(Near to Crossgates Station and within four miles of Leeds).
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will Sell by Auction, as usual, in accordance with the conditions posted at the Mart—
615 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.:—
110 NEWLY CALVED and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE BEASTS.
85 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and COWS.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
100 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
200 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
Auctioneers' Offices: Garforth, near Leeds. (Tel. No. 29).

ON WEDNESDAY NEXT AT 12 O'CLOCK.
ASHFIELD NURSERY, MONK FRYSTON, 10 minutes' walk from Monk Fryston and 20 minutes' from South Milford Stations.
Mr. WILLIAM ASH,
Instructed by Mr James Sunley, will Sell by Auction,
THE well-made FURNITURE, GREENHOUSE PLANTS, OUTDOOR EFFECTS, AND POULTRY, including—
A ROSEWOOD SUITE of 7 pieces,
Solid Mahogany DINNER WAGON on castors.
Dining Table.
WALNUT HAT AND UMBRELLA STAND.
WALNUT OVERMANTEL. Kerb Fender.
Two Costly WILTON CARPETS.
Hearthrugs.
IRON FRENCH BEDSTEADS.
Wire, Spring, and Wool Mattresses.
Feather Bed.
OAK INLAID CHEST OF DRAWERS.
Toilet Ware. Cane Seated Chairs.
FITTINGS OF KITCHEN. WRINGING MACHINE.
SPECIMEN PALMS.
Geraniums, Plumbago, and Fuchsias in pots.
20 ORCHIDS, Begonias, 50 White and Yellow Chrysanthemums in full bloom, Tea Roses in pots, Malmaison Carnations and numerous other plants.
2,000 Bamboo Plant Canes, 2,000 Plant Pots, Boxes, and Garden Tools.
EXHIBITION CASE, with movable cover on springs and 2½ in. wheels.
37 HEAD OF POULTRY, PAIR OF DOVES, and numerous other items.
Full particulars of which will be found in posted bills.

PARKSIDE FARM, BEESTON.

Mr. WILLIAM ASH,
Instructed by Mr Samuel Smith, will Sell by Auction on Wednesday, December 23rd, 1914.
THE FARM IMPLEMENTS.
30 FAT GEESE. 30 FOWLS (PULLETS).
4 STACKS OF OAT STRAW.
STACK OF WHEAT STRAW.
40 TONS SWEDE TURNIPS.
5 TONS OF MANGOLD-WURZELS.
26,000 VICTORIA RHUBARB ROOTS (forced last season, and now in beds).
All the Timber (100 sleepers, etc.) recently forming two large Rhubarb Forcing Sheds.
SALE TO COMMENCE AT ELEVEN O'CLOCK.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON,
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

If your Hearing is Defective, read this :-

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists,
and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

TENDERS

HUNSLET UNION.

CONTRACTS FOR SUPPLIES, &c.

THE Guardians of the Poor of the Hunslet Union invite TENDERS for the supply to their several Institutions of BUTCHER'S MEAT, FLOUR, PROVISIONS, GROCERIES and LEATHER for 3 months from the 1st January next; also for the supply of FISH, TEA, YEAST, POTATOES, &c., COAL, DRAPERY, DRUGS, COFFINS, and CABS, &c.; for BRICKLAYER'S, JOINER'S, PLUMBER'S, and IRONMONGER'S WORK, and for PRINTING and STATIONERY for six months from the same date.

Tenders must be made in all cases upon forms to be obtained on application to me, and must be signed and delivered under seal at my Office by 10 o'clock a.m. on TUESDAY, the 22nd instant. No Tender will be received after that hour.

By Order,
FRED W. MEE, Clerk to the Guardians.
Union Offices, Glasshouse Street,
Hunslet Leeds, 10th December, 1914.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.

ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
VICAR LANE,
36 (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 for 2½d. per month.
£1 0 0 ,, 5d. ,, ,,
£2 0 0 ,, 10d. ,, ,,
£2 10 0 ,, 10d. ,, ,,
£3 0 0 ,, 1s. 0d. ,, ,,
£5 0 0 ,, 1s. 8d. ,, ,,
£8 0 0 ,, 2s. 8d. ,, ,,
£10 0 0 ,, 3s. 4d. ,, ,,
Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

PATENTS obtained by JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT, 25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS, and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX. Late Obtest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free. or British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2718 HALIFAX 358. INVENTIONS.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.

Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

THREE GOOD LINES:
CINEMA GREEN PEAS,
Housewife Marrowfat Peas,
Id., 1½d. & 3d. Packets,
— AND —
CROWN VINEGAR.
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
DEWSBURY ROAD, LEEDS.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

CULTIVATORS, PLOUGHS, HARROWS, CHAFF & TURNIP CUTTERS, &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

H. E. WALKER,
STURTON GRANGE, GARFORTH,
Agricultural Agent
— FOR —
THE DRIFFIELD PURE LINSEED, COTTON and UNION CAKE COMPANY, LIMITED.
Molassine Meal.
Dairy and Calf Meal.
Poultry and Dog Foods.
Manures, Peat Moss, Oils, etc.
Best Quality & Prompt Delivery.

Rothwell Courier & Times
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1914.

The Yorkshire Naturalists' Union had an excursion on Saturday to Adel.

Established 37 Years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
22, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL.
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.
Insurance Brokers.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.

Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.

Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each

In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSON.—In loving memory of Isaac William Johnson, who died December 13th, 1910.

"His memory is as dear to-day
As in the hour he passed away."

1699 —From his wife and family.

LAZENBY.—In ever-loving memory of Herbert (Bertie) Lazenby, eldest son of Wm. Lazenby, of Seacroft, late of Ledstone, Castleford, who died from wounds received in action on Mageerstonein, South Africa, December 12th, 1899.

"God knows how much we miss him,
He counts the days and hours.
But whispers, hush, he only sleeps,
Your loved one is not dead."

SCHOFIELD.—In loving remembrance of Hannah, the beloved wife of Mr. Thos. Schofield, Fitch Fields, Garforth, died December 12th, 1884.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS

ROTHWELL

A report of the monthly meeting of Rothwell Urban Council appears on another page.

A popular member of the Rothwell White Rose team, Mr G. Appleby, has enlisted in the Birkenhead Bantams' Battalion.

A GOOD EFFORT—The concert promoted by Mr T. Barthram, and held in the Rothwell Empire on Sunday, November 29th, in aid of the local War Relief Fund, realised a balance of £7 os. 4d.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Messrs J. W. Morkill (Chairman), J. Farrar, J. R. Cross, W. Evans, and Ald. Braithwaite.

PRIMITIVE METHODISM—The Old Scholars' effort in connection with the Rothwell Primitive Methodist Church realized a total of £12 3s. 1d., and of this amount £7 has been given to the Trust Funds, and the remaining £5 to the Society Funds.

BELGIAN REFUGEES.—The house of Mrs Newsome, which had been prepared for Belgian refugees by the local Belgian Refugee Committee, is now occupied by a family comprising a man, his wife, and six children, who have come from a suburb of Antwerp.

WEST RIDING FOOTBALL CUP—A meeting of the West Riding Football Association Cup Committee was held at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday night. It was reported that in addition to the League clubs the following clubs have signified their intention of competing in the West Riding County Cup Competition:—Cleckheaton, Idle, Sunfield Rovers, City Old Boys (Bradford), Rothwell Parish Church, Rothwell White Rose, New Wortley Gasworks, Fryston Colliery, Clarence Iron and Steel Works (Leeds), and Calverley. The draw will take place on Tuesday, December 22nd.

CONCERT.—On Sunday afternoon a concert was given in the Primitive Methodist Church in aid of the local War Relief Fund and Belgian Refugee Fund. Councillor R. McCullough presided over a very large attendance. The programme was greatly enjoyed, and was as follows:—Organ solo, Mr J. C. Harrison; song, "The voice of the Father," Miss G. Keighley; song, "The sailor's grave," Mr J. Kilburn; 'cello solo, Mr F. Stainer; recital, "Nellie's grave," Miss L. Harle; song, "Beyond the dawn," Miss K. Varley; song, "Arm, arm, ye brave," Mr Thewlis; trio, 'cello, flute, and organ, Messrs F. Stainer, H. Stainer, and J. C. Harrison; song, "Lead kindly light," Miss G. Keighley; flute solo, Mr H. Stainer; song, "A dream of Paradise," Miss K. Varley; recital, "Liberty without murder," Miss L. Harrison; song, "Love eternal," Mr J. Kilburn; 'cello solo, Mr F. Stainer; song, "There's a land," Mr Thewlis. Mr J. C. Harrison accompanied at the organ throughout. A silver collection at the door realised about £2 5s. 9d.

A WAR STORY—A correspondent writes:—A Yorkshire lad serving with the Expeditionary Force in France, writing to his mother at "Windy Nick," after describing one of the battles on the Ypres, tells a good story. On one occasion when the enemy had been forced to retreat, leaving their dead and wounded behind them, the British were ordered to go out and bury the whole of the dead left upon the field. A German who was wounded had been neglected, and when our boys, along with all his comrades, had made full preparations, the wounded German began to realise his awful position, and said, in broken English, "You are not going to bury me? I am not dead." "Aye officer hoo hen rubbed," said our hero, "an' aez ut ye were all dead, an' he were in t'Boaar Waar, and said a' plenty experienced." "But," said the wounded man, "can't you see for yourself, me is no dead. Am I not telling you all myself?" "That's reight enough tha art telling me; but ahr officer sez different, an' ye Germans ahr sich awful liars, so ah dar say."

FOOTBALL—Playing in the Leeds Senior League on Saturday, Rothwell Parish Church defeated East Ardsley by two goals to one. The match was on the latter's ground, and winning the toss, Stringer, the Rothwell captain, took advantage of the wind in the first half. For a spell the Ardsley team showed good form. Breaking away, the forwards worked their way well down the field, and Bradley was unlucky in not scoring in saying. Once Hitchin dribbled down for the visitors, and essayed a shot, but the ball struck the cross-bar. The same result marked a similar effort a little later. Up to the interval Rothwell did all the attacking, the home backs playing a strong defensive game. At the interval neither side had scored. On the resumption Rothwell broke away, and a capital pass to Taylor resulted in his netting the ball after two minutes' play. However, the homesters got on equal terms from a penalty, given away by Stringer for tripping. During the closing stages Taylor scored the second and winning goal for Rothwell from a pass by A. Gregg. Towards the end Ardsley menaced the visitors' goal, but Bradley maintained a clever defence of his charge.

ROTHWELL W.R. WIX—In their match with Methley Perseverance (Leeds Senior League) on Saturday, Rothwell White Rose turned out with four reserve players. Losing the toss, Abrams kicked off for Rothwell against a strong wind. They were soon forced upon the defensive, but good football seemed to be the question. Abrams and Wrigley succeeded in breaking through, but the defence of Teale and Davies proved too strong. However, a little later a clever move on the part of Wrigley and a well-timed pass across the field found Teale off his guard, and evading him, Ward scored. Despite the stiff breeze Rothwell played well, and the side worked hard. Methley were unable to score in the first half, and on the resumption of play Rothwell made matters safe. Soon after the interval Ward got through again. An unfortunate mishap resulted in Dawson being carried off the field, and he was unable to resume play. Methley after this incident scored through Murray, but before time Rothwell had increased their lead through Slyman, the result being Rothwell White Rose 3 goals, Methley Perseverance one.

IN TRAINING AT COLSTERDALE.—A correspondent writes:—A proud mother whose son had joined the Public and is in training at Colsterdale, told his friends at home that they were missing some good things by remaining behind, as their so and so had soon gotten to be somnut at nawvent an' not ordinary either, but reight reedy. Week he'd risen to, shoo couldn't say. "Is he a corporal?" asked one. "No, I don't think that's it." "Then is it a sargent?" said another. "No, that's not it neither." "Then he must ah gotten to be a liftenant," said a third. "An that't reng, for that isen't t' name." "Then he must be going ahead, for't rank above that is captain, an' all t'others hev to salute him." "Ah reely believe at that is it, for he sed sonat ahaht saluting in one of his letters." However, on the following Sunday these, set off and cycled to Colsterdale to see him, but on arriving there they found our bold hero with a brush and shovel and a barrow, and he was busy cleaning the camp up, while the battalion were at drille orfices, and the promotion really was that he had got to be a "pioneer." Some folk can see, an' even get a bit o' humor aht a hout. Even t'war, wi all its tragedy and horror, hez its cheer can be fahnd a bit o' humor. T'miners battalion, who happens to be in training at Otley, wor aht digging trenches t'other day, an' they had done their work as well as most, an' wor soe pleased wi wat they'd done that he decided at they sud nock off ah couple ah hours soiner. Of course, t'lads were delighted at this. Dahn went all tacklin' an ahr'd. Then they jumped, when t'captain shouted, "No, no, men, that's not the way to dismiss. All tools must be gathered and put back into stores." "That's funny," sez one o' t'miners, "I've been to learn at they'd be at t'same job next day, "we niver reckon to tack tools aht when we've hahn to work in t'same bait to morn."

BOWERS ALLERTON

Bowers Allerton footballers were defeated by Methley Perseverance by a goal to nil on Saturday.

Scarlet fever affected the attendance at the Bowers Allerton school last month, and the school had to be closed. The percentage of attendance was 85.44.

CARLTON

THE RELIEF FUND—Mr. W. Denton, the treasurer of the Carlton Relief Fund, acknowledges the following donations:—Mrs. David Hartley £1 10s., and Mr H. Speight 2s. 6d.

SERVING THEIR COUNTRY—Two Carlton young men, John Walsh and John Parker have joined the Bakewell Battalion of the Sherwood Foresters. Walsh—James, went out in the Expeditionary Army with his regiment, the Borderers, a Lancashire Regiment, and has been in some heavy fighting. The last news received from him stated that they were resting after three days in the trenches.

CANTATA.—On Sunday afternoon at the Primitive Methodist Church, the Lofthouse Wesleyan Choir rendered the cantata "Daughter of Moab." Mr W. Thurwell (Carlton) presided. Mr T. Hampson was the organist. In the evening the Carlton Primitive Methodist Choir gave the service of song "That hymn of old." Mrs Hampson and Mrs C. Thompson contributed the reading portions, and Mr S. Hardwick presided at the organ. The proceeds were in aid of the Trust Funds.

CROSSGATES

The Vicar of Whitkirk will deliver a lecture on "Architecture and some examples of it," at the meeting of Crossgates Literary Society on Monday evening. See advert.

At the Crossgates Baptist Fellowship on Tuesday evening Mr J. A. Mackay will lecture on "The history of song." There will be musical illustrations. See advert.

Mr Stanley Dewhirst, elder son of County Councillor Dewhirst, of Whinmoor Lodge, who has been training with the O.T.C., has been given a commission as second Lieutenant in the Royal Field Artillery.

WESLEY GUILD.—At a meeting of the Wesley Guild a most interesting time was spent on Wednesday night, when Miss Hilton and Miss Priestley gave a "Story evening." They included stories from Bret Harte, Rudyard Kipling, and Longfellow.

CROSSGATES BAPTIST FELLOWSHIP.—On Tuesday evening, at the meeting of the Baptist Fellowship in the Lecture Hall, at Whitkirk, a lecture on "The days of old; good manners" was delivered by Mr Frank Kidson, of Leeds. Mr E. Hawkesworth (President of Crossgates Literary Society) was in the chair, and there were about thirty ladies and gentlemen present. The lecture was on social life in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, and, at the outset, Mr Kidson described the ladies' dress of that period, stating that fashions did not change so often as they do now because of the cost of material and its wearing quality. Ladies, in going to a ball, had their hair dressed to a height of a foot, with ostrich feathers on the top, and if they travelled by carriage they had to sit in the bottom of it, or if by sedan chair the top of it had to be open. The hairdressers were very busy before the holding of a social function, and, as they could not attend to all their patrons on one day, ladies had their hair dressed the day before and had to sit on chairs all night. Gentlemen's dress, he said that some of them kept their hands warm in muffs. In describing locomotion —sedan chairs, coaches, etc.—in the old days, he said that travelling was opposed to railways because they thought they would put a stop to horse-breeding. One of the first railways to be made was the Leeds to Selby Railway, and the arrangements for travelling—open trucks, with no seats—were of a primitive character. Smoking was indulged in only by the fireside, owing to matches not being available then. Mr Kidson described the condition of the country during the wars with France, the severity of the punishment imposed by Judges for light offences, the condition of prisons, the limited power of the people in national affairs and the open elections, and the education of women. At the close the Chairman mentioned that the old stone sleepers used on the railway could now be seen on the crossing at Old Manston. On the motion of Mr Carlton, seconded by Mr Rodgers, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr Kidson.—A vote of condolence, on the motion of Mr Digt', was passed with Mrs Bower, of Crossgates, a member of the committee, whose husband died on Saturday.

ROLL OF HONOUR.—The Vicar in his magazine, states that the following names have been added to the Crossgates Roll of Honour :—E. Johnson (Lt-col.), 7th Batt. West Yorks., E. Whiley, Royal Garrison Artillery, S. Stott, General Botha's Army, S.A., P. Binns (Lieut.)4 5th Batt. K.O.Y.L.I., J. Bramley, Northern Signalling Coy., Royal Engineers, and C. Hirst, 7th Batt. West Yorks. Three Crossgates men—George Steward, Frederick Dickenson, and George Ryder —are now at the front.

LEAGUE OF YOUNG LIBERALS.—On Monday evening a meeting of the Crossgates branch of the League of Young Liberals was held at the residence of Mr and Mrs Morgan, of Marshall Terrace, and Mr J. Batty (President) was in the chair. A most interesting paper on "Carlyle" was read by Mr Barrett, and afterwards the President, on behalf of the members, presented a walnut occasional table to Mr C. Pidgett, a member of the committee, on the occasion of his marriage, which took place last week. Mr and Mrs C. Fidgett replied, and thanked the members for their kindness and expression of goodwill. Refreshments were subsequently provided by Mr and Mrs Morgan, and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to them and to Mr Barrett.

THE LATE MR H. S. BOWER.—We regret to have to record the death of Mr Herbert Sykes Bower, of 9, Marshall Avenue, Crossgates. Deceased, who had resided in the village about ten years, was employed in one of the banks in Leeds, and he was taken ill in the city early last week. He was removed to his home, and despite every attention, he died on Saturday morning. Mr Bower was only 38 years of age, was well-known as a chess player, having been at one time hon. sec. of the Crossgates Chess Club, and he was one of the best players in the Institute team. He was of a quiet and unassuming disposition, and was highly respected in the village. He leaves a widow and a little girl, for whom the deepest sympathy is felt. The remains were interred at Hudderafield on Tuesday.

GARFORTH

On Saturday afternoon Garforth W.R. football team were defeated by Fryston Colliery by five goals to one.

In connection with East Garforth Mission Church a sale of work will be opened in St. Mary's Hall by Mrs Gascoigne, of Harewood Hall, on Tuesday afternoon. See advert.

Mr Thomas Abbott, of Garforth, has been successful in passing the examination of the Sanitary Institute, and now holds a certificate as sanitary inspector under the Public Health Act, 1875.

On Thursday evening, December 17th, a lecture on "The War—Europe to-day and after," will be given in aid of the local Belgian Refugee Fund in the Primitive Methodist Chapel by the Rev. J. Rravcley. See advert.

THE SCHOOLS.—The percentage of attendance for the whole of the schools in the district for last month was 82.46, compared with 90.73 in the corresponding month of last year. Garforth Parochial School (mixed department) had the best attendance, the percentage being 94.31, against 91.45 last year. In the infants' department of the school the percentage was 84.81 against 89.77, measles being the cause of this drop. At the Council School the percentage for the mixed department was 90 as compared with 91.3, and in the infants' department, where measles affected the attendance, the percentage was only 78.18 against 89.35. The Methodist East Garforth were 89.86 as compared with 92.76 last year, while at the Roman Catholic School the attendance was also down, being 87.18 against 88.61.

PICTURE HOUSE—This week at the Picture House unusually good fare has been provided, and to-night and to-morrow a great attraction is a picture showing the gallantry of the Gordon Scottish at the Front. The second series of Selig's sensational jungle films "The two Rubies," and the two-reel comedy "Love, luck, and gasoline" will also meet with favour. Next week "The Express Messenger," a thrilling story of railway life, and "The Scouts' Motto," a sensational drama every boy should see, will be the outstanding pictures on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights. "Life" will be screened on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. This is described as the greatest picture in the history of animated photography, and the exhibition rights only allow the management to show it on three nights and at a matinee. The hero of the play rescues a girl from a fire, which burns half the village, and causes a shocking ruin disaster. No doubt there will be crowded "houses" next week. For times and prices see advert.

GARFORTH SCIENCE LECTURES.—On Wednesday evening in the Central Hall of the Council School, Garforth, a lecture on "Some aspects of bird life" was delivered by Professor Garstang, M.A., D.Sc., (Oxon). Mr H. J. Darby presided, and there was a good attendance, although it was not, as the Chairman said, so large as they had been accustomed to have at the lectures. Professor Garstang dealt with four aspects of bird life—flight, nesting habits, songs, and migration. He said that the attainment of flight by birds had not been gained without sacrifice. Geologists stated that there was a time when there were no birds on the earth, but there were plenty of reptiles, and some of those reptiles tried to fly. He then described by means of drawings how the reptile, losing its tail and its teeth, became a bird. The gradual change in the wing and the development of the flight feathers were remarked upon, and he stated that while the lighter birds had their nests in trees the lower built their nests on the ground. In the one case the chicks were hatched blind and naked, and in the other they were covered with down and greatly marked. As a further proof of their origin, he stated that the scales on some birds were of the lizard type, but as they went higher up the list of family there were a few scales on the legs or feet. Eggs, he explained, had no relation to the size of the bird, and he instanced the snipe and thrush, which were about the same size, but the eggs of the former were much larger. Professor Garstang gave an interesting explanation as to how birds that built in trees tried to safeguard their young. The highest type of birds were singing birds, and, by means of slides, he showed the structure of the warblers' throats and how they sang. A considerable length he dealt with this aspect of the subject, and stating that birds' songs admitted of analysis, he gave imitations of the warblings of many birds, having something interesting to say of various groups, finches, larks, etc. The concluding part of the lecture was devoted to a brief description of the migration of birds.—At the close a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the lecturer on the call of the Chairman.

GREAT PRESTON

The infants' school at Great Preston had to be closed last month owing to scarlet fever, the percentage of attendance being 82.94.

On Saturday afternoon, in the Rothwell Charity Football Cup Competition, Great Preston were defeated by Rothwell Old Boys by a goal to nil.

HALTON

Mr S. Dickenson, of Halton, was second for fat sow, middle breed, at Leeds Smithfield Show.

Customers at the Irwin Arms Inn, Halton, have contributed £1 2s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

"Accidental death" was the verdict returned at a Leeds inquest yesterday on Benjamin Eggleston (38), miner, of 12, North-West Drive, Leeds. Eggleston was fatally injured in a fall of stone in the Beeston Pit of the Waterloo Main Colliery Company.

THE SCHOOLS.—At Halton School last month the percentage of attendance in the mixed department was 89.1 against 83.55 in November last year. In the infants' department the percentage was 79.41 as compared with 82.03. At Colton School the percentage was 89.84 against 90.76.

THE POACHING AFFRAY.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Session on Tuesday Harry Roberts, a labourer, of Leeds, was charged with night poaching in connection with the Templenewsam affray, and with unlawfully wounding Robert Robinson and John Pullan, keepers on the estate. Supt. Symonds asked for a remand of one week, and this was granted.

TEMPLENEWSAM PARISH COUNCIL.—This Council met at the Council School, Halton, on Monday evening—Mr J. H. Tomlinson (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs. Belcer, Dixon, Firth, Fitton, Goodall, and H. Greaves, with the Clerk (Mr V. Greaves). After a short discussion, and an inspection of the plans, a resolution was passed that the Council approve of a slight deviation of the footpath at the new colliery in Templenewsam Park. Several of the allotment holders had neglected to pay their rents, and it was reported two of these had gone to the workhouse, and it was proposed that an appal should be made on their behalf to the Relief Committee to pay the small sums due. The remainder of the tenants owing rents had promised to pay their arrears within the month, and it was proposed that after that time arrears not paid up should be sued for. It was resolved that no sub-letting of allotments should be allowed, that a list of the allotments and the measurement of each allotment should be entered in the minute book, no change of tenancy should be made until it was brought before a Council meeting, and each allotment should be let by the Council only. It was further agreed that each tenant should receive a notice of these regulations. The Footpaths Committee reported that steps had been taken for the repair of various footpaths in the parish. In regard to the children's playground at Whitkirk, it was decided that a letter be sent to the Hunslet District Council reminding them that notice should be given to the tenant respecting the opening of an entrance to the children's playing ground from Hollyshaw Lane.

SERIOUS CHARGE.—At the Leeds Police Court yesterday, before the Stipendiary Magistrate (Mr Horace Marshall), Thomas Jack Nicholson (24), a soldier, whose home is at Halton, was charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm on Samuel Pearson, of 36, Belbrooke Avenue, Horsforth, and a lineman in the employ of the North Eastern Railway Co. Mr G. Knowles, who prosecuted, said that the incident occurred on the evening of Saturday, November 4th. The complainant, who had been visiting friends, called at the Red and Gun Inn, York Road, for some refreshment, his friends waiting outside. When he came out they had gone, and he went after them in the direction of Killingbeck. The landlord was under the mistaken impression that Pearson had taken some glasses away and rushed after him. Pearson denied the theft and consented to go back to the house, where he repeated in his denial. To avoid trouble he handed the landlord 2s. in payment of the glasses, and in the passage he was attacked by somebody and struck a blow on the right eye. Complainant suffered great pain, and his eye, which was seriously ruptured, had to be taken out at the Infirmary. Pearson had seen Nicholson in the public-house, but no words had passed between them. Complainant gave corroborative evidence, and two witnesses who were in the public-house at the time said that prisoner had come in after the affray, and, speaking his stick, said: "This stick would give a nasty knock, wouldn't it?" Wickolson, giving evidence, said that he struck the complainant in self-defence. He was committed for trial to the Assizes.

KIPPAX

On Saturday afternoon Kippax Woodville football team defeated Rothwell W.R. in a League match by three goals to one.

THE SCHOOLS.—The schools in the Kippax district recorded a percentage of attendance last month of 88.21 as compared with 87.9 in November last year. The boys' department of the Kippax Council School had a percentage of 93.15 against 92.71 last year. The figures for the girls' school were 91.13, compared with 90.34, and for the infants' 84.23 against 82.25.

FOR A GOOD CAUSE.—The lady workers in connection with the sewing meeting, who have met in the Parish Church Schoolroom for several weeks, have done excellent service on behalf of our soldiers and sailors. They have made the following useful articles :—31 bed jackets, 114 pairs of socks, 4 vests, 1 quilt, 1 blanket (bought), 1 helmet, 1 pair of gloves, 13 children's shirts for Belgians, 1 jersey, 4 pairs of mittens, 52 mufflers —total 322 articles.

BELGIAN RELIEF FUND.—On behalf of the Belgian Relief Fund, a public tea was provided in the Parish Church Schoolroom on Monday afternoon, when over 100 persons were present. The Vicar, at the close, made a few remarks, and referred to the work which the ladies have done for our soldiers and sailors. They have accomplished a great deal in a few weeks. The efforts of all those who had assisted in this good work were very much appreciated. The tea realised over £1.

PARISH COUNCIL.—A meeting of the Parish Council was held on Monday evening—Mr J. Cripwell presiding. The other members present were Messrs. Mosses, Atkinson, R. Johnson, G. Cooper, and W. Firth, with the Clerk (Mr W. Cripwell). The Clerk read a communication from Sir J. C. Rickett, M.P., acknowledging receipt of the resolution anent pensions for disabled soldiers and sailors, which had been passed by the Council at their last meeting. A communication as to New Street was also received and read. No other business was transacted.

DISTRESS SUB-COMMITTEE.—A meeting of the Kippax Distress Sub-Committee was held on Friday evening, when it was decided to remit the half of the money raised to the West Riding Distress Fund. The committee have considered four applications for relief which have arisen as a consequence of the war, but at present only one case is receiving relief. The committee desire to point out that all the miners residing in the village are contributing a weekly amount of threepence or sixpence (and in some cases a shilling) at the collieries at which they are employed, but from the Trench Colliery only is the local fund credited with the money thus raised. A sum of £5 has been forwarded to the Prince of Wales' Fund, being the proceeds of the first "Daily Mail" lecture on the war.

LEDSHAM

At the Church School, Ledsham, last month the percentage of attendance was 88.88 against 95.55 for November last year.

LOFTHOUSE

The concert held by the Lofthouse War Relief Committee in the Wesleyan School on November 30th, resulted in a balance of £12 14s. 6d. A sum of £10 has been sent to the Belgian Relief Fund.

THE WAR.—Mr S. Kew, of the Imperial Mortuse League, gave a very able and spirited address on "The War, its causes and responsibilities" in the Wesleyan School, on Tuesday evening. The address was illustrated by a large number of fine lantern slides. The chair was taken by the Rev. G. H. Scott, Vicar of Lofthouse. The Rev. T. H. Bywater, Vicar of Outwood, proposed, and Mr J. L. House seconded, the following resolution, which was carried unanimously :—"That all present at this meeting desire to place on record their unswerving determination to use all the possible means at their disposal to support the Government in carrying on the war until peace has been restored by the unconditional surrender of the enemy, and thus for all time crush the arrogant military Imperialism of the German Empire, with which she is now seeking to dominate the world." A collection at the close of the meeting realised 18s. 6d. in aid of the local War Fund.

SETHLEY

Methley Mickletown Council Schools have sent £3 to the West Riding Distress Fund.

During a dense fog on Wednesday evening, George Bothland, aged 16, hurrier, of Methley, walked into the Main and Calder Canal at Methley, and was drowned.

MICKLEFIELD

THE SCHOOLS.—At the Micklefield Church School (mixed department) the attendances reached a percentage of 87.39 as compared with 90.84 for the corresponding month of last year. At the infants' department the percentage was 85.82 against 90.58.

MICKLEFIELD WESLEYAN CHURCH.—On Tuesday evening there took place in this church a special musical service, which had been arranged by the choir, who had been fortunate in securing the services of Master Gerald Spink, the well-known boy organist of Woodhouse Carr Wesleyan Church, Leeds. A short organ recital was commenced at 6.30 p.m. consisting of "Andante Pastorale" (S. Wesley), and "Sonata No. 3" (Kozeluch), and works by Campbell, Andrews, etc. These numbers served to bring out the many points of the instrument, and to show the skill and accomplishments of the performer. Following the recital came the rendering of a cantata, "The day of rest," in which the choir sang the choral items in finished style, under the conductorship of Mr E. Spink, who, with his responsive forces, produced some really effective tonal contrasts. The soloists were Misses E. and H. Taylor, Messrs G. W. Taylor, C. Simpson, and H. Humpherson, who very creditably acquitted themselves. The accompaniments were played by Master Gerald Spink in a most refined and pleasing manner. In replying to a vote of thanks, Mr Spink remarked how pleased he and his son were to be there and hoped in the near future to pay them another visit.

MOOR ALLERTON

The staff at Moorfield House, Moortown, have sent £12 12s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Mr J. W. Pollard, of Moor Allerton, won third prize for fat cow (open to members of Leeds Cowkeepers' Association) at Leeds Smithfield Show.

THE LATE MR BOWER BROOKE.—A memorial tablet erected in the Church of Moor Allerton was unveiled and dedicated at the morning service on Sunday. The tablet, which is in the nave, states that Mr Bower Brooke was trustee and warden of the church, and that he died in the hunting field on March 7th, 1914. The ceremony of unveiling was performed by the Vicar, the Rev. Godwin Birchenough, in the course of the service. He said that the tablet was erected to the memory of one who was a great lover of that house, who filled almost every office, who by his regular attendance and willingness to help in good work set a bright example that would not quickly be forgotten. Bower Brooke would have been the last man to desire eulogy of his life and work, but it was only right and fitting that the memory of so loyal a Churchman, so true a man, as keen a lover of life, should be perpetuated. He was all those things, and many mourned their loss in his death.

OULTON

A sum of £5 8s. from Oulton Tennis Club has been sent by Miss Ada Bell, hon. sec., to the Belgian Relief Fund.

REFUGEES.—On Friday last five of the Belgian refugees, who have been enjoying the hospitality of the Hall, took their departure. It is understood that they have gone to take up quarters in the neighbourhood of Hunslet Carr.

THE SCHOOLS.—The schools in the Oulton district last month recorded a percentage of 80.05 as compared with 86.04 for November last year. At the St. John Church mixed department, the percentage was 93.60 against 93.15 last year. The infants' department showed a percentage of 72.57 against 78.43 in November of last year. Whooping cough greatly affected the attendance.

ROUNDHAY

OFFICER'S SAD DEATH.—The Leeds Rifles have lost one of their young officers by the death of Second-Lieutenant Kenneth H. Ives, who succumbed at the R.A.M.C. Hospital, York, on Wednesday, to typhoid fever and double pneumonia. Mr Ives, who was only twenty-five years of age, was the eldest son of Mr A. E. Ives, of Greystones, Park Avenue, Roundhay, and the Grand Restaurant, Leeds, and was well-known in various Leeds circles. He was formerly articled to Mr Arthur Willey, solicitor, and became qualified to practise as a solicitor only this year. He received his commission in the Leeds Rifles a few weeks after the outbreak of war, and had since been stationed with his battalion at York. A few weeks ago he caught a chill, which developed into pneumonia, and was followed by typhoid fever.

SEACROFT

SUCCESS.—On Tuesday at the Leeds Smithfield Show Mr J. M. Raynor, of Whinmoor, won second prize for dairy cow, any age (calved). He also secured third prize for dairy cow, any age (calved), under 11 cwt. Mr Raynor secured a first and a second prize in the cow classes open to members of Leeds Cowkeepers' Association.

SCHOLES

The attendance at the Scholes School last month was greatly affected by measles, the percentage being 85.29 as compared with 91.53 for the corresponding month of last year.

SHADWELL

Mrs F. Simpson, of Shadwell, has sent 5s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

SWILLINGTON

THE SCHOOLS.—The Council School had the best percentage of attendance of the two schools last month, the figures being 92.59 as compared with 91.76 in November last year. At the Parochial School the returns were 87.54 against 86.06.

STRAYED FROM SEACROFT.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Henry Calvert Broadbent, butcher, of Leeds, was summoned for allowing two cows to stray on the highway. P.C. Eadon stated that he found the animals straying on the Selby Road, Swillington, about 6.20 p.m. on November 30th. He took them to a farm and penned them up. The following day a representative of the defendant came for the cows. A representative of the defendant, who appeared at the court, said that they knew nothing about the cows until the next day. They had strayed from Seacroft. A fine of 1s. for each cow, and costs was imposed.

WOODLESFORD

A letter relating to a Woodlesford soldier who has lost his life appears in another column.

THE SCHOOLS.—At the Council School last month the attendance in the mixed department was 91.42 per cent. against 88.85 in November last year. That of the infants' department was 81.33 against 83.46.

WHITKIRK

A sum of £1 10s., collected at Whitkirk Church, has been sent by the Rev. B. Guyer to the Belgian Relief Fund

A sum of £3, proceeds of a private whist drive, has been sent by Mr and Mrs L. A. Giles, of Whitkirk, to the Leeds Belgian Relief Fund.

AT THE MANOR HOUSE.—Mrs Child, of The Manor House, Whitkirk, generously gave her usual treat to the old folks on Wednesday evening last week. The guests were conveyed to the Manor House in a covered waggonette, and, after spending a very happy evening, they were taken home in the conveyance. The choir boys at the church had their supper and treat at the Manor House on Friday night, and they had a most enjoyable time.

KIPPAX DISTRESS SUB-COMMITTEE

The following amounts have been received on behalf of the West Riding and Local Distress Funds :—

	£ s. d.
House to house collection, per Kippax Old Band and St John Ambulance Association . .	6 0 0
Kippax Co-operative Society subscription . . .	6 6 0
G. C. H. Wheler, Esq., M.P. .	2 2 0
Sir J. C. Rickett, M.P. (for local fund) . . .	2 2 0
Underground workmen and boys and screenmen Trench Colliery per Mr A. Townend (1st con.) .	2 0 6
Ditto (2nd contribution) . .	1 2 1
Ditto (3rd contribution) . .	2 1 3
Ditto (4th contribution) . .	2 0 10
Ditto (5th contribution) . .	2 0 9
Mr Wm Greer and workmen (1st monthly collection) . .	2 10 0
Ditto (2nd monthly collection)	2 10 0
Mr S R Silverwood (1st con.)	0 2 0
Staff of Refuge Assurance Co., per Mr H. Gummerson .	0 5 0
W. Cripwell (1st contribution)	0 5 0
Total . . .	£32 6 6

Further subscriptions are earnestly solicited.

REV. E. B. SMITH, Treasurer.
W. CRIPWELL, Secretary.

9th December, 1914.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE.

	£ s. d.
Amount of subscriptions previously acknowledged . .	219 13 3
Underground workmen, boys, and screenmen Sisters' and Isabella Pits, per (Mr C. H. Hedley) 12th contribution	6 18 2
One-half of prize money obtained for best gardens from the children of the Garforth Parochial Schools, as follows:—K. Tocs 6d., H. Bond 6d., E. Jermy 3d., N. Barker 3d., P. Oxtoby 1s. 3d., A. Harrison 7½d., A. Leggott 7½d., D. Whitehead 7½d., J. Kirk 7½d., children's pence in lieu of fireworks od. . .	0 6 0
Garforth Elementary teachers (per Mr B. Chadwick). .	1 12 6
Underground workmen, boys and screenmen, Trench Pit, per Mr E. W. Ogden (5th contribution). . . .	2 0 7
Total amount to date . .	£270 10 6

Wm. Geo. Bonner, Hon. Sec. and Treas.

Wetherby Council School has made a second contribution of 10s. to the West Riding Distress Fund.

WINNERS—Mrs Cass, of Ribston, won first prize for dairy cow, any age, (calved), under 11 cwt., at Leeds Smithfield Show, and she was also first for horned Highland ox or heifer. Mr G. Lax, Cowthorpe, won first prize for ox or heifer under two years.

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax :—Patents accepted—W. H. Webster, York, improvements in fireboxes; A. Wilkinson, Ilkley, flexible armoured bodies for motor-cars, etc.; E. Court, Wakefield, pockets for uniform coats. Patents renewed—David Smith, Leeds, improvements in water filters; and J. Ingham and Sons, Wakefield, improvements in colliery tubs or corves.

BELGIAN REFUGEES.—A series of Belgian refugees arrived at Selby on Wednesday night, and were being accommodated at Prospect House, lent for the purpose to the local committee by Messrs Farrow and Co., Ltd. A fund has been raised out of which the house rent has been paid, and very comfortable provision made for the refugees, who have been sent by the Central Committee. Mr Mark Scott, Mr J. J. York, the Rev. R. J. Dunford, and others met and welcomed the Belgians at the Railway Station, and gave them a hearty welcome. They appeared very pleased with their reception.

RECRUITING AT SELBY.—Capt. Plotnauer (York), of the 5th Reserve Battalion West Yorks. Regiment (Territorials), stationed at Harrogate, addressed meetings in the Selby Market on Monday, and also at the Assembly Rooms in advance of the local recruiting campaign. He was supported by Mr R. Lodge and Mr W. J. Taylor, and assisted by Corpl. W. Donnelly, of the Reserve Battalion. Two recruits were enrolled at the shipyard, which has already contributed a good quota to the armed forces, and Messrs Cochrane, the proprietors, were thanked for their patriotic action in supporting the recruiting campaign so heartily. It is hoped to secure at least a score of recruits as the result of the day's efforts.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

SEQUEL TO A STOURTON PROSECUTION

The fortnightly meeting of the Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the Union Offices, Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon, Mr J. Gavine (vice-chairman) presiding. Others present were Mrs E. A. Dickinson, Father T. Cody, J. Butterick, T. G. Conyers, W. Schofield, G. Armitage, W. A. Appleyard, J. Bannister, E. B. Pickersgill, H. I. Pulford, D. W. Hargreaves, W. Lunn, W. Stead, W. Hemingway, and J. W. Verity, with the Clerk (Mr F. W. Mee).

HOMES COMMITTEE

At the meeting of the Children's Homes Committee the circular letter from the Local Government Board respecting the care and supervision of widows and children in receipt of out-relief was further considered on the Board's reference. A report was also received from the Clerk thereon, and it was resolved that the Guardians be recommended as follows :—(1) To enter into arrangements, if possible, with the Education Committees for a half-time system to be made to them as to the mental and physical progress of the children in receipt of out-relief, and to apply to the Local Government Board to consequently dispense with the requirements for weekly reports of school attendance. (2) To give instructions to all the male relieving officers similar to those given to the female officer, to time their visits as far as possible so as to see each child in receipt of out-relief once every three months, and to report any unsuitable conditions. (3) To prohibit the employment in street trading as defined by the Employment of Children Act, 1903, of all children of school age in receipt of relief. (4) To instruct the relieving officers to draw the attention of the Guardians to any case in which they have reason to fear that a chargeable child is likely to be put to an unsuitable occupation, or one which does not afford a prospect of permanent employment.

A letter was received from the Cinderella Club, Manchester, stating that on account of the war they have decided not to make any distribution of dolls and toys this year.

The Clerk reported the proceedings at the conviction of George H. Bruce (Stourton) by the N.S.P.C.C., for neglecting his children, and that the man had been sent to prison for three months with hard labour. It was decided that the Guardians be recommended to resolve that all the rights and powers of George Henry Dent, as the father of his six children, now maintained by them, and the father having been sentenced to imprisonment in respect of an offence against his children, shall vest in the Guardians, and shall continue so vested until the children shall attain the age of 21 years.

Mr Hemingway asked for the Chairman of the Homes Committee to explain why the Guardians had taken over the children.

Mr Schofield : In the absence of the chairman, the Clerk ought to explain.

The Clerk stated that the minutes were an account of the proceedings of the court. The man was charged with neglect which, according to the evidence, was fairly gross, with the result that he was sent to prison for three months. That gave the Guardians power to take these proceedings. He (the Clerk) was convicted for an offence against the children.

Mr Hemingway said that Dent had been unfortunate for two years, and up to that time if was thought he had been a good father and a good husband, but obstacles had arisen which were insurmountable. He remembered the children coming to the House, and he believed the man had made a mistake after the children had been in the institution three months. No one could say that the father had neglected the children, it was for want of a mother. After the man's sentence he tried to get a woman, but he could not find a suitable one, who had a good character, and he had to keep his eldest child away from school, and that was the first thing that drew attention to the case. He had taken his mother, with the result that she fell ill shortly after, and he had all of them in the house together. He (Mr Hemingway) felt sorry for the man, and he hoped the minute would not be passed, although he was not prepared to move that it go back to the committee for consideration.

The Clerk said that the object of the resolution was not to relieve the father of any obligation. If the man regained his character and ultimately was in a position so that the children could be usefully and with advantage discharged, he (the Clerk) recommended the Guardians to let the children go. It was after having attended the court and heard the somewhat caustic remarks of the chairman, that he advised the committee to take the first opportunity of doing what was right for the children.

Mr Alderson, who reported upon the case, said that from the first she felt sorry for the man as in the position he was placed, and the family he had, and could not get a woman to help him out of the difficulty. From time to time the children deteriorated, and it was desirable to see them. They never went to school, and when they were taken to the Homes it was not before time.

The matter then dropped.

Father Cody also raised a point in connection with the circular in the minutes referring to the circular letter of the Local Government Board respecting the relief of widows and children. With regard to the Guardians' visiting the children he thought it was going a bit too far to expect officers to inspect and to report on every child, as it placed an extra burden on the relieving officers, who were already in another fady officer, and for the good they did he thought it unnecessary to expend another £100 per year. With regard to the other part of the circular he would welcome it. He proposed the par be deleted.

Mr Lunn seconded.

Mr Appleyard said that Father Cody spoke as though the officers had to report on every child. The minute was that the report should be on any unsuitable person. If it was extra work it was not asking too much.

On a vote being taken the amendment was lost and the minutes were passed.

HOUSE COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the House Committee the matter reported that three deaths had occurred in the infirmary during the week ended. Mr Stead invited as many of the inmates as were able to visit his picture palace at Rothwell on New Year's Day, and the invitation was accepted.

A letter was received from Mr C. H. Darke, engineer, stating he had entered for active service in the Navy for the period of the war, and asking in the event of his being called upon, that his post be kept open for him. It was resolved that leave be granted if necessary for the period of the war.

The minutes were passed.

Mr Lunn is to move a resolution at the next meeting that coal be allowed to recipients of outdoor relief similar to last year.

Mr W. R. Holgate, of Scarcroft, was a prize-winner in the classes for roots at Leeds Smithfield Show.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS
£1/10/ £3/3/ £5/5/ £10/10/
to £100 each.
SEE WINDOWS
Diamonds
BEST SELECTION IN THE COUNTY.
Dysons
50 STAMP STORES
24-25-26 BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
(E. SIDE) SEE OUR LEAVE LEAVES
Watches
10/6 TO £50 GUINEAS.
THE ROUNDWATCH 15/-
THE UNIVERSITY 30/-
OLD WATCHES & JEWELLERY TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.
RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(LATE A. C. WAINSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

Established 1835. GENERAL Established 1835.
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Liberal Benefits and conditions. Low Premiums.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE every sixth year to householders and private property owners
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in one session with risks of Fire, Burglary and accidents to servants.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, including guaranteed options.
Workmen's Compensation,
Motor Car, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee, Driving Accidents, Live Stock, *Plate Glass, and Farmers' Insurances.
Chief Offices—General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C.
Two Oldest and Strongest Independent Offices.
Assets exceed £7,000,000.
Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager . . . F. NORIE-MILLER, J.P.

DOYLE
The Noted China House
IF YOU CAN'T DECIDE WHAT TO GIVE
a visit to Doyle's extensive showrooms will decide the difficulty for you. Here are hundreds of tasteful little gifts in China and Glassware which make the most dainty presents imaginable. Come and see our windows and walk through our showrooms, THAT will help you.
59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.

Purveyors of Marmalade
To H.M. King George V.
Frank COOPER'S "OXFORD" MARMALADE.
The "Oxford" has a distinctive flavour, and is the real home-made character, and goes farther — than any other. —
OBTAINABLE AT
Walter Jubb's, Austhorpe Rd., Crossgates
ALSO
S. BORDER & Co., YORK.

TEMPLENEWSAM RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING—ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of Templenewsam Ratepayers' Association was held at the Brown Cow Inn, Whitkirk, on Friday evening—Mr. J. M. Armistead (President) in the chair.

The President, in his annual report, stated —Nine meetings have been held during the year, with an average attendance of 17, compared with ten meetings and an average attendance of 18 during 1913. Having regard to the general absorption of interest in the tremendous world struggle which is now passing, I think these figures may be regarded as satisfactory. It is, however, much to be desired that a larger proportion of the members attend the meetings and take part in the proceedings. Seven new members have been elected during the year. The present membership, however, owing to removals and withdrawals, shows a slight decrease. Arising out of a resolution adopted at the March meeting, the Association secured—through the good offices of Mr Marsden and the generosity of the Hon. Edward Wood—a playing field at Whitkirk on a nominal rental. The Association took the initiative in this matter, but all the arrangements were made in co-operation with the Parish Council, in which body the control of the ground is vested. We trust that in process of time, by the efforts of the Council, this field may be a real boon to the young folks of the neighbourhood. A well-devised town-planning scheme has been drawn up by the District Council, and the Clerk to the Council, Mr Pindar, attended our November meeting, and gave full explanations of the plans and details—a courtesy much appreciated by us. It is a matter of gratification to every member that this Association took the first step in advocating the adoption of a town-planning scheme after an address by Mr Pindar two years ago. We again desire to record our appreciation of the energy and resourcefulness of Mr Pindar in this matter, a matter so vital to the future wellbeing of the township. Several matters of local interest have had consideration during the year, but they do not call for detailed comment. The shadow of the greater events is over us for the present, but we look hopefully forward to the time when that shadow will be lifted. Meantime let us carry on our work, and endeavour to extend our scope and usefulness, not as grumblers and busybodies, but as a voluntary society making articulate the views of the citizens, and thus co-operate with the governing bodies for the common good of all. I thank the Association and the Executive for their support during the past year, and we as an Association thank our local Councils for their courtesy and help, and the "Skyrack Courier" for its monthly reports.

On the motion of Mr S. H. Young, seconded by Mr J. Coultas, the report was adopted.

The Hon. Treasurer (Mr Atkinson) reported that the income, including a balance to commence with, of 7s. 10d., was £5 16s. 8d., and the expenditure was £5 0s. 6d., leaving a balance of 7s. 4d. It was stated that several subscriptions had come in since the accounts were made up.

The report was adopted on the motion of Mr R. MacKay, seconded by Mr J. A. Rhodes.

Mr Atkinson proposed that Mr Armistead be re-elected President, stating that he had made an excellent chairman and was well fitted to do the work.

Mr Young, in seconding, said that they all knew Mr Armistead's abilities, and he put forward his name with every confidence.

The resolution was passed unanimously, and Mr Armistead, in reply, said that they did not need to apologise for an Association of that kind. They did not endeavour to be a thorn in the flesh of the governing bodies, with whom they were on excellent terms, and he thought the record of the Association during the last six or seven years would show that they had done good work for the district. They would be glad to welcome the whole of the ratepayers into membership, and he pointed out the value of the Association in focussing the ideas of the residents in a way that was impossible through a ballot-box. Questions were ventilated at the meeting, and in the local Press, so that the local bodies had reliable data to go upon as to views of ratepayers. He hoped that an effort would be made during the year to greatly increase the membership.

The President proposed the appointment of Mr Atkinson as Independent, stating that he had been a very enthusiastic member and had taken a very deep interest in the Association.

Mr W. R. Bell seconded, and the resolution was unanimously agreed to.

Mr Atkinson said that he was interested in the work, and he attended every meeting he could. He promised to do the best he could for the Association.

Mr Young proposed Mr Tindale Rippon as hon. treasurer. He stated that Mr Rippon accepted the office of vice-president last year, on condition that it was not a step to the chair, and he thought that, although he had a great deal of other work in hand, he would accept the treasurership.

Mr Rushton, in seconding, said that all work Mr Rippon took in hand was carried out in a thorough and efficient manner.

The appointment was unanimously agreed to.

Mr E. Wilkinson, after three years' work as hon. secretary, desired to retire from the position, and the President proposed Mr Rushton, who would carry out the duties in a very able manner. He accepted the position he thought they would be fortunate.

Mr Hall, who said they could not have a better man, seconded, and the resolution was passed amid applause. Mr Rushton accepted the office, and said he would be pleased to do what he could for the Association.

Mr J. A. Rhodes proposed the re-election of Mr W. R. Bell, treasurer, and accountant as hon. auditor, Mr Rushton seconded, and this was adopted.

Fifteen gentlemen were nominated for ten places on the committee, and the following were elected:—Messrs J. A. Rhodes, G. E. Martin, E. Wilkinson, R. MacKay, J. Mellor, J. Coultas, H. H. Giddings, W. Booth, L. McPherlane, and White.

Mr Young proposed a vote of thanks to Mr Wilkinson for his three years' work as hon. secretary. All he had done had been marked by care and ability, and they were very grateful to him.

Mr Atkinson seconded, stating that Mr Wilkinson could not have done the work so well if he had not been deeply interested in it.

The President supported, and the vote was heartily accorded.

Mr Rhodes proposed a vote of thanks to the Brewers of the Yorkshire Brewery and the landlord and landlady of the Brown Cow Inn for the accommodation they had provided for the Association, which had been well served.

Mr MacKay, who seconded, said that little courtesies of this kind ought to be acknowledged.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr Rushton directed attention to the unsatisfactory state of the road and footpath in Green Lane, between the stile and the bridge, and proposed that the attention of the responsible authorities be directed to the matter.

Mr Coultas seconded.

Mr MacKay said he thought they ought to draw attention to the danger alongside the foot path, too. It encroached very much on the path.

It was agreed to call attention to both matters.

Mr White asked if there was any information about another entrance being provided to the Recreation Field at Whitkirk. At the outset they were promised an entrance from Hollyshaw Lane.

Mr Wilkinson said that he had no information, and he did not see any prospect of anything being done. He stated that if the town-planning scheme was carried out two roads would go through the recreation field, but there was no doubt if it were taken away another would be provided.

Mr Cousin asked if they had any information as to the work of the Distress Committee.

The President said the subscriptions amounted to about £12 a week, and the distress was growing less.

BARWICK AND SCHOLES AFFAIRS.

WATER SCHEME—THE CHARITIES.

A meeting of Barwick-in-Elmet Council was held at Scholes on Monday evening, and the members present were Messrs J. M. Royar (Chairman), R. Wright, A. Heath, A. Robshaw, and F. Lamb (Barwick), and Messrs J. Pemberton and W. Needham (Scholes), with the Clerk (Mr. H. R. Clarke).

The Chairman inquired if Mr Wright had any information to give them about the water scheme.

Mr Wright said that he could not do so, but as soon as they had made any progress he should be glad to give a report.

Mr Heath inquired if the scheme was to supply Scholes only.

Mr Wright said it was to supply a wide area.

Mr Pemberton asked if it would come before the ratepayers.

The Chairman: An inquiry will be held.

Mr Pemberton: Will there be a poll?

Mr Wright said he did not anticipate anything of that kind. When the scheme had been prepared an application would be made to the Local Government Board to borrow money, and they would send down an inspector to hold an inquiry, at which objections, if there were any, would be heard.

Mr Pemberton proposed that the Clerk write to the District Council and ask them to give the Council particulars of the scheme.

Mr Wright said that he did not suppose the District Council would object to supplying particulars of the scheme, but when it was ready, but he pointed out that they were not bound to do so.

Mr Needham asked if the District Council would take any notice of such a resolution.

The Chairman: It will be an opportune time.

Mr Pemberton contended that the ratepayers had a right to knowledge of this kind before inquestion went to a Local Government Board inquiry.

Mr Lamb: We send the District Councillors to represent us.

Mr Pemberton said that it was right the ratepayers should know everything about the scheme.

Mr Wright: You will know everything.

No one would second Mr Pemberton's proposal, and Mr Wright said he would see that the interests of the parish did not suffer.

A deputation of the Council waited upon Mr Vibart Dixon, of the County Council, and asked his assistance with regard to a new scheme for the administration of the parochial charities, and correspondence between him and the Charity Commissioners was submitted. The latter stated that it was desirable the Council and Leeds should come to an agreement on the matter, and they proposed on these lines would receive their favourable consideration.

After a lengthy discussion, in which the Chairman said he would be pleased if Leeds would accept a certain sum in payment of their claim in respect of Crossgates, Mr Pemberton moved that an interview with Leeds authorities be asked to discuss the matter, and that Mr Vibart Dixon be asked to give the Council his assistance. Mr Wright seconded, and this was agreed to.

Mr Robshaw inquired if the Council could ask anyone to top trees that hung over the road.

The Chairman said that they could complain to the District Council.

Mr Robshaw then moved that the attention of the District Council be called to trees overhanging the road in Potterton Lane, Street High Street, Barwick. This was seconded, and agreed to.

Mr Pemberton said that it had been stated the Scholes town-planning scheme would be a charge on the district, and he had since seen it stated in a local paper that such a charge would fall on the parish.

Mr Wright said that he had been told the expense would fall on the rural area, and he had no other information on the matter.

A REMARKABLE TADCASTER SALE.

A SHEEP REALISES £38 4s. FOR THE BELGIAN FUND.

Mr T. Carlton, Collingham and Hazlewood, gave a sheep to be sold for the Belgian Relief Fund at the Christmas Fat Stock sale at Tadcaster on Monday. The sheep was bought and returned several times until a total of £38 4s. had been realised for the fund. The sheep was first purchased by the auctioneer, Mr R. Stephenson, for £3 3s., who again gave it, and it was resold for £1 to Mr Joseph Walker, Leeds.

It was resold again and again, the following being the purchasers: Mr E. Thomlinson, Catton, £21; Mr S. Elvidge, Headley Hall, £2; Messrs T. and W. Noble, Dun Keswick, £2 2s.; Mr S. Paige, Tadcaster, £2; Mr F. J. Stephenson, Paige, Tadcaster, £2; Mr H. Illingworth, Leeds, £3 3s.; Mr H. Thresgold, Leeds, £1; Mr G. Preston, Shadwell, £1; Mr J. Mennell, Elmet, £1; Mr H. Whiteley, Shepherdin Hall, £1; Mr R. D. Hall, Walton Lodge, £1; Mr J. H. H. Elvidge, Walton, £1; Mr H. Winterburn, Harewood, £1; Mr W. Wainwright, Sherburn-in-Elmet, £1; Mr J. T. Dearlove, Walton, £1; Mr H. Wood, Cross Roads, £1; Mr J. T. Holdsworth, Clifford Moor, £1; Mr Bromley, Steeton Hall, £1; Mr J. Allen, Tadcaster, £1; Mr Pryor, Barkwith-street, £1; Mr E. Cundall, Appleton, then gave £3 7s. for it, which made the amount realised by Messrs. Thomlinson's sale into £16. Thus the grand total was £38 4s.

The Countess of Harewood on Monday opened a sale of work in connection with the Good Shepherd Mission, Leeds, and presided over the fact that the Earl of Harewood laid the foundation stone of the buildings many years ago.

TADCASTER CHRISTMAS FAT STOCK SALE.

MESSRS THOMLINSON'S MART—PRIZE-WINNERS.

TOP PRICE £43 15s.

At Tadcaster Auction Mart on Monday Messrs Thomlinson and Son held their sale of stock specially for the Christmas market. Really choice beasts quality sold readily from 9d to 10s per stone, good beef made 9s to 9s 6d, medium quality from 8s 6d to 8s 9d per stone. Calves sold at fully 9d per lb. Mutton a dear and good trade, from 10d to 11d per lb. Bacon, pork, and store pigs a big show, making more money; pork from 8s to 8s 6d per stone, bacon pigs from 10s 6d to 7s 6d per stone; strong stores a good sell at late rates.

There were six special prizes given by Messrs Thorley or their agents (Messrs C. D. Mills, Ltd., of York), Messrs J. Hibby and Sons (per Mr F. J. Clark, their agent, of Wetherby), and Messrs Robson's Cakes (per Messrs H. Page and Co., of Tadcaster, their agents). The following gentlemen kindly acted as judges—Messrs J. T. Allan, of Wetherby (cl. 1), J. Kendall, of Poppleton; and J. W. Parsons, of Tadcaster.

Messrs Thorley and Sons' special cake prize of 2 guineas for the best fat bullock was awarded to Messrs Thomlinson and Son, of Eastfield, for a grand roan Irish bullock, five weight 17cwt, 3qrs. (made to 2d per stone), and was knocked down for £43 15s. to Mr H. Sullivan, of Tadcaster. Their special prize for the best cow was awarded to Mr E. Jackson, of Catterton, for a very choice black polled Angus heifer, five weight 14cwt, three qrs. 2d per stone, and was sold to Mr G. England, of Leeds. Messrs J. Hibby and Son's special cake prize of 2 guineas was awarded to a fine black polled bullock from Mr T. H. Watson, of How Bridge, realising £39 5s. to Mr J. W. Parsons, of Tadcaster.

The second prize of 1 guinea was awarded to a grand level-fleshed red Irish bullock, making £39 7s. 6d., to Messrs Robson's 2 lb. cake manure, kindly won by a splendid quality Irish bullock fed by Mr R Cass, of Catterton, and sold for £39 7s 6d. to Mr C. Scholefield, of Tadcaster. Messrs Thorley's 1 guinea prize for the best pen of sheep was awarded to Messrs Welburn, of Huddleston Hall, for a pen of weighty Down cross wearlings, and they were sold at 10s. 6d. each to Mr Verity, of Leeds. The show of stock was quite up to previous years, making about 12 per stone more money than any recent Christmas sale. Numbers additional to the 1,000 entered, but not for sale, were 63 fat beasts, 151 fat sheep, and 129 bacon, pork and store pigs.

A calf from Mr E. O. Simpson, of Huddleston Castle, sold for £6 17s.; one from Mr H. Horncastle, sold for £6 17s.; and two calves from Eastshaw, made £8 11s.; and two calves from Eastshaw made 9gns and 9gns. Mr R. Dutton, of Bilton, sold a choice heifer at £28 5s.; Mr E. Jackson, of Catterton, sold four grand bullocks and heifers at £34 10s., £31 10s., £32 10s., and £21 10s. at £34 10s., £31 10s., £32 10s., and £21 10s. each; Mr H. Blacker, of Healaugh, sent a good bullock, realising £33 10s.; Mr J. Dunnington, of Healaugh, sold three grand bullocks at £35 15s., £34 10s., and £32 17s 6d; Mr T. Richardson, of Healaugh, sent three very choice bullocks, a shining £43 15s 6d, £34 10s., and £33 5s.; Mr H. Grainger, of Clifford, sold two good heifers at £33 7s 6d, and £32 10s.; Mr Robt. Carr, of Wighill, sold two specially fed Irish bullocks, making £39 15s., and £33 7s 6d; from Mr J. W. Watson, of Manor Farm, Wighill, five extra choice bullocks were sold at £30 12s 6d, £29 5s., £28 15s., £27 7s 6d, and £23 15s.; Mr Geo. Winter, Palfathorpe, sold two grand heifers at £30 12s 6d and £29; Mr E. Parkinson, of Eastfield, sent a splendid quality bullock made £30 17s 6d and two nice bullocks, which made £30 17s 6d and £27 17s 6d; from Lady Hawker, of Wighill Park, £27 17s 6d; from Mr E. Parkinson, of Eastfield, a splendid quality bullock realised £30 17s 6d, and two fat heasts which realised £30 17s 6d and £28 10s.

Mr R. Steel, of Milford, had five pens of choice sheep, which made 10s. each; from Mr Jas. Bamborough, of Huddleston, to 78s. each; from Mr Welburn, to 90s. 6d. each; from Mr H. Watson, to 84s. each; from Mr Brewerton, to 85s. each; from Mr J. Wilson, to 85s. 6d. each; from Mr Ryder, to 84s. each; from Mr R. Dutton, to 73s. each; etc. Fat pigs from Mr Thackeray, made to £10; from Eavelle, to £13 2s 6d; from Mr A. Richardson, to £11; from Mr B. Blacker, to £12 15s.; from Miss Warley, to £8 2s. 6d.; from Mr Platts, to £5 5s.; from Mrs Robinson, to £6 10s.; from Mr Wagstaff, to £6 15s.; from Mr Winter, made to 8gns each; from Mr G. Scholefield, to 9gns. each; from Mr A. Shoddart, to 5gns. 6d. each; from Mr Riley-Smith, to £5 6. each; from Mr H. Dent, to 9gns. each.

MESSRS STEPHENSON'S SALE.

Messrs Stephenson and Son on Monday held their show and sale of prime fat stock for specially for Christmas at the new auction mart, Tadcaster, and had a good display, viz., 81 beasts, 151 sheep, and 195 pigs.

Messrs Robson's special for fat bullock, a piece of plate value £2 2s., was won by a great lot shown by Mr Wm. Eastfield, Tadcaster, for £37 7s 6d. The same firm's special for pen of four sheep was obtained by Mr F. Jackson, Headingley Grange, and they were bought by Mr Wm. Eastfield, Tadcaster, for 78s. each. Messrs Bibby's special, value £2 2s, for fat bullock, was won by a grand black poll shown by Mr T. B. Wilson, Sen., Rose Hedge, and bought by Mr J. W. Atkinson, Tadcaster, for £39 5s.

Other good bullocks were shown by Mr R. Cass, making £36 to Mr Sykes, Church Fenton; by Mr F. Jackson, £35 2s 6d.; by Mr Reddihough, £34 15s; by Mr J. Dayton, £37 to Mr D. Mc Mr H. Illingworth; from Mr G. P. Wright, Oglethorpe Hall, £30 12s 6d to Mr Whitehead; from Mr Wright's herd, £30 to Mr Verity; from Mr R. Drake, £23 15s and £23 15s to Mr Thrower, £23 to Mr J. Walker, £22 17s to Mr J. W. Coates; from Mr H. Elvidge, Walton, £22 10s to Mr Eastwith, £21 to Mr Tindall; from Mr G. Dunwell, Wighill, £23 15s to Mr Verity, £22 10s Mr Illingworth, £21 to Mr Whitbrick; from Mr J. Lathley, Kirkby Wharfe, £24 12s 6d to Mr Whitehead; from Mr R. Carr, Wighill, £22 17s 6d and £21 15s.; from Mr Brodesbank, Healaugh Manor, £22 10s to £21; from Mr W. Robinson, Wighill Park, £22 10s to £17 2s 6d; from Messrs Calvert, Catterton, £20 10s to £20 17s 6d; from Mr H. Watson, Newton Kyme, £19 to £20 15s.; Mr L. Sampson, Newton Kyme, £18 12s 6d to £20 7s 6d; from a grand Irish £18 12s 6d to £20 7s 6d; from a grand Irish bullock fed by Mr W. R. Weddell, Hornington Manor, made £26 10s. to Mr C. Scholefield and Mr W. Wright (York), £24 17s 6d to Mr W. W. Schofield, £24 12s 6d to Mr Wheldrick, £21 15s. to Mr Bentley (Methley), £21 to Mr C. Scholefield; six good heifers from Mr G. P. Wright, Oglethorpe Hall, made from £20 to £21 12s 6d each; from Mr R. Cass made £24 12s 6d to Mr Rockliffe; from Mr R. Horner, Colton, £23 and £21 5s.; from Mr R. Hewitt, Shibthorpe, £22 7s 6d; from Mr E. House-man, Bolton Percy, made £18 15s to £19 17s 6d each; from Mr A. Kendall, Kirkby Wharfe, £17 17s 6d; from Mr J. Slater, Tadcaster, £17 15s. Fat cows from Mr Hilditch, Colton Park, £22; from Mr G. Jenkinson, Bramham, £20 7s 6d to £22 12s 6d each.

Grand shearling sheep shown by Mr Welburn, Huddleston, made to 80s each; from Mr E. Jackson, Headingly, to 78s.; Mr R. Steel, North Milford, to 84s.; Messrs Ireland Bros., to 68s.; Mr J. Bailey, Seaton, to 55s 6d; Mr J. T. Dearlove, Walton, to 61s.; others to 50s. Prime hoggets from Mr H. Watson, Toulston, to 61s 6d. each; Mr L. Sampson, to 59s 6d.; Mr J. T. Holdsworth, Clifford Moor, to 55s 6d.; Mr J. Bailey, to 49s 6d.; Mr G. P. Wright, to 52s 6d.; Mr C. Riley, Saxton, to 53s 6d.; Mr E. Jackson, to 59s.; Mr Robinson, of 58s 6d.; etc.

Grand horse tops from Mr Brodesbank made £20 15s 6d and £21; Mr Wilkins, £21; Mr Freer, £5 14s.; Mr Welburn, £5 15s.; Mr Wotherson, £5 4s.; three porkers from Mr Wright, 60s. each; Mr Smith, 60s. 5qrs 6d.; Mr Dwaine, 85s. each; Mr Wilson, 76s. to 84s.; Mr Hills, 66s 6d to 70s.; Mr Ibbetson, 61s to 57s.; Mr Oates, 47s 6d.; Mr Masterman, 46s 6d to 48s.; Mr Freer, 66s 6d. each; Mrs Frost, 45s 6d to 48s.; Messrs Dunn and Son, 56s to 64s.; Mr Gaythorpe, 41s 6d to 66s 6d.; Mr Poole, 53s to 67s.; Mr Westerby, 60s to 69s.; Mr Hutchinson, 58s to 59s.; Mr Sutcliffe, 52s 6d to 61s.; Mr Birdsall, 57s.; Mr Sherwin, 59s to 57s 6d.; Mr Sampson, 59s to 61s 6d. Strong stores made to 53s each. Young pigs cheap, 10s 6d. to 14s. 6d. each.

RECRUITING MEETING AT MARSTON.

HOW TO STOP THE GERMANS.

A well-attended recruiting meeting was held at Long Marston, near Tadcaster, on Thursday night.

Mr A. Kay, who presided, said that the meeting had been convened so that anyone present who was desirous of doing so might have an opportunity of joining His Majesty's forces.

Sir John Grant Lawson, Bart., said they would see on the recruiting bills that the King and country were needing men.

What did "country" mean? It was not an abstract expression, for the country meant the people of the country, and it was for the people of the country and all that we held dear that we were fighting. We were waging a very serious war, and it was only by sheer good luck that we had been able to avoid disaster. Luckily for us Germany had begun the war at a time when we could depend on trusty allies in all parts of the world, but after all it was not a very bad match. There was no denying it; the Germans were fighting splendidly, and our men had fought splendidly also. Yet the Germans were fighting with a dogged courage. And there was no doubt that they would attempt an invasion of this country. There were two ways of stopping them. One was to fight them and beat them on the Continent, and the other was to beat them when they landed in this country should they ever land. Which was the best way? By fighting and winning on the Continent we should prevent the horrors of war being perpetrated in this country. And to do that we must have more men. We had 22,000,000 males in this country, and even providing half of these were too young or too old to serve, and half of the remainder were not physically fit, that left 5,500,000 men.

Of these five and a half millions only one million had come forward to serve. It was no good the young men of the country standing at home to grow wheat, for if we could not get men enough and the Germans beat us on land, then the Germans would reap what they had sown. Then, of course, they would not be hurried to the front at once, they would first of all get their training, and it behoved all these young men who had been arms to go and be trained to go so at once.

Mr J. Bamborough said the women of the country ought also to help in this matter, for it was for them to remove all obstacles they may have placed in the way of the men joining the Army. This Army offered excellent chances to recruits at the present time, for their dependents were being well cared for, and they were receiving 1s. 1d. per day, whereas the German private was receiving only about 1½d. per day. They might be sure that the time was a pressing one, and all who were eligible could do nothing else but enlist at once if they would do their duty. The more men we had the sooner would peace be secured. (Applause).

The speakers afterwards addressed a meeting at Tockwith, where Colonel Jeffreys presided. They again pleaded for recruits, and here the recruiting officer was successful in obtaining several men.

WALL PAPERS.

New Designs for Christmas.

You will find the Best Selection,
Prices the most reasonable in Leeds,
And the best attention at

COULDWELL'S

159, Briggate, LEEDS.

BROWNHILLS'

Xmas Specialities

CHOICE PLUM PUDDINGS

In Basins from 1s. upwards.

Obtainable at all Good Grocers.

Epicure Mince Meat

In 1 and 2lb. Jars.

Obtainable at all Good Grocers.

SOLE MAKERS—

R. S. Brownhill & Sons, Ltd., Leeds

Chlorodyne

Teasdale's

All Men Joining the Army SHOULD HAVE WITH THEM

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

A Safe Protector from common hazardous ailments—Choleraic Diarrhœa, Dysentery, etc.

GIVES INSTANT RELIEF; EASES PAIN. A BLESSING TO HAVE SUCH A GRAND MEDICINE. Brigadier Fortune, Royal Horse Artillery: "I thank you for the great benefit that Teasdale's Chlorodyne is not only done for myself, but also for many of my comrades to whom I have given it. It has indeed been a blessing to have such a grand medicine in my possession. I have used it in numerous cases of Dysentery, Rheumatism, Pains in the Back, Coughs, and Colds." It acted like a charm in every case."

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

THE MOST VALUABLE PRESENT YOU CAN GIVE TO A FRIEND GOING TO THE FRONT.

Can be had of Purdy, Crossgates; Rennard, Halton, and other Chemists; Goodall, Backhouse & Co., and Taylor's Drug Stores.

ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

INDIGESTION CURED.

SICKNESS AND VOMITING.

17, Shaw Lane,
Headingley, Leeds.

Dear Sir,—I feel it a duty upon me to inform you, and through you the public at large, of the WONDERFUL BENEFIT I have received from taking your Herbal Medicine. I was troubled with sickness and vomiting owing to Indigestion, and for many weeks I vomited my food back and NOTHING WOULD STAY ON MY STOMACH. I grew weaker and weaker.

I also suffered terribly from pains in my back, my tongue was dry and thickly coated, and at times was covered with a dark scum. Mentally, I got so weak that I COULD NOT WALK WITHOUT ASSISTANCE, and my friends said I was dying fast. The doctors said that no medicine in the world would do me any good, the only thing that could save my life was an operation. At that time I only weighed 5 stones and did not feel inclined to undergo the operation, owing to being so weak.

Having heard a good account of your skill I decided to give you a trial. During the first nine weeks of your treatment my weight increased from 5 stones to 7 stones, and now I have been cured several weeks I weigh just over 9 stones. The soreness and pains in the stomach, the sick feeling, and the dizziness have all left me, and I can honestly say that I NEVER FELT SO WELL OR SO STRONG IN MY LIFE. Thanking you most kind and careful attention—I am, sir, yours sincerely,

(Miss) L. TATE.

SKIN SPECIALISTS & MEDICAL HERBALISTS
PROF. CROSSWAITE
64, KIRKSTALL R.
HEADINGLEY, LEEDS

£10 REWARD.—This Reward will be paid by Mr. J. Crosswaite to the first person giving information leading to the conviction of a certain unscrupulous person at present calling upon householders in his name, and offering for sale Recipes, Medicines, Pills, Ointments, etc., falsely representing the same to have been prepared by Mr Crosswaite.

Information may be lodged at the nearest Police Station or Detective Office, Town Hall, Leeds, or Mr. J. Crosswaite, 64, Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

TADCASTER CRICKET CLUB.

FIRST ELEVEN—BATTING.

	No of Times Most in Total Inns.		not out	Inn. runs	Aver.
J. F. Mason	14	2	80*	289	24.08
J. W. Garbutt	11	1	47	205	20.50
G. Freer	11	3	79*	150	19.57
R. T. Baker	8	2	39*	118	19.66
J. A. Grimston	9	6	20*	40	10.33
H. Raper	12	4	18	83	13.13
J. T. Hobden	13	1	38	157	13.08
W. West	6	2	30*	50	12.50
H. Todd	13	0	50	153	11.76
E. W. Herbert	7	1	45*	79	11.60
R. Johnson	8	0	15	35	8.75
J. Hepworth	6	0	11	23	3.83
G. Nettleton	5	0	10	19	3.80
A. Swinden	9	0	9*	29	3.62

* Signifies Not Out.

BOWLING

	Overs	M'dns.	Runs.	Wkts.	Av.
E. W. Herbert	120	47	185	24	5.44
A. Swinden	89	25	166	30	5.53
R. T. Baker	140	53	237	39	6.07
G. Freer	24	3	88	13	6.15
G. Nettleton	31	11	48	5	9.60
F. West	74	5	268	7	9.71
H. Raper	23	3	61	5	12.20
C. Harrison	31	8	59	4	14.75

SECOND ELEVEN—BATTING.

	No of Times Most in Total Inns.		not out	Inn. runs	Aver.
J. T. Kettlewell	13	3	56*	153	15.30
E. Nettleton	8	1	26	73	10.71
A. Taylor	9	1	45	81	10.12
A. Swann	5	0	17	29	9.66
A. Aldous	14	1	19	116	8.92
H. Taylor	13	3	26*	80	8.00
H. Chatfield	10	1	18*	61	6.77
H. Brodie	12	1	18	66	6.00
A. Shearsmith	9	1	18*	46	5.77
A. Smart	11	3	12	31	3.87
R. Johnson	5	0	6	14	2.80

* Signifies, Not Out.

BOWLING

	Overs	M'dns.	Runs.	Wkts.	Av.
E. Nettleton	28	9	37	13	3.53
A. Taylor	79	21	138	32	4.31
A. Smart	76	21	188	41	4.58
A. Shearsmith	23	4	57	7	5.18
H. Chatfield	8	2	7	7	7.42
J. T. Kettlewell	51	9	104	12	8.66

DOUBLE LAUNCH—On Saturday morning Messrs Cochrane and Sons, Ltd., launched from their Selby shipyard two steel lighters, which had been built for Hull firms. The first boat was named Conan Doyle, by Mrs Pettman, of Hull, and the other was named St. Cyr by Miss Hehn, of Hull. The proceedings passed off successfully, despite a gale which prevailed.

EVERY WOMAN

Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Booklet, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means, fully Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal
— BY —
ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN

MONTBRETIAS.

As an autumn-flowering plant which may be planted amongst the mid-flower class, the Montbretia would be hard to beat, and it is a matter for regret that its cultivation is not more generally understood. Many town gardeners have planted it amongst the list of plants that are not suitable for planting in a smoky district. While admitting that its cultivation is more difficult in a town garden than in the country, it can be maintained that under careful and proper treatment it may be grown well even in the smoky atmosphere of a manufacturing district. In the first place it is essential that the transplanting should be practised. It is a semi-hardy wood plant, and is very prolific in the production of young bulbs. Under regular lifting and replanting these bulbs, and of course, the flowering will become such a tangled mass that they will be discarded and fresh bulbs may be planted in their healthy form with a fork and sort them out. The smallest bulbs may be discarded and the remainder should flower freely next year.

The largest bulbs will be found in quality, and if the natural character measures must be taken to ensure a warm, sunny position should be selected. A position inclined this pleasing plant, and it does not suit it to be in a sloping border with a bed rather than a flat bed. Some growers plant bulbs below the surface of the bed. This is not necessary, as inches of rough ashes about a foot above the soil during winter. Leaf mould, turfy loam, and sand, are added to the soil with the object in view. Flint planting is important, as the top of the bulb should be just below the surface. From four to six inches of space is a suitable distance to allow between each bulb, and when all are in an inch or two of coke dust may be spread over the bed as protection from frost. The leaves should be allowed to die down naturally.

DAHLIA TUBERS.

Occasionally, a dahlia root that has been left in the ground will live through the winter, and grow away strongly in the spring. This is apt to be misleading to the beginner, who naturally comes to the conclusion that if one tuber will live, there is no reason why all others should not. As a matter of fact dahlias are easily killed, and any that survive the winter in the open ground are great exceptions to the general rule. Any that are still in the open should be lifted without delay. They should be stored in a cool, dry, frost-proof place, and may be shed in boxes or suspended from the roof. Very small tubers may be stored in dry sand. If left unpressed they are apt to shrivel and dry up.

HARDY SHRUBS.

Evergreen and deciduous shrubs may be planted so long as the soil is in a suitable condition to receive them. Except after rain or snow will have been made it wet and heavy, it will be better to delay planting until the spring. Hybrid rhododendrons are very popular, and subjects give such a brilliant display. It is well to be remembered that rhododendrons cannot succeed on soil containing lime, whilst on the other hand they are partial to peaty soil. A strongly recommended for tending planters of these fine shrubs to purchase sufficient peat to provide a barrow-load for each shrub. If this is done the soil will be the smallest district. If peat is not available leaf mould may be substituted. It is a great mistake to be allowed a free circulation of light and air. The shrubs, whereas they will develop into shapely bushes, whereas if planted close together only a half of each shrub is visible, and the crowding of each other off.

Ground intended for this class of shrubs should be trenched as deep as the soil will allow. Poor soil should be dressed with a generous supply of rotten manure, leaf mould and fibrous loam. In the case of hollies it is a decided advantage to give each one a root ball composed of fibrous loam to one part rotten manure. The soil in each shrub should be made large enough to allow of the roots to rest in a natural position, and the soil firmly around the roots, adding a spadeful at a time. In the case of tall specimen shrubs a stout stake should be provided. Secure the shrub to this, but be careful that the ties do not avoid damaging the bark. We should like to see more deciduous flowering shrubs grown in town gardens. Weigelias in early spring, Berberis, currants, arabis mollis, and syringas, etc. If these were treated generously they would greatly improve the appearance of the town garden in spring. Established shrubs should have all dead wood cut out during the winter.

FRUIT TREES

Fruit growing is never a huge success in town gardens, but greatly improved crops could be obtained if a little more time and attention could be devoted to the requirements of the trees. In the case of small trees, lifting and replanting would do much towards increasing their crops. Rank growth is one of the main causes of failure, and this is brought about by allowing the roots of the trees to roam about at will. Wherever a tree is found making thick, long growths, it is safe to assume that the roots are not in a satisfactory condition. If the tree is lifted it will be found that instead of a mass of short, fibrous roots, only long, straight, thick roots will be found. These should be cut back to within two to four feet of their base, according to the size of the tree. Then replanted, a few spadesful of fibrous loam, leaf mould, and sand should be placed at the point where the root has been cut. New roots will quickly work their way into this, and in course of time a shorter jointed and more fruitful growth will develop. A mass of fibrous roots near the surface of the soil is the point to aim at, and with the object of encouraging surface rooting the annual mulching with loam, manure, and leaf mould should not be forgotten.

Bush fruits, such as currants and gooseberries, derive great benefit from an annual mulch of manure.

TIME FOR PLANTING.

Planting of fruit trees can be done in autumn or spring. Autumn planting admits of the trees becoming well established before winter, and so of their making a much earlier start in spring and also of their being in better shape to withstand the droughts of the following summer. There is also more time for planting properly in autumn, and the weather is usually more settled. Proper ripening of the wood before planting is of great importance; and the young growth is strong and short-jointed, and of a brown appearance when properly matured.

DISTANCES APART FOR PLANTING

In general, fruit trees are planted too thickly, rather than not closely enough; and the largest crops are secured when each tree is allowed full space for perfect development. Naturally, trees that are kept headed in require less space than such as are grown in the natural form. The following are the best distances for trees allowed to spread naturally.

Standard apples 40 feet.
Standard pears 25 feet.
Standard plums 20 feet.
Standard cherries 20 to 25 feet.
Dwarf apples and pears 10 to 15 feet.
Bush fruits 4 by 7 feet.
Currants 5 by 6 feet.
Gooseberries 4 by 6 feet.
Raspberries 3 by 6 feet.

Pruning and spraying are most easily and effectively done when plenty of space is left between the trees.

VEGETABLE GARDEN

Growing crops such as savoys, brussels sprouts, and cabbage, should be kept under observation at the time of the year. They require all available light and air, and on no account should dead or decaying leaves be allowed to remain near them. Go over them once a week and remove all yellow leaves, and if the surface soil shows signs of becoming waterlogged or sad give it a thorough stirring with the fork.

As the ground becomes vacant the annual trenching or digging may be proceeded with. Deep digging will always repay for the extra labour incurred. Leave the surface rough and uneven.

IN THE GREENHOUSE

December is an anxious time for the gardener who grows a quantity of soft-wooded plants, such as cyclamen, primulas, cinerarias, etc. An excessive moisture will usually bring on an epidemic of decaying foliage, whilst an unhealthy atmosphere is a direct encouragement to the increase of greenfly. It is important that the roof glass should be kept scrupulously clean. After each spell of fog give a wash down to the roof glass. Ventilate on all favourable occasions, but take care in giving water. There is no doubt about a plant needing water, if it until next day.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

mps of lily of the valley may now ceiving purposes. They should be Strong ch to bring forward in the surface of the soil for allowed to remain, being removed to the forcing a few days before thorough freezing they will house. If they get a A propagating frame fierce bustler afterwards, ble place to stand them in the bottom is a suita er the frame with a after they are housed. Co we will moist. They sheet of canvas, and keep th ings. Retarded will flower in about 3 weeks. Put ers can be brought on soon as they them up and place them in heat as almost total come to hand. They must be kept in a darkness until the buds commence to well. temperature of 65 to 70 will force them v

CORRESPONDENCE

SEWERAGE AND WATER SCHEMES AT CHURCH FENTON

To the Editor.

Sir,—In your issue of the 4th inst. I noticed a communication headed "Water and sewage in Church Fenton." Whether this letter refers to one particular village or the whole district of Barkston Ash passes my comprehension. However, there is an old saying that "If the cap fits wear it," and I have been a resident thirty years in one village where this cap seems to fit very well. Of course, not being born in the village I am still considered, like your correspondent, a "furriner."

"Up-to-Date" admits having only recently come to this salubrious place, and I have to take my tip I think he has been in a fit better than I am assuming it is a "he."

Now, sir, in this place we have about 150 houses, and we get to these houses we should have something like seven miles of road to scour for drainage-pipe laying, for water, and lighting. And this, in my estimation, would bring our rates up to about nine shillings in the pound, which, I consider, would make "Up-to-Date" a resident recently arrived from the country.

Now, in my opinion, it is almost impossible, under present conditions, to carry out a lot of elaborate schemes. If every landlord and householder would only do their duty we should have no need for them. In place of the present cesspool, which is not half the size of a good bucket and think they should supply a whole town. I admit we have plenty of room for improvement, which ought to be done, and insisted on being done by the authorities in power.

Plans for all erections ought to be submitted by all places under the District Council. Small places are exempt, others are not, which bodes to my ridiculous.

"Up-to-Date" seems to harp on the accident in Station Road. I may tell him my opinion, differ widely regarding that. In conclusion, be ly wish to his myself behind the door, out openly, which I trust "Up-to-Date" —Yours, etc.,

A. DEIGHTON.

Church Fenton.

THE QUE... EN'S "WORK FOR WOMEN" FUND.

To the Editor.

On behalf of the Queen's "Work" make an appeal through the per to the women of the ...ughout the country, asking each one of them who can afford to, to contribute a shilling ...g to the Fund.

...s have been started in ...try, and in London alone ...s now available for ...ployed women and ...work and training ...spread already, to ...over £250,000. ...donations sent in ...s to announce ...e Queen's Fund ...irectly helping ...t to whom the ...end to make ...are starving ...reat New ...her sis- ...sible to ...st and, ...more,

Yours, etc.,

WALTER THOMPSON.

Highfield Villa, New Mansion, Cressgates, December 7th, 1914.

BIG TREE FELLED IN THE GALE.—During last week-end one of the biggest trees on the Gledhow Hall Estate, Roundhay, fell with a terrific crash across Gledhow Lane, completely blocking the road to all traffic. The tree was a well-known landmark in the district, being 80 feet in height, and 11 feet in girth; with several branches measuring 3 or 6 feet circumference.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Herts County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry."

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 17.

It hardly wants a fortnight to Christmas Day, and any of my readers having a bird or two that they wish to prepare for home consumption, should lose no time in putting them up to fatten. For a couple of birds a very good fattening cage may be made out of a Tate's sugar box. First remove the top and one side. Battens 1 in. square should then be fixed longitudinally on the side, and at a distance of about 1½ in. apart. This now forms the floor of the cage. The bird stood upon four bricks or wooden legs the bird's excreta falls through the bars to the ground below. The front (previously the top) of the box should have strips of wood, about ½ in. wide, nailed horizontally, and about 2 in. apart, and one of these should be made to slide in and out. A V-shaped trough hung along the front completes the cage. For preference, the coop should be placed in a shed, or if this cannot be managed, then in some sheltered position, and again that floor is good, although your correspondent, Mr. Dupree, tries to make it all that floor is a need. I also fail to see how this is going to destroy "the small birds." It is going to destroy "the small birds" in the nation if this trade could be destroyed, because of the thousands of lives that are ruined by it every year, and the crime of the many drunkards, and the great amount of misery caused by it.

Mr Lloyd George is going to get more out of it than your correspondent gives him credit for. This year he will get £50,000, but next year he will get £17,500,000. I am taking these figures from the Chancellor's speech. The extra 1d. per gallon will be going to the end of 1915, for the war will not be over by then, and those who like their pull-pint or beer will pay for it.

Most of us have felt startled at the War Fund of £10,000,000 registered in the present crisis; but we must remember that this sum, vast as it is, represents only the drink bill of the United Kingdom for seven months, and that the annual drink bill of the United Kingdom would run into £300,000,000 and a half every week?

As very few people can think in millions, much less in hundreds of millions, it may be well to try and realise what £300,000,000 means for a week. This yearly bill, which is over £ 10 million shorts of flour at 25 per st. 1,000,000
8 million st. of meal at 25 per st. 1,000,000
8 million sts. sugar at 25 per st. 1,000,000
10 million lbs. of tea at 1s per lb. 1,000,000
200 million eggs at 1s. per doz. 1,000,000
60 million quarts of milk at 3d. per qt. 1,000,000
200,000 tons of coal at 25s. per ton 1,000,000
1,000,000 suits of clothes at £3 each 3,000,000
1,000,000 prs. of blankets at 10s per pr. 500,000
1,000,000 prs. of shoes at 10s per pr. 500,000
£12,000,000

After these purchases were made there would be over one million widows and orphans.

It is easy to prove that drink is not only needless, but injurious to our soldiers from the aspersed testimony of all has ever seen. The great soldiers the world has ever produced have declared that drink was injurious to the army. The Duke of Wellington, the greatest soldier of all times in the world, was satisfied that British Army. Sir Evan Lord Roberts, in the Boer War those were the throughout the Empire, and sailors who did not touch intoxicating drink. "General Havelock narrates two instances in which a regiment of Scotch Highlanders and the British Army. Lord revoked the forbidden drink in 1894. "There are still great enemies to be encountered in the United Kingdom, but the most pressing is drink. It kills more than all the other horrors of warfare, more than all the sword, and famine, and pestilence. It not only destroys the body, but the mind, and soul also." General Stonewall Jackson said, "I never use it; I am more afraid of it than of the Yankee bullets." The long marches and severe campaigns of the British troops in the Soudan have proved that total abstinence alone will enable soldiers to endure the hardships of both climate and warfare. Sir Garnet Wolseley allowed his men to drink whisky. Lord Kitchener allowed his men to drink whisky. Lord Kitchener allowed his men to drink whisky. Lord Kitchener

A Woodlesford Soldier's Letter

HAD NOT HEARD OF HIS BROTHER'S DEATH.

"NO NEED TO FEAR THE KAISER."

Writing to his sister, Mrs W. Hunks, Royds Lane, Rothwell, Gunner George William Nicholson, who is serving in the F. Battery of the Royal Horse Artillery with the Expeditionary Force in France, has a very cheerful outlook for the future—bidding his sister to "keep smiling as we are still winning." Gunner Nicholson comes from a well-known Woodlesford family, who are referred to in a letter in our correspondence columns, and which also reports the death of one of the family, Colin, who was killed in action.

In the letter William alludes to his brother Colin as follows:—"I wrote to Colin a while back but have had no reply; but it may be as you say, that he may be a prisoner of war and cannot write. Far better it be like that than have gone altogether. There are a tremendous lot of their fellows among the missing, but if one trusts in God with a good spirit, I am sure that they will live to see the end. Anyhow you must not sit and brood over him, but trust and pray to providence, and everything will be all right in the end. I, myself, have been in some very warm places which I would not care to mention to you, but I have always kept up my spirits and fought with a good heart.

"This is a great war, and a great many Powers are involved in it, but the only thing that will stop it is the Almighty Power and nothing else. I don't think that people in England have any need to fear the Kaiser and his army getting to England or even to Calais. The end is not far off, and the worst is over.

"We have been engaged in this big battle, of which you will have lately read so much in the papers. We were at it fourteen days. We have just about got the upper hand of them now, and he (the Kaiser) is a beaten man any time. At present we are having a rest, and I can assure you that it is a well-earned one too, and one that we appreciate. We got rigged out with new cloth's, and everything that we wanted. I got a pair of new boots, and didn't my feet smell when I took the old ones off—the first time for nearly eight weeks. I shall not give them a chance to swell any more as I shall not take them off again yet awhile.

"We have had some snow and plenty of rain and strong winds. The weather is very cold. The roads are very muddy, which makes it bad for transport purposes. We had a surprise on December 1st. The King and the Prince of Wales came to have a look at us. Well Xmas will soon be here, but I don't expect we shall get home to dinner."

WHITKIRK VOLUNTARY AID DETACHMENT.

AUXILIARY HOSPITAL AT HALTON.

Halton Parochial Hall, which is the property of the church folks of the ancient parish of Whitkirk, has been transformed into an auxiliary hospital, and being excellently fighted and equipped, it forms a splendid ward.

In an interview with Mrs McLintock, of The Hollins, Whitkirk, who is Commandant pro tem., she said to one of our representatives that the origin of the Detachment was well-known, a fully-representative meeting having been held at the Whitkirk Auction Mart some two years ago. Since that time the Detachment had been instructed by Dr Haygarth, of Crossgates, and Dr Ashmore, of Halton, and had worked at the Leeds Dispensary and the Leeds Workhouse Infirmary (Beckett Street).

When asked as to how the necessary funds had been obtained, the Commandant said that the Detachment had been practically self-supporting through the kindness of the district, and that no grant beyond that given from the bazaar held at Monk Fryston last year, had been necessary.

"When the present war broke out, the members of Voluntary Aid Detachments were informed that it was well understood that they should be prepared to do their duty and remain in readiness. After this notice, the Whitkirk Detachment was brought together. Certain enquiries as to ability and equipment were asked, and it was decided that in consequence of the efficient staff at command, it was advisable to run an auxiliary hospital in the district. Enquiries were accordingly made, and the Parochial Hall at Halton was kindly lent by the Vicar and officers of the Whitkirk Church for the period of the war.

"It was found that the Hall would conveniently accommodate 20 beds, and with the help of the staff and others in the district, the beds and all equipment necessary for this number were obtained. Nurse Harrop, of Halton, was asked to undertake and accepted the duties of Sister of the hospital. Dr Haygarth kindly volunteered his services as medical officer. Orderlies have been arranged for day and night duty.

"In due course the hospital was fully prepared, inspected, and passed by the military authority, and on Thursday, the 3rd inst., the premises were further visited by Mrs Gascoigne (Vice-President of the St. John Ambulance Association), General Mends (the county director), Colonel Husband, and Captain Boyd-Carpenter. They were met by the Sister, quartermaster (Mrs Dockray), myself, nurses and staff, and, after viewing the premises, General Mends, in a few remarks, expressed a full appreciation of the work that had been done, and that he was highly pleased with the hospital. He impressed upon us the necessity of not being impatient, and told us to go on as we are, and shortly he would be communicating with us.

"I am well aware that there are a number of people in the district who are waiting to help this cause, and I trust that all of them will keep a warm corner in their hearts for this work, and not allow their interest to abate because we have not been immediately called upon. Unfortunately, there may yet be much room for the auxiliaries to avail themselves of all our assistance as the war is still being vigorously carried on.

"I should, finally, like you to insert a few words expressing my grateful thanks and appreciation of the very efficient way the nurses and staff assisted on the visit of General Mends."

Every care has been exercised to see that the hospital is thoroughly equipped. In the kitchen all necessary cooking utensils have been obtained, and a gas cooker has been installed, while at the end of the building a stone-room has been erected at the expense of the Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P. In the hospital, which is airy and commodious, the beds are conveniently arranged and there is an ample supply of bedclothes, etc. A first-aid cabinet is a gift by Mrs Gascoigne, of Lotherton Hall, to the hospital, and Lady Dorothy Wood has presented a Red Cross flag. One of the ante-rooms has been converted into a day room, and the stage will be utilized as a nurses' room. The members of the Detachment have worked hard to equip the hospital, and they deserve all praise and encouragement for what they have already done.

Carlton Cricket Club.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Carlton Cricket Club was held at the Queen's Hotel, Carlton, on Saturday night—Mr J. Dobson (President of the Club) being in the chair. There was a good attendance of members and friends.

In the annual report, the secretary (Mr E. Fozzard) stated that for practically twenty-one years the players and members of the Carlton Cricket Club had been trying to attain a name at the head of a League, or to secure the much coveted prize in the cricket circles of and around Wakefield. During the past season they had for the first time in the history of the club attained one of the three objects by winning the Rothwell and District League, and he thought they had been the best and most consistent team in the League.

The first team had played eighteen matches, won 13, lost 3, and 2 were drawn. The total runs scored was 1,072 for a loss of 131 wickets—an average of 13.04 runs per wicket, while their opponents scored 1,600 runs for a loss of 166 wickets—an average of 9.7 runs per wicket. Three players—E. Fozzard, L. Brown, and W. Newton—had an average of over 23 runs per innings. The success of the season had been due to the vast improvement in the batting department. L. Brown made the highest total of runs, scoring 316 for thirteen completed innings, which was a very good performance. Great credit was also due to the bowlers. A. Sykes had taken 52 wickets at an average cost of seven runs, W. Brown took 20 at the cost of eight runs per wicket, and J. Illingworth captured 49 wickets at an average cost of nine runs. The three had between them taken 121 wickets at an average cost of 8.8 runs per wicket, a feat which he (the secretary) did not think had been exceeded by any other three bowlers among the teams in the district. He also mentioned the loss to the team of the captain, who has retired from cricket. Although he could not congratulate the second eleven as he had done the first team, he was pleased that there had been a general improvement. They played seventeen matches, of which ten were won, six lost, and one drawn. The total runs scored was 1,370 for a loss of 140 wickets—an average of 9.7 runs per wicket. Opponents scored 1,262 runs for the loss of 162 wickets—an average of 7.8. On two occasions the team lost by the narrow margin of two runs each—both defeats being against Kippax at Kippax, and Outwood at Carlton. The team also lost at Outwood with ten men by 16 runs, and he felt sure that if they had had a full team there would have been two sets of medals at Carlton.

R. Ellis headed the batting list with an average of 17.1. E. Sefton, who headed the bowling, took twenty wickets at a cost of four runs per wicket. Mr J. Ashton, who has played practically since the formation of the club, captured 43 wickets at a cost of 7 runs per wicket, while he obtained an average score of 12.4 runs per innings. In conclusion he asked members to spend the club's money as sparingly as possible owing to the great crisis through which they were passing.

Mr J. Dobson was re-elected president, and the following vice-presidents, Messrs W. Scholey, Muirland, Stephens, and C. E. Charlesworth, were elected.

GARFORTH BELGIAN RELIEF COMMITTEE

Sir,—I am desired, on behalf of the above Committee, to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of the under-mentioned amounts:—

	£	s.	d.
Mrs Sissons	1	0	0
Mr J. Wordsworth	1	0	0
Rev. T. E. R. Wilford	1	0	0
Rev. J. W. Mawer	1	0	0
Mr. H. W. Powell	1	0	0
The Garforth Golf Club, per Mr H. Sandy	5	0	0
Mr J. B. Marshall	2	0	0
Mr G. B. Marshall	1	0	0
Mr J. Clarkson	1	0	0
Mr W. Simpson	1	0	0
Mr J. Cauldwell	1	1	0
Mr R. Routledge, jun.	1	0	0
Underground and screen workmen and boys of the Isabella and Sisters' Pits (1st con.)	6	16	0
Ditto (2nd contribution)	6	17	0
Messrs J. Watson and Son, Ltd.	1	1	0
Mr J. Botford	1	0	0
Mrs Wade	1	0	0
Mr Gascoigne	5	0	0
Garforth Picture House Co., Ltd (proceeds of benefit, on the 27th October, 1914)	7	12	0
Mrs Ash	0	3	0
Mr H. F. Harrison	0	5	0
Mr Rendall Jackson	0	10	0
Mr J. W. Dobson	0	10	0
Mr J. Kirk	0	10	0
Collected by Mrs Stott and Mrs Rex (3 contributions)	0	6	0
Rev. E. Rees	0	5	0
Mrs Toss	0	10	0
Miss G. Barber	0	10	0
Mr H. Gummerson	0	2	6
Mr J. Addison Barber	4	0	0
Garforth Working Men's Club (proceeds of whist drive)	0	16	0
Mr T. A. Watson	1	0	0
Salvation Army collection	0	4	0
Mr Herbert Smith	1	0	0
Mr W. Dibb (proceeds of lantern lecture on 26th Nov. 1914)	4	5	0
Miss Goulden (proceeds of concert held 30th Nov. 1914)	2	2	0
Weekly collections by Miss Bedford, Mrs Tillotson, Mrs Sandy, Miss Derby, Miss Howe, Mrs Wilkinson, Mrs Laycock, Mrs Chadwick, Mrs Stott, Mrs Tate, and Miss Bartle, from the 27th October to the 6th December, 1914	38	14	9½
Collection from the Elementary School rooms, Garforth during the month of Oct.	1	11	10
	£101	13	2½

It is intended later, when our Belgian guests return to their native land, to publish details showing how the weekly collections are arrived at, and also details of the expenditure.

The generous response on the part of the inhabitants of Garforth and district has been very gratifying, and, needless to say, has been of great encouragement to the committee.—Yours, etc.,

H. W. Powell,
Honorary Secretary and Treasurer

9th December, 1914.

Mrs. R. Broughton, of Bardsey, has contributed 10s. 6d. to the funds of Leeds Infirmary.

During the gale on Friday a telegraph pole at Harewood was completely smashed, and all the wires from Leeds in that direction were broken.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.

96, ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street), Leeds.

DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1. Saturday Evenings, 6.30 to 8.

3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.

3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.

Prospectus on Application. Jno. Exley, President.

Tel. No. 253. Wm. Maude, Manager & Secretary.

GARFORTH'S ROLL OF HONOUR.

MEN WHO HAVE RESPONDED TO THE CALL.

The following is a list of the names of the Garforth men who have so nobly responded to the call of King and country:—

Officers.

Dobson, Reginald Graham, second lieutenant, 6th Batt. W. Y. Reg.; and Thompson, Benjamin Cyril, lieutenant, Royal Garrison Artillery.

Non-Commissioned Officers.

Johnson, George, company sergeant-major, and Scots Guards; Hall, George William, sergeant, 3rd W. Y.; Smithson, Henry, sergeant, R.A.M.C.; Bedell, Ernest, corporal, 5th W.Y.; Denby, Charles Percy, corporal, Pals Battalion, W.Y.R.; Wilson, Rowland, corporal, 6th Dragoon Guards; Wordsworth, John, corporal, R.A.M.C.; Cockram, William, lance-corporal, 1st W.Y.; Hebdon, Bertrude, lance-corporal, 8th W.Y.; and Wooler, Reginald, lance-corporal, Royal Engineers.

Men of all Ranks.

Atliffe, Harold, R.A.M.C.; and Amos, Henry Turner, K.O.Y.L.I.

Backhouse, Harry, Scots' Guards; Backhouse, Harold, R.F.A.; Backhouse, Percy, R.F.A.; Bell, John, R.F.A.; Berrington, Thomas B., Yorkshire Hussars; Bilton, Cephus, and W.Y.; Birch, George, and W.Y.; Birch, Tom, R.F.A.; Booth, Ernest, York and Lancaster Regt.; Bowers, Arthur, R.F.A.; Brayshaw, John, R.F.A.; Breckon, William, 5th W.Y.; Brvckon, Robert, K.O.Y.L.I.; Brook, George, 6th Duke of Wellington's; Brook, William Thomas, 2nd Dragoon Guards (Queen's Bays); Brownridge, Rowland, King's Liverpool Regt.; and Burnley, Herbert, Leeds Pals W.Y.R.

Capper, Arthur, Royal Marines; Catley, Harry, Royal Marines; Charlwick, Jno. Wm., R.A.M.C.; Cheetham, William, R.A.S.C; Cockram, Horace, R.A.M.C.; and Corner, John, R.F.A.

Dacre, George, 8th W.Y.; Dibb, Hubert, R.A.S.C.; Dickenson, Albert, R.A.M.C.; Dickenson, Lincoln, 2nd Scots Guards; Dobson, George Henry, Royal Marines; Dobson, John, 5th W.Y.; and Drury, Albert, R.F.A.

Edwards, Thomas, North Staffordshire.

Foxcroft, Arthur, 8th W.Y.; Fordham, George B., Yorks. Mounted Field Ambulances; Fryer, Henry, R.A.M.C.; and Fryer, Sidney, R.A.M.C.

Garlick, Sidney, 9th W.Y.; Gaunt, George Wilfred; Gilligham, Matthew, K.O.Y.L.I.; Ger, Joseph, K.O.Y.L.I.; Gent, Frederick, R.F.A.; Goddard, Walter, R.A.M.C.; Godfree, Arthur, K.O.Y.L.I.; Goodall, Joseph Edward, Royal Engineers; Goodall, Rodger, R.A.S.C.; Goulding, William, Royal Marines; and Gunton, Hodd, R.A.S.C.

Hamilton, William, Royal Garrison Artillery; Hartley, Fred, Francis, Duke of Wellington's; Hartley, Charles, Duke of Wellington's; Hebden, Amos, R.A.M.C.; Hebdon, Edwin, K.O.Y.L.I.; Hemsworth, Jno. Wm., R.A.M.C.; Herrington, Albert, R.A.M.C.; Hill, Irwin, Royal Marines; Holden, Leonard, R.F.A.; Horner, Albert, 18th Queen Mary's Own; Horner, Walter, 18th Queen Mary's Own; Howson, Albert, K.O.Y.L.I.; Howson, Herbert, 1st W.Y.; Howson, Thomas, K.O.Y.L.I.; Howson, William, K.O.Y.L.I.; and Hudson, Ernest, 15th Hussars.

Isherwood, William Edward, 9th Duke of Wellington.

Johnson, Jack, 5th Notts and Derbyshire Regt.; Johnson, John William, 8th W.Y.; and Jubb, John Bean, 1st Bantams' Batt., Birkenhead.

Kitchen, Albert, R.F.A.

Levitt, Percy, K.O.Y.L.I.; and Lovatt, Geo. H., King's Royal Rifles.

Mallein, Fred., 10th W.Y.; Maskill, Harry, Durham Light Infantry; Maskill, Thomas, 8th W.Y.; and Middleton, John, 8th W.Y.

Nicholson, Walter, R.A.M.C.

Parry, Richard, R.F.A.; Pease, Harry, 5th W.Y.; and Peirce, James, R.F.A.

Quigley, James, K.O.Y.L.I.; and Quigley, Thomas, Durham Light Infantry.

Rex, Ernest, K.O.Y.L.I.; Rex, Cyril, Royal Marines; Rex, Grainger, 8th W.Y.; Rowley, Arthur, R.F.A.

Samson, Reginald, R.F.A.; Scargill, John Thomas, R.A.M.C.; Scarr, Frederick, Royal Engineers; Scarfet, Sidney, R.F.A.; Sharpe, Harry, K.O.Y.L.I.; Simpson, Albert, R.F.A.; Simpson, Charles, Coldstream Guards (killed); Simpson, Thomas William, 1st Dragoon Guards; Slater, Claude Willey, Yorkshire Hussars; Smith, Herbert V., R.A.M.C.; and Stubbs, Cyril, 10th W.Y.

Tillotson, William, Green Howards; Turner, Charles, R.A.M.C.; Turner, Walter, R.A.M.C.; Thompson, Edgar, and W.Y.; and Thompson, Samuel, R.A.M.C.

Walker, Robert, 8th W.Y.; Wall, Clifford, K.O.Y.L.I.; Wall, Edward, York and Lancaster Regt.; Wall, William Hy., K.O.Y.L.I.; Webster, Joseph, K.O.Y.L.I.; Wilson, Fred. Wm., 10th W.Y.; Winter, George, K.O.Y.L.I.; and Woods, Walter, 7th Suffolk Regt.

Vaughan, Arthur, R.A.M.C.

Worsnald, Edwin, "Natal"; Worsnald, Hubert, H.M.S. "Minotaur."

The Garforth branch of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association have compiled the above list as accurately as possible from the information available. They are anxious to make it as correct and complete as possible, not only to serve its present purpose, but as a record for all time in the annals of the parish. Names of men who have not already joined, but intend doing so, will be added from time to time as they join their respective units.

Any corrections to the above list, or further information with a view of perfecting the same will be gladly received and acknowledged.

It is intended to publish next week a list of all men who have worked at the Garforth Collieries who have joined His Majesty's Forces, but who do not reside in Garforth.

Wm. Geo. Bosher, Hon. Sec.

HUNTING APPOINTMENTS.

BRAMHAM MOOR.

Friday	Dec. 11—11.0	Wighill Village
Saturday	Dec. 12—11.0	Stutton Mill.
Monday	Dec. 14—11.0	Bookwithshaw.
Wednesday	Dec. 16—11.0	Bardsey
Friday	Dec. 18—11.0	Bickerton Bar
Saturday	Dec. 19—11.0	Biggin.

SHERBURN PETTY SESSIONS.

Yesterday at Sherburn Petty Sessions the magistrates present were the Rev. B. Hemsworth (Chairman), Mr Walter Crosland, and Mr Wm. Crosland.

Father Bray applied for a stage play licence for the 19th December for Barkston School, and it was granted.

Mr F. Grason, Junction Hotel, Church Fenton, applied for one hour's extension on the occasion of the railway supper on the 26th inst., and it was granted.

Michael Battle, labourer, Sherburn, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 28th ult at Sherburn. P.C. Wildblood proved the case, and defendant was fined 5s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

James Roberts, labourer, South Milford, was charged with using obscene language on the 22nd ult in Low Street, South Milford. P.C. Holliday stated he heard the defendant use the language complained of in a house where the door was open. Fined 2s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. costs.

Mrs Worsman, of the Home Farm, Harewood, was the judge for butter and eggs at Leeds Smithfield Show.

Mr L. Paget, formerly of Harewood, was one of the principal prize-winners in the pig classes at Leeds Smithfield Show.

Mrs Fielden, of Grimston Park, has been elected a vice-president of the York branch of the N.S.P.C.C., and Mrs G. A. Bromet, of Tadcaster, has been appointed a member of the Executive Committee.

Proposed Civilian Corps—Mr William Liversidge has added to his many benefactions to his native town of Selby an offer of £50 towards the cost of the formation of a Selby Civilian Corps. Selby has contributed notably to the Defence Forces.

Theft of Boots.—On Wednesday at Selby George Crawford, labourer, of no fixed abode, was committed to prison for 14 days for stealing a pair of boots, value 12s. 6d., from the shop front of Messrs Sterling, Ltd., Selby. Prisoner was arrested at Leeds, where he had pawned the boots.

At a meeting of the West Riding Centre of the N.C.U. in Leeds on Wednesday night it was reported that improvements had been made in a dangerous corner at the cross roads at Monk Fryston, and a vote of thanks was passed to the Rev. B. Hemsworth for this and other improvements in the neighbourhood.

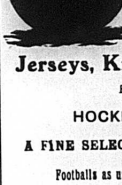
Tadcaster Petty Sessions.—The magistrates at this Court on Monday were Ald. E. C. Brookebank, J.P. (Chairman), Mr E. M. Lawson Smith, and Mr J. H. Ingleby. Lawrence Thompson, chauffeur, of Wakefield, failed to appear in answer to a charge of not having the rear identification plate on a motor-car illuminated in High Street, Tadcaster, on November 22nd, P.C. Kitwood gave evidence, and a fine of 2s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. costs was imposed.

Billiards.—On Friday evening Monk Fryston Institute had a match with Fairburn Institute at Monk Fryston. The teams had met on the previous evening at Fairburn, and the latter were winners, but at Monk Fryston the home-sters turned the tables in easy fashion, beating their opponents by 237 points. Monk Fryston scored 599 and Fairburn 362. The scores were as follows (Monk Fryston names first):—H. Lupton 99 v Rev. J. Thomas 100, H. Furniss 100 v H. Enderby 32, J. Stockdale 100 v E. Sutcliffe 81, H. Laycock 100 v F. Sutcliffe 78, W. Berry 100 v. T. Sutcliffe 47, and C. Hill 100 v. A. Stephenson 24.

Obituary.—The funeral took place at Monk Fryston Cemetery on Thursday last of Mr Fawcett Jennings, aged 77, who died at Monk Fryston at the home of his daughter, Mrs Atkin, after a short illness. Deceased was formerly bold gamekeeper to the late Sir John Ramsden, Byram Hall. Later he held the licence of the Fox Inn, Brotherton, and the Blue Bell Inn, Monk Fryston. Subsequently he went to live near Tadcaster. He returned to Monk Fryston, and had been only six weeks there before his death. The Rev. W. M. C. Clarke was the officiating clergyman. There was a good number of relatives and friends at the funeral.

Lord Hawke and Cricket.—Lord Hawke, President of the M.C.C., writes:—It does not seem to be appreciated that, prior to the agitation about football becoming widespread, the Committee of the M.C.C., by announcing, on November 10th, that the meeting of County Secretaries was postponed since die, suspended the County Championship and representative cricket matches until after the conclusion of the war. The action was patriotically justified, but it has not become so widely known as it should, owing to the meaning of the word "diminish" not being understood. Hence my venturing to reiterate the fact in pliiner terms.

Rector of Adel and the Brontës.—The Rector of Adel (the Rev. W. H. Draper) delivered a lecture on Thursday at Keighley on "Poetry and Life in Haworth th'arsonage Seventy Years Ago." Speaking of the wide-spread interest in the Bronte family, Mr Draper asked: What is the secret of that widespread and long-continued interest which the English-speaking world—and more than that world—takes in the lives of those three young girls, daughters of a poor, obscure, and out-of-the-way clergyman, making little or no mark upon the public attention of the world, and dying almost as soon as they had fairly come to be known? The amount that had been written about the Brontes, and the enthusiastic language of many of their admirers had inevitably created a certain amount of reaction. But, even allowing for that, the world to-day was as ready as ever it was to be interested in any new shade of knowledge that could be picked up about them. The secret of this wide and continued interest in the Brontes was largely the impression that, at the Haworth Parsonage when the Brontes lived their life, and poetry were hand in hand life (well was poetry—not seldom, indeed, tragedy—and poetry was life. Taking the life of the family altogether, one must see that there were the elements of poetry and difficulty round about them from the first. He touched on the differing qualities of the sisters, admitting that Emily was far the greater of the three in the realm of verse.



Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the Huddersfield: " 1809. Admiralty.

William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.

— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
AUTUMN FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

HARRY HAYLEY,
Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,
12, King Edward St., LEEDS
Telephone 56,
Has Now in Stock a Large Assortment of
Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,
ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.
HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.
A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.
Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.
FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.
STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.
BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten.
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW OFFERING
THE BEST VALUE IN YORKSHIRE
— IN —
BOOTS & SHOES for Present Wear.
We are SPECIALISTS IN "FOOTWEAR for the COUNTRY."
Large Variety of Leggings, Gaiters, Slippers, & Dress Shoes.
FARMERS' BOOTS. NAVVIES' BOOTS. PIT BOOTS.
BOOTS THAT WILL TURN THE WET
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared.
The Value for Money Boot Stores,
BRAITHWAITE'S,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

The Schools.—The schools in the Sherburn district registered a percentage of attendance of 88.79 last month as compared with 92.18 in November last year. The Endowed School for boys had the highest figures, being 94.49 against 97.39 last year. At the Council School (girls' department) the percentage reached was 93.83 as against 92.67, and at the infants' school the figures were 83.51 against 90.82.

YOUR WEDDING
Should BE NICE whether it is Morning or Gaslight. We are the masters of it and the most thought of in the City. Ask about us; get our charges. BUDGEON, Chapel Lane (top of Cookridge Street). Tele. 1077 Central.
"WE NEVER SLEEP."

Printed and Published by Arthur Knox Rhodes, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier and Times" IS THE Only Weekly Newspaper PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 102—NEW SERIES. [Registered at the G.P.O.] SATURDAY, DECEMBER 19 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited), THE BREWERY, LEEDS

NOW READY IN BOTTLE.

East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.

Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles

Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.

In addition to the above Prices, WAR TAX 6d. per doz. on Small Bottles, and 1/- per doz. on Large Bottles will be charged. Delivered Free to Families within 20 miles of Leeds

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT, AT 6.30 AND AT 9.

Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 21st, 1914.

Special Performance at 7 o'clock Christmas Night.

Messrs Gilbert & Watson Present a Great Land and Water Revue, "MISS PARIS IN LONDON." Seven Magnificent Scenes. Beautiful Bathing and Diving Girls. Full London Beauty Chorus. A Great Water Production.

Latest War News and War Films.

LEE & KINGSTON.
ARTHUR WOODVILLE.
CHRISTIE DUO.
Comedy Dancing Eccentrics.

Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.,

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9. NEXT WEEK.

Xmas Day: Two Performances at 6.15 p.m. and 8.15 p.m.

George Carney's Co., including Sam Harris, in "THE FIGHT-PRIZER."

HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
KATIE BUTLER.
WIN AND WINDLE.
JAFFA.
WARSAW BROS.
SENHOR JOSE DE MORAES.
HARRY MARVELLO.

Matinee, Boxing Day, Saturday, December 26th, at 2.30. Doors open at 2.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

THEATRE ROYAL, LEEDS.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, at 7 p.m.

FRANCIS LAIDLER'S Sixth Leeds Pantomime

"CINDERELLA."

FRED KITCHEN as "Peter the Page."

REDUCED PRICES THIS SEASON.

Seats now booking. Telephone 1360 and 3140.

Orchestra Stalls and Dress Circle 2s. 6d.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY MATINEES.

Saturday, December 26th, Monday, December 28th, Tuesday, December 29th, Friday, January 1st, Saturday, January 2nd.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS

WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.

Special Suits From 30/-

NO FIT. NO PAY.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY.
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Gasfitting and Gasfitting.

James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.

Residence:—
43, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Established SPARKLING HOSPERRADE Trade Mark
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
OBTAINABLE AT THE HOTELS, RESTAURANTS & HALLS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Specialty.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Apparently some of the Hunslet Guardians monopoly of the wisdom of the parish, its have a very tender solicitude for officials. It opinions are always worthy of consideration. was recommended that male relieving officers be asked to time their visits, as far as possible, so as to see each child in receipt of out-relief once every three months, and to report any unsuitable conditions. This was a very moderate order, yet one Guardian protested against it because it placed an extra burden on officers. No doubt officers sometimes get unpleasant work, but there was nothing in this instruction to make any noise about, and unless the officers themselves demonstrated that it was really a "burden" there was no need for any one to find fault with it.

Rothwell is trying to be on terms with Tadcaster and Wetherby, which possess boating facilities. It is suggested that the Urban Council should convert a mill dam into a lake, provide boats, and give the young men an insight into matters nautical. The lake might also serve as a bathing pool, and young Rothwell would have an opportunity of enjoying certain privileges without going to the seaside. Just as the Kaiser, by creating the Navy, has taught Germany to swim, Mr Lunn is extremely anxious that the Roddilites should be able to emulate the duck in the water, but he will have a job, I fancy, to convert an unsympathetic Council to his way of thinking. However, the question will come up at next meeting, and then we shall know what the fathers'" opinion on the subject is.

No fewer than 130 persons resident in Garforth were summoned last half-year for non-payment of their district rate, and it is suggested that were the collector to receive the rate by instalments, the trouble, annoyance, and cost of issuing summonses would be avoided. Garforth has, in recent years, become a by-word among the parishes in the Skyrack area, and it is singular, if the instalment system would save prosecution, how the same persons are summoned half-year after half-year. Some will only pay, I understand, when they get a summons, and this is a very foolish procedure, as I have before pointed out, because they have the Court costs, in addition to the rate, to meet.

A number of people in Garforth may, owing to misfortune or ill-health, find themselves in the position of Mother Hubbard when she went to the cupboard, and others may have difficulty in paying their rates under any circumstances, and the instalment system might be of benefit to them. It is stated, however, that it would lead to irregularities, and the Urban Council will not countenance it. But there is a way out of the difficulty. The ratepayers can join a savings bank, and by putting aside a small sum each week they would solve the question of how to pay rates easily.

In declining to charge water rent for the house which is at present the home of Belgian refugees, the Garforth Urban Council adopted the proper course. It is a mistake to say that the Belgians are the guests of the Garforth public, as a whole; they are the guests of the people who subscribe to the funds. Any deficiency in the water charges will be met by the ratepayers generally, whereas, had the charge been imposed, it would have fallen—very unfairly, I think—on the subscribers to the fund. The course adopted by the Council is similar to that taken by public bodies in other districts.

The Vicar of Manston can wield the tomahawk when he pleases. Commenting on the attendance at a lecture by Dr. Sadler, the Vice-Chancellor of Leeds University, he remarks, in his magazine, that "it was rather a reflection on Crossgates intellectually." Then he goes on to say:—"There are a number of Crossgates people whose educational sources are confined to the evening papers and (save the mark!) 'John Bull!' Is not that why there are a good many 'universal specialists' in the place?" The attendance at lectures in Crossgates is, having regard to the population, very disappointing. At Garforth, with its large industrial population, audiences numbering from 300 to 600 turn up at lectures, but there does not appear to be any demand for education at Crossgates.

Templenewsam Ratepayers' Association has been fortunate in obtaining the services of the well-known and highly-respected residents as vice-president and hon. secretary, in room of the gentlemen who have retired, and the work will not suffer at their hands. The President, who, as I foreshadowed, has been re-elected, has discharged his duties very efficiently, and his unanimous re-appointment is an indication that he enjoys the confidence of the members. It was stated that certain people looked upon Ratepayers' Associations as "bughears" and "busybodies," but they have been unfortunate in their acquaintances. Templenewsam Association has done excellent work, and that is admitted by those who have had an opportunity of judging. Its functions are to criticise and suggest, with a view of promoting the welfare of the inhabitants generally, and, while it does not claim a monopoly of the wisdom of the parish, its

Who pays for town-planning schemes? This question was again raised at a meeting of Barwick-in-Elmet Council. It appears that information was given at Tadcaster that the cost of carrying out a town-planning scheme for Scholes and Austhorpe would fall on the area, and this was accepted. The expense of the Templenewsam scheme, however, is to be met by the ratepayers of the parish, and not of the rural district, so that apparently different policies are being carried out in the respective districts.

Barwick Council have been discussing water schemes for the last half-dozen years or more, and it appears to me that the parish is no nearer getting a public supply of water than it was at the beginning. They had another "go" at it on Monday night, and one member was anxious for the District Council to submit particulars, holding that the ratepayers have a right to all knowledge in connection with a scheme for which they have to find the money, but he will have to wait until a scheme is prepared. Nothing has been said about the matter at Tadcaster for six weeks, and it is strange that no progress has been reported.

Christmas "comes but once a year." Owing to the holidays an alteration in our publication arrangements will be necessary next week.

This journal will be published on Thursday morning, instead of Friday morning, and in order to facilitate our arrangements, correspondents will greatly oblige by sending their contributions not later than Wednesday. Advertisements will be received up to six o'clock on Wednesday night at the office, 2, Aire Street, Leeds.

Tadcaster folks are long-suffering. A decade must have elapsed since the agitation about the condition of Station Road commenced, but, despite promises by the Railway Company to carry out a scheme which will take the heavy traffic from the breweries off the road, the old conditions remain. In wet weather, as Mr J. H. Ingleby, J.P., remarked at last meeting of the District Council, the road is in a deplorable state. The heavy traffic simply churns it into mud, and if pedestrians walking on the footpaths are not careful, they may get their clothes covered with a junk of Station Road in liquid form thrown up by the wheels of vehicles. Frequently the road scrapings are left by the sides of the footpaths for a considerable time—it seems to take the roadmen a large part of their time to keep the mud on the move—and many a hapless resident has slipped over the boot tops into the mess. Yet the process of road-making and mud-making goes on year after year, and it appears to me that only great pressure will make the N.E.R. Co. take the action the Council desire. This road is a very costly one, and it is surprising that the economical former-members, always anxious to save a penny, have tolerated the present condition of things so long without a protest.

Second thoughts are sometimes best. A member of Tadcaster Board of Guardians, who stated that agriculture would be ruined if rates continued to rise, intimated that he intended to move a resolution of the effect that something or somebody, but he evidently saw the futility of such an action. Indignation is a common failing when increased charges are demanded—the half-penny on the half-pint, although it is a kind of test of patriotism, has not been hailed with satisfaction—but it is useless uttering protests unless some good can be done. Tadcaster Board once convened a conference of Guardians to consider county expenditure, and I am confident that they did not mend matters.

Garforth has distinguished itself in connection with the war, and few places, with an industrial population can show such a record. The people are largely dependent on the prosperity of the collieries, which, happily, have been kept going since hostilities commenced, and there is practically no distress in the place. A sum of over £230 has been collected for the West Riding Distress Fund, and over £102 for the maintenance of Belgians resident in Garforth, besides which the ladies have made numerous articles for our sailors and soldiers. And, better than all, Garforth has sent out a very large number of its sons to fight for the country.

"Why don't you appeal to the agricultural population," asks a reader; "they make splendid soldiers." My answer is that, although there are still a good many men who are eligible for the Army—a gentleman tells me of one large family in a village that has not sent a single representative to the Army—the district has done well. Some villages have contributed one in twenty of the population, and no one can find fault with their record. Some places, I understand, have been absolutely denuded of young men, and a scarcity of labour exists. So when anyone hears an ill-informed individual advocating recruiting in rural districts, because they have not sent a fair quota, the answer can be made that Barkston Ash Division—from Selby to Crossgates, and from Shadwell to Church Fenton—has responded nobly to the call.

"Some aspects of bird life" was the title of the last science lecture at Garforth, and Professor Garstang had an interesting story to tell about the feathered warblers. To many the evolution of the bird no doubt sounded very strange, but nature works in its own way, and the promotion of the reptile to a flying songster was not carried out in a day. The professor, in his imitations of birds' songs, would, however, have made a poor show beside the great Sloman, who warbled with the best for many years. The birds' song, it was stated, was divided into three parts—the call note, love song, and battle-cry, and, although this may be a good guess at the language of the songsters, it is difficult for anyone to say with absolute accuracy what the birds mean. Garforth people have, I think, been very fortunate in getting so many members of the teaching staff of Leeds University to lecture to them, and I am certain that hundreds of people have profited by the information that has been given.

TEMPLENEWSAM ROLL OF HONOUR.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—The following names have been added to the list published in your columns on the 20th November last.

Brunston, W., Templenewsam.
Carr, Walter C., Crews Green Lane.
Hamilton, Stanley B., Hollyshaw Lane; Haseman, Bernard, Templenewsam; and Hudson, Albert E., Morritt Drive.
Medley, Walter, Newsam Square; Miles, David, Grove Road; and Miller, Walter, Dial Row.
Nicholson, Tom W., Morritt Drive.
Southwick, John F., Templenewsam.
Tinker, Harry, Colton; Townend, Leonard, Springfield Place.
Wey, John, Templenewsam.

The total number of men from Templenewsam serving in His Majesty's forces now exceeds 90, and if there are any other names which ought to be added to the list I shall be grateful if any of your readers will kindly inform me.—Yours, etc.,

W. B. PINDAR.

Clifton House, Halton, Leeds.

SPECIAL DISPLAY OF Fancy Goods for Xmas.

LADIES' SCARVES, GLOVES, & FANCY NECKWEAR.
DOWN QUILTS & CUSHIONS.
FANCY LINEN GOODS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.

SMITH BROS. (Drapers) Ltd.
BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.

Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.

Look Out for B. & B.

STEPHENSON'S
XMAS BAZAAR and TOY FAIR
NOW OPEN FOR THE SEASON.

Let "Christmas as usual despite all" be your guide this year, and, "as usual," remember to make the Kiddies Christmas-time this year the best they have struck yet.

BRING THEM TO SEE OUR GREAT DISPLAY OF DOLLS, TOYS AND GAMES.

British Made Toys have always been a Speciality with us, this year more so than ever before.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR ALL.

It is just as well to remind you NOW of the near approach of Yuletide—so that you may take advantage of the complete selection of Presents which OUR SPECIAL XMAS DISPLAY in all Departments affords you. It is a Splendid Collection of Gifts—and here are some of the very attractive values we are offering. FURS MAKE EXCELLENT GIFTS and our selection of FUR WEAR is noteworthy for QUALITY, STYLE and VALUE.

Pretty BLOUSES for Evening Wear, in Silk and Lace, etc., specially produced for the Xmas Season, from 2/11 to 18/6 each.

Endless choice in CHILDREN'S SILK, LACE, EMBROIDERED, and LAWN MUSLIN PINAFORES, very dainty styles, from 6½d. to 4/11 each.

CHILDREN'S SILK and CASHMERE DRESSES, for Party wear, in great variety at popular prices.

A choice collection of Fashionable FURS, in the latest shapes, with Muffs to match, from 3/11 to 8 Guineas the Set.

LADIES' UMBRELLAS, with Sterling Silver and Gold Plate Handles, a large choice from 3/11 to 12/6 each.

LADIES' LINEN HEMSTITCHED HANDKERCHIEFS, put up in Fancy Boxes for Presents, containing half-dozen, 1/11½ and 2/6 the box.

HAND-EMBROIDERED HANDKERCHIEFS, very dainty, boxes containing half-a-dozen handkerchiefs, 1/4½, 1/6½, 1/11½, 2/3, 2/9, and 2/11 per box.

Smart styles in MUSLIN APRONS, from 8½d. to 3/11.

MAIDS' CAPS, in great variety.

HOUSEMAIDS' DRESSES, always acceptable as presents, made in Hard-wearing, Fast-coloured Cloths, from 2/11 to 6/11 each.

LADIES' IMITATION SILK KNITTED SCARVES, in all the New Colours, fringed ends, from 6½d. to 3/11 each.

GENT.'S SILK MUFFLERS, in White and Colours, in Fancy Boxes, from 1/0½ to 5/11 each.

A sensible present for a lady is a pair of our well-known KID or FABRIC GLOVES, which can be had done up in Pretty Boxes, from 1/0½ to 3/11 per pair.

LADIES' LEATHER and SUEDE HAND BAGS, in great variety, from 11½d. to 21/- each.

LADIES' BRUSH and COMB BOXES, from 11½d. to 8/11 each, fitted with superior Brush and Comb, &c.

WRITING CASES, from 11½d. to 5/6 each.

SEE OUR WINDOWS THIS WEEK

for Evening Dress Materials, Silks, Hosiery, Laces, Lace Neckwear, Gloves, Ribbons, Corsets, Underclothing, Costume Skirts, Infants' and Children's Outfitting, Muslin Aprons and Caps, &c.

TABLE CENTRES and SIDEBOARD COVERS, in Silk, Linen, Canvas, and Lace.
VELVET PILE TABLE COVERS, DAMASK TABLECLOTHS, and SERVIETTES.
TEA COSIES and CUSHIONS, in great variety.
MANTEL BORDERS, SHEETS, QUILTS, TOWELS, &c., &c.
A choice lot of Five o'clock TABLE COVERS, in Linen and Lace, at Special Prices.
EMBROIDERED LINEN CRASH TABLE COVERS, DUCHESS SETS, SIDEBOARD COVERS, TABLE CENTRES, and MATS, the latest designs at popular prices.

STEPHENSON'S DRAPERY MARKET
(ALL DEPARTMENT ON THE GROUND FLOOR),
THE CROSS ARCADE, extending from KING EDWARD St. to QUEEN VICTORIA St.,
Fifty yards from BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE GREED OF CONQUEST.

By J. B. HARRIS-BURLAND

Author of "Dorcibra," "An Angel's Sin," "Ralph Rashleigh," "Love, the Criminal," "The Gold Worshippers," "The Financier," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Sir John Lowick, a space inventor of science, has discovered the means of controlling and directing the magnetic currents of the air and forming them into a gigantic engine of destruction. Accompanied by his son Ralph and Joan Endermine, he gives a demonstration of the powers of his invention. It is a marvellous success.

The experiment has taken place late at night on a small island adjoining Sir John's estate. Ralph escorts Joan to her home, leaving Sir John alone with his model. On the way, Joan, who at first was horrified at the awful possibilities of the invention, tells Ralph that his father should give the secret to England, so that she could conquer the rest of the world. Ralph answers that his father will never do that, and neither should he if he were in his place. Ralph on his return to the island is horrified to find his father lying dead—murdered!

Sir John's assistant and model has been stolen, and although immediate search is made on the island no trace can be found of the murderer. The police throw little light on the deeds. The inquest throws little light on the tragedy further than that two men must have been concerned in the death of the old man. A detective named Nofar, who interests himself in the case, warns Ralph that they will make every attempt on his life next, and suggests that a trap should be laid for them. Ralph agrees, and answers that his father will never do that, and neither should he if he were in his place. Ralph on his return to the island is horrified to find his father lying dead—murdered!

Nofar never regains consciousness, and it is certified that he has been poisoned. He had drunk the fatal draught intended for Ralph. Inspector Turnbull, who has charge of the case, suspects Ralph, who has charge of the case, discovers the model buried in the sand near his bungalow, and Ralph has recovered to his house. Joan urges Ralph to give the secret to the country, and be done with it; but Ralph answers that he owes nothing. Ralph, however, refuses. He thinks that by keeping it he can render war impossible.

Joan breaks off her engagement with Ralph, who still refuses to agree to the request that he should hand over his secret to the country. Sir James Kinder, a high Government official, also pleads with him, but in vain. Ralph, without parting with his secret, omits that the Government shall protect him, and gives Sir James until the next day to accede to his request. Mr. Cowdale, who calls on Ralph later the same evening, suggests that he may be able to put him on the track of the murderers.

Cowdale tells Ralph that his father's murderer, in a fit of delirium, had confessed the crime, and had also revealed the secret of the invention. He proposes that Ralph should take him as a partner, and, meeting with a refusal, uses threats. He rushes at Ralph, and is shot dead in self-defence. Ralph is arrested for murder. Ralph is placed under remand in his house. In the night he hears the remains of the house. In the night he hears the remain in his house. In the night he hears the report of a gun, and sees a number of men running towards the house with rifles in their hands.

CHAPTER XII.

Lowick ran back from the window and beat upon the door with his fists. He did not know what was happening, but it was certain that his machine and plans were in danger, and that he did not wish to remain locked up in his room.

"Open the door!" he yelled. "Open the door, curse you!"

There was no answer, and a second later there was a rattle of firing in the garden, and the screams of a wounded man. Lowick caught hold of the handle of the door and shook it with all his strength. If he had been on the outside he could easily have broken the door in, but in his present position he was powerless. He could smash the lock. He helpless, unless he could smash the lock. He looked round for some weapon which might serve his purpose, but the chairs had been removed, and even the chairs. He broke a leg off the table, and battered at the lock, but only succeeded in denting the outer case. Then he tried to turn the screws with the back of an ivory paper-knife, and failed dismally.

"If I better wait," he thought, "it's no use tiring myself. I may need all my strength to-night."

He returned to the window and looked cautiously out. There was no one to be seen on the patch of moonlit lawn, but he fancied he could distinguish a yellow light moving among the trees. There were shouts in the distance, then three stabs in quick succession, and after that silence.

Ralph Lowick rubbed his eyes, and won dered if it were all a dream. Now that all sounds had died away, and there was nothing to be seen save the light of the summer's night, it seemed as though everything that had gone before was unreal. The man who had fallen in the middle of the lawn had been removed. Everything was just as it might be on any summer night when the moon made a clear light the sky.

Then suddenly a violent explosion broke the silence; the boards under his feet quivered, and the windows rattled. This was followed by a single shot, and simultaneously there was a thud in the room above, and a cake of plaster dropped from the ceiling. Lowick sank on his knees and crawled along the floor.

"A warning," he said to himself. "Any one could have put a bullet through me, if they'd wanted to. I'm not to look at what's going on."

He crept close to the window again and peered over the sill. There was another sharp crack, and this time the bullet struck the woodwork six inches to the left of his face. He dropped as if he had been shot, and put his hand to his cheek. He had been struck by a splinter, and blood was trickling down from the wound.

"That fellow could have hit me," he thought; "but, whoever they are, I'm valuable to them. I don't suppose it will be long before I have a talk with one of them."

He sat on the edge of the bed and listened. Outside the house there was silence, but there were distant voices in the hall. Then he heard the sound of feet on the gravel drive—the steady tramp of men keeping time as they walked.

"Drilled," he thought. "Either soldiers or sailors. Merciful powers, this is an international affair!"

Then he wondered if any of the police had escaped to give the alarm at Easterhoe. Unquestionably they had been overpowered, and probably any who had been captured had been killed. Still, it was possible that one had escaped, and if so, he would try and get to Easterhoe and telephone to Sinchester. There was a battalion of infantry at Sinchester, and if they were quick—no, of course they would not be in time.

A level track of marshland lay between the village and the sea—an open expanse that was only crossed by sedge in the summer. There was not cover to hide a good-sized dog. If it had been a dark night it might not have been a difficult matter for one man to escape. As it was, there was no chance at all.

"They'll take me away with them," he thought, "and then—well, it will serve the Government right. I shall be offered my life if I will give up my secret. I shall not give it up, and the world will be just the same as it was before this machine came to frighten the rulers of the earth. Perhaps it will be as well."

He rose to his feet as he heard heavy steps upon the stairs. Then some one tried the handle, and made an unsuccessful attempt to turn the key in the lock. There was a thud, and the door swung inwards, and the light of a lantern mingled with the rays of the moon on the floor.

"You come along," said a man in perfect English. "We want you."

"Where do you wish me to go?" asked Lowick. He only asked the question because he wished to hear the speaker's voice again, and find out his nationality. The man had spoken with a slight foreign accent, but it was impossible to say whether he were Italian, Spanish or Russian, Dutch or Italian, Swiss or Portuguese. The lantern was shaded on one side, so that it threw no light on the face of the man who held it.

But Lowick was doomed to disappointment. "Come along," was the reply. Two men stepped forward and gripped his arms on either side. From the brief glimpse he had of them he judged that they were fellows dressed in English clothes that might have belonged to fishermen or labourers. Their faces were hidden by masks that reached from the forehead to below the nose. Their dirty caps were pulled down over their foreheads.

"I'll come quickly," he said. "You needn't grip me quite so hard."

They led him through the doorway and down the grand staircase into the hall. Another man walked behind them with a lantern. Another man walked behind them with a lantern. Another man walked behind them with a lantern

THE TEMPLENEWSAM POACHING AFFRAY.

A PRISONER WHO MADE CARTRIDGES.

Harry Roberts, labourer, of Leeds, who was charged with night poaching on the Templenewsam Estate and also with unlawfully wounding two keepers, was again brought before the West Riding magistrates at Leeds on Tuesday.

Mr A. Willey, who is prosecuting on behalf of the Hon. E. F. L. Wood, asked for a further remand owing to the keeper Pullon having had a relapse. Mr Willey proposed that before the prisoner was remanded, the evidence of a Leeds detective, who had gone to the house on the day before the affray, and found prisoner making cartridges, should be taken. When questioned about them prisoner had said "I was only going out to-night." It also appeared, said Mr Willey, that prior to the affray, Roberts had sold a gun to a farmer, and this he had borrowed before going.

Detective Sergeant Lister, of the Leeds City Police, said that on Wednesday, November 4th, he called at the house occupied by the prisoner in Boynton Street, Leeds, where he found the prisoner seated on a chair beside a bed. On the mantel shelf there were some small paper packages, and witness asked him what they were. Roberts replied "We were going out this morning but owing to the bad morning we did not go. We are going to-morrow." The pellets were wrapped in newspaper cartridges. The following day witness again went to the house and knocked, and this, it was found, had been broken in the fight.

Prisoner was then remanded until next week in custody.

A ROTHWELL FRIENDLY SOCIETY CASE.

PROSECUTION OF AN OLD OFFICIAL.

The Rothwell Friendly Alliance Society, along with Mr Joan Abbishaw (secretary), were the defendants in a case at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, in which they were summoned for a breach of the Friendly Societies' Act.

Mr Wilfred Joseph Day, who prosecuted on behalf of the Chief Registrar, said that Mr Abbishaw was the secretary of the Society, and he had failed to send in his annual return for 1913. The return was a summary of the Society's finances, and they were allowed the months in which to send it in. The last day for sending it in was May 31st, and a failure to do so rendered the Society liable to a penalty of £5 for each week the return was late. In this case no less than five letters had been sent to Mr Abbishaw pointing out that no return had yet been received, and also the penalty to which he was rendered liable. They now asked for a conviction and a penalty. The Society provided sick benefit to its members and funeral benefit to members, their wives or children. The Society had 168 members, and the accumulated funds amounted to £1,370. He had received a telegram on the previous night to say that a return had been received. Mr Abbishaw was rendered liable for a penalty as he was an officer of the Society.

In the witness-box, Mr Day said that he had received a letter from Mr Abbishaw on December 12th, stating that he was sorry that no return had been sent in, and that no blame could be attached to anyone but himself. The letter also stated that he had been the secretary of the Society for forty years, and the society had been very successful. In order to get his returns ready he had had to obtain the help of friends as his memory was failing. This year, however, he had been unable to get the help of anyone. He was 71 years of age and had never been in a court before.

Abbishaw told the magistrates that his memory had failed very much during the last one-and-a-half years.

Mr Day suggested that the society was very much to blame in not appointing someone else.

The Chairman (to Abbishaw): Don't you think you ought to resign?

Mr Abbishaw: Yes, I shall have to do so.

The Chairman remarked that they could not look over the offence, but they would impose a fine as small as possible, although Abbishaw had rendered himself liable to a penalty of £5.

A fine of 10s. and costs was imposed, and a similar fine was marked against the society.

SEQUEL TO A WOODLESFORD QUARREL.

SETTLED AT THE POLICE COURT.

At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Edith Smith, a married woman, of Woodlesford, was summoned by Edith Jacques for an assault upon her son, Joseph Jacques.

Mr A. Masser prosecuted, and Mr A. Willey defended.

In out-lining the case, Mr Masser said that on Monday, November 23rd, the defendant left her house, and picking up some sand, threw it in the child's face.

Florence Brown, Eshald Terrace, Woodlesford, stated that she was a teacher at the Woodlesford Council School, and on the day in question shortly after midday she was standing outside the school gate when she saw the defendant come out of her house and go across to Mrs Jacques' little boy, who was playing close to a heap of sand. Defendant picked up a handful, and threw it in the boy's face, after which she went back to her house. The boy cried. She did not see the boy doing anything with the sand, neither were there any other children near.

Mr Willey: Have you been to Bridlington and seen children throwing sand at one another?

Witness: Yes.

Mr Masser: But have you ever seen grown up people throwing sand into children's faces?

Witness: No.

Another teacher named Miss Briggs also gave evidence corroborating the last witness's statement.

Mrs Jacques, in the witness-box, said that her little boy came home screaming after the incident. "His mouth was full of sand," she said, "and when I got it out with my finger I had to take it up from the carpet with a shovel."

Mr Willey: Oh!

In opening his cross-examination of Mrs Jacques, Mr Willey asked "who took the sand away in a wheel barrow," to which the witness retorted that she did not mean her statement as Mr Willey had taken it.

Answering Mr Willey, she said that the quarrel first started with the children. "Your husband agrees don't they," asked Mr Willey, and witness said they did so far as she knew. "Then," said Mr Willey, "it is a pity that you ladies can't."

The Chairman said he would bind both parties over to keep the peace for six months.

Mr Willey: You will do that your own ends if you do that. The women would never be friendly and one would say "I have got you bound over," and life would be intolerable in this charming "arcadia." He said he was prepared to give an undertaking that his client would cause no bother or friction of any kind.

Mr Masser pleaded the same on behalf of his client, and the magistrates agreed to dismiss the summons on payment of costs.

CROSSGATES LITERARY SOCIETY

VICAR OF WHITKIRK AND ARCHITECTURE.

In connection with Crossgates Literary Society a most interesting and instructive lecture on "Architecture and some examples of it" was delivered by the Rev. Brett Thoyer, M.A., vicar of Whitkirk, in the Wesleyan Schoolroom, Crossgates, on Monday night. Mr E. Hawkesworth (President of the Society) was in the chair, and there was a fair attendance of members.

Mr Guyer, at the outset, modestly stated that he had no qualification or knowing little about the subject of architecture, and the information he would give had been gathered from various sources. His object was really to help the members to understand some of the beautiful buildings and the examples of architecture round about. He had, he said, been struck by the way people looked at a church, passing on that was beautiful but about it, because they had not the knowledge to understand it. Having quoted Ruskin's definition of architecture, he said that it was the addition to an ordinary building of something that would make it more beautiful, interesting and pleasing, but it was seldom that they erected a building for usefulness without making it pleasing. Ruskin, in analysing the particular points that made for architecture in a building, put his views in the seven Lamps," and they were sacrifice, truth, power, beauty, life, memory, and obedience. To be beautiful a thing must cost something, not necessarily money, but labour, care, thought, or money. Directly the idea of cheapness entered the idea of beauty vanished. He admitted that a thing might be expensive and vulgar, but they could not have anything beautiful without its having cost something in one way or another. Truth in architecture meant that a building must be what it seemed to be; it must not be a sham. He gave examples of great buildings where certain features were not what they seemed to be. Taking power and beauty together, he said that some buildings attracted people because they looked strong and stately—like a castle, and others were light and graceful. The lordship was beautiful in its way because it was powerful, but the yacht had beauty. Ruskin had pointed out that all real beauty must follow the lines of nature. In regard to life, he said that a building must be free from stiffness and monotony, and he cited as an example the three arches in Whitkirk Church, the position of which relieved the building from stiffness. When looking at a building they could tell by its architecture the time when it was built, and it immediately suggested that particular age and its associations. That was the keep of memory. As to obedience, he said that an architect could not go exactly his own way; there were certain laws he must obey if he wished to be successful. If a man were building in the Norman period he would naturally follow the plans then in vogue; an architect could only be successful if he followed the laws of the style he had adopted. He pointed how for Leeds Town Hall and the Leeds Parish Church were in accordance with the "Seven Lamps." The Town Hall was not a cheap building, it appeared to be solid, but it was strong, but it was a little bit stiff. It did not suggest much, not being old, but it fulfilled the demand of obedience, for it was built in the style intended. It was a very satisfactory building for a Town Hall. His criticism of the Parish Church, however, was not so favourable. Thereafter Mr Guyer, by means of lantern slides, explained the different styles of architecture, starting with the classical—pillars and stones laid across. With the discovery of the arch, the whole course of architecture altered, and the Norman style was splendidly illustrated. Then followed the Early English, Decorated, and Perpendicular, each style being clearly shown in some fine example of church architecture.

At the close Mr Tomlinson (Halton) proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer, and he remarked upon the inferiority of modern work as compared with the examples shown by Mr Guyer.

Mr Haste Carr (Halton), who seconded, said that the lecture had involved a great deal of research and study, and they were greatly indebted to the lecturer.

The Chairman, in supporting the resolution, said that the lecture had been full of useful information. He stated that Mr Guyer had not mentioned modern architecture, of which there were examples in the neighbourhood. The Norman door at Ash Church was, he said, one of the finest in the country.

The vote was then heartily seconded, and Mr Guyer replied, mentioning local examples of Saxon architecture.

DROVER'S TRAGIC END AT TADCASTER.

FOUND WITH HIS THROAT CUT.

At the Tadcaster Wickhouse, on Monday night, Mr Alfred Procter, Deputy Coroner for the York District, held an inquiry concerning the death of Joseph Ripley (40), cattle drover, who was found in a lodging house in St. Joseph Street, Tadcaster, on Saturday night, with his throat cut.

Jos. Hy. Ripley, also a cattle drover, gave evidence of identification. He said deceased was his brother, and he last saw him alive at Tadcaster market a week ago. He seemed quieter than usual, and when asked if anything were the matter with him he replied, "No, I'm all right." He did complain of a pain across the body, and when told to visit a doctor he said "I'll see."

Anthony Valentine, ice-cream vendor, said that he saw deceased in the habit of staying at the lodging-house. He had not noticed anything unusual in the deceased lately.

After evidence by Dr. J. F. Scotchard, the jury found that deceased committed suicide, no expression of opinion being given as to the state of his mind when he cut his throat.

INTERESTING LECTURE AT ROUNDHAY.

HUNGARY'S ATTITUDE TOWARDS BRITAIN.

At the Congregational Church, Roundhay, on Monday night, Mr Arthur L. Dixle lectured on "In Hungary in War Time." The Rev. Ernest Jenkins presided.

Mr Dixle said that while England and Hungary had been technically at war for over four months, not a single directly hostile act had set for been committed by either nation against the other. Hungarian troops under the impression that they were being dispatched to Servia eventually found themselves in Belgium and France. He himself had received generous treatment at the hands of the Hungarian Government.

In Hungary Englishmen were regarded as a combination of all the virtues. No one in Hungary could believe it possible that war would come between the two nations, and when it was actually declared it was regarded as an unspeakable calamity. The Hungarians had ever since been searching for a favourable opportunity to bring it to an end. Immediately after war was declared the Hungarian Minister of the Interior issued a circular to all mayors of towns asking them to treat the English people in their midst with humanity and sympathy.

The lecturer left Buda Pesth on October 16th. Up to that time he had absolutely nothing to complain of nor had he heard of a single complaint from any Englishman in Hungary. In fact, the universal opinion in the English colony was that they were being treated even better than they were before the war started. The Hungarian army was ruled from Vienna, and at present Vienna was over-ruled by Berlin. He had reason to hope that this state of affairs would not last much longer, and he was looking forward to returning to Buda Pesth at an early date.

As showing the feelings of Hungarians towards Russia, Mr Delisle mentioned that he had seen thousands of Russian prisoners of war walking about the streets of Buda Pesth without an escort and with perfect freedom. He expressed the hope that Hungary would get a separation from Austria as a result of this war.

ROUNDHAY.

Miss Needell, of Roundhay, has given 10s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

CORRESPONDENCE

WHITKIRK CHURCH—MORNING SERVICE.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The above morning service authorised by the prayer-book has been twice duly found in pulpit of Whitkirk Church recently denounced by both the Vicar and his curate. Each of them said it was man-made and ought not to be used. One added that the only divine service was Holy Eucharist.

If the first is man-made, the second undoubtedly is; as now used in Whitkirk Church it is impossible from it is nothing but using words, as the above clergy would dearly like us to do it.

Holy Communion, as our Lord instituted it, is as different from the above man-made service as white is the opposite of black. Have the clergymen sworn at their ordination to accept the prayer-book? If so, let them keep strictly to it. If they have not accepted it let them go where they can be honest, and let us parishioners have what we know is in our prayer-book, and nothing added to nor taken away.—Yours, etc.,

DISGUSTED.

A KIPPAX MAN AND A TAX ON WAGES.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Evidently my last letter on this question as to Kippax being to most difficult place sale Lend on in which to keep body and soul together did not carry conviction. I did not expect that my assertion would find easy access to every one's mind, but I feel inclined to believe that what I allege, in absence of proof to the contrary, is quite true.

In discussing the question of Kippax and costly living, I have diverted some what from the original proposal—that an income of 30s. a week was not sufficiently large upon which to levy a tax. This question, I am informed, is not a new one. John Stuart Mill, a good many years ago, said that no attempt should be made to levy a tax of any sort on small incomes. I take that to mean total exemption, or that the man had a strong objection to the levying of any tax, direct or indirect, on incomes which were not sufficiently large to keep the wolf from the door. Now, sir, John Stuart Mill was a rabble-monger of attainments, and who is Mr Henderson, or Boards of Guardians, wherever located, to dispute the statement of such a man?

The question is being asked "Should our labour leaders support a proposal to levy an income tax on wage-earners without consulting the latter?" And now that this proposal has reached London, it has been discovered that the difficulties connected with its collection (apart from the card system), would prove too costly an undertaking.

As to the difference in the wages of piece-workers, it is agreed that to levy a graduated tax on these would present formidable difficulties to all concerned. To form a proposal like the one in question, is an easy matter, but to see the many barriers in the way of collecting the tax has not been so easy. The proposal to levy a tax on the wage-earners now that Mr Lloyd George has been asked to give his views on the matter, does not appear to be a master stroke on the author's part; at least this is the inference I draw from the Chancellor's statements in relation to it. And the author and supporters of the proposal in question would be much better employed if they sought after lifting our burdens instead of increasing them. Her in lies the duty of all labour leaders.—Yours, etc.,

INTERESTED.

A LECTURE AT CROSSGATES—NIETZSCHE

To the Editor.

Sir,—You reported, with some remarks upon the subject, a lecture upon Nietzsche. Would you allow one of your readers also to make a few remarks and extracts from his writings. Nietzsche says:—

"My philosophy reveals the triumphant thought through which all other systems of thought must ultimately go under. It is the great disciplinary thought. Those races that cannot beat it are doomed. Those which regard it as the greatest blessing are destined to rule."

Again, "When I came unto men I found them sitting on an old belief. All of them thought they had known long what was good and evil unto men. All speech about virtue appeared unto them an old weary thing, and he who wished to sleep well spoke of good and evil before going to bed. This sleeping I disturbed when teaching that no one knoweth yet what is good and evil." Very fair.

Again, speaking of us reformers:—"They have tangled and confused for a thousand years almost whatever they laid their fingers on; they have on their conscience the foulest kind of Christianity, the most incurable, the most irrefutable kind that exists—Protestantism." If we do not see an end to Christianity the Germans will be to blame for it.

Again, "Dead are all Gods, now we will that the superman live."

Again, "We must not embellish or dock our Christianity. It has waged a deadly war against the higher type of man, it has distilled evil, the evil one out of these instincts. Christianity has taken the part of the weak, the low, the ill-constituted, it has made an ideal out of the antagonism to the preservative instincts of strong life, it has ruined the reason of the intellectually strongest natures in that it taught men to regard the highest values of intellectuality as sinful, as misleading, as temptations."

Again as for the superman—"That it should be accepted with a good conscience the sacrifice of a legion of individuals, who for its sake must be suppressed and reduced to imperfect men, to slaves and instruments. It is fundamental belief must be that society is not allowed to exist for its own sake, but only as a foundation and scaffolding by means of which a select class of beings may be able to elevate themselves to a higher degree and higher duties, and in general to a higher existence."

These ten extracts from Nietzsche's writings which may induce the reader to enquire, or not to enquire, further into his doctrines. Whether Nietzsche's morbid temperament germing to the seeds of insanity or the contrary, at the age of ten years, he became hopelessly incurable and so remained for a further ten years, down in the year 1900.—Yours, etc.,

FAIRDEAL.

AMBULANCE DEPARTMENT'S APPEAL.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The Ambulance Department of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem appeal to the generosity of a most generous public for increased support. The hospitals are counting on our help as we have come to count on the loyal and wonderful working parties and good friends, known and unknown, throughout the country. Daily the demands on us multiply and increase.

From all parts of Great Britain, from France and Belgium, and Servia, from Indian camps and hospital ships, from ambulance trains and motor convoys, come the most urgent appeals for clothing, bedding, surgical dressings, hospital comforts, and for warm garments for convalescents. Our shelves, at present are full, are getting empty, and daily the committee grow more anxious lest they should have to disappoint those who look to them for help.

We want everything that is warm and useful and clean; everything that a wounded man or a sick man needs, from the time that his warm woven uniform is taken from him in hospital until he is ready to face the world again as a fighting man—or a cripple. We cannot respond to these appeals, or we might say claims, unless everyone will help us according to their means and recognise the responsibility of every non-combatant to give to the utmost to those who are fighting so gallantly for their homes and our liberties.

The address for all contributions is—The President, St. John Warehouse, 56, St. John Square, Clerkenwell, E.C.—Yours,

AGNES JEKYLL.

MARRIAGE AT WIGHILL CHURCH.

THOMLINSON—BOWMAN.

The marriage has taken place at All Saints' Church, Wighill, of Miss Ethnie Bowman, daughter of Mr Walter Banks Bowman, of Wighill, and Mr Walter Thomlinson, son of the late Mr J. J. Thomlinson, of Tockwith. The Rev. C. D. Atkinson, the vicar, performed the ceremony, and the bride was given away by her father. Mr Walter Parsons, of Tadcaster, officiated as best man.

The bride was dressed in rich ivory satin, with a Court train, hand embroidered, and wore a veil and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and lilies. She wore a wreath of orange blossom, and pearl and turquoise drop ear-rings, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids were Miss Bowman (sister of the bride), and Miss F. Thomlinson (sister of the bridegroom), and they were dressed in vieux rose, with black sashes and hats to match, and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums and lilies.

The service was fully choral, and the processional hymn was "Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us." "O, Perfect Love," was also sung, and an address was delivered by the Vicar. As the wedding party left the church the Wedding March was played by the organist, Mr Lightfoot, of Tadcaster.

A reception was afterwards held at the White Swan Hotel, Wighill. The newly married couple later left for Scarborough, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's travelling dress consisted of a lawn tailor-made costume, with a pale blue hat trimmed with fur. Both the bride and bridegroom were the recipients of numerous and costly presents.

ROTHWELL DISTRICT WAR RELIEF COMMITTEE.

BELGIAN FAMILIES IN THE DISTRICT.

A meeting of the Rothwell Urban District War Relief Committee was held in the Council Offices, Rothwell, on Monday night—Mr J. Hirst (Chairman) presiding. There was a small attendance of members.

A letter was read from Mr A. Marshall, who is compiling a "roll of honour" of those who have joined the Forces, asking that the Committee should assist him by forwarding any names of men in their districts in the Rothwell area, and it was resolved to send a list of the names already received to the district secretaries for confirmation, and also that the teachers of the schools should ask the children for the names of any relatives, etc.

The Chairman asked Mrs Buck for information regarding the local Belgian Relief Fund.

Mrs Buck stated that the local committee were looking after a family—a man, his wife, and seven children, who arrived at Rothwell last week. The family had left a boy in Belgium. The man had been a miner and had also worked in a factory. They came from a low-lying district between Antwerp and Brussels, which had been flooded. They had been given a few days' notice, so that they had been able to get a few things together. The man could speak a little broken English. The family were very clean and seemed very grateful for what had been done for them. The committee hoped to send the children to school during the present week, and they had thought of asking Mr Martin (headmaster of the Council School) to take them in.

Mr Martin: We will do our best for them.

Mrs Buck: They have been in England three weeks.

The Chairman: They must not come in for religious instruction.

Mr Martin: Other Roman Catholic children do.

Mrs Buck: We will leave that with the school teachers.

The Chairman: They have objected in some places.

Mr Martin: It is all a matter for the priests.

Mrs Buck said that they would want some clothing, but the ladies' committee would see to that.

The Chairman (to Mrs Buck): I understand you have a lot of money?

Mrs Buck: I should not like to say we had a lot.

Answering the Clerk, Mrs Buck said that the boy who had been left behind was thirteen years of age, and a Belgian priest who had been over was going to enquire about him.

Mr J. Horner announced that at Thorpe they had eight children and a woman, and three children had been lost on the way.

The Chairman: There is a Belgian paper issued in England which gives particulars about people who are missing, and possibly Mr Horner could bring the paper to the notice of the Belgian family.

A letter was read from Mr Woffinden (Thorpe Distress Committee) announcing that the committee at Thorpe had collected £42 8s. 3½d. in the ward, and that they had received £7 7s.; the proceeds of a whist drive and dance promoted by the teachers and scholars of Thorpe Council School. Mr Woffinden also forwarded £1 15s. 9d., the proceeds of a lecture, for the Belgian Relief Fund, and it was resolved that the money be handed to the local Belgian Fund.

The secretary (Mr W. Dodgson) announced that he had received £5 from the proceeds of a concert promoted by Mr T. Bartham for the local distress fund, and a vote of thanks, moved by the Chairman and seconded by Mrs Buck, was accorded Mr Bartham.

On the motion of Mr J. Horner, seconded by Mr T. Bartham, a vote of thanks was accorded the teachers of Thorpe.

Mr Dodgson announced that the central fund had now in hand £160 11s. 9d.

A letter was read from the secretary of the West Riding Fund stating that in connection with the gifts from the U.S.A. consisting of warm clothing for the children of soldiers and sailors on active service, would be forwarded to the District Council for distribution. The letter also stated that the fund was intended primarily for children who had been left orphans through the war.

A letter was also read announcing a proposed distribution of gifts for Belgian children in the district.

A circular concerning Belgian refugees and issued by the Local Government Board was discussed. The circular set forth that if a man was given employment he should not be sweated, and if the work was only temporary he should be paid a reasonable remuneration for his services.

Another item was to the effect that if a Belgian was desirous of saving part of his earnings he should be encouraged.

Mrs Buck referred the question that if a man went to work would he draw his money and keep the household.

Mr Dodgson replied that the clause dealing with the question read that in case of a man being placed in regular employment, and where he was receiving hospitality, he should be called upon to pay the cost of his board and lodgings, or to pay a reasonable portion.

Mrs Buck: It would hardly be fair to let the man work in the pit, and to let him keep all his money while the people of Rothwell contributed towards the support of his family.

Mr Martin: The man will want something to build up a new home with when he returns to Belgium.

Mrs Buck: But it would not be unreasonable to ask the man to pay a little. The ratepayers are eager to work, but they will not be able to do so just yet, as he is not strong enough.

Mr Blackburn said it was rumoured that when the local committee made an appeal for a party of refugees they asked for a "middle-class" family.

Mrs Buck: It is not true. We asked for working-class people.

A motion was passed granting a month's rent to the Belgian Relief Committee.

PATRIOTIC DRAX SCHOOLMASTER.—Mr E. Arnold How, B.Sc., headmaster of Drax Grammar School, has with the consent of the governors of the foundation, volunteered for active service. Mr How formerly held a commission in the Dorset Regiment, and is an enthusiastic advocate of military drill and physical exercise for boys. He has formed at Drax School an efficient Cadet Corps, with bugle band, and they made a smart turn out on the occasion of Selby Military Sunday, when they were reviewed by Lieut.-Colonel Sir Herbert Plumer, K.C.B., General Officer, Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/–, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

LADIES

BLANCHARD'S PILLS

Are unrivalled for all irregularities, &c., they speedily afford relief and never fail to alleviate all suffering. They supersede PENNYROYAL PILLS, Bitter Apple, &c. They supersede PENNYROYAL PILLS, Bitter Apple, &c. "BLANCHARD'S are the best of all." Sold by Taylor's Drug Co., Sale in Boxes, 12½ by Boots' Branches, Taylor's Drug Co., Branches, and all Chemists, or post free, same price from LESLIE MARTIN, Ltd., Chemists, 31, DALSTON LANE, LONDON, Free Sample and Valuable Booklet, post free, 1d Stamp.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks.
20	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 0
40	1 0	1 9	3 3	6 6
50	1 3	2 0	3 8	7 0

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s. per inch	per insertion.
26 do.	10d. do.	do.
52 do.	8d. do.	do.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.

Wednesday, 23rd Dec., 1-32 p.m. to Goole and Hull. Saturday, 26th Dec., 12-30 to Malton, Scarborough, Pocklington, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Bridlington. 12.45 p.m. to Selby and Hull. 12.55 p.m. (calling at Crossgates only) to York.

For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

WANTED Respectable Young DAY GIRL, about 14, to help with house work.—Clifton House, Hilton, Leeds. 1

WANTED Good GENERAL, fond of Children.—Apply, Mrs SUTCLIFFE, Orchard House, Crossgates, near Leeds. 3 1812

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, chiefly housework. Three in family.—Apply, GREEN, "Jesmond," Selby Road, Whitkirk, near Leeds. 3

GOOD GENERAL. Wash and Plain Cook. Good references. Write or apply per-sonally after 7 p.m.—Mrs TOWNSEND, The Drive, Crossgates. 1

STRONG Willing GIRL, 16-18, wanted at once, to assist in house. Good home. Family two.—Apply, 55, Hilton Road, Horsehills Lane, Leeds. 3 1911

WANTED to Buy HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, any quantity; also carpets, antiques, outdoor effects, or lumber of any description. Don't lumber up goods you have no use for; turn them into Cash. Distance no object. Drop postcard, we will call.—YOUNG, 39, Dewsbury Road, Leeds. 2 1688

FOR SALE.

FIREWOOD and LOGS for Sale in bags or load.—Mosby, Garforth Bridge.

FOR Sale WELL-BUILT HOUSE, in good condition and with garden. Quiet situation.—Apply, after 5.30, 11, The Avenue, New Mansion. 3 1907

FOR Sale Good SECOND-HAND ENGLISH PIANO. Walnut case, Iron frame, Check action. Cheap.—Cawood, 30, Marshall Terrace, Crossgates.

FOR Sale 2,700 VICTORIA RHUBARB ROOTS, 2 years, old.—Apply, Holt, Leadwell Lane, Rothwell. 1909

GENT'S ALL BLACK CYCLE, 3 speeds, gear case, Brooks' saddle, toolbag, and all tools. A real winter machine. Accept £7 7s.; worth £9 9s.—Hudson, Aberford. 3 1810

MAHOGANY BOOK CASE and CUPBOARD for sale. A real bargain. Accept 45s. or near offer.—Apply, Box 19, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds. 1905

BARNBOW, near Barwick-in-Elmet.—For Sale COUNTRY COTTAGE, with outbuildings, two orchard, hen run, and paddock.—Apply, Mrs WILLINGS, 167, North Street, Leeds.

PIANO for Sale in Crossgates, nearly new. Make a splendid Xmas gift. Fine tone, dark polished case. Accept £10 or near offer.—Apply, Box 55, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds. 1905

FOR Sale 8-DAY GRANDFATHER CLOCK, Mahogany case; also 8-Day ditto, Oak case. Good going order.—Apply, JACKSON, Watch and Clock Maker, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates. All Kind of Repairs done. 1 1672

CYCLE TYRE BARGAINS.—A quantity of Soiled Clearance Tyres.—Dunlops, my price 9s., usual price 11s. 9d.; Warwicks, my price 7s., usual price 8s. 6d.; Cambridge, my price 6s., usual price 7s. 9d.; Inner Tubes, my price, 2s. 6d., usual price, 3s. 9d.—HUDSON, Aberford. 3 1810

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c., Post Free, 2 Stamps —(S) DAVIES & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs. W. WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

MR and MRS. TURNER
7 Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited. Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 2417.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

Every Evening at 7 o'clock, except
CHRISTMAS DAY and BOXING DAY, at 6.30 and 8.30.
WEEK COMMENCING, DECEMBER 21st.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
"THE NIGHT RIDERS OF PETERSHAM."
" THE SANDS O' DEE."

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY.
Miss Enid Walkington
(the pocket edition of Vesta Tilley), featuring that great song "The Army to-day's all right," and all Vesta Tilley's successes.
" HEARTS AND SWORDS."
" THE TEMPLE OF THE LION."

Children's Matinee on Saturday at 3.
Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

BARKER'S, PIANO EXPERTS.
SOLE AND EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR ALLISON PIANOS. THE GREAT ENGLISH PIANO.
GEORGE RUSSELL PIANOS.
JOHN CROWLEY UPRIGHTS AND GRANDS.

SALE BARGAINS.

CRAMER, upright Grand, full steel cast-iron ..... 22 Gns.
CHAPPELL, rosewood, Shraton design 28 Gns
BECHSTEIN, Boudoir Grand ..... 75 Gns
BECHSTEIN, Upright; rosewood; our price ..... 39 Gns
KAPS, Overstrung; 71 octaves ..... 45 Gns
SCHIEDMYER; rosewood, upright; 2 years old ..... 48 Gns
PIANOLA; rosewood; Orchestrelle ... 50 Gns
STEINWAY; overstrung ..... 30 Gns
BRINSMEAD; overstrung; latest design 36 Gns
COLLARD; overstrung ..... 36 Gns
CRAMER PIANETTE, in oak ..... 20 Gns
J. & J. HOPKINSON; Upright Grand 18 Gns
METZLER; Upright Grand; rosewood 18 Gns
HILTON & HILTON; walnut; ivory keys ..... 19 Gns.
SHEPHARD, ebony, carved model ... 18 Gns.
NEUMAYER; ebony case; overstrung 18 Gns

TERMS ARRANGED.
PARKER'S, NEW STATION STREET, LEEDS.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED.
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR, GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE,
(Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 to £1 0 0 .. 1½d. per month.
£1 0 0 .. 5s. .. ..
£3 0 0 .. 10d. .. ..
£5 0 0 .. 1s. .. ..
£10 0 0 .. 1s. 6d. .. ..
£15 0 0 .. 2s. 6d. .. ..
£20 0 0 .. 3s. 6d. .. ..
Same above £20 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
(LODGE ENTRANCE: 4 LADY LANE LEEDS

PATENTS for INVENTIONS. obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
Late Obtest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free. on British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2718 HALIFAX 358.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, NEAR PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8,
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

Established 37 Years.
WM. DENTON & SON,
23, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL.
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.
Insurance Brokers.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

CULTIVATORS, PLOUGHS, HARROWS, CHAFF & TURNIP CUTTERS, &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
100 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON MONDAY NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART.
A Number of FAT CATTLE, SHEEP, PIGS, AND POULTRY.
Garforth: Tel. 15. WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

ON WEDNESDAY NEXT AT 11 O'CLOCK.
PARKSIDE FARM, BEESTON.
(Ten minutes' walk from Dewsbury Road Tram Terminus).
Mr. WILLIAM ASH,
Instructed by Mr Sam Smith, will Sell by Auction,
THE MODERN FARM IMPLEMENTS,
30 FAT GEESE.
30 HEAD OF POULTRY (mixed Birds).
4 STACKS OF OAT STRAW.
STACK OF WHEAT STRAW.
40 TONS OF SWEDE TURNIPS.
3 TONS OF MANGELS.
36,000 VICTORIA RHUBARB ROOTS, forced last season and now lying in beds (in lots of about 1,000)
The whole of the TIMBER AND BOARDS, recently forming two Fowling Sheds, including 300 RAILWAY SLEEPERS, and a quantity of Boards, 20 ft. by 4 to 5 in.
ORDER OF SALE:—Implements, Poultry, Produce, Timber, and Roots.

W. A. F. BURDOWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON.
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS.
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

THREE GOOD LINES:
CINEMA GREEN PEAS,
Housewife Marrowfat Peas,
Id., 1½d. & 3d. Packets,
— AND —
CROWN VINEGAR.
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
DEWSBURY ROAD, LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this :-

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists,
and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

FOR FUNERALS.
CABS AND CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS.
J. T. BUCKTON, PROPRIETOR.
10, Basinghall Street, Boar Lane,
Telegrams—"BUCKTON, LEEDS." Telephone 1000
ALWAYS READY. Double Seat Night
LEEDS UNDERTAKERS

HARRY VERITY,
English Meat Purveyor,
CENTRAL MARKET, LEEDS (OPPOSITE NEEDHAM'S),
HAVING PURCHASED ALL
HIS MAJESTY'S CATTLE from the HOME FARM, SANDRINGHAM, EXHIBITED AT THE LEEDS SMITHFIELD SHOW
Will Offer the Same for Sale this Week and Next Week.

Ordinary Prices will be Charged.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

Rothwell Courier & Times
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1914.

Hatred against the British, we are told, has now got to such a pitch among German officers and soldiers that they no longer salute each other in the ordinary way, and they now say "The Lord punish England," the response to which is "May He do so." To all intents and purposes this is a prayer—an appeal to the Deity to make hatred a sacred cause. For years jealousy of Britain, of whose power and wealth they were covetous, has possessed the minds of leading Germans, and now it has been turned into a passion of hatred because this country has dared to thwart the Prussians in their policy of aggrandisement in Europe. Without doubt the ultimate aim of German militarism was the crushing of Great Britain, and the preparations, as well as the time chosen for war, by the Germans, demonstrate that they have been looking forward to the hour for striking for years. Two or three individuals—not ranked as Statesmen—have uttered warnings to the British nation, but they have been like "voices crying in the wilderness." Men of all political schools have sincerely believed that the great German nation would honour its pledges and would commit no outrage on civilization—in fact, that no efforts would be directed against Britain, but the revelations of the last few months have shown how utterly wrong opinion in this country has been. Germany, whatever the Imperial Chancellor may say, stands convicted before the world, and no lip-genuity nor sophistry can explain away what has occurred. The ultimate object of German policy, let it be remembered, was the destruction of the British Empire, built up by the devotion and self-sacrifice of men of our race extending over many years—a heritage that we accept with gratitude from the men who have gone before. And why should Germany seek to do this? Britain was content to live on peaceful terms with all her neighbours, she did not wish to grab more territory, and she was animated by no other feeling than that of goodwill, even towards Germany, as the opinions of our public men generally prove. Germany, however, was not satisfied. Ambitious beyond the dreams of Napoleon, her leaders embarked on a policy world-wide in its scope, and their determination was to dominate the nations of the earth. The Prussian military men, and those who acted with them, believed that they were super-men, and that their soldiers were superior to any fighting men in the world, so it came about that, with this belief securely held, they thought they should be the leaders in every department of life. Britons, according to their notions, were played out, and the Empire had only to be touched by the magic German sword to crumple up. Mingled with their jealously was a supreme contempt for the British, but they have greatly over-rated themselves and under-rated the nations whom they have sought to subdue. And they now hate us with a hatred which we cannot understand. In Belgium they have been guilty of every crime in the calendar, and they find excuses for everything they do. This is, of course, on a parallel with the teaching of Nietzsche, who held that whatever the super-men succeeded in doing was right. No one had any right to question their morality. The Archbishop of York recently said something which looked as if he were finding excuses for the Kaiser, and people received his remarks with indignation, and, of course, there were numerous protests, whatever he intended to say or mean. His Grace has since condemned the "spirit of malignity towards our enemies which seems to me to be quite incompatible" with any kind of Christian priceple." We are told, it is true, to love our enemies, and the British race has always been generous to those against whom they have fought, but we are human after all, and even the Archbishop would find it difficult to love men who have shot innocent Belgian peasants, ravished Belgian women, destroyed churches and cathedrals, and used the white flag treacherously in order to butcher our soldiers. It is doubtful, too, that a spirit of hatred exists in this country. Men generally believe that the German nation has been hoodwinked, and that the people are being used by the military party simply to carry out their purposes, and, in any events, they could not have modified German policy, because they have not the power. Our soldiers, by their treatment of German wounded, have shown conclusively that they are not animated by hate, although they have seen the atrocities committed by the enemy, and in regard to the nation generally, there is a feeling of determination to protect itself, obeying the first law of life, by destroying the power which would, if it had the chance, reduce it to helplessness. In Britain we are always too ready to magnify our own faults, giving ready argument for the enemy, and when we are struggling to preserve ourselves it is unwise to draw conclusions from the outbursts of a few people and to fasten them on the nation.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.

Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.

Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 1s. 6d. each

"In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

DEATHS.

HARRIS.—December 12th, 1914, at his son's residence, Hampsthwaite, William Harris, aged 73. late of Halton.

NAYLOR.—On December 14th, at 1, The Orchards, Crossgates, Mary, widow of the late Dandison Naylor, aged 62.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS

ROTHWELL

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Messrs J. W. Morkill (Chairman), E. Parkin, E. Penrose Green, J. Hirst, J. P. Hall, W. Lewis, and C. Holtday.

At the London College of Music examination held in Leeds on Monday, Miss Millicent Armitage, of Rothwell, who is under the tuition of T. A. Idle, L.L.C.M., was successful in obtaining the Associate (A.L.C.M.), with high honours.—Advt.

SALVATION ARMY.—The new officers, Ensign and Mrs Smith, who have been transferred from the Garforth Corps, have settled down at Rothwell, and they conducted their first services during the week-end. On Sunday afternoon the choir of the Lofthouse Wesleyan Church rendered the cantata "The daughter of Moab," under the conductorship of Mr T. Hempson.

HER FORTY-FOURTH APPEARANCE.—On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions, Elizabeth Cox, widow, of Crofton, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly at Rothwell on Saturday afternoon. P.C. Bosomworth, who proved the case, said she was threatening to break the windows of a shop in Commercial Street. He tried five or six times to get her away but she would not go. The Chairman pointed out that it was defendant's 44th appearance, and imposed a fine of 5s. and costs, or in default, seven days.

WHIST DRIVE.—The annual whist drive and musical evening promoted by the Rothwell Bowling Club took place in the Church Schools on Wednesday night, when there was an attendance of about seventy. The whist was interspersed with musical items, the following contributing towards the harmony:—Madame Holroyd, the Sister Riponi, and Messrs W. Bennett, and A. Clark. The pianist and accompanist was Miss Pickersgill, and the musical director was Mr H. Clark. The prize-winners at whist were:—Ladies—Mrs Barker and Mrs Harrison, Gent.'s —Messrs J. Hobson and C. P. Ward. The president of the Bowling Club (Mr R. Batty) acted as steward for the whist.

MUSICAL SUCCESS.—In connection with the London College of Music there was a large gathering in the Albert Hall, Leeds, on Monday last, when the distribution of diplomas, certificates, and prizes took place. The Chairman, the Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr J. E. Bedford), gave a pleasing address. The Lady Mayoress, who was also on the platform, received a large bouquet during the interval. Mr Percy S. Bright, Mus. Bac., Lond., F.R.C.O., was in attendance and gave good advice to the students. At the conclusion the successful candidates were presented with caps and gowns, diplomas, and certificates by the Lady Mayoress, and among them was Miss Ethel Morton, who obtained her certificate along with her cap and gown. Miss Morton has previously obtained two certificates in connection with the Leeds College of Music, where she has been a student for many years.

BILLIARDS.—Playing in the senior section of the Dutton and District Billiard League, Rothwell Mechanics' Institute defeated Hopetown Reading Room by 128 points on Saturday night. Rothwell won five games out of six, scoring an aggregate of 575, while their opponents made 447. The individual scores were as follows (Rothwell MI. names first):—H. Taylor 100 v. T. Bond 65, D. Drury 100 v. T. Bond 61, J. T. Priestley 100 v. J. Green 71, H. Priestley 100 v. E. Percy 54, A. Hainsworth 75 v. J. Benton 100, and G. H. Palmer 100 v. T. Wade 81. The junior team matches was played between Rothwell Working Man's Club and the Temperance Hall at the former club, and the home team won by 31 points, the scores being 554 and 523 respectively. W.M.C.—Jacob 100 (one brief)—H. Bennett 100 v. E. Edwards 82, O. Banks 100 v. Armsted 72, L. Thurwell 89 v. Lord 100, R. Deakin 100 v. Bains 92, G. Pickergill 85 v. Lunn 100, and J. Hargreaves 100 v. Hepworth 77.

FOOTBALL.—The match in the second round of the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition has yet to be decided between Rothwell Parish Church and New Wortley Gas Works. On Saturday the teams had a replay owing to the fact that on the first occasion the Gas Workers were 45 minutes' late, and at their second meeting the sides played a drawn game of three goals each. The visitors lost the toss and Broughton kicked off up the slope, and the ball was not long before they penetrated, ravished the ball through, Broughton beating Bradley after the Parish Church team had been penalised. Rothwell for a time held the sway, and should have scored. Lunn missed a fine chance when well placed, his shot striking the crossbar. Once more the visitors were prominent, and, after a dashing movement by the forward line and a clever centre by Wood, Spiers beat Bradley. Shortly after J. Gregg netted for Rothwell, and the score was equalised before the interval by New Wortley being penalised, Rogers taking the penalty kick. On the resumption Rothwell for a time played well up the slope, but after once breaking through, the visitors caused some excitement in the home half. Bradley let his side down in rushing out to save and once more New Wortley assumed the lead. However, shortly before the end of the game Rothwell again got on terms. Lunn scoring.

ALLERTON BYWATER

On Saturday afternoon Lock Lane W. were defeated by Fryston Colliery by two goals to nil.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT.—On Wednesday evening a patriotic concert was held in the Council Schools, and an excellent entertainment in that the room was crowded. Several Belgian soldiers from Templemeam were present, County Councillor Dewhirst presided, and the Hilton Quarette Party submitted an excellent programme of music, and it was thoroughly enjoyed. At the close Mr Smithson proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman and artistes, and the Vicar seconded. A Belgian Refugee, who is residing at Roundhay, made a speech, expressing gratitude for what this country had done for the gallant little nation, and the resolution was passed. The proceeds, amounting to between £15 and £16, were for the Belgian wounded soldiers and the Belgian Refugees.

BOWERS ALLERTON

LECTURE.—On Friday evening an interesting lecture was given before the members of the Men's Bible Class at the Mission Hall—Mr Walter Blackburn presiding. The lecturer was Mr A. Blakeley, of Normanton, and he gave an interesting account of his recent trip to South Africa and what he saw there. At the close he was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks.

LIFE-SAVING IN MINES.—In connection with the Friday Night Bible Class a very interesting lecture was given by Mr Hanmer, of Rotherham, on "Life-Saving in Mines." The lecturer went back to the earliest type of rescue apparatus invented for saving life in mines, and he described at length the various types introduced in Germany, and Belgium, and also the apparatus now in use at the collieries in our own district. He explained the use of the "pulmotor" used for the restoration of persons when overcome by foul atmospheres in mines, and described at length the rescue work done at the disaster at the Cadeby Colliery. He had the "Dreegear" life-saving apparatus and the "pulliphor" with him in the room, and gave practical illustrations of the work. The lecture was illustrated by 100 lantern slides, and the use of the lantern was kindly given by Mr Ismay Robinson, who presided over the meeting. The meeting was presided over by Mr W. S. Blackburn (general manager of the colliery), and about 100 men were present.

MISSION HALL.—On Monday the Mission was favoured with a visit from the Rev. L. B. Dalby, of the Brunswick Methodist Church, Leeds. In the afternoon he conducted divine service preaching from St. Luke, 7 chap., verse 9. The service was much enjoyed by a good number who gathered to hear the man with a message. Tea was provided in the schoolroom after the service, and a good number stayed to partake of the good things provided. At seven o'clock the rev. gentleman gave a lecture on "Admiral Blake." He described the age in which the Puritan lived, his birthplace, education, and his entry into political life, and his conflict with Charles I., and other royal princes. He told why Blake was selected to be admiral of the fleet by Oliver Cromwell, when he was a colonel of the Yeomanry, of the first sea fight with the Dutch and his defeat, and then of his great victories in a few months afterwards. The lecturer showed that the whole theme of his life was devotion to duty. Mr W. S. Blackburn presided. A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered to both the lecturer and chairman at the close

CROSSGATES

Mrs H. S. Bower, Crossgates, desires to thank all friends for expressions of sympathy in her sad bereavement and for floral tributes.—Advt.

WESLEY GUILD.—At a meeting of the Guild on Wednesday evening in the Lecture Hall, Dr Edward Cundall (China) gave an address on "The present position of Medical Missions in China." The Rev. E. Ball presided.

LECTURE.—Under the auspices of St. James' Guild, a lecture on "Belgium, of Yesterday and To-day" was delivered by Mr H. G. Brown, of Leeds, the well-known traveller and lecturer, in the Manston Schools. The Vicar presided, and there was a good attendance. The lecture proved a most interesting one, and was admirably illustrated by lantern slides, and, at the close, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr Brown, on the call of Mr Allanson, seconded by Mr Chadwick. A collection on behalf of the Belgian Fund realized £3 4s.

UNIVERSITY TUTORIAL CLASS.—This class concluded the first half of the session this week. The work has been intensely interesting, under the scholarly and sympathetic guidance of Professor Moorman, of the Leeds University. In addition to Shakespeare's Macbeth, with which the session was opened, selections from Pope, Coleridge, and Wordsworth have been studied. Much good and original work has been done by members. The class started with 28 members, and there are still vacancies for 4 before the maximum of 32 is reached.

RECITAL.—On Saturday night at the Manston Schools a large audience attended to hear a recital by Mr Tom Harwood of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," which was given by the well-known elocutionist in masterly style. Miss Doris Dixon, a promising young soprano vocalist, contributed songs, which were highly appreciated, and Mrs Cooper was the accompanist. The Vicar explained that the recital was the outcome of an effort by seven little girls, who raised £2 by the sale of needle sachets. It was suggested that the money might be made to produce more, and the recital was arranged. The proceeds were for Queen Mary's Fund. The proceedings were commenced and finished with the singing of the National Anthem. A sum of about £8 was realised.

CROSSGATES BAPTIST FELLOWSHIP.—Under the auspices of Crossgates Baptist Fellowship a lecture on "The history of song," was delivered by Mr J. A. Mackay, of Harrogate (formerly of Halton), in the Lecture Hall, Whitkirk, on Tuesday night. Mr Alvera Chadwick, of Halton, presided, and there was on excellent attendance. Mr Mackay, whose lectures on music and musicians are always enjoyable and instructive, had the assistance of Mr T. B. Garrs, of Whitkirk, whose song illustrations added greatly to the value of the paper, while Mr S. Kirkby, of Whitkirk, played the pianoforte accompaniments in a very efficient manner. At the outset, the lecturer dealt with folk-song, the songs of the troubadours, and the music of the monks. The development of song in this country was interestingly described, a great deal of useful information being given about the writers, and then Mr Mackay referred to the great German musicians, Schubert claiming special attention. The latter part of the lecture was devoted to modern song-makers, and Mr Mackay advocated the cultivation of song-singing in schools as a means of arousing greater interest in the nation in this department of music. Mr Garrs, who has an excellent baritone voice, had a rather heavy task, contributing about a dozen songs, including two Hungarian numbers, and songs by Handel, Schubert, and Sir Arthur Sullivan. His work was done admirably, and the audience gave every evidence of thorough appreciation of it. At the close Mr J. Fisher, of Halton, who is himself a vocalist, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr Mackay for his delightful lecture, to Mr Garrs, and to Mr Kirkby. Mr F. Horton, of Crossgates, seconded, and the resolution was heartily carried. On the call of Mr T. K. Diggle, of Whitkirk, a similar compliment was paid to the Chairman.

GARFORTH

The total proceeds of the concert for the maintenance of the Belgian refugees in Garforth amounted to £7 19s. 9d.

LIBEL SLANDER ACTION.—A political slander action was mentioned to Mr Justice Darling on Friday. Mr Barrington Ward said the plaintiff Mr Houlton was the managing director of one of the biggest colliery companies in Derbyshire. He was a Parliamentary candidate at the by-election in North-East Derbyshire last May. "I rather think," said counsel, "that the Liberal and the Labour man fell out and the Conservative fell in." (Laughter). The suggestion made was that Mr Houlton was a hypocrite, and that under the guise of benefitting the miners he was "stuffing" them. The defendant, Mr Smith, has now given a complete apology, and the matter was entirely settled subject to a statement being made in court. Mr Houlton is a son of the late Mr Charles Houlton, of Garforth, and manager of Micklefield Collieries.

PICTURE HOUSE.—Tonight and to-morrow the great attraction at the Picture House will be "Life," which is described as one of the finest pictures in the whole history of animated photography, and there should be crowded "houses." Capital programmes will be submitted for Christmas week. For Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday an exciting Vitagraph picture, "The night riders of Petersham" (in three parts) occupies the premier position. "The sands of Dee" is another pleasing drama acted by "Biograph" players. Commencing with Thursday, the special attraction will be the engagement of Miss Enid Walkington, "the pocket edition of Vesta Tilley," who will include in her songs, "The army of to-day's all right." The third series dealing with the Adventures of Kathleen ("The Temple of the Lion") will be screened, along with a popular Tuesday comedy "Hearts and swords." It should be noted that on Christmas day and Boxing day the performances will commence at 6.30 and 8.30. There will also be a matinee on Boxing day at 3 o'clock.

GREAT PRESTON

On Saturday afternoon Great Preston, in the Leeds Hospital Cup Competition, defeated Methley Perseverance by three goals to nil.

HALTON

PIGEON SHOOTING.—On Wednesday at the Irwin Arms, Halton, the members of the Hollins Gun Club had an afternoon's shooting under Gun Club Rules. Proceedings opened with a three-bird sweepstakes, for which there were seven entries. Mr A. Walker was the only competitor to kill all his birds, and he took the pool. Following came a six-bird sweepstakes, which secured nine entries. Mr H. Seal took first prize with five kills, and Mr A. Walker was second with four kills. Another six-bird sweep drew nine entries, and this was divided by Messrs E. Stead and A. Walker, with five kills each. Several small sweeps were also decided. Mr L. Sunter was the referee.

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday afternoon Waterloo Main Colliery and Zion U.M.C. met at Hunslet to replay their match in the first round of the Leeds and District Cup Competition. Zion started in promising fashion, and Pos-B opened their score. Platts, however, quickly equalised, and Crossley later put the visitors ahead. A few minutes afterward Clark and Platts netted again for the Colliery, and the former scored a second goal within a few minutes. Just before the interval Martin scored the home side's third goal. Waterloo Main Colliery were leading at half-time by 5 goals to 3. The second half proved all in favour of the visitors, and Clark scored twice for them. Waterloo Main won easily.

KIPPAX

PIE SUPPER.—The members of the United Methodist Church were the promoters of a pie supper, which was held in the church on Wednesday evening. There was a fair attendance.

COMMITTEE MEETING.—With a view to stimulating recruiting in Kippax, a lecture on "The cause of the war and its responsibilities" was given in the Parish Church Schoolroom on Wednesday evening by Mr S. Keen, of Leeds, who was supported by Major Ellis, of Pontefract. The Vicar presided. Slides showing Belgium in war time, the flight of its people, the many ruined buildings, etc., were exhibited, the lantern being manipulated by Mr Wilfred Smith.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT.—A patriotic concert was held in the Wesleyan Schoolroom on Monday evening. A committee of willing workers, with Mr J. Farrant as hon. sec., at the request of Mr L. J. Dewhirst, C.C., made arrangements for the concert, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the purchase of clothing and other requirements for the Belgian wounded soldiers, and for the relief of Belgians. The room was crowded, and the following programme was given:—Pianoforte solo, "Hungarian," Mr E. V. Allan; quartette, "Comrades in arms," Clifton Prize Quartette; song, "For your King and Country," Miss Jessie Allan; harp solo, Mr Gibson; song, "The Trumpeter," Mr A. B. Chapman; recital, "The day," Mr Bleakley Sayer; humorous song, Mr George Lister; song, "The sailor's grave," Mr Rogers Holloway; song, "Castellana," Miss Jessie Allan; humorous quartette, "Phyllis dyes her tresses"; quartette, "Here's life and health"; humorous song, "The cuckoo," Mr George Lister; duet, "The battle eve," Messrs Holloway and Chapman; recital, "The message," Mr Sayer; harp solo, Mr Gibson; song, "Up from Somerset," Mr Chapman; song, "Before you came," Miss Jessie Allan; song, "The veteran's song," Mr R. Holloway; humorous song, Mr George Lister; quartette, "Little Tommy went a-fishing." The pianist (Mr R. V. Allan) played the National Anthems of Russia, France, Japan, and Belgium. The singing of the last-named by the four Belgian soldiers who were on the platform was very much appreciated. The audience joined in the singing of "It's a long, long way to Tipperary." Mr Dewhirst, who presided, said that a feature of the war was the part the British Navy had played in keeping open the trade routes. The German ships had no place in any of the great oceans of the world. Mr E. Parkin, J.P., moved a vote of thanks to Mr and Mrs Dewhirst, and to the trustees of the premises, who had allowed the use of the schoolroom free of charge. The Vicar, in seconding, referred to the important part that the Belgian soldiers had played in the war. The Belgians had saved this country. If Paris had fallen, England would have had to reckon with Germany afterwards. Great credit was due to the noble Belgian nation. The time was coming when the Belgians and the Kaiser's people would meet in Berlin. The Kaiser had been a menace to the world, and those who had laid down their lives were crying from the dust against him. The Vicar read two letters from Ellis Henshaw and George Firth, boxing their friends at Kippax were in the best of health. They were in good health, and "chuffed" generally in France was cold and damp, they were not short as regards food and good warm clothing. They were delighted to do their level best for their King and country. The resolution was passed. The proceeds were about £10.

MOORTOWN

Mr. J. Beaumont, of Moortown, has given 10s. to the Belgian Relief Fund.

MIDDLETON

STRAY OFFICERS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Arthur McGowan, a labourer, of no fixed abode, was charged with loitering with intent to commit a felony. P.C. Tate stated that about 10.45 p.m. on Tuesday, December 8th, he was with P.C. Sowray on the Middleton Road, at Middleton, when they noticed prisoner loitering about. They watched him for about fifteen minutes, and then approached him. He stated that he had come from Leeds and was going to Wakefield. He was searched and charged, being subsequently taken to the police station. P.C. Sowray, who gave corroborative evidence, said prisoner was looking over a farmyard wall where there were chickens. Prisoner, in answer to the charge, said he was making his way to the Rothwell Workhouse. The Chairman, in committing him to prison for 14 days, said prisoner had a shocking record.

ROUNDHAY

A YOUNG OFFICER'S DEATH.—Mr A. E. Ives, of Roundhay, whose son, Lieutenant Kenneth Ives, died recently in the Military Hospital at York, received the following telegram from Buckingham Palace:—The King and Queen deeply regret the loss you and the Army have sustained by the death of your son in the service of his country. Their Majesties truly sympathise with you in your sorrow.—Private Secretary.

SCHOLES

PRESENTATION.—An interesting gathering took place at the Barleycorn Inn, Scholes, on Wednesday night, when the members of Scholes United Cricket Club presented their vice-captain (Mr Wetherall) with a standard reading lamp as a wedding gift. The hon. sec. of the club asked the captain (Mr Whitaker) to make the presentation, which he did in very appropriate terms, while a few remarks were made by Mr Haigh and Mr Alvin, who wished the recipient long life and happiness. In reply, Mr Wetherall thanked them sincerely for their handsome gift. He had been a member of the club since its formation, and the present would remind him of the many enjoyable hours he had spent with Scholes United on the cricket field. The lamp bore the following inscription on a copper plate:—"Presented to P. S. Wetherall by Scholes United C.C., on his marriage, Sept. 30th, 1914."

BEACROFT

Mr Samuel Dobson, of Seacroft, hay and corn merchant, and vice-chairman of Leeds Board of Guardians, left £8,083.

A DISCOVERY AT KILLINGBECK.—The dead body of a newly-born female child was found in a box under a wall in the Roman Catholic cemetery at Killingbeck, on Monday, by a grave-digger. The child, which was fully developed, and had lived, was wrapped in a piece of cloth, and the soap box in which it was found had been fastened by means of nails. The improvised little coffin was not lying under the wall the previous day, the grave-digger by whom it was found was working near the wall when he noticed the box. It is believed that the child died from neglect at birth. The inquest was opened on Tuesday afternoon and adjourned.

STOURTON

On Saturday afternoon Stourton United footballers and Altofts St. Mary's played a drawn game of two goals each.

P.S.A.—On Sunday afternoon at the P.S.A. service, held at the Primitive Methodist Church, the address was given by Mr H. Collinson. Mr Waterton was the organist.

STONE THROWING.—In the Children's Court at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, Ida Mary Barker, errand lad, living in Hunslet, was summoned for throwing stones to the danger of persons on the Pontefract Road at Stourton. P.C. Boys proved the offence, and said they had had several complaints from cyclists and motorists about boys throwing stones. The case was dismissed on payment of costs.

WOODLESFORD

THE BREWERIES.—The twenty-third ordinary general meeting of Bentley's Yorkshire Breweries, Ltd., was held at the Hotel Metropole, Leeds, on Wednesday, Col. T. G. Hunsdon presiding. On the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Mr C. E. Charlesworth, the report and accounts were accepted. Mr J. F. Milne proposed, and Mr Bennett seconded, a resolution to the effect that a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. on the Preference shares and 8 per cent. on the Ordinary shares (making 6 per cent. for the year) be paid. This was adopted. Colonel Hunsdon and Mr G. T. Bottomley were re-elected directors and Messrs. Reevors and Adgie were re-appointed auditors. A resolution of thanks to the directors and staff was heartily approved. The meeting was of a cordial nature, the only apprehension being as to the effect of the new war taxes.

OULTON DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

The monthly meeting of the Oulton District Education Sub-Committee was held at the Y.M.C.A. Buildings, Albion Place, Leeds, on Tuesday night—Mr G. M. Abley (Chairman) presiding. Others present were Messrs B. Wood Higgins, J. H. Tomlinson, S. H. Young, and H. E. Gelder, with the Clerk (Mr H. W. Powell).

In presenting the attendance returns for the past month, the Clerk said they were down in nearly every case. Throughout the area four schools were closed owing to epidemics.

Mr Higgins remarked that he thought they would possibly have to close the school at Oulton altogether, as he had heard that two gentlemen had visited the school that afternoon with a view or taking it for military purposes.

The question of feeding necessitous school children was again on the agenda, but at none of the schools had any advantage to be taken of the Act.

In connection with the combined nursing scheme, the Clerk announced that Nurse Cowen had been appointed by the County Council to look after the district, and would work in Oulton-with-Woodlesford.

A CROSSGATES RESIDENT AT REDCAR.

EXCITING EXPERIENCES

A well-known Crossgates resident, who was at Redcar on Wednesday, writes to us as follows:—

The residents of Redcar had scarcely got over the excitement connected with the wreck of the "Lemberg" on Tuesday evening, when they received a shock by the visit of German warships, which came close to the shore on Wednesday morning. I was at breakfast at five minutes past eight when the hotel fairly trembled in consequence of the tremendous booming from one of the ships. The whole of the residents quickly ran out to ascertain what had happened, and, to their dismay, they found the German warships at work.

Boom followed boom in quick succession, and we could clearly see the battle-ships engaged. The shooting lasted for at least fifty minutes, and then the noise suddenly stopped. However, at 11.30 we heard firing again, but this time the ships could not be seen, as they were far out at sea.

On the previous night the attention of the residents was attracted by what appeared to be a ship on fire, and this turned out to be a fishing boat wrecked on Saltscar Rocks, and the crew had set a tar barrel on fire in order to draw attention to their perilous position. Afterward the boat was in complete darkness, but as I was going to bed I noticed a big flare from the same boat. Thinking this singular, I went out and walked to the end of the pier where people gathered thought the light mysterious when the crew had been taken off.

Next morning I had an interview with three of those who had been rescued. I asked what was the meaning of the light from 10.30 to 11.30, and they said it must have been another ship. Of course, it was not, as it was in the same position. A sea-faring man joined in the conversation, and said this occurred on the east coast would have been there unless they had been other motives, as the sea was calm, and there was no fog at the time. My friend asked how many there were of the crew. "Thirteen," was the reply. "How many were Englishmen?" "Eleven." "And what were the others?" "They were Danes," was the unexpected answer. The conclusion that he thought there had been signalling from the boat, but the fishermen would not have it.

THE ROADS.—At a meeting of Tadcaster East Parish Council on Monday evening—Mr W. Crossley presiding—complaint was made as to the bad state of the road through Tadcaster East, and of the road scrapings being left by the side of the road, to the inconvenience of the public. The Clerk was directed to write to the District Council on the subject. It was also decided to ask for the adoption of a motor speed limit through Tadcaster East.

RECRUITING THE POLICEMAN.—At a meeting of the West Riding Standing Joint Committee, at Wakefield, on Wednesday, Alderman J. C. Rhodes suggested that permission should be granted to all members of the Force to join the colours, and to return to their present positions after the war without the deduction of any period of service for pension purposes. It was very desirable, he thought, that the men everywhere they could to facilitate enlisting in the present state of affairs. The matter was adjourned.

SOUTH MILFORD SICK AND DIVIDING CLUB.—The annual general meeting of this club was held at the White Swan Hotel, South Milford, on Monday night, and there was a large number of members present. This club has now a membership of 60, and the secretary read a statement of the year's working, which was most satisfactory, showing that the year had been the best they have had. A dividend of about 10 per cent. will be paid to each member on Monday night next, leaving a reserve fund of £8 10s. The committee have decided that all members joining the colours shall be made honorary members without paying any contributions, and should they return home sick or wounded, they shall receive their sick pay.

HUNSLET RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL.

TEMPLENEWSAM AND OULTON AFFAIRS

The monthly meeting of the Hunslet Rural District Council was held at the Council Offices, Leek Street, Hunslet, yesterday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs P. S. Marsden (vice-chairman), W. Verity and J. Flanagan, with the Clerk (Mr W. B. Pindar), the medical officer of health (Dr J. Buck), the sanitary inspectors (Messrs W. Whitehead and P. C. Higgins), and the surveyor (Mr J. Nuttall).

Dr Buck presented his report for the past four weeks, and it showed that fourteen births—six in Oulton-with-Woodlesford, one in Templenewsam, and seven in Middleton—had been registered, while the deaths numbered six—three being in Oulton-with-Woodlesford, one in Templenewsam, and two in Middleton. The following infectious cases were also notified—one case of scarlet fever in Oulton-with-Woodlesford (which was removed to hospital), two cases of diphtheria in Templenewsam; one case of erysipelas in Oulton-with-Woodlesford, and a case of pulmonary tuberculosis in Templenewsam. The last, said the medical officer, was very low for the time of the year, although there was a lot of measles and whooping cough about, but the schools would be closing within a few days, which would help matters.

The Clerk reported that he had received a notice from the Yorkshire Electric Power Company to the effect that they were promoting a Bill in the next session of Parliament, which will empower them to supply electricity for lighting practically throughout the same area in which they are now able to supply electricity for power purposes only. The Hunslet Rural District would be in the area with the exception of Oulton and Woodlesford. There were a few points in the Bill which the District Councils' Association considered unsatisfactory, and they have now engaged in communicating with the Company with a view to getting the points of difference cleared up. Another meeting was to be held on Monday, and they would report further in due course as to whether their efforts are successful or not.

It was decided not to give consent to the Company for supplying the area until they heard further from the District Councils' Association.

A circular letter from the Rural Housing Association was read stating that owing to the war the rate of interest on loans has risen from 3½ to 4 per cent., and the building of houses would be more costly, and they were afraid that local authorities would most likely be putting off what would be necessary work—only to start when the rate would be possibly higher. The Clerk commented that the Association evidently did not want them to slacken their efforts.

The question of the Councils' men and officials enlisting in the Army was considered. The Clerk stated that since the last meeting a circular had been issued from the Prime Minister, Mr Bonar Law, and Mr Henderson to house-holders, and the Council had not considered the question if any of their own men should enlist. Many public bodies had agreed that any of their employees who enlisted should have their places kept open for them on their return home after the war. He had brought the matter before the Council for them to pass a similar resolution.

Mr Thomas: Yes, I will move that we pass a resolution to that effect.

Mr Marsden seconded, and it was decided that any employee of the Council joining the Forces should have his Government allowance made up to his usual wage.

It was reported that the Templenewsam Parish Council had given their consent to the diversion of a footpath at Newsam Green.

Mr Marsden: It will now have to go before the Quarter Sessions.

The Clerk: Yes.

The water consumption of Oulton and Woodlesford for the month was reported to be rather less than last year, being 62,000 gallons against 65,000 gallons. There was no serious leakages.

With regard to the street lighting at Oulton, the inspector reported that odd lamps had been found to be out at different times owing to the oil trouble—naphtha having got into the burners. The lamps in Fleet Lane had had to be taken down owing to their being broken by stone throwing. The Clerk reported that he had received an application signed by sixteen residents for two lamps in Armitage's new row, Quarry Hill, Oulton. The inspector had reported that one lamp was certainly needed at the bottom of the row.

It was resolved that one lamp be erected.

At the conclusion of the business the Chairman said he hoped that they would all have as happy a Christmas as it was possible to be under the present circumstances, and that there would be a brighter outlook at Christmas and the New Year than had been the case during the past few months.

FOOTBALL.—A meeting of the York and District Football Association Council was held in the Lanteen Tower Restaurant on Wednesday night, when Mr T. Henderson presided. W. Husband, Tadcaster A.F.C., who was sent off for striking in the St. Clement's v. Tadcaster match, on Oct. 10th, was suspended until December 31st.

MELROSE F.C.—The footballers of South Milford who are now serving their King and country are:—A. Atkinson, E. Chilton, J. Grimbley, N. Hansen, J. Neville, E. Lambert, R. Riley, L. Wilson, C. Wetherell, W. Thornton, J. Hill, A. Tacksen, T. Grimbley, A. Atkinson, B. Wice, G. Daly, G. Pollard, T. Baker, and S. Arrowsmith.

WHIST DRIVE.—A successful whist drive and dance were held on Friday night, in connection with the South Milford and District Fanciers' Society, in aid of the War Fund, and there were about 100 persons present. The first prize for ladies was won by Miss Councill Hill, and the second by Miss Bessie Johnson, and the first prize for gentlemen went to Mr H. Harland (Micklefield), and the second to Mr J. Thompson, South Milford. Mr Dyson was M.C. for the whist, and Mr J. Terry M.C. for dancing. Mr A Johnson and Mr W Lindley supplied the music. The refreshments were given by friends.

SELBY URBAN COUNCIL.—At the meeting of the Selby Urban District Council on Monday evening—Mr T. S. Ullathorne, chairman, presiding, it was agreed that on the Local Government Board sanctioning the purchase of further land on the Flaxley Road, a scheme be submitted for the building of houses on the site. With reference to the application by the Yorkshire Electrical Distributors & Power Co., for a provisional Order for the supply of electricity in the Urban District, the Clerk stated that the company had offered that if the Council did not oppose the application, they would give the right of purchase, at the end of 21 years, of the company's works in the Urban District as a going concern. The Council adopted a resolution to oppose the company's application in the event of satisfactory terms not being obtained. Mr Mark Scott and the manager of the gas works were authorised to attend a meeting at Leeds on the 22nd inst., with reference to opposing the Yorkshire Electrical Power Company's Bill.

GARFORTH AND DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

The monthly meeting of the Garforth District Education Committee was held on Wednesday evening at the Education Offices, Garforth—Mr John Wordsworth (Chairman) presiding. The other members present were the Rev. B. Shepheard Walwyn (Aberford), Messrs W. Y. K. Young (Lotherton) H. Gascoigne, H. Chappel, T. S. Slater, and F. Richardson (Garforth), with the Clerk (Mr H. W. Powell).

The Clerk, in giving the attendance returns, said that they were lower than usual, and practically every school last month was affected by ailments. Garforth Parochial School (mixed department) had the best record, and even there one or two cases of measles occurred.

Labour certificates were granted to seven Aberford children, about the same number for Garforth, and one for Barwick.

Reports on the manner in which caretakers' duties were carried out at Garforth, Aberford, Barwick, and Scholes schools were read, and they were satisfactory.

Mr Slater inquired if anything had been heard about the proposed improvements at Barwick School. The Clerk answered in the negative. The Committee's letter would go before the County Authority.—The Chairman said the matter had been passed on to Wakefield.—The Clerk: And they will take steps as they think fit in the matter.—The Chairman: This is a matter that has been going on for seven years. They have promised and promised, and nothing has been done yet.

A report by the County Council inspector on the Garforth Council School was read, and the Chairman said it was an excellent one.

With regard to the boundary wall it was proposed to erect at Garforth Council School, the County Authority stated that it had been decided not to proceed with the work at present.

The Clerk reported that, under the school nurse scheme, Nurse Miss M. Cowen had been appointed to work in Garforth, Kippax, Great and Little Preston, and Oulton-with-Woodlesford. She would also carry out the duties connected with the notification of births.—The Chairman said that if she carried out her duties she would have a lot to do.

No case of distress among children, necessitating the giving of meals, was reported.

It was reported that the attendance at the evening schools at Garforth was 23 out of 34.

With regard to the suggested special classes during the war, the Chairman said that no necessity for them had arisen in Garforth.

The examination for county minor scholarships takes place at Garforth on February 13th.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE.

	£ s. d.
Amount of subscriptions previously acknowledged	230 10 . 6
Underground workmen, boys, and screwmen, Sisters and Isabella Pits, per Mr C. H. Hebden (13th contribution)	6 15 8
Underground workmen, boys, and screwmen, Trench Pit, per Mr E. W. Ogden (6th contribution)	2 1 3
Total to date	£239 7 5

WM. GEO. BUSHELL,
Hon. Sec. and Treas.

HALTON MAN'S PURCHASE OF KING'S CATTLE

Mr Harry Verity, English meat purveyor, of the Central Market, Leeds, who resides at Roseville, Halton, purchased all the King's cattle from the Home Farm, Sandringham, exhibited at the Leeds Smithfield Show.

Mr Verity is, therefore, in an excellent position to meet all the demands of the Christmas trade, and the meat will be sold at ordinary prices at his business premises at the Central Market, Leeds, this week and the next.

PATENTS.—Patent Fat compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Brothers, Halifax (co-applications)—W. J. Clarkson, Leeds, an improved boot protector or stud. Patents sealed—Albrecht and Albrecht, Ltd., Leeds, improvements in suit boxes; J. Bromet, Low Thornton, and H. G. Wood, Tadcaster, centrifugal separators for sewage, etc. Patent renewed—W. D. Borrill, Doncaster, an improved cleansing fluid or composition.

A CAWOOD ABILL.—Messrs Hepper and Sons, Ltd., offered for sale at the Londesborough Hotel, Selby, on Wednesday, the Perseverance Roller Flour Mill, in Thorpe Lane, Cawood. The property consisted of the copyhold property and mills built in 1854, and the fixed machinery and plant. The bidding reached £1,150, at which the property was withdrawn. The auctioneers stated that the valuation of the mills stood in the books at £5,050. The property was offered for sale by order of the receiver, appointed by the Debenture holders in re M. and T. Smith, Ltd.

CONCERT.—On Saturday the Collingham Pierrot Troupe gave a concert in aid of the War and Belgian Relief Funds at the Trustees' Hall, Boston Spa. There was a very good attendance. The National Anthems of the Allies was the first item, led by Misses Clark and Rider, and the audience heartily joined in the singing. Miss Ida Thornton, R.A.M., elocutionist, of 172 Woodhouse Lane, Leeds, gave a recitation of a humorous character, and Miss Clark sang "Bobo Ribbons," and Miss Norman Treliving caused much amusement with his catchy songs, and he and Mrs Emmerson did well in the "Duchess Duet," and also in the duet "Come underneath my big umbrella." Mr C. Hamer was in good form, and sang very creditably Elgar's well-known "Land of hope and glory." Mr W. Emmerson delighted the audience with his original verses "The war alphabet," and for an encore he gave a monologue "The land of the might have been." He was also heard to advantage in a character song, "Sam," and in a duet, "Our farm," with Miss Whitehead. The ladies' quintet, "Five German Warriors," caused much laughter, Mrs Emmerson supplying the fun. A concerted number, "1099," was very interesting, the verses being of a topical nature. Mr C. Hamer and Miss Clark played the accompaniments in an efficient manner.

FAMOUS-HOUSE-FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS
£1/1/ £3/3/ £5/5/ £10/10/
to £100 each.
SEE WINDOWS
Dyson's Diamonds
BEST SELECTION IN THE COUNTY.
2-4-25-26 BRIGGATE. LEEDS.
50 YEARS.
Watches
10/6 TO 50 GUINEAS.
THE "ROUGHWEAR" 15/-
THE "UNIVERSITY" 30/-
OLD WATCHES & JEWELLERY TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.
RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WANSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET
Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

For TOWN or COUNTRY.
For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.
THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
IS AT 11
Fabor 45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

Established 1836. Established 1836.
GENERAL
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Annual Benefits and conditions. Low Premiums.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE every 10th year to householders and private property owners.
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in occupation with risks of Fire, Burglary, and accidents to servants.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, including guaranteed options.
Workmen's Compensation.
Motor Car, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee, Driving Accidents, Live Stock, Plate Glass, and Pursers' Insurances.
Chief Offices—General Buildings, Perth, Scotland.
General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C.
The Oldest and Strongest Independent Office.
Assets exceed £2,500,000.
Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager . . . F. NOEL-MILLER, J.P.

Purveyors of Marmalade
To H.M. King George V.
Frank COOPER'S "OXFORD" MARMALADE.
The "Oxford" has a distinctive flavour, has the real home-made character, and goes further — than any other.
OBTAINABLE AT
Walter Jubb's, Austhorpe Rd., Crossgates
ALSO IN
S. BORDER & Co., YORK.

MR R. BENSON-JOWITT'S WILL.

LEGACIES TO EMPLOYEES.

Mr Robert Benson Jowitt (at one time Chairman of the Skyrack Branch of Magistrates), of Harstwood Lodge, Tunbridge Wells, left £58,912. Testator left:—

£6,000 upon trust for the wife and children of his son John Herbert (reduced from £10,000 by reason of the present war, capital and income having been very seriously diminished);

£50 each to his coachman, Henry Malthouse, and his gardener, Herbert Silky, if serving; £100 to Maria Spencer and £50 to Emily Spencer, if serving; £100 to his butler, William Francis Bound, if serving;

To his wife, £5,000, the household effects and consumable stores, etc., use for life of Harstwood Lodge, and an annuity of £1,500 or the income from the residue whichever be the lesser; £100 to his wife's niece, Nessie McCulloch; a collection of coins, private papers, diaries, and four portraits of his son, Frederick.

The residue of his property he left to his three sons equally.

A ROUNDHAY OFFICER'S DEATH.

MILITARY FUNERAL AT LAWNSWOOD.

The remains of Second-Lieutenant Kenneth Hill Ives (Roundhay), of the 8th Leeds Rifles, whose death took place from pneumonia in York Military Hospital, were interred at Lawnswood Cemetery, Leeds, on Saturday afternoon, with full military honours. The coffin was covered with the Union Jack, and on it rested the dead officer's sword, belt, and cap. The pallbearers were six brother officers, and most of the 8th Battalion lined the road from the cemetery gates to the chapel.

The battalion also sent a firing party and buglers, and the officers present included Lieut.-Col. E. Kitson Clark, commanding the battalion; Lieut.-Col. W. Heyworth, commanding the reserve battalion to the 8th Leeds Rifles, Major Bousfield, Capt. Salter, and Capt. Wilson.

The service was taken by the Rev. C. E. O'Connor Pinton, vicar of St. Edmund's, Roundhay, assisted by the Rev R. Macpherson, Minor Canon of Ripon Cathedral and Chaplain to the 1st West Riding Infantry Brigade, and the Rev. H. S. Woolcombe, vicar of Armley, and Chaplain to the 8th Leeds Rifles.

The family mourners present were Mr and Mrs Alfred Ives (father and mother), Master L. Ives (brother), and the Misses A. and D. Ives (sisters). Others who attended were Mr Arthur Willey, with whom Lieut. Ives was articled before being admitted as a solicitor, Mr N. G. Morrison, Mr W. Hodgson, Mr F. W. Somers, Mr J. A. Atkinson (Leeds Law Students' Committee), and Mr J. W. Hargrave and Mr Ratcliffe (from Mr Willey's office). Seven members of the Leeds "Pals" Battalion, personal friends of the dead officer, were also present.

TADCASTER TOWER BREWERY COMPANY.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The twentieth annual ordinary general meeting of the Tadcaster Tower Brewery Co., Ltd., was held on Saturday at the registered office, George Street, York, the Hon. Reginald Parker (chairman) presiding.

The directors' report, together with the balance sheet and profit and loss account for the year ended September 30th last, showed that the profit for the year, £14,092 1s. 3d., together with the amount brought forward from last year, £18,462 2s. 4d., made a total amount available of £42,554 5s. 7d. The interest and interim dividend on preference shares, directors' and trustees' fees, had absorbed £16,671 10s., leaving a balance of £25,882 15s. 7d., from which the final dividend on the preference shares had since been paid. In view of the increased taxation and uncertainty of the outlook for all brewery companies, a dividend at the reduced rate of 3 per cent. per annum on the ordinary shares was declared, leaving a balance of £20,382 15s. 7d. to be carried forward.

The report was adopted.

A Selby Soldier's End.

RECOMMENDED FOR PROMOTION.

Mr and Mrs T. Judge, of Wide Street, Selby, have received the following letter from Major C. Runkin, commanding A Squadron 9th Lancers in North-West France, in reference to the death of their son, Corporal Judge:—

I am very sorry indeed to have to inform you, dear your son, Corporal Judge, was killed at Messines on October 30th. He had just been recommended for promotion to sergeant for his excellent services in the field, and his death was a very severe loss to me and to the squadron. I am exceedingly sorry to have to give you this bad news, but it may be some compensation to know how much his services were appreciated.

As we have already stated, Corporal Judge took part in all the hard fighting at the front, beginning with the Mons engagements, in which his regiment played a heroic part.

DRAMATIC PERFORMANCE AT ROUNDHAY.

A pleasant entertainment was given on Friday night at Roundhay by the members of the St. Edmund's Dramatic Society, who performed a couple of little plays for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund of the parish. Neither of them took long in the acting, and the rest of the evening was occupied by an excellent programme of orchestral music, played under Mr J. K. Crawford's direction.

The principal dramatic effort was "Withered Leaves," a pretty comedietta by the late Fred Broughton, of Bradford, and which crowds a wealth of amusement and queer coincidence into a very little space. Quite the most lively member of the cast was Mr Oliver Cookson, who played the part of Tom Conyers with positive relish and enjoyment. His companion, Arthur Middleton, is sketched as a dreamy soul, and Mr Teasdale Wilson certainly acted the part with truth in this respect, though the way in which he proposed marriage would defeat its own purpose anywhere outside the region of "play-acting."

Miss Ethel Brown took the part of Lady Conyers with great charm and naturalness, and Miss Bertha Hampson played a difficult role with necessary restraint and tact. The play gives scope for but little stage movement, which is fortunate, considering the limits of this particular stage. But the most exciting episode occurs when Sir Norton Conyers (Mr Tiffany) proceeds to chase his son Tom up and down the glen. They managed to import a good deal of vigour into the performance, though one had to imagine most of it done out of view. The reconciliation between the two is one of the climaxes of the play, and it was done very effectively. The villain of the piece is Cyril Vane, acted by Mr Harold Pickard with the requisite cunning and art.

The other play staged was rather less ambitious, but none the less attractive—"Mrs Wilks's Will," the characters of which were excellently played by Miss Sturgeon, Miss Loul Hunter, Miss Hilda Wragg, Mrs Bell Voyer, and Mr H. M. Pullon.

SELBY RURAL COUNCIL AND WATER SUPPLIES.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD'S LETTER

At a meeting of the Selby Rural District Council, on Monday—Mr Harry Anson presiding—a letter was read from the Local Government Board with reference to the decision of the Rural Council to hold in abeyance the proposed water supply to the villages of Haddlesey, Burn, Temple Hirst, Hirst Courtney, Carlton, Camblesforth, and Drax, owing to the dear prices of materials, brought about by the war.

The Local Government Board stated that they could not regard the reasons given as sufficient to justify the Council in postponing the schemes, or in postponing the contemplated supply to the parish of Wistow. The localities named being greatly in need of water, the Local Government Board requested that the matter should be taken into further consideration.

The Chairman (Mr H. Anson) said the prices for pipes had gone down from £5 to £10 per cent. Since the matter was last discussed, but they were still 40 to 45 per cent. higher than in normal times. He thought it would be an unreasonable thing to force the Council to put pipes down at that price.

It was agreed that the Clerk reply that the Rural Council would reconsider the question, and that the surveyor had been instructed to commence the preparation of estimates and particulars.

POTATO TRADE IN SELBY DISTRICT.

The potato trade in the Selby district has never really recovered from early troubles. In the spring there seemed every prospect of a large potato crop, which would bring the district back to something like the position it held in former years. A severe frost in May, however, did irreparable damage to a great part of the crop. A May frost had not been known in the district for many years, and in a great number of fields the tops of the potatoes were completely struck off, as if they had been cut with a knife. Alarming reports were spread to the effect that the crop had been absolutely ruined, but this proved incorrect, although, of course, it was a much lighter crop than had been expected.

The outbreak of war caused an unsettlement in the potato trade as in all others, but this soon passed away, and for a time prices were low, briefly tempting farmers to send their consignments to the markets. The advent of autumn brightened up the trade a good deal, and prices became very fair from the farmers' point of view. Up-to-dates rose from about 50s. to about 80s., which is about their present average, and King Edwards reached 65s., at which price they have remained for the past week or two. Warp King Edwards have been about 80s. It is not generally expected that during the present winter there will be any great variation in the prices, and the circumstances and the light crop obviously account for any increases from previous years.

LOCAL FOOTBALL CLUBS AND THE HOSPITAL CUP.

A meeting of the Leeds Workpeople's Hospital Cup Committee was held at the Hospital Offices, Park Square, on Monday night, Mr G. W. Ellis presiding.

The explanation of Clarence Iron works, who arrived late at Thornhill Lees, was considered satisfactory.

Methley Perseverance were fined for being 35 minutes late at Great Preston and the game, which was stopped 20 minutes before time, was ordered to be re-played at Great Preston on Saturday, January 2nd.

New Wortley Gasworks were ordered to replay their drawn game with Rothwell Parish Church on the same date.

The draw for the semi-finals resulted as follows:—Fryston Colliery v. Rothwell Parish Church or New Wortley Gasworks or Woodlesford Britannia; Great Preston White Rose or Methley Perseverance v. East Ardsley or Clarence Ironworks.

ROTHWELL

In the Amateur Football League on Saturday afternoon Rothwell O.B. defeated Rothwell Haigh United by three goals to two.

HALTON

On Saturday afternoon Whitkirk St. Mary's football team defeated Markley District (Leeds) by three goals to one.

ACUTE ECZEMA CURED.

7, Hollis Street,
Kirkstall Road,
Leeds.

Dear Mr Crosswaite,—

My intentions in sending you this UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL are to express my gratitude to you, and to testify to your marked ability to cure. Before I placed myself under your WONDERFUL HERBAL TREATMENT my skin used to itch and burn so severely that it was impossible to obtain any rest whatever. After being under your treatment for four weeks, I AM COMPLETELY CURED, and my skin is as clear and as good as ever. The promptness of your treatment is very commendable, being will within the reach of all. Hoping you will continue to meet with the success you so highly deserve.—I remain, yours faithfully, (Signed) JOHN ROSS.

SKIN SPECIALISTS
MEDICAL HERBALISTS
PROF. CROSSWAITE,
84, KIRKSTALL RD. LEEDS.
MODERATE CHARGES Advice Free.

£10 REWARD.—This Reward will be paid by Mr. J. Crosswaite to the first person giving information leading to the conviction of a certain unscrupulous person at present calling upon householders in his name, and offering for sale Recipes, Medicines, Pills, Ointments, etc., falsely representing the same to have been prepared by Mr Crosswaite.

Information may be lodged at the nearest Police Station or Detective Office, Town Hall, Leeds, or Mr. J. Crosswaite, 84, Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

CHURCH BAZAAR AT GARFORTH.

OPENING CEREMONY BY MRS GASCOIGNE, LOTHERTON HALL.

A successful bazaar in aid of the funds of East Garforth Church Mission, which is in charge of Captain Paley, was held in St. Mary's Hall, Garforth, on Tuesday afternoon, and at the opening ceremony there was a good attendance. The Rev. T. E. R. Willard (rector of Garforth) presided, and he was supported by Mrs Gascoigne, of Lotherton Hall, Mr Couper (churchwarden), and Captain Paley.

The Rector said it was a great pleasure to welcome Mrs Gascoigne there again. The country was passing through difficult times, and it was a question whether bazaars should be held or postponed. Some of them had no doubt read what the Vicar of Leeds had said at the bazaar connected with the Good Shepherd Mission. Although those were days of difficulty it was a most important time for the Church of Christ, because there were so much sorrow and trouble in the country, and as time went on there might be more. It was important that the Church of Christ should be strong—stronger even than in the past—because it had important and solemn duties to perform throughout the land, and they should, therefore, do their utmost to strengthen the organizations. They were extremely obliged to Mrs Gascoigne for her attendance. They knew what a deep interest she took in the Mission and in the work of the parish generally, and they hoped that she would be spared for many years to help them in the parish. He then called on her to declare the bazaar open.

Mrs Gascoigne said that, as they knew, she was always pleased to come to Garforth, and she was especially glad to come that day, because they were passing through difficult times—in fact, as difficult as any they could know how to talk about them. She agreed with what the Rector had said, and, although it was such an awful time, they must keep themselves level-headed, and carry on the work of the Church and anything that was for the good of the people and the nation. Of course, their thoughts were directed towards the war, which they could not keep out of their minds except for a few minutes at a time, but they should continue to do the duties that were nearest to them just the same as they did in the days when England was at peace. She felt that they would come out of the war a better people than they had ever been before. There had not been too much pleasure-seeking, and she thought that in the future they would think more of other people and less of themselves. She then declared the bazaar open.

Mr Couper, in proposing a vote of thanks to Mrs Gascoigne, said that she had taken a keen interest in the people of East Garforth—an interest that was fully appreciated. Although they were passing through critical times, it was all the more necessary to strengthen the Church organizations, and the reason they were there was to strengthen a branch of Garforth Church. He hoped Mrs Gascoigne would be spared for many years to come on a similar errand. (Applause).

The Rector, in calling on Captain Paley, said that he had been twelve months among them, and they had found him a trustworthy and hard worker, and he had the interests of East Garforth Mission at heart. His old colleague, Mr Mayor, had departed for London, and he and Captain Paley would work the parish together until he (the Rector) got another colleague.

Captain Paley, in seconding the resolution, said that some time ago Mrs Gascoigne, in speaking to him of the bazaar, used the words "our bazaar," and that was a sufficient indication that her heart and soul were with East Garforth people. She had done more for the Mission than people had any idea of. In regard to Mr Mayor going and the parochial work, he said that all good work was a pleasure, and as long as he had health and strength he hoped to do more in that part of the parish and not less in the other part.

The resolution was heartily passed, and Mrs Gascoigne responded, stating it was a great pleasure to her to be there.

The stall-holders were as follows:—Drapery Stall—Mrs Cook and Mrs Mallin.

Crockery Stall—Mrs Willie Cook and Mrs Sedgwick.

Fancy Stall—Miss Oxtoby and Miss Binns.

Refreshment Stall—Mrs White and Mrs Tindall.

Literature Stall—Mrs Silberry.

Sweet Stall—Miss Cook and Miss Llewellyn.

Bean Tub—Miss Oates.

Tea Rooms—Mrs Llewellyn, Mrs Hudson, Mrs Matthews, Mrs Wilson, and Mrs Luford.

Entertainments were given during the afternoon and evening, and songs were contributed by Misses Mallin, Hebden, Cook, Doris Cook, V. Llewellyn, and P. Llewellyn, and Mr Jack Cooper, while Miss C. Westerman gave recitations. The pianoforte accompaniments were played by Miss Cooper and Miss Sharp.

JUDGMENT IN A CURIOUS SELBY CASE.

A QUESTION OF TRADE CUSTOM.

In the Court of Appeal on Saturday Lords Justices Buckley, Phillimore, and Pickford gave judgment in the case of the Olympia Oil and Cake Company (Ltd.), of Selby, v. the Produce Brokers' Company (Ltd.), on the appeal of the defendants.

Lord Justice Buckley said that by a contract of May 30th, 1912, the defendants sold to the plaintiffs 6,000 tons of Soya bean, to be shipped to Hull. The contract contained the following provision:—

Particulars of shipment, with date of bill or bills of lading, approximate weight, marks (if any), and numbers of bags to be declared by original sellers not later than 40 days from the date of the last bill of lading. The buyers shall have at least three clear days after appropriation to give the necessary orders for port of destination at port of call or demurrage (if any) up to three days to be for account of sellers. In case of re-sale, copy of original appropriation shall be accepted by buyers.

On those last words the question arose. The contract also contained the arbitration clause, that goods to be shipped from an Oriental port or ports during December, 1912, or January, 1913. The defendants, the sellers, on September 6th, 1912, made a similar contract for the purchase of a like quantity of beans, for the fulfilment of the first contract, with the East Asiatic Company, and on February 4th the East Asiatic Company declared or tendered to the defendants a vessel by a ship called the Canterbury. The defendants passed the tender on to the plaintiffs, availing themselves of the words in case of re-sale, copy of original appropriation shall be accepted by buyers and passed on without delay." When the East Asiatic Company made the tender to the defendants no one knew that any misadventure had happened to the Canterbury, but when the defendants handed it on to the plaintiffs, the defendants knew that on February 4th the vessel had foundered.

The question whether that was a good tender under the contract was referred to arbitration, and the Appeal Committee stated a special case. The Divisional Court, expressing a consultative opinion, held that it was not a good tender. The matter went back to the Appeal Committee, who found that by long established and well recognised custom of the trade it was a good tender. Thereupon the plaintiffs moved to set aside the award, and the Divisional Court made the order now appealed against, directing that the motion be dismissed and that both parties be at liberty to file further affidavits on the question as to the existence of the alleged custom. His Lordship concluded by saying that upon the authorities arbitrators had no jurisdiction to determine what the custom was, and, that being so, he must—though he thought the decision was wrong—uphold the ruling of the Divisional Court, and dismiss the appeal.

The other members of the Court concurred, Lord Justice Phillimore stated that he did so with reluctance, and expressed the hope that the case would be carried to the House of Lords.

The appeal was accordingly dismissed, with costs, a stay being granted with a view to an appeal.

WETHERBY CHRISTMAS FAT STOCK SALE.

A BEAST FETCHES £44.

At Wetherby on Monday Messrs Thomlinson & Son held a sale of fat stock, and for weight, quality, and numbers it was easily ahead of any former year's show. The attendance of butchers and dealers from Leeds, York, and the East and West Ridings was well above that at any previous sale, and competition was keen and well sustained throughout, never once slackening. Best quality of beef made from 9d. to 10s. per stone, while good bullocks and heifers sold readily from 8s. 9d. to 9s. 4d. per stone. There was a good show, and about maintained late rates, from 10d. to 10½d. per lb. Pork pigs met a dear sale, making 8s. to 8s. 6d. per stone. Numbers sold: 141 fat beasts, 231 sheep, and 21 pigs. The following gentlemen kindly officiated as judges:—For beasts, Messrs J. W. Coates and V. Smith (Leeds) and C. C. Schofield (Todcaster), and for sheep, Mr Noble (Dunkeswick) and Messrs D. Thrupp and E. Sykes (Leeds). Their awards gave general satisfaction. Special cake prizes were given by Messrs Thorley (through their agents, Messrs C. D. Mills, Ltd., York) for bullock, for cow or heifer, and for sheep; by Messrs Robinson "for fat beast"; and by Messrs Bibby and Sons, for butchers' beast.

The first prize given by Messrs Thorley was awarded to a splendid white Irish bullock from Messrs M. Thomlinson and Son, which sold for £44 to Mr. Chas. Whaddick. The first prize given by Messrs Thorley for heifer was awarded to a splendid butcher heifer from Mr R. Dutton, of Bilton, which made £42 2s 6d to Mr J. W. Coates, Leeds. Messrs Bibby's first prize was awarded to a grand bullock from Mr C. Hawkswell, of Syningthwaite, and sold for £40 to Mr Harris, Leeds; the second prize went to a grand bullock fed by Mr R. Dutton, which made £40 to Mr G. Sykes, Church Fenton. The first prize given by Messrs Thorley for pen of four sheep was awarded to Mr Bielby, Catal, and made 82s to Mr Noble, Dunkeswick.

Other beasts were sold as follows:—Two bullocks from Mr J. Thompson, Rigton, made £37 to Mr Wheldrick and £32 2s 6d to Mr Harris; Mr B. Dunnington, Bilton, had two good bullocks, making £36 and £35 to Mr Thrupp and £25 12s 6d to Mr Noble; two level-fleshed bullocks from the Hon. Lady Hawke, Wighill Park, made £35 12s 6d to Mr H. Shilleto, Tadcaster, and £35 5s. to Mr J. W. Coates, Leeds; three bullocks from Mr Hawkswell, Syningthwaite, made £39 9s. to Mr Ellis, Wetherby, £27 5s to Mr Thrupp, and £36 2s 6d to Mr Bentley, Wetherby; four weedy bullocks from St. John's Institute made £38, £25, £24, and £23; Mr R. Bielby, Cattal, had two wealthy beasts, making £28 10s and £26 10s; three splendid bullocks from Mr W. C. Kendall, Cowthorpe, made £35 to Mr C. Schofield, Todcaster, and £28 2s 6d and £27 10s to Mr V. Smith, Leeds; two grand even-fleshed bullocks from Mrs Otter, Hunsingore, made £39 2s 6d to Mr C. Wheldrick and £36 5s to Mr Mountain; Mr R. Machin, jun., Old Thorneville, had six grand bullocks, making £36, £35, £33 7s 6d, and £31 10s to Mr J. W. Coates, and £33 12s 6d and £35 17s 6d to Mr Harris; four bullocks from Mr L. Patterson, Goldsboro', made £30 15s 6d to Mr Coates (Leeds), £30 15s to Mr Hodfield, and £30 and £28 10 Mr Wheldrick; two other bullocks from Essexlee made £30 and £36 15s; two bullocks from Mr Liversidge, Skewkirk, made £29 to Mr Coates and £27 12s 6d to Mr Illingworth; a choice bullock from Mr R. Carr, Wighill, made £37 17s 6d to Mr Wheldrick; a grand bullock from Mr J. N. Atkinson, Tockwith, made £38 12s 6d to Mr Wheldrick; choice bullocks from Mr J. T. Dearlove made £33 17s 6d and £32; Mr D. Robinlove made £33 10s; Mr J. Robinson, to £33 2s 6d; Mr R. Fearby, Stockeld, to £33; Mr J. W. Atkinson, nice bullocks, to £34 15s each; ten ripe bullocks from Bickerton Grange made £28 17s 6d, £25 5s (3), £25 2s 6d, etc.; two from Mr J. W. Watson made £26 5s and £24 17s 6d; from Mr Sturdy, to £24; from Mr Burniston, to £26 15s; Mr E. Alton, to £22 12s 6d; Mr Buckle, to £21 2s 6d; Mr J. Norfolk, to £26 17s 6d; Mr Goodworth, to £23 2s 6d; Mr A. Goodworth, to £24 17s 6d; Mr Spencelev, to £27 5s; Mr Bellerby, to £26 15s; Mr Holdsworth, to £25 17s 6d; Mr G. Douthwaite, to £24 12s 6d; Mr W. Lister, to £24 15s; Mr Sunley, to £26 12s 6d; Mr C. Barker, to £23; Mr Renton, to £22 2s 6d; two bullocks from Paddock House made £29 10s and £27 17s 6d. The 141 beasts sold made an average of £26 1s each.

Sheep from Mr T. Jackson, Cattal, made to 75s each; Mr J. Watson, to 69s; Mr J. Jackson, to 57s; Mr Elvidge, to 58s; Mr Holmes, to 61s. 6d.; Mr Bentley, to 84s; Mr Dalby, to 86s 6d.; Mr C. G. Wright, to 47s 6d.; Mr Holdsworth, to 53s 6d.; Mr R. Dutton, to 78s; Mrs Otter, to 62s. Pigs from Mr C. Milner made 64s 6d. each; Mr Gill, to 46s; Mr Myers, to 65s; Mr Goodworth, 52s; Mr Warrington, to 59s each; etc.

PRIZE-WINNERS AT SELBY.

Messrs Richardson and Son held their annual sale of fat stock for the Christmas season on Monday. Upwards of £22 was offered in prizes in the various classes. There was a large show and a brisk trade. The first prize bullock, fed by Mrs James Pocklington, Wistow, realised £46 15s, while the second prize went to Mr C. Milner, Escrett, Carlton, sold for £45. Mr Pickup's reserve bullock fetched £41. Those in the smaller beasts from the farm of Mr Harold Dickson, Burton Hall, made £29 5s and £28 respectively, while his first prize heifer realised £25 2s 6d. A heifer shown by Mr Jewett, Laverack, which took second prize, made £20 17s 6d, and two others belonging to Mr Escrett brought in £16 and £14 10s.

Among the fat cows Messrs A. and C. McNeil owned the winner and sold for £27 12s. 6d. Mr G. T. Fenteman, Barlow, exhibited a choice cow, which made £25 2s 6d, and in the same section one owned by Mr Escrett was purchased for £26.

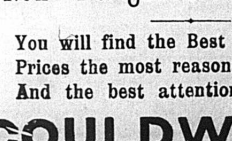
There was an excellent show of pigs in the various classes. Large porkers and hogs pigs formed a very good class. Mr G. Escrett took the first prize for bacon pig, the exhibit selling for £11. The best fat cow made £14 2s 6d and the second winner £12 10s.

OULTON

On Saturday afternoo i in the Rothwell Charity Football Cup Competition Oulton St. John's and Nostell Athletic played a drawn game of one goal each.

WALL PAPERS.

New Designs for Christmas.



You will find the Best Selection,
Prices the most reasonable in Leeds,
And the best attention at

COULDWELL'S

159, Briggate, LEEDS.

BROWNHILLS'

Xmas Specialities

CHOICE PLUM PUDDINGS

In Basins from 1s. upwards.

Obtainable at all Good Grocers.

Epicure Mince Meat

In 1 and 2lb. Jars.

Obtainable at all Good Grocers.

SOLE MAKERS—

R. S. Brownhill & Sons, Ltd., Leeds

HARRY HAYLEY,

Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,

12, King Edward St., LEEDS

Telephone 56,

HAS NOW IN STOCK A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,

ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.

HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.

A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.

Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.

FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.

STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.

BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.

THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.

OR THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."

THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.

The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of

AUTUMN FOOT STYLES.

Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.

Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

WHITKIRK RURIDECANAL COUNCIL.

ADDRESS BY THE VICAR OF MANSTON.

RUSSIA AND THE RUSSIAN CHURCH.

An interesting address on "The Russians and the Russian Church" was given at a meeting of the Whitkirk Ruridecanal Council held in the Church Institute, Lotus, on Tuesday night, by the Rev. H. H. Mallinson (vicar of Manston). The Rural Dean (Rev. A. J. E. Irvin, vicar of Woodford), presided, and others present were the Rev. W. R. Capel Cure (vicar of Oulton), the Rev. R. B. Smith (vicar of Sippax), Mr. J. Watson (Whitkirk), Mr. E. Simpson (Manston), Mr. A. Sharpe (Oulton), Mr. J. L. Howe (Lofthouse), and Mr. A. B. Jessop (Scarcroft), hon. secretary.

In calling upon Mr. Mallinson to give his address, the Rev. A. J. E. Irvin said that he thought the people in England would welcome great deal of enlightenment on the Russian Church, especially after what he had heard in the railway train that afternoon. A lady asked him if the Russians were a religious nation, and she followed the question up by saying "I should say not." He was glad to be able to assure her that from what he had read the Russian nation were a distinctly religious nation, and they had shown it especially of late in the direct abolishing one of the greatest temptations of the Russians. Another characteristic of their religious fervour was that they preceded battle by prayer, and after a victory they went to the nearest church and sang the "Te Deum."

The Rev. H. H. Mallinson prefaced his remarks by saying that the Russian national character was perhaps as little understood as was the Russian Church. In the first place, the Russian was a man full of charity and loving kindness—that was a fact not grasped. His outlook on life was of charity, and that was the bedrock of his character, and it was not for nothing that he addressed every other Russian as "My brother," while the Czar spoke to them as "My children." This brotherliness in life made some very largely from the communal system that existed throughout Russia. They were bound together by tress-man—which were unknown in England.

There was no splitting up of a household by marriage. If a son married in England, he left his home, and set up a home for himself. In Russia the household remained a community—a fact which inculcated a deep sympathy man with man. A second characteristic was the Russian's intense capacity for heroic endurance and self-sacrifice. That had been largely brought about by the condition of his life. The Russian nation was largely a nation of peasants, and they were up against great risks and hardships. They were very deependent upon seasons and they had a hard life industrially. There was very little to be made from their professional calling. Whatever they made it went towards the property of the family. The power of sacrifice in the Russian was very great. Vodka was more to a Russian than beer was to an Englishman. However, they took all with patience. They felt they were in the hands of the Almighty, as they were dependent on seasons, and there was always a danger of their wooden houses taking fire. They had very little hold upon this life. A Russian knew how to pray and very often he would be seen praying in the street, and no one would think anything about it. They had a tremendous hold on God, and no one would be able to prove to them that there was no God. There were defects, however, and one of these was a strong disinclination to work unless enthusiasm was aroused. There was also a strange want of method and order in life, and in this connection it was interesting to note that of the 750 big towns in Russia, only 50 were in any sense drained. On that side of civilisation the Russian was behind. He was Rabbi to sins of the flesh, and he was also Rabbi to great violence of temper when his temper was aroused. Such traits might appear contradictory, but one could not read the history of the Russian people without realising that he had the soul of a child and the characteristics of a child. A child had an intensely loving heart but it had an ungovernable temper. Very often they found the most unexpected thing happen. A man who was a drunkard would suddenly get out of the mire, and go on a pilgrimage. A man who was a miser would give freely, and go on a pilgrimage.

As a result of his religion, the Russian had an intense glory in the idea of death. To a Russian death was life and light, and he looked upon it with the joy of a child. In his outlook on religion he largely thought not about Our Lord as an example, but he thought deeply about Our Lord's death and atonement.

occupied a great part of the life, and they went chiefly to Jerusalem. They liked a lingering death, as it gave them more time to pray. Sudden death they did not like except at the battle. Every soldier who went to battle was confessed.

A second characteristic of his religion was an immense love of the outward and visible. The Russian Church was the largest branch of the Holy Orthodox Church, and what was regarded as one of the three great branches of the Spiritual Church of Christ, the Russians would not allow to us what we allowed to them. In their view the Anglican Church differed so much from them as to make it an heretical Church. He hoped the present alliance in arms would bring about a fuller understanding from the religious point of view. The difficulty was the extraordinary conservatism of the Russian Church, which permitted of no such development as had taken place in the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches. Mr Mallinson referred to his visit to Montenegro, and stated that he found a humble mess in the life of the Church. Rich and poor, high and low, stood shoulder to shoulder throughout the service. In the street the Russian would recognise you as possessing a certain superiority, but in the church he took hardly any notice at all. People stood in the churches except when prostrations there were no seats; that showed their great endurance. At Easter they would go to church on the Thursday, and remain very often until midnight on the Sunday. They did not go to the church with the idea of hearing a sermon, but they went there to worship God. English matins would not appeal to a Russian; he would not think it too cold. He loved colour and ceremony. Infants were communicated very soon after baptism, and a Russian took the communion literally. Making a confession in Russia was no formal thing as in Rome. No questions were asked. The sins were stated, and absolution was received. A curious custom was a "general confession." One would see a crowd of penitents gathered round a priest, who would read out a long list of sins, and as he came to the different persons' sins they would say "Yea, I am a sinner." There was great enthusiasm when absolution was received. The clergy were spoken of as black and white—he did not mean that they were good and bad—but the black clergy were the monastic clergy and the white were parochial. The monastic clergy could not marry, while the parochial clergy had to marry before ordination. The latter were much less pretensions. They had their farms, and their wives went to market with other women. As there were no sermons to preach there was no need to study, which was a great drawback. The result was that the little of many of them was extremely simple, and there was no incentive to take more learning or to lift themselves educationally higher than their people. In the monastery there was just the reverse—a great desire for learning and there was great piety. The religious education of the people was chiefly done by the people themselves. In conclusion, the speaker referred to the Russian and the present war. Religion was the basis of the Russian character, he said, and to the Russian its present war was a great religious war. Everything that the German was fighting and saving at present hurt every sacred susceptibility in the heart of the Russian, the result being that our Ally was entering upon the war with tremendous earnestness.

A vote of thanks was heartily accorded Mr Mallinson, on the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Mr E. Simpson.

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal

BY

ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN

From the gardener's point of view we are now passing through the most unsatisfactory time of the year, especially where the bulk of the work is outdoor. Cold winds, damp atmosphere, and an occasional fog are not calculated to increase the pleasure of out-door garden work, and to this may be added the fact that almost all kinds of trees, shrubs, and plants are now at a dull and uninteresting stage. Generally speaking the autumn has been fairly favourable to the rapid completion of the usual outdoor cleaning operations, and no doubt in most cases the work will now be nearly finished. An effort should be made to make all trim and neat for the festive season so quickly drawing near. Dead leaves, sticks, and other refuse that has been deposited in prominent positions by the wind should be cleared away.

Gravel and other loose surfaced paths may be swept and rolled, and the lawn should be rolled once a week, when it is dry enough to take the roller without blackening the grass. The value of rolling is not generally understood. A firm surface always produces deep coloured grass, and the growth is much finer than is the case where the surface is left comparatively loose. We have often noticed that a portion of the lawn that is subjected to much trampling during the summer always appears to be in splendid condition the following spring. Trampling may, of course, be carried to excess, and in that case the grass would get worn off and die.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

No doubt Christmas festivities will be greatly curtailed this year owing to the war, and florists and others, who usually look for a harvest at this time, will suffer in consequence. The evergreens grown in the woods and fields are in great demand, but by subjecting them to some little cleansing operations they may be made fit to answer the purpose fairly well. The more fastidious housewife may prefer to buy a few branches that have been grown in a cleaner district, but for church and chapel decoration home grown evergreens may be made to answer very well. They should, just about a week before being required for use and plunged in a tank of water. The following day they should be stirred vigorously in the water, and this will remove the thickest of the dirt. They should then be taken out, and a fresh supply of water placed in the tank. Add a solution of soft soap at the rate of half an ounce to the gallon of water, and return the evergreens. They may be allowed to remain in the tank until the day before they are required for use, but should be well stirred every day. Run the water off on the morning of the last day, and again with clean water. A gill of paraffin to 36 gallons of water will give a polishing nature to the final bath. They may then be spread out to dry, and will be found to be almost equal to country-grown stuff.

ROSES

Roses may still be planted provided the ground is in suitable condition to receive them. If it is too wet defer the work until next March. Roses should be trodden firmly in, and when the ground is very wet the treading necessary to make them firm leaves a hole very sad, and is detrimental to their future welfare.

"Interested" writes asking for the names of the two most reliable pink roses for town gardens. He will find none to beat the two old favourites, Madame John Laing, and Baroness Rothschild.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

The manuring of the kitchen garden is a matter requiring more than casual consideration. We have heard some gardeners affirm that no manure was the best. Others swear by horse manure, and others again prefer the manure from the sheep, pig, or poultry. All are very good when used in a reasonable manner, but in the case should one kind be relied upon year after year without change. They should be alternated as much as possible, and on heavy land strawy manure should be given preference, while on light land thoroughly rotten manure should be used. Decayed vegetation of all kinds should also be used, and wood ashes, ashes from the "smother" fire, and fallen leaves from the shrubbery may all be utilised. Every third or fourth year lime should be substituted for the manure. We have repeatedly pointed out the importance of leaving the surface rough when digging. Readers would do well to give this method a trial.

FORCING RHUBARB

Rhubarb is not at all difficult to force provided the under-ground supply is available. The temperature should be somewhere between 55 and 70, but should be fairly regular. The higher the temperature, the quicker the crop will be ready for use. Sutton's Champion is an excellent early forcing variety and may be bought at a reasonable price. Pack the roots close together and place some good soil between them. Give a good watering, and place sheets or boards around them to exclude the light. Do not allow the soil to get dry.

GLADIOLI

To get the flowers as early as possible, plant the corms or roots directly the ground is in proper condition for planting; but reserve the larger, stronger corms for later flowering. Frequent planting through spring ensures a good succession of blossom. In many places in the vegetable garden there are vacant spots that would grow a few gladiolus, and so ensure an abundance of the most lovely cut flowers without interfering with the ordinary garden plan.

The soil is of importance, as gladiolus do not like heavy and wet clays, though they will do nicely in any other soils. A light, sandy loam is perhaps the ideal ground when it can be procured. In heavy ground the corms should not be set more than 2 inches deep, but four inches is correct for light ground. Fresh manure is harmful, and should be avoided. Gladiolus must not be grown on the same piece of ground more than once in three years, and planting oftener than this results in disease appearing as a rule.

Early flowering kinds can be forced easily under glass, and benefit by the protection thus afforded, the flower spikes being larger and the blooms finer than in purely outdoors. Planting for this purpose may be done any time in winter or spring. The corms should be set singly in 48-size pots, using light sandy loam with enough peat to moisten and putting the bulbs on the top, when it is pressed down sufficiently to hold it in position without any covering. The pots are then placed in the cold frame, or greenhouse bench, and are brought into the light when the tops have grown 4 inches high, which is usually in five or six weeks' time. A little water is given at once to the pots, but must be tied to a stick when tall enough, to prevent its falling over, and a light mulching of stable manure can be well watered in when growth is proceeding freely. Another good mulching of weak liquid manure can be afforded once a week until the flowers show their colours, when it is best to discontinue the applications. Too much water during the early stages of growth is ruinous. A night temperature between 40 and 50 degrees, and a day temperature under 70 degrees, are desirable.

The chosen bulbs must be well ripened off, small, well-ripened ones being better than even the largest but less perfectly ripened. It is, of course, most important that the pots should be filled with roots before the plants are exposed to the light; and one should bear in mind that the nearer the bulbs are to the surface, the less liable the plants are to draw.

PLANTS IN POTS.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The ever-increasing popularity of the single chrysanthemum has led to numerous expert growers taking up the cultivation of new varieties, which, of course, has led to the usual difficulty with popular flowers, there are so many varieties that the average grower is at a loss to know which to grow. Thousands of new varieties naturally describe their own introductions as "the best," and it thus becomes almost impossible for any ordinary grower to attempt to grow all the best. A few varieties which are certainly good have been circulated this year. Perhaps one of the most striking is Mrs W. Hemus. This is a splendid red and looks fine bearing a fine yellow eye. A variety that has occupied first position for years in its own colour. The well-known Mensa is likely to create a record as the parent of choice varieties. Golden Mensa and Mrs Lee Thompson have already become popular, and these are followed by Bronze Mensa and Glorious, the latter a decided gain in having a very rich golden yellow flower. Mrs Humphreys is a beautiful white, and is good either as sprays or disbudded. Amongst the new Japanese we hear good accounts of the yellow sport from Mrs Gilbert Drabble named W. Rigby. As this is as good as the parent it should prove a great acquisition. Miss A. E. Roope we mentioned a week or two ago and now we endorse all we said about it, with the addition that it is a decided improvement on the variety. The work of taking cuttings should now be in full swing. Basal cuttings are best, but the strong, thick shoots with a hole down the middle are useless.

SERANIUMS

Bedding geraniums should now be stood quite close to the roof glass, and although over wintering in dark positions they should not be allowed to suffer from want of water. This applies more particularly to the newly-rooted cuttings. Old plants that were cut down in autumn will only require enough water to prevent them shrivelling, and as little growth has yet been made they may be stood anywhere on the greenhouse staging.

Double-flowered varieties that have finished blooming may be kept dry for about three weeks and may then be cut down. They should be kept fairly dry for a few weeks afterwards, but when free growth commences they may be liberally supplied with soft water, and as new growth develops gradually increasing supplies of water may be given.

GENERAL REMINDERS

Where a succession of flowers are in demand it is advisable to have a fixed day for removing a few pots or boxes of bulbs to the forcing house. The forcing of tulips, hyacinths, and daffodils may be carried out now without much danger of their becoming "blind," as they often do earlier in the year.

A sowing of tomato seed may now be made where early supplies are want of and a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees can be maintained. Sow two seeds in a thumb pot, and if both grow pull one out when they commence to form the rough leaves.

Glore de Lorraine Begonias are now blooming nicely. They are best kept dry and should be stirred with liquid manure once a week. Stand the liquid in the house overnight to warm it. On no account should cold water be given to hot-house plants.

QUESTION

I would be glad if you would tell me whether I ought to cut down the old Virginia Creeper or if the full branches will sprout again?—Glad to be told read your notes, which are most interesting.—A Tyke.

The branches will break into new growth in the spring. It is customary to cut off any this have failed to attach to the wall. If your plant has outgrown its quarters, and you are desirous of cutting it back you need have no hesitation in doing so. It will break from any point that it is pruned to.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Herts County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry."

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 18.

The next few days will be very busy ones indeed for the poultry-fancier. Christmas poultry, as most birds are killed at this time than at any other period of the year, and as there may be some of my readers who have hitherto never killed a bird, but intend trying this next week, I do not think that I can do much better than devote this article to the killing of poultry.

In the first place, I would say that when experienced in the matter the killing of poultry is a very simple affair, and quite painless to the birds, death in all cases being instantaneous. In the experienced hands, however, the operation is not so easy, and the poor birds are often subjected to much unnecessary suffering, and if any of my readers have doubts as to the results of their efforts to kill, then I ask them to give up all idea of killing the birds themselves, and call in a local butcher or someone whom you know to be capable of accomplishing the feat. The cleanest, quickest, and most humane method of killing all kinds of poultry is by simply dislocation of the neck, although with large turkeys and geese this is not always easy to accomplish, and stunning and bleeding has then to be resorted to. To kill a fowl or duck, seize the bird's legs firmly in the left hand, at the same time gathering up the wings and holding them with the same hand. Now grasp the bird's head in the hollow of the right hand, with the index finger on the right side of the bird's head, and the remaining fingers on the left, so that the back of the bird's head rests in the fork of the hand formed by the separation of the fingers, and at a point where the head joins the neck. The bend in position hold the bird's legs firmly at your head, stretch the neck downwards, at the same time bending the head back, and if properly done dislocation takes place immediately, and death is instantaneous—the ensuing struggle merely being due to the relaxation of the muscles. No cutting or bleeding of any description is necessary, as if the bird is held downwards for a few minutes all the blood from the body runs into the cavity left by the dislocation, causing the flesh to become perfectly white. The birds should be plucked immediately death has taken place, as the feathers pull much easier when the body is warm. Large turkeys are best killed by pinioning the wings and suspending the birds to a beam by means of a stout cord securely fastened round the legs. If one has sufficient strength in the wrist the neck may then be dislocated in a similar way to that previously mentioned for fowls, or they may be stunned by a sharp blow on the back of the head, and the jugular vein then severed with a knife or very sharp penknife. Large geese should be killed in a similar way. I must take this opportunity of sending to all my readers every good wish for the coming Christmas, although under the present heavy cloud it must necessarily be a sad one, but we must not despair because Christmas falls the dawn of a brighter day will have broken.

[Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our exper. Captain Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns. Letters for private reply must be Rothwell Wesleyan Circuit.

The usual Christmas dinner which has always been associated with the December meeting of the Rothwell Wesleyan Circuit officials and preachers, has this year been discontinued, and the friends sat down to an excellent meat tea in the infants' schoolroom on Wednesday. After doing ample justice to the good things provided, and given by the Rothwell Church, cordial thanks were presented on the motion of Mr Bielby, and acknowledged by Messrs J. Battersby, and S. Armitage. The Rev. C. H. Armitage was present.

The quarterly meeting was held at 6.30, and was attended by between 30 and 40 members from various parts of the circuit—the Rev. N. W. Thomlinson presiding. Devotional exercises having been led by the Rev. J. Wilson.

Mr Walter Hargreaves, C.C., presented the financial statement for the current quarter, the amounts of income and expenditure nearly meeting, and leaving the balance due for last quarter about the same.

The Chairman gave the membership at the various churches, which is almost stationary, and reports were given as regards aggressive work being in progress in various places, while steps are in preparation elsewhere.

Addresses were given in relation to the excellent work done by various officers during the year, and hearty votes of thanks were accorded, most of these gentlemen being re-elected. The circuit stewards are Mr Walter Hargreaves, C.C., and Mr M. Bielby; circuit meeting secretary, Mr A. Marshall; circuit chapel secretary, Mr A. W. Seance; hors-hire fund treasurer, Mr J. Wade; auditors of circuit accounts, Messrs A. W. Seance and T. Kaye; auditors of Foreign Mission accounts, Messrs. Nixon and Ward; delegate to Leeds Methodist Council, Messrs W. Stephenson, J. Ablishaw, and J. Goodall; and delegates to Leeds Free Church Council, Messrs J. Wade, and J. Halsteed.

Seven persons were nominated for seats on the Circuit S.S. Council. Votes of thanks were passed to the local members for their faithful and valuable services, Mr Compston responding, and to the ladies of the circuit for their financial and personal assistance, Mr Stephenson responding.

The first Sunday in January is set apart for special intercession in connection with the war.

The Rev. J. Wilson reported that the Foreign Missionary receipts were an advance of £6 6s. 1od, on last year.

The next meeting was arranged for March 10th at Altofts.

Mr W. Stephenson was commissioned, on his own suggestion, to compile a roll of honour for the circuit of men offering themselves for the defence of the country in the present war.

A GALLANT GARFORTH SOLDIER'S END.

KILLED WHILST FIGHTING IN BELGIUM

News has been received to the effect that Charles Simpson, of Garforth, who was serving with the Coldstream Guards, has made the supreme sacrifice for his country. He had sent home a bright letter, which is given below, and since then it has been reported that he has been killed in action.

In his letter, the gallant soldier stated:—

I was very pleased, indeed, to receive your letter and the paper this morning. I don't think there is anything fresh to relate, only we are losing a lot of men here. I will not tell you all that is happening, because I know you would only be worrying, so I will just tell you the bright side of affairs, and all right until I will tell you everything when I come back. We are still in the same place, in the trenches, and I have not had a wash for nearly three weeks, but, never mind, I can still see the Germans in front. I am pleased to say I am in good health. We have lost a few men out here with fever, but I think they are getting better now. I will just give you an idea what it is like here. We are the farthest troops advanced into Belgium. All the fighting at present is chiefly on our right and left. Of course, we have a pocket now and again. The only thing that is against us here is that we are in the middle of a great wood, and it is full of snipers, and we can't see them anywhere. We are well entrenched, but every time one of our chaps shows his head above the trench there is a bullet after him. We have had a lot of our men hit in the head, and the Germans have started using explosive bullets, because some of the men have nearly had their heads blown off. Well, I just feel the same as you do. I would like to say a lot, but I can't, but, never mind, we shall make up for it when I come home.

GARFORTH'S ROLL OF HONOUR.

Men who have responded to the call. Additions to last week's list:—Gre, George, 1st Battalion Coldstream Guards (wounded); Pusey, Henry, Green Howards.

Correction to last week's list—Thompson, Benjamin Cyril, second-lieutenant, Royal Garrison Artillery.

In accordance with the promise in last issue the following list of men, not residing in the parish, who have left the Garforth Collieries to join His Majesty's Forces, is given:—

Isabella Pit—Adams, W., Kilburn, P., Frankland, A., Turner, G., Myers, B., Bowden, Albert, Tunstall, S., Raynor, F., and Hebden, T. A.

Sisters' Pit—Padgett, Oliver, Colles, A., Lee, A., Lee, S., Chappelow, H. C., Toft, A., Chambers, W., Lawrence, E., Roberts, Joseph, Oldroyd, T., Walker, J., Gregson, H., Wilkinson, F., Stebbin, G., Roberts, H., Davison, J., Castle, F., and Wilkinson, H.

Trench Pit—Walton, F., Hemsworth, J., Lyons, J., Kirby, H., Turner, N., Kerry, J., Nowell, R. E., Greenwell, T., Bowers, E., Ward, B., Middlebrook, J., Reed, D., Burlinghiam, A., Smith, W., Dickenson, T., Hardwick, E., Lowe, B., Whittaker, H., Naylor, J. W., Bold, R., Lafley, J., Thompson, Edwin, Ellison, G., and Burrell, Wm.

WM GEO. BOSHER, Hon. Sec.

CONCERTS.—Two concerts promoted by Mrs Meyrick were given in the Wetherby Town Hall on Saturday. In the afternoon there was a large and fashionable attendance. The artistes, who gave their services, were: Mr Julian Clifford, Mr Maurice Dambois (the famous Belgian 'cellist), Miss Marjorie Moore (who had a great reception and was loudly recalled for her songs), and Mr Gilbert Jackson. In the evening Mr Leonard Busfield took the place of Mr Maurice Dambois, and Mr D. F. Scott also rendered songs. Mr Ernest Farrar was the accompanist. The proceeds are to be given to the St. John Ambulance Association and the Belgian Relief Fund.

CORRESPONDENCE

LEAGUE OF HONOUR IN LEEDS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—May I ask your valuable aid in making known a mass meeting for women and girls which is to be held in the Albert Hall, Leeds, on Saturday, December 19th, at 8 p.m., under the auspices of the Lady Mayoress's Committee?

Its object is to inaugurate the League of Honour in Leeds in the hope that it may be as helpful here as it has already been in London, where it was founded early in September. It is already established in 300 towns and has a membership of 120,000.

Our motto is "Strength and Honour," and our aim is to bind together all women and girls to maintain the strength and honour of the country at home by prayer, purity, and temperance, even as men, on all sides, are nobly offering themselves to maintain that strength and honour on the battle-field and at sea.

The Hon. Emily Kinnaird, Vice-President of the League of Honour, is very kindly coming to address the meeting, and my committee will be grateful if your readers will help us to ensure its success by making it known wherever they can.

May I add that I shall be very glad to give any further information with regard to the meeting, and to the working of the League itself.—Yours, etc.,

ELIZABETH OAKESHOTT.

Hon. Sec., League of Honour Sub-Committee, 1, East Parade, Leeds.

WATER AND SEWERAGE IN BARKSTON ASH VILLAGES.

To the Editor.

Sir,—I thank you for inserting my last letter, and if you will kindly indulge me by inserting this reply to Mr A. Deighton, of last week, I shall be under a further obligation.

After making enquiries in Church Fenton and the re-perusal of Mr Deighton's letter, I am at a loss to know exactly the position he takes up whether he is satisfied with things as they are, if he is in accord with the views I expressed in my previous letter (to which I ask him and others of the interested public to carefully read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest), but from the tenor of his letter I fear he is in opposition.

If I adopt his practice and suggestion—"wait and see" until I have been here 30 years, I suppose, like Hinsell, I may find matters as they were when he went to Church Fenton 30 years ago.

The perusal of Mr Deighton's estimate of rates at 9s. in the £, I am sure, will be interesting to the surveyor, sanitary inspector, and District Council at Tadcaster, but with all the luxuries this would give I don't think even then "Upon Date" will be disposed to accept Mr Deighton's suggestion of clearing out of the country.

He suggests that if every landlord and tenant would do their duty all would be well. Whenever was either landlord or tenant satisfied, I wonder? Is he? I believe he is both a landlord and a tenant, and probably is dissatisfied in both positions. There is a saying "If every one would mend one all would be mended."

Has Mr Deighton not reported property in Church Fenton to the sanitary authorities at Tadcaster as being neglected, and in an insanitary condition, unfit for residence, etc., and is it true that during the summer months Mr Deighton's rat-catcher is harmless to his estates from the "Parson's Pond"?

If this is so, it seems to me he should be the last person to object to my suggestion that at a high time the authorities should seriously take these matters in hand, and he, as a member of the local Council, use his well-known influence in this serious population and responsibility, and I trust he will do so.

I learn there is half a drainage scheme in existence, but that the majority of the houses are not drained into it at all.

As he leaves the main points of my letter unanswered as to the sewage draining into the dykes, wells, etc., and an inefficient supply of good water, he evidently realises this to be true; then it follows it is time for a remedy.

I was pleased, Mr Editor, to see your notes in this week's "Courier." Evidently you quite realise the importance of the subject, and I trust, in the interests of the public, you will give your very valuable influence to bear in securing the objects aimed at in my writing you.

Facts are stubborn things, and I think justify my letter, and as I am not anxious for public notoriety, I prefer to still remain.—Yours, etc.,

"Up-to-Date."

Sir,—I was much interested in the letter appearing in your issue of the 5th inst., under the above heading by "Up-to-Date," in which he propounded many undoubted grievances suffered by residents in many of the Barkston Ash villages.

As you plainly pointed out in a note, it is inadvisable to tinker with ridiculous petty little schemes which, in the end, are more of a nuisance than a benefit to the public.

I know from experience that the ordinary drinking water in most of the houses in Church Fenton is absolutely vile, especially in the summer.

I believe Mr Deighton himself was carting water from what is known as the Parson's Pond last summer, yet from his letter one would infer that this is "the one bright spot on the universe," and needs no alteration and no improvement.

"If the cap fits put it on," says Mr Deighton, and goes on to explain that he has been wearing the same old cap 30 years. You know the Chinese worship their ancestors, and say "What was good for my father must be good for me," and I verily believe if everybody adopted Mr Deighton's suggestion of "wait and see" the same old antiquated systems will be in vogue a hundred years hence.

About the only settlement which can be taken seriously in Mr Deighton's letter is that there is plenty of room for improvement, and that it should be done. There, at any rate, he is in agreement with "Up-to-Date" and—Yours, etc.,

"Furrener."

PRESENTATION TO A TEACHER.—A pleasant event took place in the Lady Hastings Schools at Collingham Bridge, when Miss Crossland, who for two years has been a teacher there, and who is leaving to take up a new post, was the recipient of a handsome present from the teachers and scholars. The Rev. C. E. Methuen, on behalf of the scholars and others present, said they were all very sorry Miss Crossland was leaving. She had done some good work, and they hoped she would be comfortable and happy in her new school. The gifts, which consisted of a handbag and handkerchief and glove case combined, were presented by Alice Elsworth, one of the pupils of the school. Miss Crossland suitably returned thanks.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE

At the Empire Palace this week Fred Karno presents an amusing sketch, entitled "The Dental Institute." What story there is in the sketch deals with the business jealousies of two rival dentists, in which there is plenty of humour, which is chiefly dispensed by Bob Schidge, but the scene in the dentist's operating room is inclined to drag. Maruz and Mazette are a couple of original comedians whose appearance on the stage is distinguished by short, and Charles R. Whittle is always a favourite with his songs. The Findlays appear in an entertaining little sketch, and other artistes are Charles Mildare, the Sisters Rosee and Sol, Happy Tom Parker, and Little Freddie Hackin.

Next week at the Empire Palace the great band and water revue "Miss Paris in London," will be the main feature of the programme. There will be seven magnificent scenes including the great water spectacle, introducing 50,000 gallons of real water. Sixty artistes and aquatic performers will appear, including Ernie Sefton, Olive Plant, Norah Guy, Charles Berkeley, etc., and the full London Beauty chorus. Others billed to appear are the Christie Duo, comedy dancing eccentrics; Lee and Kingston, comedy duo; and Arthur Woodville, light comedian and expert dancer.

LEEDS HIPPODROME

At the Hippodrome this week a capital programme has been submitted. Scott and Whaley, the clever American coloured comedians, are bubbling over with humour, and their "patter" keeps the audience in one roar of laughter. Playing upon swinging or spinning banjos is skilfully accomplished by Franco Piper, who at one period of his performance is the centre of a circle of spinning banjos upon which he succeeds in giving the audience a tune. As a child mimic Wilson Hallett is distinctly good, and some tuneful character songs and dances are given by Frances Letty and her assistants. The Great Hodkiss are clever Belgian novelty acrobatic cyclists, and others in the programme are Kitchen and Rose, Lillian Carter, and Elsie Stead.

At the Hippodrome next week the chief attraction will be Geo. Carney's Co., including the inimitable Hebrew comedian, Sam Harris, in the athletic comedy duo in "Railway revelations"; Jaffa, the "talky" conjurer; and Katie Butler, character comedienne, are other attractions, and a new

"The Rothwell Courier and Times" is the Only Weekly Newspaper PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Wortley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Flourton & Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 103 NEW SERIES. "Registered as the G.P.O. as a Newspaper" SATURDAY, DECEMBER 26 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited), THE BREWERY, LEEDS

NOW READY IN BOTTLE.

East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.

Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles

Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- dozen Large Bottles.

Its additions to the above Prices, WAR TAX 6½d. per dozen Small Bottles, and 1/- per doz. on Large Bottles will be charged.

Delivered Free to Pass-line within 20 miles of Leeds

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

What effect has ventilation of schools on its and throw whist drives or dances were held every fectious disease? This question was debated at week during the winter, and the last meeting of the Education Committee, and it was decided that in future all the schools in the area should be purified by fresh air during the hours the children were not there. It is a sensible plan, and it will tend to keep the schools in a healthy state, but personally I mean to do not believe that it has a great deal to do with the spread of disease. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, etc., is stamped out by isolation. Real disease is propagated by persons infected coming into contact with others in some way. Germ carelessness is exhibited by many parents, who, knowing their children are suffering, allow them to play with other little ones or go to school, and thus disease is spread.

It is not always easy, I admit, to trace infectious disease to its source. For two or three years in succession typhoid fever has made its appearance at Garforth—it has been stamped out again, I fancy—and, in trying to get to the root of the trouble, the authorities have been baffled. Last year drastic measures were taken in order to eradicate the disease, but, after it was thought to be put an end to, it made its appearance a few months since. The number of cases was not large, but the puzzling thing is why it should break out periodically and nearly always in the same districts.

In certain places I have known parents turn out children suffering from infectious disease to play with others, although they were perfectly aware of the danger to which the latter were exposed, and, if I had it in my power, I would punish these people without mercy. Not only is it selfish and cruel, but it brings needless suffering—and sometimes death—and it likewise puts the authorities to heavy expense in isolating the cases. People have been prosecuted in various parts of Tadcaster rural area, but I know certain other public bodies who have passed over such cases with a caution. Prosecution is, in my opinion, the only way by which the careless and selfish parent can be brought to his war- or her senses.

In these degenerate days an example must be set by the Towers of the community to humans who habitually keep late hours. Numerous prosecutions have been instituted in Skipton division against persons for permitting their dogs to be out at night, but at Tadcaster so well-behaved has the canine tribe been that not a single representative so far forgot himself as to infringe man-made law, until the other Sunday morning, and in case came before the magistrates on Monday. The unfortunate dog-owner had half-a-sovereign to pay for Towzer's little night prowl, and I daresay he thinks that it is a rather costly Christmas box.

In our correspondence columns complaint has been made because the Tadcaster District Council have failed to provide water supplies in Barkston Ash villages, and so exasperated are Barwick folks that they threaten to take action unless something is done to solve a problem with which they have been face to face for 14 years. According to statements, water is required for Sherburn, Church Fenton, Saxton, Aberford, and other places, and the Water Committee have now come forward with a scheme which will assuredly supply a number of parishes with water of the greatest purity, but it looks as if opposition were to be forthcoming. As business men, the Council must deal with the question on business lines, and Mr Ingleby's statement should be carefully considered.

Water supplies must be provided otherwise the Council will get into disgrace. Several persons have informed me of their intention of writing to the Local Government Board, and I have advised them to wait a short time in order to give the Council an opportunity of doing something. Seeing water must be found, the next question is as to the best and cheapest scheme, and, in my judgment, that put forward by the Water Committee is in a class by itself. If every parish has a petitogging little scheme, what will the ultimate cost be? Let the Council profit by their experience in regard to the treatment of the sewage of Kippax, where the poor outpayers have had to pay heavily for the lack of foresight on the part of their representatives years ago. The Council would be unwise to adopt a scheme blindfold, as it were, but the members must get rid of all prejudice, and approach the proposed scheme with an open mind, and I am absolutely certain that it will meet with favour from every unbiassed member. More than that, I will not say at present, but, for the sake of the district of which they have the administration, I hope the Council will take a broad and enlightened view on the question, and support the men who have had it under consideration for months.

Has there been too much pleasure-seeking in the past? Mrs Gascoigne, of Lotherton Hall, thinks there has, and many people will agree with her. Amusement, in ordinary times, is that our people are so practical that they build necessary, for all work and no play tends to only for utility. Of course, ornamentation costs make people dull, but the fettering away of all money, and the difficulty nowadays is to put up leisure has a weakening effect on folks. In houses that will let at a reasonable rent, owing certain villagers I could name as many as two to the high cost of material and the increase in

The residents of the district will deeply sympathise with Ald. E. C. Brooksbank, J.P., of Healaugh Old Hall, Tadcaster, in the loss he has sustained by the death of his third son, Lieutenant Hugh Godfrey Brooksbank, of the Yorkshire Regiment. The gallant officer, who was only 21 years of age, joined the Army in 1913, and, as was reported in this journal, he was wounded early in November at Ypres. He was removed to this country, and it was found necessary to perform an operation upon him last week in London. It was, however, apparently too much for him, following his wounds, and he died of heart failure. Ald. Brooksbank, who is Chairman of Tadcaster District Council, is one of the busiest men in the district, giving his time unstintedly to the public service, and members of his family have nobly responded to the country's call.

This is the second bereavement sustained by Tadcaster magistrates. Mr E. M. Lawson-Smith, with whom Ald. Brooksbank has been associated for many years, both as a magistrate and as a member of Tadcaster District Council, has suffered severely by the present war, for his two sons have given their lives for their country. Mr Lawson-Smith, whose home is at Colton Lodge, is a traveller, and while away from home some time ago he let his house to Major Sweetenham, and he was one of the first officers who made the supreme sacrifice in the war.

Already a heavy toll has been demanded of the district. Men belonging to Garforth, Aberford, Selby, Tadcaster, and other places have found graves on the battlefield, and many others have been wounded or are prisoners in Germany. When people are called upon to make sacrifices in consequence of the war are willing to sacrifice their lives for the country's honour? The nation is enjoying security in consequence of the patriotism of these men, and people are going about their business as usual, yet we hear people complaining because things are not going precisely as they would like them.

A movement has been inaugurated in Selby for the purpose of forming a Civilian Rifle Corps, and, notwithstanding the large number of men who have gone from the town and district to the Army, it is believed that many will be ready to join such an organization and acquire skill with the rifle. In the town there are many ex-Volunteers who would very likely be available to act as instructors, and to assist in getting the corps into working order. In other places the formation of civilian corps is being prosecuted, and while being in itself a wise precaution, such a body may also act as a good source in feeding the ranks of the Territorials.

Wetherby folks have been disappointed. For several weeks there have been rumours that troops were to be trained at the old town, and the visits of military men to the place gave colour to the belief that there was something in the rumours. The advantages of the racecourse for training purposes were discussed, and no doubt Wetherby would have been willing to be at a little expense to have the facilities offered by the town, for Mr Meyrick has received a notification from the Northern Command at York that there is no likelihood at present of troops being stationed at Wetherby.

Are not the "Lathers" of Tadcaster East behind the times? Following the fatal accident on the road through the town, they have passed a resolution in favour of the imposition of a speed limit, but, if I mistake not, the County Council are applying for power to restrict the speed of motors going through Tadcaster. Months ago Tadcaster District Council petitioned the county authorities in regard to this matter, and there seems to be some chance of success attending their efforts.

How few buildings in the district fulfil the demands of architecture as laid down by the Vicar of Whitkirk in his lecture at Crossgates. Unless in the case of monuments, comparatively little of an ornamental character is seen on the houses in which people live, and it would seem

SPECIAL DISPLAY OF Fancy Goods for Xmas.

LADIES' SCARVES, GLOVES, & FANCY NECKWEAR.

DOWN QUILTS & CUSHIONS.

FANCY LINEN GOODS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.

SMITH BROS. (Drapers) Ltd. BRIGGATE & COUNTY ARCADE, LEEDS.

BEST & BOOTH

Tailors & Costumiers,

119, KIRKGATE,

— AND —

143, BRIGGATE

(Corner of Market Street). LEEDS.

Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.

Look Out for B. & B.

STEPHENSON'S XMAS BAZAAR and TOY FAIR

NOW OPEN FOR THE SEASON.

Let "Christmas as usual despite all" be your guide this year, and, "as usual," remember to make the Kiddies Christmas-time this year the best they have struck yet.

BRING THEM TO SEE OUR GREAT DISPLAY OF DOLLS, TOYS AND GAMES.

British Made Toys have always been a Speciality with us, this year more so than ever before.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR ALL.

It is just as well to remind you NOW of the near approach of Yuletide—so that you may take advantage of the complete selection of Presents which OUR SPECIAL XMAS DISPLAY in all Departments affords you. It is a Splendid Collection of Gifts—and here are some of the very attractive values we are offering. FURS MAKE EXCELLENT GIFTS and our selection of FUR WEAR is noteworthy for QUALITY, STYLE and VALUE.

Pretty BLOUSES for Evening Wear, in Silk and Lace, etc., specially produced for the Xmas Season, from 2/11 to 18/6 each.

Endless choice in CHILDREN'S SILK, LACE, EMBROIDERED, and LAWN MUSLIN PINAFORES, very dainty styles, from 6½d. to 4/11 each.

CHILDREN'S SILK and CASHMERE DRESSES, for Party wear, in great variety at popular prices.

A choice collection of Fashionable FURS, in the latest shapes, with Muffs to match, from 3/11 to 8 Guineas the Set.

LADIES' UMBRELLAS, with Sterling Silver and Gold Plate Handles, a large choice from 3/11 to 12/6 each.

LADIES' LINEN HEMSTITCHED HANDKERCHIEFS, put up in Fancy Boxes for Presents, containing half-dozen, 1/11½ and 2/6 the box.

HAND-EMBROIDERED HANDKERCHIEFS, very dainty, boxes containing half-a-dozen handkerchiefs, 1/4½, 1/6½, 1/11½, 2/3, 2/9, and 2/11 per box.

Smart styles in MUSLIN APRONS, from 8½d. to 3/11.

MAIDS' CAPS, in great variety.

HOUSEMAIDS' DRESSES, always acceptable as presents, made in Hard-wearing, Fast-coloured Cloths, from 2/11 to 6/11 each.

LADIES' IMITATION SILK KNITTED SCARVES, in all the New Colours, fringed ends, from 6½d. to 3/11 each.

GENT.'S SILK MUFFLERS, in White and Colours, in Fancy Boxes, from 1/0½ to 5/11 each.

A sensible present for a lady is a pair of our well-known KID or FABRIC GLOVES, which can be had done up in Pretty Boxes, from 1/0½ to 3/11 per pair.

LADIES' LEATHER and SUEDE HAND BAGS, in great variety, from 11½d. to 21/- each.

LADIES' BRUSH and COMB BOXES, from 11½d. to 8/11 each, fitted with superior Brush and Comb, &c.

WRITING CASES, from 11½d. to 5/6 each.

SEE OUR WINDOWS THIS WEEK

for Evening Dress Materials, Silks, Hosiery, Laces, Lace Neckwear, Gloves, Ribbons, Corsets, Underclothing, Costume Skirts, Infants' and Children's Outfitting, Muslin Aprons and Caps, &c.

TABLE CENTRES and SIDEBOARD COVERS, in Silk, Linen, Canvas, and Lace.
VELVET PILE TABLE COVERS, DAMASK TABLECLOTHS, and SERVIETTES.
TEA COSIES and CUSHIONS, in great variety.
MANTEL BORDERS, SHEETS, QUILTS, TOWELS, &c., &c.
A choice lot of Five o'clock TABLE COVERS, in Linen and Lace, at Special Prices.
EMBROIDERED LINEN CRASH TABLE COVERS, DUCHESS SETS, SIDEBOARD COVERS, TABLE CENTRES, and MATS, the latest designs at popular prices.

STEPHENSON'S DRAPERY MARKET

(ALL DEPARTMENT ON THE GROUND FLOOR),

THE CROSS ARCADE, extending from KING EDWARD St. to QUEEN VICTORIA St., Fifty yards from BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

PUBLIC NOTICE

EMPIRE PALACE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY at 6.30 and 9. Early Doors 3[illegible] Doors open at 2. Saturday

MONDAY, DECEMBER 28th, 1914.

[illegible] Theatrical Manager, GEORGE GOLDIN, The Wizard Master of Magic.

THE REPARTEE KING, BURNAND and LORIMER.

Latest War News and War Films.

BELLE DAVIS & HER CRACKER JACKS.

In Southern Reviews.

[illegible] ERNES in Dainty Transformations.

Prices, 10s. 6d., 3s., 2s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9.

NEXT WEEK.

MARGARET MOFFAT & NAT D. AYER.

ELSIE SOUTHGATE, S.S.R.A.M.

"VENETIA."

GRETA MACK.

HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.

BOBBIE PEELER.

THE POLUSKI BROS.

THE FIVE BLACK DIAMONDS

Matinee, Boxing Day, Saturday, December 26th, at 2.30. Doors open at 2.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 1s., 6d., and 4d.

THEATRE ROYAL, LEEDS.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, at 7 p.m. and every Evening until further notice at 7.15. (Saturdays at 7).

Matinees Tuesdays and Saturdays at 2.

FRANCIS LAIDLER'S Sixth Leeds Pantomime "CINDERELLA." FRED KITCHEN, as "Peter the Page."

REDUCED PRICES THIS SEASON. Seats now booking. Telephone 1360 and 5140. Orchestra Stalls and Dress Circle 2s. 6d.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY MATINEES.

Saturday, Dec. 26th. Tuesday, Dec. 29th
Monday, Dec. 28th. Friday, Jan. 1st.
Saturday, Jan. 2nd.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS

WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.

Special Suits From 30/-

NO FIT. NO PAY.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.

James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.

Residence:—
43, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Established 1870. SPARKLING HOSPERRADE TRADE MARK. An Unfermented & Unintoxicating & Refreshing Beverage. Obtainable from the Hotels Restaurants & Dealers. REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

DISTRICT BREVITIES.

The "American" has been caught on. Another to be held in Co-operative district.

* * *

In the composition picture at Cawood in an antique silver cup, bearing the date 1097.

* * *

When are the private streets at Garforth to be lighted? Now is the time to inspect them.

* * *

At one time the counties of Durham, Aberford, and Lobberton were bracketed together, but that is many years ago.

* * *

It is stated that at the Christmas fat stock markets in Barkston Ash finer stock has never been seen.

* * *

Didn't Alberton Rawcliffe do well? At the concert for the Belgians on Tuesday evening he gathered £4 5s and £16. The missing 5s at Kippax was £11.

* * *

Templetowsham, with a population of about 3,500, has sent over 500 men to serve in His Majesty's Forces.

* * *

Transvenice! Fenghan and Mrs Smith, of Garforth, have now charge of the Siberian Army corps at Rothwell.

* * *

Selby Urban Council are to have no truck with the Yorkshire Electric Power Co. What attitude will Garforth Council adopt?

* * *

While measles and whooping-cough have been prevalent in other parts of the district, influenza has been playing havoc in Wetherby.

* * *

Garforth has given the life of one of her men's for the home fleet. His death, following a very hopeful letter sent by him, is very sad.

* * *

The proper spirit! A Wetherby soldier, writing from the Front, says "I hope to have a good Christmas and a happy New Year."

* * *

Population going up! Last month in Templenewsam, Middleton, and Oulton-with-Woodlesford, the births were 14 and the deaths 6.

* * *

Two Bramham men—Lance-Corporal Tindall and Private T. Brown—who were wounded in the fighting in France, have returned home.

* * *

Big families are not common in the district nowadays. On a tombstone at Cawood is recorded the fact that a woman had a twentieth child.

* * *

Middleton, Oulton, Woodlesford, and Templenewsam seem to be very healthy just now. Only five cases of infectious disease were notified last month.

* * *

The district possesses three good pierrot troupes —at Rothwell, Sherburn, and Collingham, and Kippax, Oulton, and Sherburn education areas have no distress.

* * *

At Bowers Alberton there is a remarkable Bible Class. Its membership is confined to men, and the meetings are held on Friday nights. The attendance is usually about 100.

* * *

Property values have gone down in Cawood. A sum of £1,150 was offered for the flour mill there, and it was stated the value of the mill stood at over £5,000 in the books.

* * *

Although the diversion has been approved by the authorities, the sanction of Quarter Sessions must be obtained to the alteration of the footpath near the new colliery at Newsam Green.

* * *

Quite right, too! Ald. Rhodes, of Sherburn, is anxious that the police should have an opportunity of fighting the fires. Why should wherever a people fills its mind with war thoughts, it is only a question of time before its life will be occupied with war deeds.

So ignorant was she of this vital truth that she held the opinion that the surest way to preserve peace was not to seek to make herself helpful to her neighbours, but to make desperate efforts to be ready to injure them, whenever she deemed that course necessary to her own advancement.

It is clear that in this respect Germany has been under the influence of foolish, if not wicked, teaching, and it has happened to her, as was said by one of old, that "Where there is no open vision the people perish."

In seeking to bring to an end the present conflict, I think something should be done to relieve the pressure to bring the war to an end, with very little further loss of life; and a peace arranged on this basis would be much more likely to be equitably determined than would a peace forced upon her after she had been humiliated by the Allies.

Ar Garforth and Rothwell a question discussed at present is as to how much a Belgian workman, employed in the district and the guest of the people, should spend out of his wage for lodgings and maintenance.

* * *

Where is it now? In 1822 the market was revived at Cawood, and at that time it was proclaimed there that it "be carried on with quietness and effect." Cawood folks have to go to Selby to market now.

* * *

Not before time! The "fathers" of East Tadcaster have entered a protest against the condition of the road through the town, and the leaving of road scrapings by the sides of footpaths in order to dirty people's footwear.

* * *

Too, too! It is complained that a concert at Wetherby "was of a very high-class character—in fact, perhaps a little too much so for an everyday concert." The hint to all-comers is "Give us something we understand and can enjoy."

* * *

Lecturers have a great deal to say about Cawood being an archbishop's residence, but they overlook Sherburn's ancient dignity. At Rest Park the Archbishops of York frequently resided down to a period as late as the Reformation.

* * *

Towton is stated to be one of the last "Danish settlements on the fringe of Saxon land, as testified after the subjection of the old Kingdom of Elmet." Probably the present inhabitants would say there is nothing Danish about them.

* * *

Two local ladies were in a shop, and one of them was heard to say—"Don't you think this war is awful of late?" replied the other "Yes," said the first, "I have just come back from Scarborough where I saw the soldiers digging graves in the sand."

* * *

These parishes not far apart—Lotherton, Hazlewood, and Sturton Grange—have no parish church, and it is recorded in 1650 that "part of Aberford in the chapelry of Lotherton was annexed to Aberford." At that time the people must have worshipped in the little chapel at Lotherton, because it is stated the "congregation was two small for it would have been raised into a parish church."

* * *

A Roll of Honour is to be compiled of the young men who have enlisted from the churches in the Rothwell Wesleyan Circuit.

* * *

A splendid result! The concerts at Garforth, Kippax, Allerton Bywater, and Great Preston for the Belgians realised about £40.

* * *

Crossgates people are called some funny names. They have been labelled "Dukes" and "industrial specialists." Yet they keep smiling.

* * *

Good management! Two Kippax soldiers have written home thanking the people for sending an abundance of food and they have plenty of warm clothing.

* * *

How money is raised! For the Belgian relief fund a Kirkby Overblow man gave a cockerel and another man gave a couple of chickens.

* * *

Not content with what they have already done, the Selby Urban Council are to build more houses. If it pays them would it not pay other local authorities?

* * *

Excellent progress is being made with the making of the tramway to Halton. Will Kippax's request for cricket grounds be considered when the work is completed?

* * *

Defendants sometimes try to score off police witnesses. Said one in Leeds concerning a constable—"He ought to be a good recruiter for the Germans, he is a good liar."

* * *

Over fifty men employed at Garforth Collieries who did not reside in the parish have enlisted. With the men who have gone from the parish the total number is about 180.

* * *

Promotion! Mr and Mrs Maidment, assistant master and matron at Wetherby workhouse for the past five years, have been appointed master and matron of a workhouse in Norfolk.

* * *

The reason why the boundary wall at Gosforth Council School is not to be built just now is because the Education Authority are cutting down expenses wherever possible.

* * *

A correspondent suggests that a badge might be worn by young men who are working for the Germans and railway and cannot be spared, and so are unable to enlist.

* * *

Lumby, says a writer, "is a village of no significance, except the fact that it seems to be the only Danish foundation in the parish." That won't interest the folks much.

* * *

Mrs Gascoigne, of Lotherton Hall, believes that, as a result of the war, "people will think less of themselves and more of others." If it accomplishes that it will do something.

* * *

For seven years! It was stated at Garforth that the proposed improvements at Barwick School had been under consideration for seven years. Isn't it about time the matter was advanced a stage?

* * *

Where are the custodians of law and order? It is stated that the lamps at Fleet Lane, Oulton, have been taken down in consequence of stone-throwing. The offenders might turn their marksmanship into better channels.

* * *

Mr J. A. Bromet, the ex-Clerk to Tadcaster Board of Guardians, had a narrow escape during the bombardment of Scarborough, where he has resided for several years. Mr Bromet, who is nearly ninety years of age, had an alarming experience, his house being struck by two shells and damaged. Happily, none of the occupants of the house was injured. Mr Bromet is now staying with his daughter, Mrs Cochrane, at Wetherby.

* * *

The marriage arranged between Roger Fenoulis, second son of the Rev. William H. Draper, of Adel Rectory, and the late Mrs E. A. Draper, and Anna Lowell, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs Robert H. Gardiner, of Gardiner, Maine, U.S.A., took place quietly owing to the war, in the private chapel, London House, last week. The ceremony was performed by the father of the bridegroom. The Bishop of London was present, and gave the blessing.

* * *

In a case in the King's Bench Division, it was stated that Mr J. F. Houlton, son of the late Mr Charles Houlton, of Garforth (manager of Micklefield Colliery), was the managing director of the Bolsover Colliery Co., which owned four or five collieries and employed between 7,000 and 8,000 men. It was a most enlightened company, and its administration was excellent. At each colliery there was a model village constructed and maintained by the company for the benefit of the workmen.

EVERY WOMAN

Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the safe Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London.

GERMANY AND THE GERMANS.

LACKING IN THE "SENSE OF HONOUR AND DUTY."

Last year (writes Mr Joseph Bibby) I happened to have the pleasure of visiting the principal cities of the Fatherland, and in the course of my various wanderings to and fro in one of the great cosmopolitan cities of the world, I had been in friendly relationship with a great many German people, and I may, therefore, perhaps more aptly put with the title of the German branch of the Teutonic family than many of my countrymen.

The incidence of the present war is doubtless bringing out some of the base submarkable qualities of their character; but, according to my observations and experience, the average German is a decent fellow in every way, and as fully alive to the value of character as we believe ourselves to be.

I think the outstanding feature of German social life, as compared with our own or that of the Belgians or French, is that the German national spirit is stronger and more united than it is with us; the patriotism which we call Nationalism, pervades the whole nation from the Kaiser downwards.

In spite of two seemingly incongruous elements, an autocratic Government and a Socialistic Proletariat, the people of Germany have been pulling together better than any other nation in Europe, with the result that of late years they have made much more rapid advance in science, mechanics, art, and commerce than any other nation ever achieved in so short a time.

The consequence is that they have risen from a group of thirty-three states into a nation well in the front rank of human progress.

Before examining the weaker side of her character, in which we shall discover the true cause of her present unfolding, let us pause to admire her unity of purpose, her strength, her domestic virtues, her indomitable patience, her industry, her capacity for organisation, and, last, but not least, her valiant determination to win "a place in the sun."

Naturally strong and virile, she might, with great advantage to herself and with gain to the rest of humanity, have become a great world power, had she understood a little better the things which make for her peace and true advancement.

It will be admitted that the really great man or nation is the one whose influence is helpful and strengthening; for that is the true test of all greatness.

Germany as a whole, unfortunately, has not yet risen to an appreciation of this fact, and has apparently had no vision of the higher good which comes of service to others; she has allowed her self-seeking desires into thinking that true greatness lies in might, regardless of the fact that the true use of strength is for the helping of the weak.

As a nation she has also shown herself to be lacking in this sense of honour and duty—the highest and divinest qualities which in latent in all men, and which she ought to be gradually unfolding as her evolution proceeds.

She is placed in that unfortunate position that she desired colonies for her overflow population and has come too late; the world is already parcelled out.

For many years she has been thinking war, talking war, and preparing for war, and has evidently been entirely oblivious to the fact that, wherever a people fills its mind with war thoughts, it is only a question of time before its life will be occupied with war deeds.

So ignorant was she of this vital truth that she held the opinion that the surest way to preserve peace was not to seek to make herself helpful to her neighbours, but to make desperate efforts to be ready to injure them, whenever she deemed that course necessary to her own advancement.

It is clear that in this respect Germany has been under the influence of foolish, if not wicked, teaching, and it has happened to her, as was said by one of old, that "Where there is no open vision the people perish."

In seeking to bring to an end the present conflict, I think something should be done to relieve the pressure to bring the war to an end, with very little further loss of life; and a peace arranged on this basis would be much more likely to be equitably determined than would a peace forced upon her after she had been humiliated by the Allies.

BRAMHAM MOOR HUNT APPOINTMENTS.

Saturday	Dec. 26—11 o	Wetherby Market Place
Monday	Dec. 28—11. o	Butterwick
Wednesday	Dec. 30—11. o	Peckfield Bar
Friday	Jan. 1—11. o	Ingmanthorpe Hall
Saturday	Jan. 2—11. o	Becca Mill

ROUNDHAY

The Rev. Harry Henley Officer, has been licensed to the curacy of St. Edmund's, Roundhay.

At the annual prize distribution of Drax Grammar School, Councillor Mark Scott, of Selby, gave an interesting address to the students.

(To be continued.)

THE CONQUEST.

...ERHARD

...Angel's Sin."

...Thursday.

...Saturday.

...Monday.

...Tuesday.

...Wednesday.

...Thursday.

...Friday.

...Saturday.

...the girl's nerveless ...hand, heavily ...to pick it up. Then ...on there was a ...brought me peace! ...For two or three minutes she stood ...the warehouse ...lay between Easterholme and the ...is nearly dark now, but the moon ...ull of frost is in the twilight ...was there, hiding among the trees ...ness in the snow itself, and he waited ...appear in the snow itself, and he waited ...

She flung herself upon her bed and, burying ...into tears. She had parted from him ...most all that had passed into nothingness ...It was as though they had parted ...years ago, and the recent scene, which had been forgotten. That terrible night, when death sprang out of the darkness and the senseless figures of Cransea Hall and destroyed those who had watched in vain, had placed countless ages between the present and the date of the quarrel. The future of England, the future of the world, very nearly depended on the issue of this one man whom she loved. She had given him back her ring, and he had taken it! Why had she ever begun the quarrel to end in separation? why, he had been so hard, unreasonable. He had realised that his life would be so encompassed with danger that he could not ask any woman to share it with him. And now he had returned—had escaped from one peril, to encounter another. He was a fugitive from the law of his own country, and it was in need of her help. What did that mean? Something more substantial than love and sympathy, without doubt. Perhaps he was in want—yes, of course it was money. How foolish she had been not to think of that at once. He could be penniless.

She rose from the bed and went to her jewel-case. She had fifteen pounds left over from her last quarter's allowance, and her jewellery was worth over two hundred pounds. She put all the trinkets and the money into the leather bag she carried on her wrist, and placed the bag in a drawer, which she locked. Then she began to dress for dinner.

At half-past nine Joan Endermine, pleading a headache, went upstairs to bed, and at half-past ten she left the house, creeping softly down the back stairs, and making her way out into the garden through the kitchen.

Nothing but the fact of her lover's danger would have induced her to engage in such a secret and, as it seemed to her, such a disreputable enterprise. She felt like a criminal as she passed the reading-room window, where a light was still burning, and her cheeks grew hot with shame as she thought of what would happen if anyone caught her stealing out of the house at this hour of the night. And if she were to be caught by a man in the lonely grounds of Cransea Hall—she covered her face with her hands at the very thought of it. But she had made her way down the road across the marshland, thanking Heaven that it was a dark night and that no one could see her, and realised the ridiculous side of her fears, and rejoiced that she had been strong enough to overcome them. The risk of being caught wandering about the countryside at eleven o'clock at night was nothing compared to the possibility of life or death that she was running. The man she loved was in danger, and she would give more than her reputation to save him.

It was so dark that at first she could hardly see the road, and, though it was straight as a line, it twisted, she blundered off the edge of it on to the grass more than once. But by degrees her eyes grew accustomed to the gloom, and she could distinguish a faint streak of grey against the blackness. On the left was a horizon there were lurid bands of dull yellow light. It marked the rising of the moon behind the thick canopy of clouds that covered the whole of the heavens.

When she reached the main entrance to the grounds of Cransea Hall she paused, and, standing motionless, heard the creaking of the white gates and the outline of the house against the sky. The complete silence had existed before, but now it seemed to be more intense, as though she could distinguish its every sound among the leaves and branches, and the girl fancied that far off she could hear the breathing of the waves on the other side of the island.

She kept close to the wall of the park, and along it till she came to the little wicket gate that faced the east, and which was only a few yards distant from the pier. Here the trees overhung the road, and under their shadow it was very dark indeed. But looking seaward the waters there were more light than there had been on the marshland for the sea always seems to reflect any glimmer there may be in the darkness.

When she reached the little gate she paused, and leaning against the wall waited for something to happen. Then, when five minutes had elapsed, she began to whistle—very softly. The air was one known to Ralph Lowick—the air of a song that he had often asked her to sing to him. She thought often asked her to sing to him. She thought it would serve as a signal, and if anyone else heard it it would convey nothing to their ears.

The sound seemed very loud in the silence, and it made her realise that she was afraid. Up to now the strength of her purpose had given her courage, but now she understood that she was alone—far away from any help—at the mercy of anyone who chose to attack her. It was possible that Ralph Lowick had been pursued and captured, and that the men who had taken him knew that he had written a letter and was waiting for her. Certainly it was very dark and very lonely.

Her head ached, and there was not even a cottage nearer than Easterholme.

Another ten minutes went by, and still there were no signs of Ralph Lowick.

"I am early," she said to herself, "or perhaps something has detained him."

Then she started, and every muscle in her body seemed to grow rigid. There was the faint sound of footsteps in the distance—the sound of someone walking among dry leaves and fallen twigs, and the swish of boughs being parted by the passing of someone's body. Then the latch of the gate clicked, and hinges creaked, and the gate itself swung to with a rattle.

"Is that you, Ralph?" she whispered.

There was no answer, and she grew cold and sick with fear.

"It is I—John," she faltered, thinking that perhaps he could not betray himself until he was certain she was speaking to him.

Still there was no reply, and the girl gave a shriek of terror, a scream that was muffled, as something was thrown over her head, and died away in a strangled sob as a hand was forced itself into her nostrils and crept into her lungs.

She struggled feebly for a few seconds and then collapsed in a heap on the ground.

When Joan Endermine came to her senses she found herself in a small cabin, some ten feet square. She was lying in a bunk on a heap of nets and old sails. There was an overwhelming smell of tar and lamp oil flavoured with a very unpleasant odour of fish. A lamp swung from the ceiling at an angle which showed that the boat was heeling over under a stiff breeze. The water gurgled past the planks but otherwise there was silence.

Joan Endermine raised herself from her unpleasant couch, and pressed her hands to her forehead. She was dazed, but felt clear. She remembered how she had left the house, and stared round her for a few seconds, and then lay down again.

Two minutes later the hatch was pushed back by a gush of fresh air came down the ...rain, and a man descended the companion ...ladder, and set down on the opposite bench. He was a tall man with a brown, hard face, like two.

"You are conscious, I see," he said, in a voice that was unmistakably a foreigner's. "What is the meaning of this, pray?"

"You are better, madam," said the man, speaking with a strong Scandinavian accent. "What is the meaning of this? I was going to ask you that question. Why have you brought me here?"

"I will answer," said Joan, with a shiver of anger, "when you have told me what you have done with Ralph Lowick."

"Ah, that is the question I was going to ask you," said the man, politely. "Where is Ralph Lowick?"

"Do you mean to say that you have not got him?" she cried, in a voice of terror.

"I have not got him, madam," said the man, politely. "You shall have some coffee and then I will answer your questions. You will have a very long journey, if you will do as we wish."

He went to a locker, and taking out some bottles and glasses mixed a brandy and soda, boiled a kettle on a spirit lamp, and presently when he offered it to her she drained the glass to the dregs, and felt so much better that she sat up and faced him with flashing eyes.

"Where is Ralph Lowick? Tell me!" she asked.

"What is the meaning of this outrage?"

"We only want him, so that we may use his influence with Mr. Ralph Lowick," he said.

"I don't understand. Please speak out plainly."

"Well, it is like this, madam. Mr. Ralph Lowick has only two friends in the world, and one of them is you—from a rather unpleasant point of view. The other friend is—death. He refuses to speak to them, and we thought that perhaps your words might be able to persuade him."

Joan Endermine looked at the man with horror in her eyes, and she placed her hands on the table and buried her face between them. So this was what they were going to do with Ralph Lowick, to force him to betray his country and his own conscience, to use her love as a weapon. Oh, it was monstrous, monstrous!

Two minutes elapsed before she spoke again. Then she raised her head and looked contemptuously at the man.

"I shall not try and persuade him," she said, coldly.

"We shall see," the man answered, grimly, and rising from his seat he made his way up a small ladder and disappeared.

And when he had gone Joan Endermine lay down on the heap of nets and sails, and reclined as though her heart would break.

CHAPTER XVI.

The sun blazed pitilessly in a cloudless sky, and the white sand beneath it was so hot that it seemed to scorch the bare feet of the man who moved slowly across it to the edge of the sea. The movement was very slow indeed, shuffling his feet along inch by inch, and stopping at intervals of about after he had traversed every yard. This was not to be wondered at, seeing that his ankles were fettered with a heavy chain, and that the chain was fastened behind him a ball of solid iron weighing a hundred pounds.

Three months had passed since Ralph Lowick had been taken out of the darkness of his cabin and rowed ashore to this lonely island in the Baltic, and three months of solitude and degradation and pain. His skin had been burnt a dark brown, and his hair was burnt as fiercely as ever. His spirit was yet unbroken.

He knew now with whom he had to deal. A band of adventurers, bound together by a common purpose, had outwitted the secret services of the Governments of Europe in the contest for supremacy. Their object was the glory of the German Empire, and they were of all nations in their ranks, but simply and solely the children of humanity. Their leader was a Swedish gentleman, who was English on his mother's side, and who united the dogged courage of the Anglo-Saxon race with the fierce lust for bloodshed cruelty of the people who had conquered South America with fire and sword. He was known as Senor Smith, and Ralph Lowick had never heard of his real name. It was doubtful, indeed, if he knew himself, for he had been one of those men who, when they emerge from obscurity, find it advisable to forget their past, and all that it is advisable to forget their past, and all that is advisable to forget they had heard from the lips of others. There were none of his followers who would have dared to discuss their master's affairs with the prisoner, lest the gossip should come back to their master's ears. He was feared by everyone who served under him, and loved by some, for he was a modern type of the old buccaneer—fearless, ferocious, and a leader of men.

It was so far Ralph Lowick had held his own. They kept him short of food, often of drink, of water incessantly, but not often, he was tackled with a whip, and the chains were never taken off his ankles. His spirit was not unbroken, and he defied the ruffians to do their worst. He knew they would not kill him so long as there was a chance of forcing him to betray. He was only waiting his opportunity to kill them. He felt sure that it would come in these days.

And as he slowly dragged his aching feet across the sand this thought was uppermost in his mind. On this day he would turn the tables on his torturers, that one day he would be able to gain possession of the machine, which he knew was concealed in the centre of the island, and that he would be able to escape. He would then kill all his accursed death upon Senor Smith and all his accursed crew.

At last he reached the water's edge, and sat down on the fringe of the surf swept over him, and then he rose and waded out to the lagoon of still water ran round most of the island, and the sea beat on the coral reef outside. But here, for quarter of a mile, the water was deep enough for boats, and here coral insects had not yet built high enough to endanger the passage of the waves, and twenty yards away they broke like thunder on the shore.

"It will bath," he muttered, grimly. Then he lay back with extended arms and allowed the foam to sweep over him, covering him for a time from sight. A coarse canvas shirt and an old pair of blue serge trousers were all the clothes he possessed, and he never yet knew how to be spoilt by the sea water.

"Bath and laundry in one, well," he said aloud, as he came up again and wiped the salt water from his eyes. He had got into the habit of talking to himself for hours on end at great extent, but occasional sentences now and then. At first there had been plenty of conversation between him and Senor Smith, but during the last month the latter had purposed a policy of silence, and the other crew had been forbidden to speak to the prisoner at all. This is the sort of treatment that forces a man to talk to himself.

"I must bide my time," he thought, as he gazed seawards where the blue sea met the blue sky. "Sooner or later one of the men will give me a chance. It is a fine bribe to offer—the kingdom of the world."

Yes, that was his chance, that sooner or later rogues will fall out, and that among a body of men actuated by no other principles than by those of greed there is sure to be some traitor who will sell his comrades for gold. Let there be a quarrel—one of these harsh partialments that the leader meted out at times to insubordinates—and there would be a weapon ready to the hand of the man who is content to wait. An offer to divulge the secret—to work hand in hand with the leader.

"Ho! you come-out of that," said a sharp voice. "we don't want you to drown your-self."

Lowick looked round and saw a tall man swimming slowly across the island—a remarkably powerful man with a short-pointed black beard, and a neatly-trimmed black moustache. He was dressed in a blue serge suit and a Panama hat. His face and hands were burnt almost to the colour of mahogany.

"We don't want to lose you," said Senor Smith, at least, not yet. Halloa! Lowick, you are lively to-day. Though he was a tall man he stepped into the water with the ease of a practised bather, "he said, quietly. "I don't intend to commit suicide—at least, not to-day."

"Hum," said the big man, thoughtfully. "We shall have to guard against that. You are too much favoured out of that state."

Ralph Lowick chewed. He had passed the time of day with Senor Smith this man, and gave back insult for insult. He was content now to wait his time.

"I live in hopes," said Lowick, pleasantly.

"So do I," was the grim reply. "We must try and prevent that."

"Take care you don't carry your—er—specimens too far, Mr. Smith," said Lowick, with a laugh. "All this is going to lay a golden egg for you."

"We shall be careful," said Smith, stroking his beard. "I think we have been careful. Well, I've mess for you, my friend—good mess."

Ralph Lowick looked at him inquiringly, but without much show of interest. It pleased the man to talk, and he did not care. He had not probably devised some new form of punishment.

"There is a vessel in sight," Smith continued, and he smiled as he saw the light of hope flash into Lowick's eyes. "Is it the Swallow?"

"It is the Swallow," the man went on, after a pause, and again he smiled as he saw the sudden look of despair that has sign-ified to us that she has a friend of yours on board."

"A friend of mine!" queried Lowick, sharply.

"Yes. Miss Joan Endermine."

Lowick's face grew white under the tan. Then he clenched his fists and made a spring forward, falling to the ground at the heavy feet of his captor.

"You devil!" he shouted, as he struggled to his feet.

"Yes, you mongrel!"

The Spaniard's dark eyes glittered at the man, but he spoke very admirably. "I have read the signals," he answered. "Miss Joan Endermine is on board."

"You have dared to carry her off—to bring her here. You shall pay for this—I'll have your life. You vile scoundrel—to bring a woman into this den of thieves and murderers. Oh, but you shall pay for it!"

His spoke fluently, inadvertently, and a slight foam gathered at the corners of his parched mouth. He had been for eight hours in the burning sun, and not one drop of water had passed his lips.

"She shall come to no harm," said Smith, quietly. "She will be treated here with as much respect as if she were in her own home. And she has come here for your sake."

"I will not be forced her to come against her will!"

"To some extent that is true. But when she knew that you wanted her help she was glad to come."

"Liar! What do you mean!"

"She has come to help you to decide whether you will give up your secret or be put to death."

"Oh, I see," said Lowick, very quietly. "That is your plan?"

"It is the plan I thought advisable that you should have a chance of consulting the lady you hope to make your wife before you be consulted to make your wife before you be consulted. What is to say, if you have any regard for her?"

"I shall do my duty," he said, grimly. "I shall not discuss a matter in which a woman can decide. Only a mean, contemptible coward could have thought of such a trick."

Senor Smith shrugged his shoulders. "We have acted for the best," he said, simply. "No harm will come to her. She shall be sent safely home again—either with you, if you will, or, if you will not get back to your self. I should like you to look your best when Miss Endermine arrives. She will be pleased to see you, I hour."

Ralph Lowick slapped his hands together and he kicked sand about him. He turned and walked across the sand. The Spaniard walked on in front very slowly, but keeping every now and then a few yards in front of him.

"They exposed the waste of dry sand that was between them and the machine," he thought Lowick, as he watched the tall white figure vanish, "I'd make them all dance to my tune then."

Then he went into the hut, and the sentry followed him in silence.

"So you are the famous English lady on whose behalf," he said Senor Smith, coolly, looking over Joan Endermine from head to foot. "Well, please sit down, and we will have a talk."

Joan Endermine seated herself in a padded wicker armchair, and leant back on the cushions. Her face was very pale, but she seemed to be in good health. Her eyes and mouth showed no outward signs of resentment.

"I hope you had a comfortable voyage," said the man, and he had scrutinised her with an impertinent stare.

"Quite, thank you," Joan replied, for all the world as she had just stepped off a liner.

"I gave instructions that you were to be treated with respect," Miss Endermine. "I should like to know if you have any complaints to make, because I am not accustomed to being spoken to or ordered."

"I have no complaints to make, except that I have been brought here against my will."

"That strictly true. Before you left Europe you were given a chance to return, were you not?"

"Yes, and I refused."

"Then you can hardly be said to be here against your will," Miss Endermine. But we have no desire to force you into

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

CHAIRMAN'S LOSS—VOTE OF SYMPATHY.

BARWICK, SCHOLES, TADCASTER, AND SHERBURN AFFAIRS.

PROPOSED DISTRICT WATER SCHEME.

The fortnightly meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held at the workhouse at Tadcaster on Monday—Mr Walter Croxtand, J.P. (chairman), presiding. The other members present were Miss Boland (Rosedale Abbey), Messrs C. D. Ash (Saxton), Messrs T. H. Prater (Parlington), J. H. Schofield (Grston), J. Whitworth, jun., H. E. H. Jeffcock (Healaugh, Preston), A. Towlerton (Appleton Roebuck), J. H. Ingleby, J.P. and J. Northrop (Tadcaster), J. Pick (Ulleskelf), R. Wright (Barwick), R. Parker (Lotherton), W. F. Blackburn (Ryther), T. Hy. and J. J. Foster (Sherburn), J. Ladley (Kirkby Wharfe), and F. Phillips (Allerton Bywater), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Bennett), the surveyor (Mr Scott), and the sanitary inspector (Messrs Driver and Wood).

SYMPATHY WITH THE CHAIRMAN.

Before the business commenced, Mr Croxtand moved that a letter be sent to the Chairman (Mr Brocklebank) expressing sincere sympathy with him on the death of his son, Lieut. Hugh G. Brocklebank, who had died from wounds received in action.

Mr T. H. Prater, who seconded, said that they all sympathised very deeply with the Chairman in the loss he had sustained, but it would be some consolation to know that one of his sons had fallen. Their hearts went out to him in his sorrow.

The Rev. A. T. Field, who formerly represented Ryther on the Board, wrote desiring to be associated with the vote of condolence.

This resolution was passed.

Mr Prater referred to the bombardment of Scarborough and the narrow escape of Mr J. A. Bromet, formerly Clerk to the Board. He congratulated him on his escape.

The treasurer was reported to have a balance of £9,611 in hand.

THE HOUSE.

The master's report showed that during the fortnight there had been admissions to the house, one birth, three discharges, and one death. The inmates totalled 99 in the house and 18 in the children's home—117 against 107. The triumph relieved during the two weeks were 14 and 21 against 17 and 20 for the corresponding weeks of last year.

The thanks of the Board were given to Mrs Lamb for a gift of books to the inmates of the house.

It was resolved that the children at the Bilbrough Home be given their usual Christmas dinner, and some children who have been brought up in the home are to be invited to attend.

Instructions were given by various Unions to pay their poor resident in Tadcaster Union extra relief during Christmas week.

A number of vacancies were reported to be in arrears with calls.

The Board were invited to send delegates to the Poor Law Conference to be held in London in February, and it was ordered to be placed on the agenda for next meeting.

DISTRICT COUNCIL.

At the District Council meeting it was reported that the treasurer had a balance of £7,587. A sum of £76 was spent on district roads during the fortnight.

HIGHWAYS COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Highways Committee the necessity of a footpath improvement near the new chapel at Allerton Bywater was stated, and the surveyor was instructed to hope the work done.—The surveyor had improved the surface drainage at Bilbrough and Lobston, where there had been flooding.—The tender of Mr Hall for repairs to the road roller was accepted.—In regard to the proposed re-construction of the York Road from Tadcaster East, the county surveyor stated that it should be repaired during the winter, and the re-construction will be considered in the spring.

A letter was read from the Tadcaster East Parish Council complaining of the inconvenience arising from road scrapings being left at the road sides. The surveyor reported that he had made arrangements to deal with the road scrapings.—Tadcaster East Parish Council were asking that a speed limit for motor-cars through the town should be made.—The Clerk was instructed to reply that application for an order for 20 miles an hour had already been made.—In regard to the heavy traffic on the roads at Tadcaster, letters were read from the N.E.R. Co. and John Smith's Brewery Co., and they stated that there was no alteration in the position with regard to the matter.

A letter was read from Barwick Parish Council complaining of trees in the church yard overhanging the road, and it was decided to ask Mr Harvey to have the trees lopped.—In regard to the improvement at Sherburn Cross, an offer was received from Mr Bentley, on behalf of Mrs Pearson, for the land necessary. The terms he asked were that the Council should pay £51 10s. for 14 yards, re-build the wall, and pay all legal expenses. It was decided to offer £1 per yard and 10s. per yard for disturbance. A letter was received from Stutton Parish Council anent a footpath from Tadcaster, and the surveyor was asked to deal with the case.—Sherburn Parish Council wrote complaining of the state of certain roads and footpaths and asking permission to lay a gas main. The surveyor will attend to the first matter, and permission was given to open the road to lay the main.

SHERBURN AND TADCASTER QUESTIONS.

Mr Parker said that with regard to the land at Sherburn Cross, they considered Mr Bentley's valuation excessive. They had made an offer which they thought was generous. The amount that was being asked for the land seemed out of all proportion to the area. With regard to the heavy traffic on Tadcaster roads, they had had replies, and he was sorry they were not satisfactory.

Mr Ingleby said, with regard to Tadcaster roads, that surely the surveyor could make arrangements so that the road scrapings were not left over Sunday.

It was pointed out that arrangements had been made to deal with the road scrapings.

Mr Ingleby asked if application had been made for a motor speed limit in Tadcaster.

The Clerk said that was so.

Mr Ingleby said he did not believe in motor speed limits. Anyone driving to the danger of the public was liable to be brought up, and in certain circumstances ten miles, or even seven might be a danger. He thought it should be left to the drivers themselves.

The minutes were approved.

SANITARY COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Sanitary Committee it was reported that there had been 14 births and 23 deaths in the area. Messrs Rogers's londries for making manholes at Allerton Bywater was accepted, and Mr Hall's tender for the work of making a foul house at Barwick sewage works.

Property-owners at Allerton Bywater are to be asked to put a sewer into repair, and also a manhole and part of the house for South Milford Gas Co. were passed, but the plans for a house at Sherburn were rejected. In regard to Scholes sewerage, the Rivers Board complaining of sewage from houses running into a stream, and the inspector is to report.—It was reported that the N.E.R. Co. had not complied with the terms of the agreement with regard to the supply of water to certain cottages at South Milford, and it was agreed that the Clerk should write to them.—A letter was received from the Local Government Board inquiring as to the housing conditions at Tadcaster, and it was stated the medical officer had not completed his inspection.

The minutes were approved.

COMPREHENSIVE WATER SCHEME.

The Water Committee had a water scheme under consideration, and they recommended that application be made to the Local Government Board for permission to borrow £10,000 to carry it out.

Mr Prater stated that the scheme was a comprehensive one, and would supply the needs of a number of parishes.

Mr Hey asked that a copy of the resolution should be sent to the Parish Councils of the parishes proposed to be included in the scheme.

A discussion ensued, and Mr Wright pointed out that only recently the Council sanctioned a resolution to apply for £19,000 for a water scheme.

Mr Hey said that at Sherburn they had plenty of water, and there was no better water than in Bishop's Dyke.

Mr Parker asked if there was any harm in having the question adjourned and the members being supplied with the figures.

Mr Ingleby said that the Local Government Board were requiring them to have a water supply, and if they did not find one they would find one for them. If every parish wanted its own scheme they would soon run away with a large sum of money. If there were any objections to the scheme they could be heard at the inquiry.

Mr Foster inquired if the proportions for the parishes had been worked out?

Mr Prater said they had not.

Mr Foster said that the figures would be no use then. He thought the matter should be carefully looked into, but he preferred a district to a parochial scheme.

Mr Hey inquired how far Scholes was from Sherburn, but there was no reply.

Mr Wright said that in Barwick they were determined to wait no longer. They had been struggling for fourteen years to get a water supply, and they had not got it yet.

The Chairman said that, in view of the small attendance of members, he thought this question should be adjourned for a fortnight.

Mr Foster moved that the question be adjourned, Mr Parker seconded, and this was agreed to.

TADCASTER PETTY SESSIONS.

FIRST CASE OF THE KIND AT TADCASTER

At Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday—before Mr C. B. Lamb (in the chair) and Mr J. H. Ingleby—Arthur Johnson, labourer, of Tadcaster, was charged with allowing a dog to stray during the night time at Tadcaster on December 7th.

Defendant pleaded not guilty.

P.C. Bennett said that at 4.40 on the morning in question he was in Mill Lane, Tadcaster East, and he saw a dog belonging to defendant running about. He tried to catch it but failed, and he followed it and saw it go to defendant's house. He went to the house during the day, and defendant's wife admitted that she had let the dog in and that she was sorry.

Defendant said that when he got up at six o'clock to go to work the dog was in the yard fastened up. When they heard a dog barking at 3.45 a.m. his wife got up to look where the dog was, and it was in the yard all right.

Supt. Slack: There is a hole in the door, and it can get out at any time?—Defendant: Yes. Was it not loose in the yard?—No.

Why did your wife admit she let the dog in?—She did not let it in.

Do you know that this dog has been out very often at night time?—I don't know. If it was out very old they were not aware of it.

Defendant said that if the dog was out it was the policeman's duty to knock at his door and tell him about it.

Supt. Slack: I don't want you to tell him what his duty is.

Mrs Johnson said that at 3.45 a.m. she got up and the dog was in the yard.

Defendant said that he had given a puppy for half-an-hour of the Belgian Fund.

Supt. Slack said that this was the first case of the kind in that Court, although not in the Division, but that was not the point. It was necessary to put a stop to dogs being out at night. It was not alleged that defendant's dog had anything to do with it, but he had had information that a number of fowls had been worried by a dog not by a fox.

A fine of 2s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. costs was the penalty imposed.

BARKSTON ASH TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING.

At the annual meeting of the Barkston Ash Association, N.U.T., held on Saturday, the following officers were elected for the coming year:—Ex-President, Mr H. Woodbridge, Kirk Deighton Church School; President, Mr J. M. Fletcher, Colton Council School; Vice-president, Mr P. Bachelor, Bilton Church School; Treasurer, Mr H. Bass, Spofforth Church School; and hon. sec., Mr A. Booth, A.C.P., Harewicke-in-Elmet.

It was reported that the number of members was 178.

Two members had joined Kitchener's Army, viz., Mr J. S. Hepworth, Tadcaster Council School, 6th Duke of Wellington, and Mr T. H. Bagley, late of Micklefield Church School, 8th Royal Warwickshire.

A sum of £16 12s. had been sent to Sir John Horsfall's Fund for the months of October and November.

A sum of £23 4s. was raised during the year for the Benevolent and Orphan Fund of the Union. The indefatigable secretary for this is Mrs Hartridge, Endowed School, Bardsey.

TADCASTER WESLEYAN CIRCUIT

QUARTERLY MEETING.

At the quarterly meeting of the Tadcaster Wesleyan Methodist circuit, held at Tadcaster, the Rev. J. Warren Millward presided, and there was a good attendance of officials.

Letters of sympathy were sent to Mr M. H. Sowden, of Tadcaster, on the loss of his wife, and to Mrs Henry Fletcher, of Collingham, on the loss of her husband.

The financial statement presented by Mr Arthur Kay showed the total income (including the proceeds of the circuit harvest festival) to be £374 12s. 7d., which, when the expenses for the quarter had been paid, left a balance in hand of £179 19s. 1d. Mr J. B. Gibbons reported that the harvest festival only held at Bolton Spa in October realised the sum of £182 nett. The workers at Boston Spa were heartily thanked by the meeting, and congratulated on the splendid result.

Mr Wm. Atkin (of Collingham) was thanked for his past services as secretary of the meeting, and unanimously re-appointed.

The Rev. J. W. Millward reported the total adult membership to be 695, with 160 in junior classes.

The circuit stewards, Messrs Arthur Kay (of Marston) and Wm. Padman (of Boston Spa), were warmly thanked for their services during the year, and on the motion of the chairman were re-elected.

Mr W. Quarmby (of Clifford), who for many years had held the office of circuit chapel secretary, and who to the great regret of the meeting felt compelled to relinquish this position, was heartily thanked for his faithful and effective service, and Mr William Kay (of Marston) was appointed as his successor.

The meeting recommended that Sunday, January 3rd, be observed as a day of intercession in connection with the war, and that collections be taken for Red Cross work.

Where local circumstances are impracticable it was suggested that collections be taken on the nearest available Sunday.

A resolution was passed expressing the regret with which the meeting had learned that Miss Hoodkwilliams was about to leave Clifford, and very heartily thanking her for the invaluable help she had rendered to Methodism during her term of residence in that village.

A committee, consisting of Messrs A. Ray, W. Atkin, H. Sutor, J. T. Alton, G. Dalby, and A. L. Jackson was appointed to consider the whole question of local preachers' and Sunday arrangements, and to report to the next meeting.

Mr H. Sutor was appointed steward.

The next meeting is to be held at Tadcaster on Wednesday, March 17th, 1915.

LATE LIEUT. HUGH G. BROOKS-BANK.

FUNERAL AT HEALAUGH.

The funeral of Lieut. Hugh Godfrey Brocklebank, of the Yorkshire Regiment, whose death occurred in London from heart failure, after an operation rendered necessary by wounds received at Ypres early in November, took place at Healaugh Church, on Saturday afternoon.

Deceased was the third son of Mr. E. C. Brocklebank, of Healaugh Old Hall, Tadcaster, and was 21 years of age, having joined the Army in 1913. The body had been brought from London on Friday afternoon, and remained overnight at the Old Hall.

The Rev. R. H. M. Cook (vicar) officiated, and during the service in the church the hymns, "The King of Love my Shepherd is," and "The Son of God goes forth to war" were feelingly sung. Miss Cooke presiding at the organ.

The mourners were:—Mr and Mrs E. Brocklebank (father and mother), Mr Stamp Brocklebank (brother), Miss Margaret Brocklebank (sister), Mr Phillip Brocklebank, Mr Hugh Brocklebank, Major Lang, Mr W. Lang, Mr John Lang, and Mr Chas. Hamilton (uncles), Miss Lang (aunt), and Miss York.

"Among the sympathising friends present were:—The Dean of York and Miss Purey-Cust, Lord Hawke, Lieut. Wilkie (representing 9th Queen's regiment), Colonel Richardson (York), Mr C. B. Lamb, Mr E. M. Lawson-Smith, Mr Guy T. Fairfax, Mr J. P. Law, Mr J. H. Ingleby, Mr G. A. and Mrs Bennett, Rev. C. Daly Addeson, Dr. J. P. Scatchard, Mr and Mrs Frank Myers, Messrs M. Thomlinson, E. Jackson, J. Poole, Thos. Richardson, B. Blacker, Walter Thomlinson, C. Ireland, F. Jackson, Rees, W. Swailes, W. J. Westaby, E. Fowler, G. Swailes, J. Dunnington, G. Rhodes, F. Rhodes, C. Wilson, R. Lodge (Selby), Mrs and Miss Crosthwaite, Miss Richardson, etc.

The grave was lined with evergreens, white chrysanthemums, and pink carnations, and the coffin was of polished oak with brass fittings. The bronze-plate bore the inscription "Lieut. Hugh Godfrey Brocklebank, born 24th November, 1893, died 16th December, 1914."

Beautiful floral tributes had been sent by deceased's father and mother, "Mary," Miss Brocklebank (Healaugh Manor); "In remembrance of a first-class officer who knew no fear, from the officers, N.C.O.'s and men of H Company, and Birthright, P.W.O. Yorks. Regiment"; "His brother officers, and Battalion P.W.O. Yorks. Regiment"; Mrs Harris Brocklebanks Thomas and Miss Violet H. Thomas (Scalworth Hall); "Little and Ada"; J. Cook and employees at Manor Farm; nursing staff and Miss Leake, Aldford House, 26, Park Lane; Mr Frank and Ethel Cooke; teachers and scholars of Healaugh School; "From all at Middleton-on-the-Wolds"; Mr and Mrs T. W. Stansfield; Mr and Mrs Percival Scatchard; Mr and Mrs Rees (Healaugh Manor); "Nancie, Mr and Mrs Swailes and family, S. Varley and family, "Outdoor servants at the hall," Mr Charles Hamilton, "Uncle John," Mrs Frederick Guest, "Hugh, Millie, and Margaret"; from all at Healaugh Vicarage, "Cicely and Joey," and Mrs Cecil King.

A HAMBLETON LADY'S MARRIAGE

CLOUGH—ANSON.

At the little village of Brayton, near Selby, the wedding took place on Saturday, of Lieutenant William Clough, of Flashy Lodge, Selby, who joined the 5th West Riding Regiment, to Miss Mary Anson, of Grey Stones, Hambleton.

The bridegroom is the only son of Mr William Clough, M.P. for the Skipton Division. The bride is the younger daughter of Mr H.Anson, who is Chairman of the Selby Rural Council.

As the bridegroom had only obtained forty-eight hours' leave of absence, the ceremony was very quiet. Lance-Corporal H. Anson, who is with the East Riding Yeomanry, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Lieut. S. H. Clough and Lieut. Dixon, of the 6th West Riding Regiment, were also present in khaki.

The ceremony was performed by the Vicar (the Rev. Thomas Chenes), who was assisted by the Rev. W. B. Cranbshaw (curate), and the bride, who was given away by her father, wore a navy blue costume, with black hat and carried a large orchid muff. There were no bridesmaids.

DEDICATION AT WISTOW CHURCH

ADDRESS BY ARCHBISHOP OF YORK.

The Archbishop of York visited Wistow Parish Church on Thursday to dedicate the new portion of the tower erected at a cost of over £400, and to institute the newly appointed vicar, the Rev. Canon W. H. F. Bateman, formerly of Meadowgate. The work at the tower was conducted by the late Vicar of Wistow, the Rev. Henry Greeves, who ministered in the parish for over 40 years. A large congregation assembled, and among the robed clergy were the Rev. De Solloway (Selby Abbey), the Rev. J. Dobson (Brayton), the Rev. A. Conway Goulden (St. James's, Selby), the Rev. R. G. Glennie, R.D., and the Rev. W. A. Birks.

The Archbishop of York said that at Wistow the memory of the late vicar, a man with a true pastoral spirit, would always be treasured, and he was beloved by his people. The new vicar, Canon Bateman, had served 31 years in the ministry, and was one of their best known and most trusted clergy. For 19 years he had laboured at Meadowgate, and had won the esteem, confidence, and affection of his people.

His Grace continued: "In this time of stress and strain and anxiety of nations, we have been witnesses of the truth in this quiet and peaceful village, that the Church of Jesus Christ goes on undisturbed. It is very natural that at this present time a cry of anxiety and concern should be rising in our hearts, for at last we have had a vision of what the reality of war means. This hideous spectacle of death and destruction has knocked at our own door. War, with its ruthlessness, its ferocity, its wanton destruction of life, has, though only for a short time, invaded the coasts of this Diocese. Peaceful citizens have been killed and wounded; peaceful homes of our own people have been shattered; and four of our own parish churches have been damaged. We cannot be sufficiently thankful that though for a moment there seemed a danger that one of the most venerable of our Yorkshire churches—the Abbey of Whitby—might be desecrated, the danger has passed. It is quite near enough to make us here, in this Diocese of York, feel a new sense of kinship and sympathy for the members of Christ's Church at Malines, Louvain, and Rheims. While there arises from us very naturally, the cry of distress and anxiety, there rises also a stronger and deeper note—the cry of a righteous indignation. Our hearts burn when we think of this cruel and ruthless violation of the sanctities of international law. We have witnessed an attack, not only upon our own coasts, but also upon all the principles which we had hitherto hoped were to govern the warfare of civilised nations. The object of the enemy was at least two-fold—to create alarm in the hearts of our people, and to make it difficult for troops to be sent across the Channel to take part in carrying on our righteous cause. Let us show that we are not going to be rushed into panic. When the first excitement was over the people of these towns sensibly returned to their homes and resumed their ordinary life. Let the spirit of the whole country and country folk be this example. This attack upon the sanctities of our own Yorkshire coast will bring many more recruits to the front, and will, therefore, result in more men being able to cross the seas, while there will be more available for home defence."

EASTERN AINSTY PETTY SESSIONS.

On Saturday the magistrates at the Eastern Ainsty Petty Sessions at York were Sir John Grant Lawson (presiding), Major Allenby, and Major Richardson.

FARMER'S CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

Mr T. W. Cousons, farmer, of Moor Monkton, summoned Lawrence Turner (15), farm labourer, for £5 damages for breach of contract.

Complainant stated that the boy had been living with him for the past year, and he had hired him again for the ensuing year on Martinmas Day for £9 10s. He had paid the boy 5s. hiring fee, and he promised to come back the following Monday. He, however, did not turn up.

Oliver Ernest Cousons spoke to hearing his father engage the boy.

Defendant's father said he thought the contract would not stand as the boy had told him that complainant had hired him before Martinmas Day, and had hired him to another farmer for 10 guineas.

The Chairman said that Mr Turner and he is ill-advised in the matter, and he would have to pay Mr Cousons £1 damages.

A WOMAN FINED.

Frances Yeadon, of Dringhouses, was summoned for being drunk and incapable in Dringhouses, on December 20th.

Defendant did not appear.

P.C. Taylor, stationed at Acaster, Bryan, stated that he was on duty at Dringhouses on December 5th, when he saw the defendant lying in a state drunk on the highway on Dringhouses Moor. He assisted her on her feet and eventually got her home. He had her before the Court on two occasions, but he had to let her off on both occasions, as her husband was ailed. Witness found that this was the case, and that he worked at the Blind School.

Defendant was fined 5s. and costs.

ROTHWELL DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE

INFECTIOUS DISEASE—VENTILATION OF SCHOOLS

INTERESTING DISCUSSION.

The monthly meeting of the Rothwell Education Committee was held in the Council Schools, Rothwell, on Friday night—Mr J. Butterick (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs J. Hirst, Dobson, T. Ellis, J. Hosner, W. Lunn, and R. McCullough, with the Clerk (Mr J. Angus), and the attendance officer (Mr H. Brook).

The Clerk reported that the percentage of attendance for the district for last month stood at 91.

The Chairman: It is very satisfactory considering.

Mr McCullough: Considering the weather and the disease which is about, I think it is very good.

It was also reported, in connection with the attendances, that the Robin Hood Council School, related department, had been closed for the month, having a percentage of 64.

The Robin Hood (infants') and Lofthouse Schools suffered from diphtheria, and the Robin Hood School two scholars had died from diphtheria within a few days of each other. There were only very few cases also in the Rothwell district. Altogether there had been 56 cases of infectious disease in the district during the month as compared with 110 during October.

The Chairman: Isn't it strange that there should be these cases of diphtheria with the present wet weather?

Mr Hirst: How do you account for the Kaiser having it?

Mr Horner drew the attention of the Clerk to the remarks made by the medical officer of health for Rothwell anent the windows of schools being open out of school hours. The doctor referred to one particular school in Rothwell, but he did not state which one, and he seemed to think it was their fault that the schools were not better ventilated.

The Clerk: I should say it is his fault as he is the medical officer for the district.

Mr Angus added that the caretaker opened the windows every night at four o'clock and kept them open until six or seven o'clock the next morning. He could still feel the ropiness and watery.

Mr McCullough pointed out that the doctor's point was that fresh air in schools was better than di-infectants.

Mr Horner: I was quite in agreement with the doctor that we should get the fresh air. I have been speaking to a person in Robin Hood, who said that Mr Kirkby had not reported the matter without cause.

Mr Hirst: We are informed that caretakers have instructions that they should keep the temperature at a certain degree by nine o'clock in the morning.

The Clerk: That is so.

Mr Hirst: The question is whether that is absolutely necessary. The caretaker can't get the temperature up to the height required if the ventilators are open.

The Chairman: Mr Angus has stated that if the windows are open they could get the temperature up.

Mr Lunn: What if he doesn't?

Mr Hirst: Certain instructions were adopted. It would mitigate an outbreak of infectious disease, if wanted the County Council to say whether the temperature should be up by nine o'clock as the rule.

The Chairman: The medical officer may be correct in his statement. My experience in visiting schools is that they are over ventilated; that is during school work. Very often I have had to put my hat on, and I know that many of the teachers and scholars get cold through the way they ventilate the schools.

The Clerk: Here and there you may find, shall I say, an old-fashioned teacher who will have the school close, but that is not the case of the majority.

Mr McCullough: When I have visited schools I have always thought the infants' class too close.

The Clerk: How would it be to send a circular to the teachers as well, asking them to have the windows open.

The Chairman: You will have to give notice to the caretakers as well.

The Clerk: I will send a notice to the caretakers along with the teachers.

This was agreed to.

The Clerk reported the appointment of Mr G. W. Nodding, an assistant teacher at the Rothwell Council School, as drill instructor at the Carlton Hill Barracks, Leeds.

A question was raised by Mr Lunn as to what the West Riding County Council were doing for teachers who had joined the forces.

The Clerk: They pay the salary less the amount they receive from the Government.

Mr Lunn: I heard in Wakefield of a teacher who had had to break up his home because he was only receiving the Army pay.

The Clerk: It is not true.

With regard to the appointment of a new caretaker for the Rothwell Council School, the Clerk reported that he had received about 100 applications. After the list had been considered, the committee appointed Mr Bristow, Rothwell.

The attendance returns for the various schools were as follows:—Rothwell Council (mixed) 93; Rothwell Council (infants), over five, 87, and under five, 90; Stourton Council (mixed) 91; Stourton Council (infants), over five, 88, and under five, 85; Robin Hood Council (mixed), 94-17; Robin Hood Council (infants), over five, 88, and under five, 85; Carlton Council (mixed), 93·83; Carlton Council (infants), over five, 93; under five, 88; Thorpe Council (mixed), 02; Thorpe Council (infants), over five, 91, and under five, 81; Wood Lane, Rothwell Haigh (infants), over five, 84, and under five, 65; Rothwell National (mixed), 92; Rothwell National (infants), over five, 85, and under five, 76; Lofthouse National (mixed), 92; Lofthouse National (infants), over five, 84, and under five, 85; Middleton National (mixed), 92; Middleton National (infants), over five, 84, and under five, [illegible].

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

LADIES

BLANCHARD'S PILLS

Are unrivalled for all Irregularities, &c., they speedily afford relief and never fail to alleviate all suffering. Sold in boxes, 1/3 by Boots' Branches, Taylor's Drug Co. Branches, and all Chemists, or post free, same price from LESLIE MARTIN, Ltd. Chemists, 41, HALIFAX LANE, LONDON. Free Sample and valuable Booklet, post free, 1d. Stamp.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	2 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks.
20	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 0
40	1 0	2 0	3 6	6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than 13 weeks, 1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do. 10d. do. do.
52 do. 8d. do. do.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.

Wednesday, 30th Dec., 1.20 p.m. to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Saturday, and Jan., 12.45 p.m. to Goole and Hull. 12.25 p.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby.

For further particulars see bills.

WANTED

WANTED YOUNG GIRL to make herself generally useful.—Apply, Mrs WILKINSON, 4, Carter Mount, Whitkirk. 3

WANTED Good GENERAL, fond of Children.—Apply, Mrs SUTCLIFFE, Orchard House, Crossgates, near Leeds. 2 1812

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, chiefly house work. Three in family.—Apply, GREEN, "Jesmond," Selby Road, Whitkirk, near Leeds. 2

STRONG Willing GIRL, 16-18, wanted at once, to assist in house. Good home. Family two.—Apply, 55, Hilton Road, Harehills Lane, Leeds. 2 1917

WANTED to Buy HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, any quantity; also carpets, antiques, outdoor effects, or lumber of any description. Don't lumber up goods you have no use for; turn them into Cash. Distance no object. Drop postcard, we will call.—YOUNG, 39, Dewsbury Road, Leeds. 1 1688

FOR SALE.

WHOLESALE CLOTHING,

ALL CLASSES OF MACHINISTS WANTED AT ONCE.

Also TROUSERS FINISHERS.

Experienced work hands and anyone who has worked for us before preferred.

APPLY JOHN BARRAN AND SONS, LTD., HANOVER LANE, LEEDS. "

FIREWOOD and LOGS for Sale in bags or load.—MOSBY, Garforth Bridge. 1

FOR Sale WELL-BUILT HOUSE, in good condition and with garden. Quiet situation.—Apply, after 5.30, 11, The Avenue, New Marston. 2 1907

GENT.'S ALL BLACK CYCLE, 3 speeds, G gear case, Brooks' saddle, tooling, and all tools. A real winter machine. Accept £7 7s., worth £9 9s.—HUDSON, Aberford. 2 1810

BARNBOW, near Barwick-in-Elmet.—For sale COUNTRY COTTAGE, with outbuildings, orchard, hen run, and paddock.—Apply, Mrs WILLIAMS, 167, North Street, Leeds. 2

CYCLE TYRE BARGAINS.—A quantity of Soiled Clearance Tyres:—Dunlops, my price 9s., usual price 11s. 3d.; Warwicks, my price 7s., usual price 9s.; Cambridge, my price 6s., usual price 7s. 9d.; Inner Tubes, my price, 2s. 6d., usual price, 3s. 9d.—HUDSON, Aberford. 2 1810

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c., Post Free, 2 Stamps —(S) DAVIES & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £1000 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs. W. WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.

Mr. J. DILWORTH'S

DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.

Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

JOHN TEALE,

Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.

Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

WEST RIDING BELGIAN REFUGEES' FUND

Sir John C. Horsfall, Bart., appeals for funds for the housing, clothing, and feeding of Belgian Refugees to be accommodated in the area of the West Riding Distress Committee.

	£	s.	d.
Subscriptions already received:—
Children's Concert at Rythill Schools	20	0	0
Micklefield Belgian Refugees' Committee	14	0	0
Brinsworth & Canklow Distress Committee (6th contribution)	2	10	0
Previously acknowledged	35	10	0
	415	1	1
Further subscriptions may be sent to any Branch of the United Counties' Bank, Ltd.; or to the West Riding Treasurer, County Hall, Wakefield.
	£450	11	1

Wakefield, 18th December, 1914.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

Every Evening at 7 o'clock, except
CHRISTMAS DAY AND BOXING DAY, at 6.30 and 8.30.

Miss Enid Walkington
(the Pocket edition of Vesta Tilley), featuring that great song: "The Army to-day's all right," and all Vesta Tilley's successes.
"HEARTS AND SWORDS."
"THE TEMPLE OF THE LION."

NEXT WEEK.
Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday—
"WHIMS OF FATE."
"THE STAR BOARDER."
"THE SEAL OF SILENCE."
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday—
"THE STRUGGLE."
"THE SOUL OF A ROSE."
"NO SWEETS."

Children's Matinee on Saturday at 3.
Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

BARKER'S, PIANO EXPERTS.

CHRISTMAS BARGAINS. SEE OUR WINDOWS.

£20.—CRAMER, lovely oak case, steel casting.
£19—HILTON & HILTON, iron frame, ivory keys.
£16—CHARLES STEWART & CO., iron frame.
£18—HARCOURT & CO., iron frame; fully warranted.
£18—J. & J. HOPKINSON, ivory keys; perfect order.
£28—CHAPPELL, new style; ivory keys.
£45—PIANOLA, by Orchestrelle.
£39—BECHSTEIN, rosewood case.
SPECIAL OFFER, BECHSTEIN BOUDOIR GRAND, new list price 140 Gns.; our price 75 Gns.
PIANOS by BRINSMEAD, CHAPPELL, SCHIEDMAYER, PAPE, STEINWAY, KAPS, COLLARD, BECHSTEIN, are being offered at TREMENDOUS DISCOUNTS.
Intending Purchasers will save pounds.
BARKER'S, NEW STATION ST., 'Phone 4945 LEEDS. Send for LISTS.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE, (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS).
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0 10 0	for	3½d.	per month.
£1 0 0	,,	5d.	,,
£2 0 0	,,	10d.	,,
£4 10 0	,,	1s. 6d.	,,
£3 0 0	,,	1s. 0d.	,,
£5 0 0	,,	1s. 8d.	,,
£8 0 0	,,	2s. 8d.	,,
£10 0 0	,,	3s. 4d.	,,

Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
CLOCK OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE LEEDS

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS. obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
Handbook Free. Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited. Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 2217

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Throat.
Sold only in Boxes at 1 11 and 2 9 at LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.
Established 37 Years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
24, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL.
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.
Insurance Brokers.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,

King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

CULTIVATORS, PLOUGHS, HARROWS, CHAFF & TURNIP CUTTERS, &C.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices

SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART.

ON MONDAY NEXT.
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 11 O'CLOCK.
WHITKIRK LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
(Near to Crossgates Station and within four miles of Leeds)
Messrs HARTLE & SON
Will Sell by Auction, in strict accordance with the conditions posted as the Mart—
340 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.:—
20 NEWLY CALVEN and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE HEASTS.
50 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and COWS.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
100 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
100 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
(Tel. No. 26).

ON THURSDAY, DEC. 31st, AT ONE O'CLOCK
THE NEW INN, BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Mr. WILLIAM ASH,
Instructed by Mr. Chas. Wrigglesworth (who is retiring from business), will Sell by Auction the HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE,
Including:—An 8 Days' GRANDFATHER CLOCK, in handsome oak inlaid case, Antique OAK CORNER CUPBOARD, 5ft. by 2ft., PIANOFORTE in Walnut Case, Oak fall-leaf Table, Round Mahogany Table, Chests of Drawers, Polished Chairs, Kitchen Tables, Feather Beds, etc., etc.
Office: Garforth (Tel. 15).

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON,
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS.
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

THREE GOOD LINES:
CINEMA GREEN PEAS,
Housewife Marrowfat Peas,
Id., 1½d. & 3d. Packets,
— AND —
CROWN VINEGAR.
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
DEWSBURY ROAD, LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this :-

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD,

Eyesight Specialists,
and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11. CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Mathews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

H. E. WALKER,

STURTON GRANGE, GARFORTH,
Agricultural Agent
— FOR —
THE DRIFFIELD PURE LINSEED, COTTON and UNION CAKE COMPANY, LIMITED.
Molassine Meal.
Dairy and Calf Meal.
Poultry and Dog Foods.
Manures, Peat Moss, Oils, etc.
Best Quality & Prompt Delivery.

GIVE YOUR GUESTS A GOOD IMPRESSION OF YOUR TASTE.

Now that parties and social evenings are in evidence, you will naturally want to make your Table as attractive as possible. Nothing creates such a good impression as tasteful China and Glassware, and nowhere can you obtain MORE useful China and Glassware than at Doyle's AND at moderate prices.

59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 26th, 1914.

The arm-chair critics have been busy lately. Under ordinary circumstances free speech—very free occasionally—is one of the privileges of citizenship, but at present there are limitations, and many people seem to be ignorant of this, despite prosecutions in various parts of the country. Statements have been made by persons about the Army and Navy, bringing themselves within the power of the law, and they have been very fortunate that information has not been laid against them. Cases have occurred, we know, in which the persons sinned without knowledge of the risks they were running, but their own common-sense should have guided them to a truer conception of things. Folks are, however, very gullible, they will swallow anything and everything; they do not stop to consider whether it is true or, not, and any person maliciously disposed possesses an incalculable power for mischief. What we desire to impress on people is that if they circulate false information, even though it has not originated with them, they render themselves liable to prosecution, and they would, therefore, consult their own interests by remaining silent concerning any rumour about which no official statement has been forthcoming. It is difficult to discover how these rumours are started, but persons with vivid imaginations, are sometimes responsible. And what a host of senseless criticisms there has been during the past few weeks. In one or two newspapers one State Department was severely condemned for a certain military action, the onus being thrown on an individual, and it looked as if there was something beyond criticism in it, because in such a case no individual in this country could have done what was accomplished without the ready assent and cordial co-operation of the heads of other Departments. As things turned out, criticism was unjustified, and the newspaper military experts, who know no more about the Allies' plans than we do, were made to look very foolish, indeed. As a matter of fact, a great deal of criticism in this country has arisen from the comments of one of these newspapers, but people should understand that these writers are just as ignorant as the readers are about what is going on at the Front, and that necessary for the carrying out of the Allies' designs. Criticism is, of course, not to be decried; it frequently has a healthy effect, but no man, whatever his position, has a right to put in the strongest way—to say nothing of opinions on questions of which he knows nothing. The cheap sarcasm that was used towards the Fleet last week made many people's blood boil; it showed the colossal ignorance of those indulging in it, and an entire want of judgment on their part. Mistakes are made by the greatest leaders, but our men and officers in the Army have demonstrated their superiority to the best soldiers in Europe, and our Fleet is the most efficient fighting machine in the world. That is not bombast, it is truth. And Britons, no matter what nations may occur, should possess their souls in as the mighty tests of the patience, puffing absolute confidence in be taught that there is a higher than that of the so-called superthe men at the head of affairs. It is due and the surest way of doing that is to appointing when matters do not turn out to give to the people generally that liberty just as we would like—but it must be of thought and action which will enable remembered that we are fighting a brave them to solve their own problems for people, prepared to take great risks, and them to safeguard themselves. A free there are limitations to human achieve- people, with the power of government in their own hands, would ment. Our fighting men cannot accom- not tolerate the propagation of views plish impossibilities, but they will suc- which were directed against themselves. ceed where other men might fail, and all The use of the words "enemy within the they ask the nation is to have faith in gates," as applied to the rank and file of the them. If they strike slowly they strike German nation, reveals the attitude of surely?

the military mind. When the war is over Germany—a smaller Germany, no doubt—will have time for reflection, and if the people are strong enough to take the destinies of their country in their own hands they will put an end to the possibility of any class using the blood and treasure of the nation to satisfy their ignoble ambitions.

With a world at war, the great Christmas festival will this year be celebrated by the nations in a chastened spirit. It is no time to indulge in merriment, when the flower of our manhood is engaged in a death-struggle with the enemy, and when there are so many sore hearts and stricken homes in the country. Already the toll in human life exacted by the battlefield has been enormous, and it will be very difficult for the great majority of people to forget, even for a few minutes, the shadow that overhangs civilized humanity. The sufferings of the Empire's sons and daughters appeal to the nation with keen directness, because they are our kith and kin, but it must be remembered that the afflicting hand lies heavier upon the Continental nations, some of whom have been called on to suffer in a manner of which we have absolutely no conception. War, seen in its nakedness, is a horrible thing, although it frequently calls forth the highest qualities in a nation, and the price that must be paid is generally a terrible one. And this is after twenty centuries of Christianity! Thus the cynic may speak. It is an easy gibe at a world's religion, but it does not carry any weight. On the contrary, the world has never seen a greater demonstration of the spirit associated with Christmas than to-day. Does the opinion of the civilized nations favour Great Britain or Germany? These nations stand for different ideals; one is fighting for honour, the sacredness of national obligations, and the freedom of the little nations, and the other for a "place in the sun," which apparently means the universe. Without being in anywise hypocritical, Britons may celebrate Christmas sincerely; they tried, through their statesmen, to keep the peace of the world, and they only entered upon war when it was made impossible by an unscrupulous and cruel foe for an honour-loving people to stand idly by. On the other hand, Germany —it is needless to regard Austria other than as the cat's-paw of Prussia—with really no quarrel with any country, with national prosperity advancing by leaps and bounds, and with a people strongly imbued with the national spirit, rushed headlong into war for no other reason than aggrandisement. For years the teaching of a morality the antithesis of Christianity has been steadily going on, and, although it may not be understood by the German people generally, it has had its influence, reflected in the writings of many of the leading men of the empire to-day. When people believe in what is styled the philosophy of the superman, and propagate it as the only thing worth having, there is little hope for them. It is impossible for them to get the Christian ideals and the philosophers' ideals to coincide. Have the Germans not 'informed the world, with an arrogance that is absolutely amazing, that their "Kulture" is better than anything on earth, and have they not put forward the opinion that they are so superior that they should be in a position to dominate all other nations? The Germans are a great people, and the world owes much to them, in science, arts, and manufactures, but they have allowed themselves to become obsessed by one idea—that they were destined to rule the world, and the injury they have done to humanity and to themselves by trying to carry out that idea is incalculable. Since the war commenced they have shown themselves bankrupt in truth, honour, and morality.—in fact, in all those qualities which give faith between man and man and between nation and nation, and they have revealed a spirit of cruelty not unworthy of a savage race. Nations, like individuals, are selfish—that is, in a measure, necessary for their preservation, but when people are so overcome by selfishness that they will not allow others to live it is time condign punishment was meted out to them. Of course, all Germans have not these feelings; the great bulk of them are kindly-disposed and content with their own possessions; but they have been deluded by their rulers, cheated of the truth, and made to believe what the superman chooses to tell them, and, obeying the fine militarist spirit, they are, up to now, at any rate, a united people, determined to fight any combination that can be brought against them. Instead of knowing, as they will know some day, that Germany is the aggressor, they are firm in the belief that their country is being attacked by nations which are jealous of her trade and possessions. It is possible to sympathise with them in their ignorance, but for the conduct of the men who made the war and carried devastation into so many homes and ruin to Belgium and France no extenuation can be found. For this sake of Germany herself they must go—militarism must be utterly smashed, and for the sake of Europe they must be deprived of all power for making mischief, for not until then will there be any

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.

Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.

Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each.

In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

A sum of 7s. 6d., proceeds of selling toilet soap, has been sent to the Leeds Belgian Fund by Mrs J. Hewison, Rothwell Haigh.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Messrs J. W. Modell (Chairman), J. R. Cross, and W. Evans.

ROLL OF HONOUR.—The roll of honour for the Rothwell urban area, which is to form a record of all those who have joined the Forces or who are serving the country in any way, is going on well towards completion, and it is hoped to publish the list in this journal next week. Mr A. Marshall, who has the matter in hand, desires names from the friends of those who have gone. It is intended to include in the list the names of any ladies who are doing nursing in connection with the war, and such names will be added to those connected with the R.A.M.C.

A DISAPPOINTMENT.—Some disappointment was caused at the Primitive Methodist Church during the week-end owing to the inability to get any of the Scarborough lifeboat men announced to conduct special services. The chief cause of their absence was, of course, the bombardment, which took place but a few days previously. One of the number, Mr J. Dawson, who was for many years coxswain of the Scarborough lifeboat, will have cause to remember the bombardment for many a long day. His wife is ill, and during the bombardment she was in a shed at once from the window of his home, but fortunately no one in the house was hurt. The services at the Primitive Methodist Church passed off successfully. A social tea was held in the schoolroom on Saturday afternoon, and this was followed by a meeting, which was presided over by Mr W. Denton (Rothwell). Solos were given by Miss Carbutt, of Liversedge, and addresses were given by the Rev. W. G. Sedley and Mr J. T. Kilburn. On Sunday the morning service was taken by the Rev. W. G. Sedley, and in the afternoon at the R.S.A. service Councillor T. Carbutt (Liversedge) presided, and Mr W. Denton gave an address, while Miss Carbutt contributed solos. In the evening the pulpit was shared by Messrs Denton, J. T. Kilburn, and J. Linley, and in addition to contributing solos, Miss Carbutt sang a duet with Mr Jesse Kilburn.

"THE MESSIAH."—On Sunday the Wesleyan Church choir, which had been augmented for the occasion, gave their annual rendering of "The Messiah." The principals, who were drawn from the choir, were:—Soprano, Miss Minnie Marshall; contralto, Miss Kate Varley; tenor, Mr Thomas Kale; and bass, Mr Nelson Varley. The chorus parts were a fine feature of the performance, and great credit is due to the conductor, Mr T. Barraham, for the splendid way he controlled the singing. A tribute should also be paid to Mr T. A. Idle, L.L.C.M., for his work in connection with the organ accompaniments.

'OLD BOYS' A.F.C. DINNER.—Rothwell Old Boys brought off another fine victory on Saturday by beating Leeds Weston at Leeds by four goals to one. J. Newton, the outside left, and Max Taylor, the outside right, scoring two goals each. The Old Boys were making rapid strides and do not intend being left far behind. They had a supper at the Coach and Horses Hotel, Rothwell, on Saturday, and afterwards a convivial evening was spent. In a speech, Mr Gibson (chairman of the Old Boys Club) said that it made one feel pleased to be at such a gathering. At a general meeting a week previous he had stated that the idea of this supper was not a money-making affair; it was to show what a splendid feeling there was amongst them. He had had put into his hands that day one of the company present. He also said that 100 had already been given by one who had a great interest in the Old Boys, and these two gifts, along with their gate receipts for that day, meant about 200 to the club. (Applause). He said they, the Old Boys, with the exception of one, were all resident in the village, and for this reason he thought they were forming the attraction of spectators who had hitherto lent their patronage to the Rothwell White Rose and Rothwell Parish Church.

ALLERTON BYWATER

DRINK.—James Willis, a miner, of Allerton Bywater, was summoned at the Skyrack Court at Leeds on Tuesday for drunkenness. P.C. Holmes stated that about 11.20 p.m. on December 12th he was on duty in Little Preston, when he saw a man lying in the middle of the road. He went up to him and found him to be drunk. When helped to his feet defendant could not stand, and he had to be taken home. Defendant's daughter appeared to answer the summons, and the magistrates ordered Willis to pay 2s. 6d. and costs.

CROSSGATES

On Friday and Saturday nights the children attending the Baptist Church Sunday School had their usual treat.

On Saturday at Crossgates Belgian Flag Day was celebrated, and "favours" were sold by a number of young ladies.

THE RAID.—In the course of the service at the Wesleyan Church on Sunday night Mr Rippon, who was the preacher, referred to the German raid on the East Coast. He produced a fragment of shell which had been fired at Whitby, and stated that his father had been struck and the arteries of one of his hands cut.

SCOUT DEFENCE CORPS.—A meeting for forming a branch of the above corps amongst the youths of Crossgates and district was held in the Wesleyan School-room at Crossgates on Thursday evening week. The aims and objects of the scheme (initiated by Sir R. Baden-Powell), Chief Scout) were explained by District Scoutmaster Marsden, and 20 members were enrolled. Youths between the ages of 15 and 17 are eligible for membership.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—On Sunday afternoon at the Wesleyan Church a rendering of the "Messiah" was given by a chorus of about eighty voices, directed by Mr J. H. Walker, A.R.C.O. Mr L. J. Dewhirst, C.C., presided. The choruses were admirably sung, and the organ accompaniments were efficiently played by Mr H. D. Wilkinson (Leeds). The principals were Miss Eleanor Rawling (soprano), Miss Nellie Sedgwick (contralto), Mr Wilson Thornton (tenor), and Mr Hubert Varley (bass), and their work was excellent. The solos of Mr Thornton being outstanding. The collection was for the choir fund, and a sum of £5 17s. 6d. was taken. At the evening service solos were sung by Miss Rawling and Mr Thornton.

CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS PARTY.—On Tuesday evening a successful children's Christmas Party, arranged by Miss Amy D. Wade, was held in the Recreation Hall, which was prettily decorated for the occasion. The proceeds, which were about £5, were for the Belgian Relief Fund, and among those present were wounded Belgian soldiers from Templenewsam, and they thoroughly enjoyed the proceedings. There was a bran tub for children, and it was soon emptied, and Mr McLintock, who acted as M.C., sang several songs. Fancy dances were contributed by Miss Wade's pupils, the programme being as follows:—Hornpipe, W. Hardcastle; flotation duet, W. Thomas and M. Richardson; Spanish dance, Miss Earle; sunbeam, D. Doris Cuttle; doll dance, M. Richardson, T. Thomas, L. B. Birkinshaw, K. Watson, B. Pickering, and T. Pickering; Highland dance, W. Birkinshaw; Irish jig, Miss E. Earle; toreador, W. Thomas; pas seul, M. Richardson; pierrette, Miss D. Lee; coon duet, A. Thomas and D. Cuttle.

GARFORTH

MINERS' ASSOCIATION.—On Saturday at a meeting of the Council of the Yorkshire Miners' Association, a resolution of sympathy was passed with the relatives of the late Mr John Dixon, financial secretary, who recently died. It was pointed out that at the time of his appointment the Association had 56,000 members, and at the time of his death it had 125,000. It was reported that in connection with the war 37 death claims had been paid to men who had been killed on active service, and it was stated that the Association was relieving all members who were on service with His Majesty's forces from paying any contributions whatsoever while the war lasts.

PICTURE HOUSE.—For Christmas Day and Boxing Day, when there are two performances, the fare provided at the Picture House should satisfy anxious. The principal pictures will be "Hearts and swords" and "The temple of fiction." Miss Enid Walkington (the pocket edition of Vesta Tilley) will appear, featuring edition of Vesta Tilley) will appear, featuring the song "The Army today's all right" and all Vesta Tilley's successes. Next week on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday a film will include "Whims of Fate" (record drama), "The Seal of Silence" (exciting western story) and "The Star Boarder" (comedy). On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the pictures to be screened include "The Struggle" (a sensational production by the popular Broncho players), "The soul of a rose" (a pleasing Lubin drama), and "No Sweets" (comedy). For times and prices see advt.

HALTON

Mrs Florence Harrop, of Halton, has given notice to the Leeds Belgian Fund.

POACHING AFFRAY.—A further remand of one week was granted in the case of Harry Roberts, labourer, of Leeds, who is charged in connection with the Templenewsam poaching affray. Sgt. Walter Percy Bean, of Crossgates, again described the injuries sustained by Robinson and Pullan, the two keepers on the Templenewsam Estate. Robinson, said the doctor, had not yet recovered.

BILLIARDS.—The Leeds Non-Political Billiard League Halton Institute won the A Division and Highbury the B Division. The final for the cup was played between these teams on Tuesday evening at Messrs Sykes's billiard room, the result being a win for Halton Institute by 129 points. Scores:—Halton 738, Highbury 609. For the winners W. A. Taylor, A. Guest, C. Harrison, and C. Archdale played exceptionally fine billiards, and C. Archdale made a nice break of 50. The team were accompanied by the vice-presidents and committee of the Institute and a large number of the members. This is the first trophy won by the Halton Institute, and every credit is due to the second team for the way they have played.

KIPPAX

BAND OF HOPE.—The Band of Hope of the United Methodist Church had a meeting on Thursday evening, and a goodly tea was given by Mr C. H. Hobson, of Kippax. Mr T. Collinson presided, and Miss A. Goodall was the pianist.

A pioneer of the Kippax Old Band has passed away in the person of Mr George Firth, at the very ripe age of 83. He was thoroughly identified to the band and its interests, and with him has departed the last of the old band enthusiasts.

A LETTER OF THANKS.—The following letter has been received as an acknowledgment of toys, and dolls, dressed by the girls of Kippax Council School for the Belgian children:—Dec. 18th, 1914. The Belgian Children.—Dear children.—It is very kind indeed of you to send such nice packages of toys to the Belgian children. They will be delighted with them and enjoy playing with them, I am sure. They were not able to bring any toys with them, so that to have something given to them is just what they need; for there is nothing like a few toys for making children feel at home, and keep them from feeling lonely, is there? I hope you will all have a very happy Xmas, and that Santa Claus will bring you just the things that you have shouted up the chimney. —Yours sincerely, Joseph J. Wood."

MICKLEFIELD

The Micklefield Belgian Refugees' Committee have sent £14 to the West Riding Belgian Refugee Fund.

Miss Fannie Kaye, of Micklefield, has passed in the higher division of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music in pianoforte playing.

OULTON

MEN'S SERVICE.—The monthly services for men held every third Sunday in the month at St John's Church, Oulton, continue to be well attended by the men in the parish and the surrounding district. On Sunday the Vicar (Rev. W. H. Capel-Cure) gave an address appropriate to the season on "Peace on earth." There was a good attendance, and the hymns were heartily sung.

SEACROFT

A MYSTERY.—The adjourned inquest on the body of the newly-born female child found in a box in the Roman Catholic Cemetery at Killingbeck last week was held in the Crossgates Wesleyan Institute on Tuesday. The Coroner (Mr. P. P. Maitland) said that Dr. Wainman had made a post-mortem examination of the body, and declared that in his opinion death was due to criminal neglect. The West Riding police had conducted searching inquiries, but unfortunately they had been unable to arrest anyone in connection with the affair. A verdict of "Found dead" was returned.

SWILLINGTON

HIS EXCUSE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Alfred Standing, carter, of Leeds, was summoned for driving a vehicle without a light at 10.40 p.m. on Friday, December 11th, on the Selby Road, Swillington. P.C. Eddon proved the case. Defendant, in defence, said it was a windy and rainy night. P.C. Eddon said there was no wind but it was rainy. The lamp went out owing to the jolting of the vehicle. A fine of 5s. including costs was imposed.

STOURTON

LANGUAGE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Elizabeth Fox, a married woman, of Stourton, was summoned for having used abusive language.

P.C. Boyes proved the case, and handed a slip of paper to the magistrates with a sample of the language alleged to have been used by the defendant. As defendant could not read the constable "whispered" the words on the paper into her ear. On learning what they were she exclaimed to P.C. Boyes "You're a stoofer." Fox was fined 2s. 6d. and costs.

ANNIVERSARY.—Stourton Primitive Methodists celebrated their chapel anniversary on Sunday, when special services were held. In the afternoon the choir, which was augmented by that of the Wesley Street (Hunslet) Primitive Methodist Church, rendered the cantata "Scenes on Calfary." The singing was greatly enjoyed, the choir doing full justice to the work, under the conductorship of Mr A. S. Barrass. Mr J. Waterton was the organist, and the Rev. W. S. Spencer was the chairman. In the evening the choir gave the service of song "Gates ajar." Mr J. Collinson presided, and the reading portions were given by Mr H. Collinson. The singing was conducted by Mr A. S. Barrass.

WHITKIRK

Lady Dorothy Wood, of Templenewsam, opened a recreation club for girls in New Market Street, Leeds, on Friday evening.

WHITKIRK CHURCH BOYS' CLUB.—In connection with this club a billiard handicap has been played, and the results are:—First round—F. White (owes 25) 100 v. I. Bulmer (owes 150) 96, L. Todd (owes 150) 100 v. A. Bevins (receives 25) 53. A. Sykes (scr.) 100 v. L. Hall (owes 75) 74. T. Smart (owes 50) 100 v. T. Booth (owes 150) 42. C. Firth (scr.) 100 v. E. Firth (owes 25) 91. T. Wilson (owes 100) 100 v. A. Schofant (owes 25) 35. G. Wade (owes 50) 100 v. J. McKay (owes 150) 58. H. Tinker (owes 150) 100 v. P. Walker (owes 150) 70. Second round—L. Todd 100 v. F. White 35. T. Smart 100 v. A. Sykes 41. T. Wilson 100 v. C. Firth 88. G. White 100 v. H. Tinker 42. Semi-finals—G. White 100 v. L. Todd 48. T. Smart 100 v. T. Wilson 70. Final—Smart 100 v. White 80.

MEETS AT NUN APPLETON AND ASKHAM RICHARD.

The followers of the York and Ainsty Hunt have enjoyed very good sport lately. Meeting at Nun Appleton Hall for the first time this season, there was a field of quite fifty horsemen. A capital fox found in Appleton Wood was lost by crossing the river, which was bank high. Compstone found another fox in Appleton Brickyard cover, and away it went straight for Bolton Percy. The ditches being full of water and the fences heavy, it required bold and skilful riding to follow hounds, and Mr Wheatley, a local farmer, distinguished himself by showing the field. The hunt followed the line by Appleton Road, Bolton Percy, and Acaster Malbis to Mr Pood's farm and Stub Wood, where the fox got to ground after a grand 60 minutes.

At Askham Richard, on Tuesday, the hard frost did not look promising, but there was a sporting field on the spot by 12.15. Amongst those out were Sir John Grant Lawson, Mr Gilfoyle, Mrs Walker-Fairbairn, Mrs Walker-Fairbairn, Mrs Miles Dawson, Miss Gunter, Mrs A. Watson, Mr Rose, Mr Sutton, Mr R. Foston, Mr Percy Parker, Mr H. Parker, Mr Wheatley, Mr Frank Bussey, Mr Gerald Fairfax, Master Ferdinand Fairfax, Mr Pood, Mr Wheatley, Mr Allen, Mr Thompson, Lieutenant Rollo, and a few officers quartered in York. A fox was found in Askham Bryan Wood, but took the hunt by the Norman's Farm for Angram, and entering the Brandsom country went through Colliers Haggs, and then back to the York and Ainsty country, where owing to foiled ground the line ran out on the Askham and Acomb road.

Lady Harewood has sent belts, comforters, socks, shirts, mittens, helmets, and Cardigans to the Yorkshire Hussars.

All the soldiers who have been located at the hospital at Monk Fryston were discharged on Friday, and were sent to their homes. The hospital is at present empty.

An advent service was held at the Monk Fryston Parish Church on Friday evening last, and the preacher was the Rev. Canon A. D. Thurlow, Rector of Selby, who was a good congregation.

DISTRICT CHAPELRY.—The "London Gazette" on Tuesday night contained an Order in Council which stated that the King has approved the representation of the Archbishop of York touching the assignment of a district chapelry to the consecrated church of St Mary, Gateforth, situate in the parish of Brayton, in the county of York, and to be called the district Chapelry of Gateforth-cum-Hambleton. His Majesty is further pleased to direct that this Order be forthwith registered by the Registrar of the said Diocese of York.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO HOSPITALS.—A meeting of the Monk Fryston District Hospital Committee was held at the Hall on Thursday evening. Rev. H. Hepworth, M.A. presided. The chief business was the reception of collectors' money. The amounts handed in from all sources realised £10 4s. 7d. Although this amount was less than the previous year's effort, it was more effective considered very satisfactory. It was decided to send £12 to Leeds Infirmary, and £7 4s. 7d. to York Hospital. The collectors, subscribers, and other helpers were heartily thanked on the motion of Mrs Hepworth, seconded by the Chairman.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS

SHOULD COAL BE GIVEN TO THE POOR?

A RESOLUTION DEFEATED.

The fortnightly meeting of the Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the Union Offices, Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon, Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Others present were Mrs E. A. Dickenson, Father T. Cody, Messrs J. Schofield, T. G. Conyers, J. R. Chappell, P. S. Marsden, G. Armitage, D. W. Hargreaves, W. Verity, J. Flanagan, W. A. Appleyard, H. W. Verity, J. Flanagan, W. A. Appleyard, H. W. Verity, G. W. Verity, J. Pulford, W. Stead, J. W. Verity, G. W. Verity, J. Pulford, W. Stead, J. W. Verity, G. W. Verity, Peace, and W. Hemingway, with the Clerk (Mr F. W. Mee).

CHILDREN'S HOMES COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Children's Homes Committee reports were received from Miss Conyers on her half-yearly visits to children placed out for adoption or in situations. Miss Conyers also reported that many of the foster parents objected to her inspecting the children's bedrooms, and asked the Guardians to give instructions in the matter. It was resolved that the matter be left to the Clerk to speak to Miss Conyers and arrange for the removal of any misunderstanding that may exist in the minds of any of the foster parents as to their obligations.

A letter was received from the Birmingham Union requesting that the children's band might be able to them may be supplied with an extra fare, toys, etc., similar to the other children, at Christmas, and that the costs be charged to them in the quarterly account, and it was resolved that they be only charged extra for Christmas toys.—A letter was received from Mr E. Bothroyd, Oulton, inviting the children to witness the half-yearly visits and offering to make all children's pantomimes, and offering to make all arrangements as usual. It was resolved that the invitation be accepted.

A letter was received from the West Riding Education Committee stating they will be glad to make arrangements for a half-yearly report on children in receipt of out-relief, instead of the present weekly report, and on hearing that the Local Government Board agree to dispense with their present requirements, will give necessary instructions.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the House Committee a letter was read from the Secretary of the Hon. E. F. L. Wood, Templenewsam, stating that Mr Wood had instructed his agent at Garrowby to send some evergreens for Christmas decorations. The master reported that there had been three deaths in the institution during the past fortnight.

THE CONTRACTS.

The following contracts were accepted:—Provisions, Messrs H. Brown and Sons, for one month; meat, J. Stephenson; flour, Popplewell and Co., Ltd.; groceries, H. Brown and Sons; leather, H. Dixon—all for three months' duration, and the following were accepted for six months:—Tea, Schofield and Co.; yeast, E. Thompson; potatoes, W. Jacques and Son, Ltd.; bacon, James Hargreaves and Son; drapery, J. Batty and Sons; coffins, A. Armitage; drugs, W. A. Wharam, Ltd.; bricklaying, W. Chapman and Son; joiner, T. Copley; plumber, W. Ward; printing, The Electric Printing Works; and ironmongery, R. H. Bruce and Co.

CALLS OWING.

The minutes of the Finance Committee showed that the calls of Hunslet Rothwell had not been paid, and that it was resolved that unless the same are paid within seven days proceedings be taken.

Mr Conyers stated that the call for Hunslet would be paid within a few days. It had been a very serious matter for them during the last few months, as the call had been increased to such an extent. Previously the calls had been every year, but now they were making them every half-year, and they had not made provision for it.

Mr G. Armitage asked for the amount of the calls, and the Clerk gave the following figures:—Rothwell £5,548 15s. 10d. for the present half-year, as compared with £5,401 6s. for the corresponding half of last year; Hunslet, £6,883 10s. 10d. for the present half-year, as compared with £5,298 1s. 10d. for the corresponding half of last year, an increase of about £1,600 on the half-year, caused by amounts charged.

Mr Armitage: What is meant by amounts charged?

The Clerk: Maintenance, out-relief, etc.

The Clerk also gave figures which showed that for the present quarter there was an increase of £500 in out-relief, as compared with 1900.

SHOULD POOR BE GIVEN COAL?

In the absence of Mr W. Lunn the following resolution, of which he had given notice of motion at the last meeting of the Board, was moved by Mr W. Hemingway:—"That each householder of coal per week be given to the value of 2s. 6d. in addition to the out-relief during December and February, 1915."

In moving the resolution, Mr Hemingway said that the discussion of the last few minutes had been interesting, because they could well see that the question before the Board was one of coal, his memory served him right, one thing stated against it was the increase in relief. He followed the sum paid was about 2s. 8½d. per head. One of the general officers, in his annual report, stated that the people during the few weeks was a great blessing. The people who were getting outdoor relief—and he was glad the Board had granted it—were receiving extra relief, but he believed that the increase was not sufficient to meet the increase in foodstuffs. In the city of Leeds two out of the three Unions were granting extra coal for three months. They had at once seen the difficulties of the poor people, and were treating them with a very liberal hand.

Mr J. W. Verity seconded, and said the reason for his so doing was because he knew what a hard time they had had last year. The increase the Board had given in out-relief had been nullified by the war, and was not sufficient for present-day needs.

Mr G. Armitage, who moved an amendment, said they ought to consider their position as responsible officers of the ratepayers. He would be the last man to stop outdoor relief in cases of absolute necessity. He was always in favour of giving people relief rather than bringing them into the House. At the same time, they should consider the ratepayer. It was well known that the cost of living had gone up, and the position of everybody had gone up. The increase in outdoor relief had gone up since 1900 by 80 per cent, but Mr Hemingway could not, neither could any one else, say that the increase of the people had gone up 80 per cent. He was very loath to vote against the resolution, but they might have a little more information on the matter, and with a view to that he would move that it be adjourned for a fortnight.

The Clerk reported that the number who received out-relief last week was 842, and of those 122 were men, 324 were women, and 396 children. There were represented 360 cases or 360 families, and the total paid out was £133 compared with £95 for the corresponding week of last year.

Father Cody expressed himself neutral on the matter, and as there was no seconder to Mr Armitage's amendment a vote was taken on the resolution, when the following voted for it:—Mrs Dickenson, Messrs Hemingway, Stead, J. W. Verity, and Peace. Those voting against were Messrs Conyers, Marsden, Armitage, Pulford, Schofield, Hargreaves, Flanagan, W. Verity, and Appleyard. The resolution was, therefore, lost.

FATAL SCALDING ACCIDENT AT STOURTON.

A BABY'S END—THE INQUEST.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned at an inquest held at Stourton on Wednesday afternoon, on the body of a fourteen months' old child named Kate Ethel White, the daughter of William Henry and Frances Alice White, of 9, Pontefract Road, Stourton, who died as a result of being scalded.

The mother stated that the child had been delicate from birth. About 9.30 last Wednesday night she (witness) was boiling some milk upon the fire, and when it commenced to boil she placed the child, which she had undressed, upon the hearthrug, in order to take the pan off the fire. Some of the milk she poured into a pot, and was turning to give some to her little son. As she was turning, the child, who had walked for the first time that day, clambered up, and, in saving itself from falling, grabbed hold of her skirt, and the pot which was in her hand was slipped, and some of the contents were upon over the child, scalding it about the shoulders and down the left side. Witness picked up the child, and, after putting flour and lard upon the affected parts, she sent for a neighbour. The child screamed for about two hours after, and witness nursed it from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. on the following day. The Hawkyard and the district nurse visited the child up to its death, but it did not seem to get over the shock, and went into fits on Friday morning and died about 5.30 that night.

The Coroner: Well, you did your best for her, Witness: Yes, I did my utmost.

Ada Chapel, wife of a miner, of 10, Pontefract Road, Stourton, described the mother of the deceased child as careful and very kind.

The Coroner remarked that the affair seemed to be a pure accident, and he advised the jury to say that death was due to shock caused by the accident.

The jury concurred.

"SUPERIOR" PERSON AND SOLDIERS—TABLES TURNED.

A neat story of how a retired Naval officer turned the tables on a "superior" sort of person who objected to travelling in the same compartment as some soldiers is being related in the service clubs. The two men were coming to London first-class the other day, and got into close to a training camp several privates in Lord Kitchener's Army, unable to find room elsewhere on the train, entered their carriage. Annoyed at what he considered an unwarrantable intrusion, the "superior" person complained, and at the next stopping-place, knowing that the soldiers only had third-class tickets, called the guard's attention to the fact. The official had no option but to request the recruits to leave the compartment, but he intimated that he would find room for them in his van.

Before the soldiers could move the ex-Naval officer, who had been an amused but silent spectator of the whole affair, intervened, and insisted upon paying the excess fares, to the great disgust of the "superior" person, who shamefacedly sought another compartment.

When relating the incident in his club afterwards, the retired officer declared that the subsequent journey had been one of the jolliest he had experienced for a long time, for the boys, happy in the prospect of an afternoon's leave spent in London, had kept him amused with "yarns" and anecdotes of their camp.

A STOURTON SOLDIER'S LETTER.

HOW THE GERMANS WERE DRIVEN OUT.

Pte. J. Moss, of the 5th Dragoon Guards, writes of his experiences to his brother in Stourton, as follows:—

I have had a few narrow shaves of being shot, but the Germans are not too good shots with a rifle, it is their big guns that have saved them a lot. In one or two positions we have had they have had to retire at a moment's notice. In one position we lost a good many men. My two chums were both shot by my side, and I thought my turn had come, but I got out of it all right. It was quite the time for us to have done in burning poor people's houses it would make your blood boil, but if the French get into Germany they can look out for themselves.

"You will have read about the doings of L Battery. We were with them. It was four in the morning when we were surprised by the Germans. We were sleeping behind our saddles in a field, when they got within four hundred yards, and a very hot time we had, but we lost a lot of horses. My horse was shot in the leg, and let them have four shells very quickly. You ought to have seen them scatter, leaving a lot of them dead, and that was how we got shelled right over them back. But the Scottish lads are a fine fighting lot. The French are very good fighters, who fight a lot better when we are by their side than when they are on their own."

HALTON C.S. FOOTBALL TEAM

TENTH SUCCESSIVE VICTORY.

On Saturday a match was played at Parkside, Leeds, between Halton Council School lads and Holbeck Trades School. Halton started, and, after good footwork by the forwards, Sykes and Kenney made an opening for Wade, who slipped within a yard of the line. Halton pressed for a considerable time, but the Holbeck backs (who were much heavier than their opponents), set up a rock-like defence, which all attempts, by passing, kicking, and rushing, failed to penetrate. At last Hustle cleared with a big kick, and Hewdson securing, he ran fairly for 30 yards before stepping into touch. The Halton forwards worked like Trojans, and consistently beat the Holbeck pack. Wilson secured and started a fine round of passing, the ball being handled by Kenney, Hayes, and Simpson, but the latter lacked pace, and Wilson, Hayes, and Kenney failing to follow up for an inside pass, allowed another chance to be lost. The Halton forwards dribbled well for 40 yards, and Collis gave a long kick, and in the race which followed Burnan managed to shoulder Briggs out of the way and touch down for a try in the corner. Hayes made a fine but unsuccessful attempt at goal. At half-time Halton were leading by a try to nil.

On resuming the Halton forwards soon showed their superiority over the Holbeck pack, and certainly should have played a rushing and dribbling game, but they seemed to have faith in their backs, and constantly heeled out to Wilson. Jackson picked up in the loose and kicked straight into the hands of Hewdson, who had a clear run in under the posts to score a soft try, the same player failing at goal. The game afterwards became very exciting, and Hewdson scoring another grand try, after a magnificent run, gave Holbeck a 3 points' lead. Hewdson made several fine runs, but only met some excellent tackles at the hands of either Kenney or Wilson. At this period Hayes played remarkably well, contributing two fine runs which put Halton in a strong position. Burnan picked up, and dashing aside the opposition, he scored wide out. All the Halton team played magnificently, and with only 2 or 3 minutes to go and the scores level, the excitement ran high. Scrum after scrum was formed on the Holbeck line, Wilson gaining possession each time, but the Halton backs were unable to break down the fine defence of the homesters. At last the Halton forwards altered their tactics, and instead of heeling out they took the ball at their toes onto the line, and amidst scenes of the wildest enthusiasm Lister scored the winning try, thus keeping Halton's record of 100 per cent. intact. From the outset, Halton realised they were up against a bigger and stronger set of lads than themselves, and could have objected, it being a League match, but, having earned the name of being a sporting team, they lived up to it, and found a team which would average at least twelve months a player over age, whilst Halton's team averaged 18 months a player under age. Halton won by 3 tries (9 points) to 2 tries (6 points).

BARWICK AND SCHOLES DISTRESS FUND.—The committee of this Fund have sent a cheque for £25 12s. 4d. to be divided equally between the Prince of Wales' Fund and the Sir John C. Horsfall (West Riding) Distress Fund. The total amount collected in Barwick and Scholes was £145 12s. 4d., a sum of £60 having previously been sent to the Prince of Wales' Fund and £60 to Sir John C. Horsfall's Fund. The accounts have been duly audited, and the fund is now closed.

RECRUITING.—Within the past month a very energetic and successful recruiting campaign has been carried out in the Thirsk and Malton Division on behalf of the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee. Practically every district has been visited in the course of the tour, on some occasions as many as five meetings being held in one evening, while three and four meetings in immediate succession have been very commonplace occurrences. The total number already held has been 54. The result of the tour has been that nearly 300 recruits have been secured. The meetings were throughout ably supervised by Mr J. Rainborough, who has attended and spoken at every meeting, and who has covered 580 miles in the course of the tour. The Parliamentary Committee have sent speakers down each week, and Messrs Bibbing, Worsley, Taylor, Bennett, Smith, and Orrell have assisted in the work. The committee have also been greatly indebted to Sir John Grant Lawson, Bart., who has spoken at about 20 meetings. Local chairmen have always been secured, and amongst those who have acted in that capacity have been Sir William Worsley, Bart., Mr Guy Fairfax, the Hon. H. Fitzwilliam, Major Hill Walker, Mr F. A. Samuelson, Captain Clive Behrens, Brigadier-General Sir Eric Swayne, Colonel Ditmas, and Captain Coates. The vicars of the various parishes, the schoolmasters, and the choir leaders have also been unsparing in their efforts to assist towards the desired end.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS
£2 1/2 £3 15/ £5 5/ £10 10/
to £100 each.
SEE WINDOWS
Dyson's Diamonds
BEST SELECTION IN THE COUNTY
Watches
10/6 TO £50 GUINEAS.
THE ROUGHWEAR 15/-
THE UNIVERSITY 30/-
OLD WATCHES & JEWELLERY TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.
RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS
24-25-26 BRIGGATE LEEDS

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WANSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

FOR TOWN OR COUNTRY.
FOR BUSINESS OR PLEASURE.
THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
AT
Fabor 45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

Established 1885. Established 1885.
GENERAL
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Liberal Benefits and conditions. Low Premiums.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE every sixth year to householders and private property owners.
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in one section with risks of Fire Burglary, and accidents to servants.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Fire Policy, including Guarantee Policy.
Shopkeeper's Comprehensive Policy.
Motor Car Burglary, Fidelity Guarantees, Driving Accidents, Loss Profits.
Plate Glass, and Farmers' Insurances.
Chief Offices—General Bldgs., Perth, Scotland. General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C. The United Kingdom and Dominion Offices. Assets exceed £1,300,000. Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager — F. NORIE-MILLER, J.P.

Purveyors of Marmalade
To H.M. King George V.
Frank COOPER'S "OXFORD" MARMALADE.
The "Oxford" has a distinctive flavour, has the real home-made character, and goes farther — than any other.
OBTAINABLE AT
Walter Jubb's, Austhorpe Rd., Crossgates
ALSO
S. BORDER & Co., YORK.

MARRIAGE OF MISS DAWSON, WOOD HALL

CEREMONY THAT WAS TWICE POSTPONED.

A marriage has taken place at All Saints' Church, Kirkby Overblow, of considerable interest to the residents of the locality, the bride being Miss Margery Dawson, only daughter of Mr and Mrs. Charles Al. Dawson, of Wood Hall, Wetherby, and the bridegroom Mr Stephen St. Martin Dellus, of the Yorkshire Dragoons, third son of the late Mr Daniel Dellus, of Bradford and Harrogate.

The marriage was originally fixed to take place in August, but in consequence of the outbreak of war was then postponed. Thursday last was then decided upon, Mr Dellus having secured four days' leave of absence, but this was withdrawn because of the bombardment of the East Coast, where the bridegroom is stationed, and the marriage had again to be postponed to the following day. Consequently, the ceremony was of a very quiet character, only the immediate relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom being present.

The bride was given away by her father, and she looked charming in a dress of white and silver brocade, with full court train of white satin lined with pale pink chiffon edged with silver. She also wore a wreath of orange blossom, tulle veil with orange blossom and myrtle sprays, and a diamond and sapphire brooch, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was a lovely creation of lilies of the valley.

The best man was Mr C. Jeffrey, of Bradford, and the bridesmaids Miss Peggy Savage (niece of the bridegroom), Miss Olive Lupton, and Miss Longbottom (cousin of the bride). The bridesmaids' dresses were of white chiffon over pale pink, with blue sashes, and they wore green laurel wreaths tied with silver, and tulle veils. Their bouquets were of pale pink chrysanthemums, and their gifts from the bridegroom, who appeared in khaki, were long gold bar brooches, with the Harrow Fives Eleven button.

The journey to Kirkby Overblow was made by motor car, and the ceremony was conducted by the Rev. R. L. Bellamy, M.A. (clerk of the parish). The service was choral, Mr C. Roberts, organist at St. James's Church, Wetherby, presiding at the organ. Members of the Wetherby Church Choir were also in attendance and sang the hymn "O, perfect love." Mr Roberts played the wedding marches by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn.

There was a large number of handsome presents.

COLLIERY FATALITY AT LOFTHOUSE

WHAT A FALL OF STONE DID.

An inquest was held at Outwood on Monday touching the death of Herbert Wild (29), who was killed by a fall of roof at Lofthouse Colliery early on Friday morning.

Deceased and two companions were making their way along the main haulage road and had only gone about a hundred yards from the pit bottom when a large stone, weighing nearly two tons, fell from the roof.

The first man escaped without a scratch, but Wild, who was following behind, was knocked down and buried; and a third man named Leopard was hurt cut the head and legs.

It took fifteen minutes to release Wild, who died shortly afterwards, being very badly crushed.

At the point where the accident happened hundreds of men would pass along daily, and in compliance with new regulations, brick walls and iron girders were being put in.

A witness expressed the opinion that the accident had been caused by the weather, the dampness having affected the stone and caused it to fall.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

VOLUNTEER CORPS FOR SELBY.

ONE HUNDRED MEMBERS EXPECTED.

A meeting of members of the Selby Urban District Council and local residents was held at the Town Hall on Monday night to consider the formation of a Volunteer Corps in the town. Councillor T. S. Ullathorne (Chairman of the Urban Council) presided.

A deputation, consisting of the Rev. Dr. Solloway, the Rev. R. J. Dunford, and Mr. J. Snow, had visited York, and interviewed the local officers at the War Office. The deputation was informed that the scheme had the entire approval of the military authorities, and that in fact Lieut.-General Sir H. Plumer, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, was quite keen about it. It is provided that the corps shall be affiliated with the Central Association in London.

The opinion was expressed that there would be no difficulty in getting 100 men." It was also thought that in the future the War Office would probably provide both uniforms and arms for their corps.

Upon the motion of Mr J. Snow, seconded by Dr. Solloway, it was agreed that a Volunteer Corps be established in the town.

A committee to make preliminary arrangements, and call a meeting with a view to secure enrolments in the corps, was appointed as follows:—Mr. Smith, Rev. Dr. Solloway, Mr. J. Snow, Rev. R. J. Dunford, Dr. Somers, Mr. C. Prust, and Mr. Thomas Liversidge, with power to add to their number.

Mr Snow was appointed secretary, and Mr C. Crow assistant-secretary.

The Rev. Dr. Solloway stated that Mr Wm. Liversidge had generously promised £50 towards starting the corps.

A MYSTERY OF TURPINITE

At the beginning of the war a great deal was said about the newly-discovered "turpinite" shells, which, it was asserted, would kill by asphyxiation all living creatures within a certain radius of the spot where they exploded. Since then surprise has been expressed at there being little or no use of this wonderful explosive had been made by the French artillery. The following comment, by a correspondent, explains its non-employment:—

In the first place, turpinite shells have little effect in the open field. They can only be successfully fired against enclosed spaces, forts, or dwellings. And we long as the enemy is on French or Belgian soil to fire shells to French or Belgian civilians would be too great to justify the use of turpinite in the bombardment of towns and villages. Moreover, the necessary explosion could be used with especially constructed guns of most delicate machinery, loaded with ordinary "service" shells. Its danger would be almost as great to the French gunners as to the enemy.

It is an interesting speculation as to whether turpinite will come into its own when Germany is invaded and her fortresses are bombarded.

AN ADEL GIRL'S TRAGIC DEATH

THE INQUEST—A PECKFIELD WITNESS'S EVIDENCE.

A VERY SAD AFFAIR.

Dorothy May Wood, aged 19, daughter of George Wood, blacksmith, of Adel Forge, has been found by her father, hanging from a beam in the house.

The girl kept house for Mr Wood, her mother having died about ten years ago. She appeared to be as usual on Friday morning, and at half-past ten o'clock she wrote a business letter for her father, who was at work in his smithy, which is only a few yards away from the house, until nearly one o'clock.

When Mr Wood returned to the house his daughter was missing, and he found her hanging in the parlour. A piece of cord which was found her neck was fastened to one of the cullround her neck was fastened to one of the cullings beams, and she had apparently stepped off a chair into space. She was dead, and although medical aid was immediately obtained, it was of no avail.

There appears to be an entire absence of any trouble which might have been expected to cause the girl to take her own life. She left no letter, nor anything to explain her actions.

The inquest was held at the Adel Club Room on Monday—before Mr P. P. Maitland (West Riding Coroner).

The father of deceased said his daughter had been attended by Dr. Drake, of Headingley, about two months ago for depression and anæmia. On Monday, December 7th, she left home without giving anything, taking some money with her, and she did not return until Wednesday. Witness said, he asked his daughter on returning where she had been, and she never offered any explanation. She went about her work in a cheerful way. About 10.30 a.m. on Friday she spoke out a business note for witness, and about an hour later, when he went into the house he found her hanging by the neck from a beam in the parlour. Witness cut her down, and sent for P.C. Askam.

In reply to the Coroner, the father said that his girl had suffered from fits of depression during life. He had, however, only taken her remarks as being a joke.

The Foreman Drake said he knew the family, and had attended the deceased in September for depression and anæmia. She complained of depression and anæmia. She complained of pains in her head and of being dull. She appeared to be in good health, but said she was tired of being at home, and would like to go into service. She also said that she and the young man she had been keeping company with had agreed, by mutual consent, to break their relationship. Witness said he thought deceased had hung herself in one of the fits of depression.

Jane Miriam Jackson, wife of Herbert Jackson, of Peckfield, said the deceased was her sister. She came to her house on Monday, December 14th, but she did not expect her. On Wednesday witness went with her to Garforth station to go home to Adel. That was the last time she saw her alive.

A verdict of "Suicide whilst of unsound mind" was returned.

A SINGULAR SCHOLES CASE.

INTERESTING TO FARMERS AND PIG-DEALERS

Arthur Chippendale, farmer, of Scholes, was summoned at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday for failing to isolate five pigs.

P.C. Stimpson stated that defendant removed the pigs from the Scholes Mart at Garforth on the 7th, and the following day he called at the defendant's premises and questioned him about the pigs. Defendant said he had four and one had been killed. The officer inspected the pigs and found eight in all, the five which had been brought from the mart, and a Mart along with three others.

Mr Willey, who defended, asked the officer if he knew that the pigs in question had been to the auction mart, but as they were unsold they had been brought back and mixed with others in the same place from which they had been taken.

The officer said he knew this was so.

The Chairman (Dr Mr Willey): You contend that this is not within the Act.

Mr Willey: My client is perfectly innocent. He took a license out at the auction mart and put them back into the same place as he had taken them from.

He suggested that it was a case which the magistrates could deal with by dismissing and placing his client under the Probation Act.

The Chairman remarked that the Act was made for the protection of farmers.

A fine of 1s. for each pig and the costs was imposed.

SCENE AT A WOODLESFORD HOTEL.

A MINER'S SEVERE PUNISHMENT.

James Stephens, a miner, of Leeds, was charged at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday with having been drunk and refusing to quit licensed premises, and with doing wilful damage to a window and the woodwork of the Woodlesford Hotel, and also with assaulting P.C. Hutchinson.

Mr A. Willey prosecuted on behalf of Mr H. Sheldrick, the licensee of the Midland Hotel, Woodlesford.

Mr Sheldon stated that about 8.30 p.m. on Saturday the defendant, along with two other men, came into the house. Defendant had had too much beer, and asked him to go out. Instead of doing so, he and whilst being taken towards the door, he picked up a lemonade bottle and threw it at the bar window, smashing it. He also did so, he threatened the witness, saying "I will cut your eyes out." When getting him out of the house, Mr Sheldon sent for a policeman, and on the latter coming, defendant took off his coat and struck the officer. Mr Hutchinson and Mr Sheldon afterwards struck the officer several times, and also kicked him. The damage done was valued at 12s. He did not know Stephens.

Prisoner pleaded guilty, and said he was sorry for what had occurred. He asked for magistrates' leniency on account of his wife and three children, and he promised to sign the pledge.

The Chairman (to Sheldon): Was the man blind drunk?

Witness: He was mad drunk.

P.C. Hutchinson said on Saturday about 8.40 on information he received he went to the Midland Hotel in consequence of a complaint he had received. He was in plain clothes, and he went up to Stephens and told him that he was a police constable. Stephens commenced using obscene language, and struck witness for no apparent reason. He (Stephens) then took off his coat and closed with the officer; and another man who was with him drew a knife. Witness drew his truncheon and kicked by Stephens several times.

The defendant's wife, who was in Court, also pleaded for leniency on behalf of her husband.

The Chairman, in sending him to prison for one month with hard labour on the charge of refusing to quit, and for those two months for assaulting the police officer (the sentences to run concurrently), said he ought to think himself lucky he got off as he had done. Stephens was also ordered to pay the damage.

The Bishop of Beverley, The Rectory, Bolton Percy, has sent two cheques to the funds of Leeds Infirmary.

CORRESPONDENCE

WHITKIRK CHURCH—MORNING SERVICE.

To the Editor.

Sir,—There can be no doubt whatever that this intention of the Church of England, as expressed in her Prayer Book, is that the chief service of Sunday morning should be the celebration of the Lord's Supper—the Lord's own service on the Lord's own day. This was the only service appointed by Christ Himself, and from the Apostles' time it took a central and distinguishing place in the observance of the first day of the week.

It was later on that the Offices (which have come down to us as Morning and Evening Prayer) came into existence, to supplement, not to supplant, the Service of Holy Communion. But the service of divine obligation, for clergy and laity alike, was always the Holy Eucharist. The clergy and many lay-communicants of St. Mary's, Whitkirk, believe this, and are doing their best to put the Lord's own service into the foremost place, in accordance with the primitive practice and with that of the rest of the Catholic Church.

"Disgusted" describes the Eucharist at Whitkirk, "in its present form," as "nothing but sung mass." Is he (or she) aware that the central and essential features of the Lord's service have constantly remained the same throughout Christendom, and that "Mass" is only one among many titles which the service has received—nothing connected with any abuse of doctrine or practice?

Personally, I regret the use by the clergy of the language which "Disgusted" deplores, for I think it is unbalanced; nor do I regard the arrangements of the Whitkirk services as altogether ideal. But I do not remember the occasion on which that Morning Prayer "ought not to be used," as "Disgusted" states.

The fact is, the clergy of Whitkirk, for the reasons stated above, are most anxious to restore the Holy Eucharist (Sacrament and Feast) to its rightful position as the service on the Lord's Day. In this I give them (and, therefore, the Catholic Church) my heartiest support. Moreover, I firmly believe that, given a truer understanding of Church principles, the laity will, in increasing numbers, appreciate and do, youthly support those principles.—Yours, etc.,

G. KING, Licensed Reader.

Whitkirk, Dec. 19th, 1914.

SELBY LIBERALS AND WHIST DRIVES.

To the Editor.

Sir,—I have read the letter of the Liberal agent, Mr W. J. Taylor, which appeared in your issue of the 11th inst, and I am very much surprised at its contents, as, although he disclaims responsibility for the management of the Liberal Club, he evidently endorses the action of its officers.

Moreover, if he had taken the trouble to inquire, he would have ascertained that I did actually approach the M.C. of the Liberal Club with regard to whist drives during the present crisis.

In the last paragraph of Mr Taylor's letter he states "We seek no party advantage. At present we have no political party. Our motto is 'United we stand.'" What is the nature of this business if it is not politics or party, seeing that it was generally understood that a truce had been agreed between the political parties throughout the country. By carrying on "business as usual" this truce must have been violated by the Liberals in the Barkston Ash Division. No other interpretation can be placed on the last paragraph of Mr Taylor's letter.—Yours, etc.,

RICHARD LODGE, Conservative Agent,

Selby, 21st Dec., 1914.

EAST KESWICK MAN AND THE RAID.

"LINE UP, YORKSHIRE."

Mr George Moore, of East Keswick, writes to the "Post" as follows:—I have waited for an abler pen than mine to voice the sentiments of Yorkshire. Yorkshiremen have been insulted by this German raid on our unfortified towns and watering-places, and murder of our women and children. Now, we are not going to take that slap in the face quietly lying down! Line up, Yorkshire! We will make the Kaiser and all his breed sing "Rule Britannia" before we have done with them. It's Death or Glory, boys. Let Field-Marshal French have some of the old fighting blood of Yorkshire along with him to cheer up the hearts of our boys already in the fighting line.

Stop one minute to think what those German brutes have done—killed men, women, and children, and devilry, jealousy, and hatred of our nation. What would be the fate of all our women and children if they got a foothold? Too horrible to think about.

Now, boys, play up. Yorkshire, and every man of you, and send in your names before the New Year Day, and let Lord Kitchener see we mean to see him through. No age limit, healthy, strong men with their hearts in the right place. We want you and your

OUR GARDENS.

Specially Written for this Journal

— BY —

ALBERT CLARKE.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Flower borders that have repeatedly been dressed with animal manure are apt to get sour. Sour soil can be detected by the offensive smell it gives off, and to sweeten it a dressing of lime should be dug in during the winter months, if A spadeful to the square yard is a suitable amount to use. The use of lime will serve a double purpose, as it not only sweetens the soil but it liberates a quantity of plant food which would not otherwise be available to the plants. Another important point in the manipulation of garden soil is the provision of good drainage. Many good results are at present being obtained from satisfactory, well-drained borders, much greater pleasure if a thorough system of drainage was adopted. Wet, heavy soils, rarely give good returns, and if there are no facilities for giving efficient drainage a moderate course may be effected by trenching in a quantity of ashes, leaves, and similar light material. On land of this description long, strawy manure should be used in preference to rotten manure. Old potting soil may also be added from time to time, and if a quantity of old turf can be obtained, this may be used with a certainty of good results accruing. Light soils may be improved by the use of pulverised clay. Northern gardeners who have very light soils to deal with would do well to take a journey from the tillers of the soil in the Cambridgeshire fens, where clay digging is practised every winter. It is thrown on the surface of the soil and left there for the frost to break, and is dug or ploughed in when spring comes round. All vacant ground should be dug over as early as possible. The average amateur has one great failing in this respect. He works hard and conscientiously throughout the spring and summer months, but when his flowers, etc., are over, he seems to forget he has a garden until the following spring. Autumn digging is very important, as it allows the frosts and rains to work freely into the soil. We are quite aware of the difficulty that faces the amateur who is at work during the hours of daylight, but even he will find a way out of the difficulty if he once realises how important it is that his ground should be dug in good time.

SWEET PEAS.

The ground intended for sweet pea growing should be prepared without further delay. There is no more popular summer flowering plant than this one, and although pleasing results can be obtained by very ordinary cultivation, the real sweet pea lover will not be satisfied with ordinary results, nor will he shirk the extra labour entailed in the production of really choice flowers. Sweet peas are notoriously deep-rooting plants, and we have found their roots quite six feet from the surface. The significance of this is obvious. Roots that penetrate to such a great depth will outgrow the effects of any ordinary dilling or hand digging. Much depends upon the character of the land on which they are grown. On a clay subsoil deep trenching must be accompanied by efficient drainage, or the bottom of the trench will be charged with water to such an extent as to prevent the roots from running freely. In preparing the trench for the reception of the plants it must be borne in mind that they are gross feeders. Plenty of well-rotted manure must be used, and it should be incorporated with the soil in such a way as to avoid leaving it in layers. Wood ashes, soot, and a little bone meal may also be used, and all should be thoroughly mixed with the native soil. Splendid results may be obtained by trenching from two to three feet deep, and this is quite sufficient unless exhibition flowers are wanted. The autumn sown seedlings should now be occupying a position facing the south on the glass in a cold frame. No coddling should be attempted, but, on the contrary, every opportunity of giving a generous amount of ventilation should be taken advantage of. On all mild days they should be fully exposed, and in every respect they may be treated as recommended for violas. Snails have a decided liking for the delicious young growth, and these should be looked for in the morning before setout. Their activity may be arrested by scattering soot between the pots, and as a further safeguard a few bags of bran may be left with them. Sparrows must be watched carefully, and it is usually possible to find all that was in the frame on the bran a few hours after placing it in position.

LOBELIA CARDINALIS.

This beautiful scarlet-flowered summer bedding plant is worthy of more general cultivation. We often hear complaints that it is a difficult subject to keep through the winter, whereas, under suitable treatment, its winter requirements are very simple. When the plants have finished flowering they should be cut down, lifted, and have most of the soil shaken away. They may then be potted fairly close together in boxes and have a little coarse sand scattered amongst them. They may be stood in a cold frame until the following January, when they should be divided into single crowns and dibbled into boxes of sandy soil. They do not make much headway until March, and this allows for them being placed fairly close together. The spring growth commences then, and the young shoots when they either be potted on or selected. They require a moderately rich compost at this time, and must be carefully watered until they recover from the shock of removal. Excessive moisture, and a high temperature, are their greatest enemies during the winter, but on no account must they be stored where frost can get to them. From March onward they may be treated like bedding geraniums. They give a splendid effect when massed in quantity in the flower garden, but may be used in many other ways to good advantage. Variety is secured by the use of the white and pink varieties, but nothing will surpass the scarlet variety, Queen Victoria, in perhaps the best of them.

PLANTS UNDER GLASS.

We strongly recommend all our readers who have chrysanthemum growers to try the method of raising dwarf plants from May shoot cuttings. Splendid little bushes from 18 in to 30 inches high may be obtained by striking four cuttings in a pot, and repotting them intact into a 5½ inch pot. They should be stopped once or twice, if desired, and must then be allowed to grow naturally. The single and decorative varieties are the most suitable for this system of cultivation, and to ensure a supply of cuttings being available in May a number of old plants should now be shaken out and repotted into 6-inch pots. Give them a fairly rich compost, and stand them in a cool, light position to encourage the production of sturdy basal growths.

CUT FLOWERS.

Cut flowers are always comparatively scarce at Christmas, and a few hints on their preservation may not be out of place. In the first place, chrysanthemums, which form the bulk of the flowers available at the festive season, do not keep as well as they do a month earlier. The stems absorb water so slightly shortened with a knife, but never with scissors.

GENERAL REMINDERS.

To keep up a regular supply of tulips, hyacinths, and daffodils, place a few in heat once a week.

Gloire de Lorraine begonias are charming house plants, and should be largely used for that purpose. When they get shabby remove all the old flowers and return them to the warm house. They will break into new growth and bloom freely again in a few weeks' time.

Give carnations plenty of room to develop or they will lose their bottom leaves and assume a leggy appearance.

Newly imported azaleas have a bad habit of dropping their leaves. This may be checked by syringing them once a day.

Climbing roses under glass should now be pruned. Remove all weak shoots, and cut the strong ones back one-third.

CULTURE OF JAPANESE LILIES.

Bulbs of Lilium Auratum and other Japanese lilies do not usually reach the country until about the end of the year. They are probably the most beautiful of all bulbous plants, and nearly all the species are hardy in well drained soils. If to be grown in pots, as early as the bulbs can be obtained, partially cover them singly in well-drained pots about half filled with light soil, placing a little grounded charcoal under the bulb and round the sides of it. Fill up with the same soil, occasionally be necessary to supply moisture until roots are formed and top-growth commences, when the pots should be filled up. If a shift becomes necessary, re-pot the shrubs carefully. Supply liquid manures towards flowering time, but discontinue the applications as the blossoms expand. Abundant water and air must be admitted when growth is fairly started. Ripen off the plants in the open air, a cool shed, or under the benches after flowering; re-pot in autumn; and store up for the winter in a cool, moderate dry place.

CORRESPONDENCE

THANK OFFERING FOR EXPLOIT OF NAVY.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Winter is upon us, and as a sailor may I claim your sympathetic attention. The following has just reached me:—

"Your appeal on behalf of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society is sure to have arrived at a most opportune moment. This morning's paper brought us more cheering news than we have had since the Battle of the Marne, and every Bethlehem, Tottenham, Leipsic, and Nuremberg have been destroyed with practically no loss to this country, and I herewith enclose a cheque for £—— as a thank offering for this exploit by our Navy."

The gallant Admiral, Sir John Jellicoe, writes from the "Iron Duke," wherever she may be: "I am sure that the homes and institutions all over the world are the greatest possible boon to sailors, and I wish the society every success in the future in the work which has been so thoroughly carried out in the past."

While the Navy is the first line of defence, and our stations are for our sailors, yet since war was declared, our brave soldiers of the sister service are going into buildings to the very utmost at home and abroad.

We have felt it a privilege since war began to co-operate with the authorities in supplying national needs—and more money for the National Relief Fund, opening our Sailors' Institutes as Red Cross Hospitals, Refugees Homes, Recreation and concert rooms, canteens, and Gospel halls for the young men of our New Army, giving a hearty welcome, a handshake, and a word of inspiration to thousands of sailors and soldiers. During our shores—providing books and magazines for the sailors afloat, and the soldiers using our branches; finding more than twenty thousand warm garments and woollens for the fishermen in the North Sea, for military hospitals on both sides of the Channel, and for all our lighthouse and lightship keepers round the United Kingdom. Much of our chaplains' work in and near the war zone—at Hamburg, Rotterdam, Antwerp, Ostend, Malta, Gibraltar, etc., may not and could not be portrayed into words, but the nation and our brave defenders would be the poorer, body and soul, were it not for the splendid devotion of our noble missionaries and their staffs.

The late beloved Field Marshal, Lord Roberts, presided at Portsmouth when he became Vice-President, and I trust the society, the offer of whose services I keenly appreciate, may continue to flourish."

We are compelled to tell our friends that now, after closing down, the undertaking of this national work, with its largely increased responsibilities, £10,000 at least is urgently needed to repay bankers' overdrafts, and to save our workers from undue financial anxiety.

It is a "duty" to keep this good ship not only afloat, but sailing in her magnificent work for sailor and soldier comrades.

Sir Reginald Talbot, Brecknock Green, J.P. (who has recently sent a cheque for £500), will gladly receive any gifts towards the above, or they may be sent to our Secretary, Mr. Dolbey, whose help would be helpful and most welcome.

This Society recognises the good providence of God, and asks for a thank offering. It may be in the name of a dear one who has fallen or in His Name who is above every name.—Yours, etc.,

G. Rice Hall, Director.

Late Commander-in-Chief of the Australian Squadron.

2, 4, and 6, Bowles Street, London, E.

The Donaldson liner, Tritonia, struck a mine off the north coast of Ireland, and is believed to have foundered. The crew was saved.

The inquest was concluded at Hetton-le-Hole on Friday on the ten victims of the explosion at the factory of Messrs. Ellison of White Le Moor Colliery. His Majesty's Chief Inspector of Explosives, Mr. Walker, attended the inquest, and said he had no doubt that the explosion was a dust explosion, and not an explosion of pierle coal as at first stated. It was an accident pure and simple, and was in great part due to the strong wind which prevailed. The only remedy he could suggest was additional care. The jury found that the explosion was caused by some foreign substance accidentally getting into the grinding machine.

CONCERNING OUR INDIAN TROOPS

HOW THE REGIMENTS ARE ARRANGED.

As a general rule India does not bulk largely in the public eye, but the remarkable and universal outburst of loyalty towards the British Raj, which has occurred at the present juncture, and the advent of Indian troops in European warfare, have (often in Anglo-Indian) directed a good deal of attention to that most fascinating country.

From the Indian newspapers of two months ago it appeared that the flights of the Goeben and the Breslau to the Dardanelles was regarded out there as a deliberate attempt on the part of Germany to involve Turkey in the conflict, and so strike at us through the Moslem population in Egypt and India. It was an astute move and quite in keeping with our knowledge of Germany's depraved methods of diplomacy. The leaders of Indian opinion, however, were confident that, if Turkey did throw in her lot with Germany, the loyalty of the educated and ruling Mahomedans would prevent them from trouble among their ignorant brethren. How well placed their confidence was can be seen from a perusal of recent telegrams from Delhi, Hyderabad and others. Knowing what we do, however, of the power of religion to obliterate even the strongest claims, it is a matter for regret that Turkey has chosen to cast her lot with Germany, but the restraint shown by Great Britain towards her will strengthen the hands of the leading Moslems, and so save us from what might have been a very real peril. In this connection it may be noted that Indian regiments are arranged on two systems. In one companies of Hindus and companies of Mahomedans go to make up a regiment on the principle of "Divide et Impera," the idea being that any mutinous feeling in either class would be brought speedily to the notice of the European officers. In making combinations of this kind the native of India or of the East generally has no equal. Three or four delightful introductory clauses for such communications spring to his pen at once, and they will not bear translation. "You are as children to us in matters of diplomacy," a prominent Egyptian official once very truly said to me. The above arrangement of regiments failed in this direction at the Mutiny as the cause of the trouble, the alleged use of animal grease in cartridges was (chronious alike to Hindu and Mahomedan.

In the second system we have what are called "Class Regiments," in which not only are Hindus separated from Mahomedans, but the various castes or Hindu groups are segregated. We accordingly have Hindu units drawn from the Gurkhas, Mahrattas, Rajputs, Sikhs, etc. On the other hand, we have an exclusively Mahomedan regiment recruited from the Baluchis. This scheme is said to tend to greater efficiency, but the other arrangement is not without its advantages. Lord Kitchener was understood to favour the class regiment system.

With regard to British troops in India, Lord Kitchener was a strong supporter of the temporary increase in the Army, which adds a weight to the present need for reform in this direction.

Previous to 1911 native soldiers in our Indian Army have not eligible for the grant of the Victoria Cross for valour. It was felt that this should come for the removal of this disqualification. At the Coronation Durbar held at Delhi in December of that year, certain Rajah boons were granted, but the most important and far-reaching was the following announcement:—"His Imperial Majesty has been graciously pleased to ordain that from henceforth His loyal native officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers shall be eligible for the grant of the Victoria Cross for valour."

Since then, except for the punitive expedition after against the tribes for the murder of Mr Williamson and Dr. Gregorson, no opportunity has occurred for our Indian troops to show their gallantry, and those who in Europe will fight the more keenly that practically for the first time they are on a footing of equality with our soldiers in regard to this much coveted distinction.

No exact particulars of the composition of the British Expeditionary Force have been vouchsafed to us, but Lord Hardinge stated that it would include a number of our brave Indian regiments as well as several of the Imperial Service troops. The latter are portions of the army's maintained by such native States as Bikanir, Gwalior, and Hyderabad, and which have been already offered for the service of the Empire at this time.

Mention has been made of Rajputs, and a few particulars regarding them may not be out of place. Most certainly the Indian Army are a picturesque (personsanced Chattrey) caste. This, it will be remembered, is the second of the four original castes established by Manu, the reputed founder of the Hindu system, viz., Brahmins or high priests, Kshattriyas or soldiers, Vaisyas or merchants, and the Sudras or labourers. Numerous subdivisions of castes have since appeared but the four remain fundamental. The Rajputs derived themselves with martial glory by their long and strenuous resistance to the superior power of the Moghul Emperors of Delhi. There is a good deal of the spirit of race about them, and not without good reason either.

It is unlikely rigidly to their caste rules they will be rather troublesome to the commissariat department, but as Rajputs are quite as fine, they are very limited menu—atta (coarse flour), ghee (clarified butter), milk, curry powder, and most vegetables. It would be interesting to speculate how many Rajputs they are to see service in a foreign country, they may not be disposed to sink some of their cast prejudices. Even when one has long caste, religious and social ties with one's native land, to Brahmins and performing certain ceremonial observances, some of which are distinctly unpleasant.

In one of his everlasting speeches Lord Curzon is at pains to have said that he would like to see the Bengal Lancers ride along the Outer Circular Road in London. It may be as well to point out that these racially regiments are not recruited from the Bengalese, but from the Punjab and the North West Frontier. A Bengalese who made the observation to me: "At the time of peace the Army is officially a very magnificent occupation, but when it will be war, it is a most unpopular department." As to why the Bengal Lancers, the name is a misnomer of the time when there were their armies in India, one for each Presidency, viz., Bengal, Bombay, and Madras. The Bengal dressidency includes far more extensive territory than the province of Bengal, and so we find other peoples than the Bengalese in the so-called Bengal Lancers.

The Rev. J. H. Dudley Matthews, rector of Purley, near Reading, who was well known in Leeds as formerly Head Master of the Grammar School, was drowned in the Thames on Sunday night. Mr. Matthews, who was 70 years of age, was accustomed to row himself over the river to take the service at the Mapledurham Church, and it was while making this return journey that in the greatly swollen stream, his boat capsized and was carried on the rapidly running current over the weir.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN,

Lecturer to the Herts County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry."

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT.—No. 19.

We are now nearing the end of a very eventful year, and at this time it is well for us all to briefly dwell upon the past, and in doing so, to remember our shortcomings, and resolve to make a tremendous effort to overcome them during the year that is to come, and upon the threshold of which we now stand. Some of us, perhaps, have been a little careless or neglectful in looking after our birds; others, perhaps, have been too liberal with the food, whilst others perhaps, fearful of overfeeding and its consequences, have been a little too cautious and timid; given enough. Very few poultry-keepers, I fancy, will be able to say, after reviewing their year's work, 'that they have not made any one single mistake, or done anything that they would like the chance again, they could not do in a better way. We are all human, and this best of us are liable to make mistakes, but we can profit by such errors, if we endeavour to learn a lesson from them in the future operations, and now is the time to make this resolution. Perhaps you don't get up and feed the birds quite so early in the morning as you ought. If this is so, make up your mind that on the first day of January, 1915, the birds shall receive their breakfast, all hot, as soon as day breaks, and not only on the first day of the New Year, but for every day afterwards. Resolutions are made to be kept, and therefore it is not one bit of use making a resolution and breaking it a few days afterwards. Perhaps you don't yet tried the effects of feeding Colman's Poultry Mustard to your birds? If you haven't, then here is a resolution for you to make, and one that will pay you to make, as a regular use of Colman's Poultry Mustard in the morning mush, at the rate of a heaped-up teaspoonful of mustard, to every six birds, will, in conjunction with good food and management, ensure a full winter's egg-basket, and eggs are now wanted more than ever they were before. And when collecting your eggs you ought to think of our wounded soldiers and sailors, and make a resolution to send as many eggs as you can spare weekly to the nearest depot for the Daily Mail Collection of Eggs for the Wounded," or if you don't know the address of one in your district, send a postcard to the Hon. Sec., Mr R. J. Dartmall, "National Egg Collection, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and you will then be put in touch with the nearest depot. If sent by rail, the carriage of the eggs will cost you nothing, and as the eggs are most urgently needed, it is to be hoped that every poultry-keeper will do his or her share in furnishing the supply. Will you do yours?

(Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Captain Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns by post, but those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown postal order. The name of the writer must in all cases be given).

DURING THE WAR USE COLMAN'S POULTRY MUSTARD AND SECURE MORE EGGS

"The Poultry Keepers' Account Book" and other Illustrations, post free on application to

PRICE LIST: 2lb. ... 2/8 / 4lb. ... 5/7 / 10lb. ... 12/6 / 56lb. ... 21/0 / Carriage Paid.

RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth Herts.

BRITAIN REQUIRES MORE FOOD!

ALLEN'S ROUP CURE, 2/1 Post Paid. Each package contains sufficient to make 12 gallons of medicine. Prevention is cure for this dreaded disease. Prevention is better than cure. Allen's Roup Cure will occasionally give this preparation in the fowls' drinking water, and keep their flocks immune. Full directions are given with each packet. To be obtained only from R. R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES, 1/6 post paid Generally called "The Poulterer-Keepers Friend." Immediately a bird is noticed off colour it should be given a tonic, and cod-liver oil night and morning will soon put it right. For a few days before and after shows they are invaluable. R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

THE MOST PRACTICAL UTILITY POULTRY PAPER.

MONTHLY HINTS ON POULTRY

32 pages, profusely illustrated, art paper, 4d. 2/- per annum, post free. From

THE EDITOR, Sawbridgeworth, HERTS. Write for specimen copy.

Pure-bred Laying Pullets 7/6 each.

We can offer you selected Rhode Island Red, White, Black, and Brown Leghorn, Buff, Black Orpington and Light Sussex Pullets, hatched Pullets as 7s. 6d. each. Unrivalled vigorous Cockerels from 5s. each. Approval.

ALLEN POULTRY Co., Ltd., Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

VERY BAD LEG CURED.

5, Metcalfe Terrace,
Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

Dear Sir,—Some time ago I was suffering from a very bad leg; I could not walk without a stick, and I scarcely dare put my foot to the floor. I underwent a course of your splendid Herbal Treatment, and was cured in six weeks. You can make whatever use you like of this letter.

Yours respectfully,
F. FIELDING.

SKIN SPECIALIST & MEDICAL HERBALIST PROF. CROSSWAITE, 84, KIRKSTALL ROAD, LEEDS. MODERATE CHARGES Advice Free.

£10 REWARD.—This Reward will be paid by Mr. J. Crosswaite to the first person giving information leading to the conviction of a certain unscrupulous person at present calling upon householders in his name, and offering for sale Recipes, Medicines, Pills, Ointments, etc., falsely representing the same to have been prepared by Mr Crosswaite.

Information may be lodged at the nearest Police Station or Detective Office, Town Hall, Leeds, or Mr. J. Crosswaite, 84, Kirkstall Road, Leeds.

GENUINE EAST INDIA RAPE NUTS.

A WELL-TRIED AND RELIABLE

AUTUMN TILLAGE.

M. SCOTT & Co., Seed Crushers, SELBY.

Prompt Delivery can be given to Rail Selby.

Ask your Manure Merchant for particulars.

Teasdale's Teasdale's Chlorodyne

All Men Joining the Army SHOULD HAVE WITH THEM

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

A Safe Protector from common hazardous ailments—Cholerale Diarrhœa, Dysentery, etc.

GIVES INSTANT RELIEF; EASES PAIN.

BLESSING TO HAVE SUCH A GRAND MEDICINE.

Brigadier Fortune, Royal Horse Artillery: "I thank you for the great benefit that Teasdale's Chlorodyne has not only done for myself, but also for many of my comrades to whom I have given it. It has indeed been a blessing to have such a grand medicine in my possession. I have used it in numerous cases of Dysentery, Rheumatism, Pains in the Back, Coughs, and Colds. It acted like a charm in every case."

Teasdale's Chlorodyne

THE MOST VALUABLE PRESENT YOU CAN GIVE TO A FRIEND GOING TO THE FRONT.

7¼., 1/9¼., and Large Bottles, 2/6.

Can be had of PURDY, Crossgate; REINHARD, Halton; and other Chemists; GOODALL, BACKHOUSE & Co., and TAYLOR'S DRUG STORES.

ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Two Vigo fishing vessels navigating without lights came into collision and sank. Nineteen were drowned; the others are missing.

A decree has been promulgated authorising the Italian Government to raise an international loan of £40,000,000 in bonds redeemable in 25 years.

A German prisoner named Curt Vausch, who was responsible for the recent riot at the Douglas alien camp, was sentenced by court-martial to five years' penal servitude.

Mr Thomas Burt, M.P. for Morpeth Borough, and "Father" of the House of Commons, has decided, on account of his age and infirmities, not to contest the next again.

Some time ago, Mr Maurice Masterinck made a statement to the effect that the Germans had mined buildings in Brussels. This statement has now been officially denied by the German authorities.

The Swiss State railways, like most Swiss enterprises, have suffered heavily by the war. Last August and September—the two tourist months—the receipts were only half of the corresponding period of 1913.

M. Ribot, Financial Minister, explaining his statement before the French Budget Commission, said that France will not lack the resolve to carry through to the end unflinchingly, and every tribute to the final victory which all the world foresees.

In the Chancery Division on Friday Mr Justice Joyce dismissed, with costs, an action brought by the trustees of the Ancient Priory Church of Estere seeking to obtain the return of funds which had been distributed among members of a deceased County Court.

Married officers complain that the additional premium for life insurance awaiting upon a large portion of the small sum available to meet the unavoidable extra expenses of active service, with the result that little or nothing is left for the family.

"Drowned himself whilst of unsound mind," was the verdict at a Barnsley inquest into the death of Thomas Davies, twenty-five, a stammer, of Westbourne Terrace, who joined the Territorials on November 17th, left head-quarters the next day on leave, and was found in the canal on Tuesday.

Dr. F. M. Perkin read before the Indian Section of the Royal Society of Arts a paper on the Indian Indigo Industry. He expressed the opinion that the Government should insert a clause in all their contracts where indigo blue is to be employed for dyeing that only natural indigo should be employed.

In Dublin a labourer named Patrick Higgins was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude for throwing a Dublin police sergeant into the River Liffy on Christmas Day of last year, when the latter's troubles were on. The sergeant was wearing a heavy winter outfit at the time, and his escape was described as miraculous.

Two men, William Hay, married, and John Fegley, single, were killed as the result of a disaster which occurred at Frickley Colliery, South Elmsall. They were working at the surface of the pit in the vicinity of a concrete wall, which suddenly collapsed and fell on them. The bodies were terribly crushed.

Russian families are making oblong clothes called portianki. These are supplies which the peasants wear on their feet and around their ankles instead of socks; and soldiers wear them, too. They are about two feet long. You stand in the middle of one, fold it neatly round your foot, and bring it round the ankles as for as it goes.

Sir William Ramsay, in a thesis issued by the Institute of Industry and Commerce, points to the similarity of Germany's methods in trade and war. We are dealing, he says, "scrubulously awakening to the knowledge that German commercial tricks are on a par with their tricks in war; that the whole nation is infected by the microbe of dishonour and dishonesty."

To the 230 employees of the Wath Main Colliery Company who are now serving with the colours the directors of the company have made a Christmas gift in the form of a parcel containing a pair of socks, a pair of mittens, a khaki muffler, and a woollen helmet. In the parcel is also enclosed a card with the season's greetings from both the company and the men.

At Devonport three labourers were engaged in a large boat mooring up battleships alongside the wharf when the suction of the propeller of a ship's tug drew the boat with its occupants under water., Two of the men, Wm. John Beer (51) and Archibald Charles Penrose (26), were not seen again, but the third John Charles Rogers (27), rose to the surface and was saved by life lines.

The making of cinder lighters for use in the trenches is finding employment for many women.

A meeting of the debtors of the Civil Service Bank, held in London, on Monday, agreed to the compulsory winding-up of the company. The estimated liabilities are £60,000.

The Maharajah of Gwalior has presented to the Ring a fleet of 60 motor vehicles for use in the ambulance work for the naval and military forces. The cost was approximately £45,000.

The Danish Government has ordered all Danish importers of corn and foodstuffs from America to deposit with the Government all bills of lading and credit orders, with the view of preventing absolutely any export of food to Germany.

Private F. Nairn, of the Royal Berks. Regiment, at his home at Sandhurst, received a few weeks received in error, answered the postman brought him a letter from the War Office announcing he had been killed at the front.

Captain the Hon. H. L. Bruce, of the Royal Scots, eldest son of Lord Aberdare, and husband of Miss Camille Clifford, the former actress, has been killed at the front. Their only child, a daughter, died five days after birth in 1909.

The Treasury have requested bankers, in view of the approaching withdrawal from circulation of £1 currency notes of the value of 10s., to instruct their customers that such notes should not be paid out to customers, but should be sent in to the Bank of England.

A fatal motor-car accident occurred at Bermingham on Saturday. A man named Pearson, of Smethwick, was driving his motor along the Holyhead Road towards his home when the car ran into a large lamp-post in the centre of the thoroughfare. The father was killed.

The Chairman of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, Mr H. W. Sambridge, at Monday's meeting said the most usual way being paid in wages in the city at the present time than had ever been the case before, and, with a few exceptions, trade was very good.

Mr. A. O. Jones, for many years the brilliant captain of the Notts County Cricket Club, died on Monday at Dunstable. He had been in failing health for a long time, the origin of various troubles from which he had suffered being the pneumonia which prostrated him on the occasion of his visit to Australia in 1902.

Five lions broke loose in the 86th Street Theatre, New York, during the performance on Friday, causing a panic among the audience. A dozen policemen opened fire on the animals and succeeded in killing them. The lions then attacked the police, injuring two, but were finally rounded-up. One was killed and the others were recaptured.

On Friday afternoon Mr Samuel Taylor, 70 years of age, was found by his brother's house, 1 Laurel Cottage, Stainland, with his throat cut. His died before medical aid could be summoned. Mr Taylor was senior partner in the firm of H. Taylor and Co. (Limited), woollen manufacturers, Dog Lane Mills, Stainland, and it is a sad fact that in less than three months' time three brothers have passed away.

Replying to a communication from the secretary of the Huddersfield Branch of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association, the Home Office states that the circular issued by the Home Office on behalf of the War Office has been altogether misunderstood. It is not, and never has been, proposed to establish any system of "police supervision" over the wives and dependents of soldiers and sailors.

An anti-German riot took place at Sunderland on Saturday night. It was due to the intense resentment felt at the bombardment of Hartlepool and the sinking of ex-Consul Ahlers. A crowd, 2,000 strong, attacked German pork butchers' shops in all parts of the town. Windows were smashed and the contents scattered, and the occupants had to flee. No one was hurt and the police were unable to effect arrests owing to the size and demeanour of the crowd, which was largely composed of pitmen.

The appeal of N. E. H. Ahlers, formerly German Consul at Sunderland, against the sentence of six months' imprisonment imposed on him at the Durham Assizes on a charge of high treason, was heard on Friday by the Court of Criminal Appeal. Appellant said he was not aware, when he assisted Germans to leave this country to join the German army, that war had been declared with Germany. The Lord Chief Justice laid stress on the fact that at the trial Mr Justice Sheardman did not put to the jury in the way that he ought to have done the question as to the prisoner's intention, and on this ground the appeal was allowed and conviction quashed.

OULTON AND WOODLESFORD ROLL OF HONOUR.

EIGHTY-FIVE MEN SERVING THE COUNTRY.

The following is a list of the names of the men of Oulton and Woodlesford who are now serving with His Majesty's Forces:—

J. Abbey, Midland Yard, Oulton, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.; Jas. Atkinson, Oakdene Yard, Woodlesford, York. and Lanc. Regt.; and W. Atha, Primrose Yard, Oulton, 7th Reserve Batt., W. Yorks.

W. Berry, Quarry Hill, Oulton, Leeds City Pals' Batt.; A. Benson, Church Street, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt., K.O.Y.L.I.; E. Britton, The Hollins, Oulton, 19th West Yorks.; A. Britton, The Hollins, Oulton, Border Regt.; J. Buck, Three Horse Shoes Inn, Oulton, R.F.A.; W. Blacker, Adelaide Grove, Woodlesford, West Yorks. (active service); H. Birkin, Pottery Hill, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt., K.O.Y.L.I.; P.B. Brumhill, 11, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, 4th West Yorks.; S. Barrott, Eshald Lane, Woodlesford, King's Royal Rifles; and F. Beevors, Alma Street, Woodlesford, R.A.M.C.

W. Carrington, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, York and Lanc. Regt.; T. Coombs, Roberts Street, New Woodlesford, Army Service Corps; and E. A. Coope, Post Office, Oulton, 7th Reserve Batt., West Yorks.

E. Dobson, 8, Claremont Street, Oulton, Scots' Guards; C. Daniels, 4, Leonard Street, Woodlesford; T. Dalton, 61, Church Street, Woodlesford, 8th Reserve, West Yorks.; M. Doulton, Church Street, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt., K.O.Y.L.I.; and H. Davenport. The Elms, Oulton, Second-Lieutenant, West Yorks.

T. Everitt, Calverley Road, Oulton, P.W.O., West Yorks. (active service).

F. Flockton, Bentley Square, Oulton, Leeds City Pals' Batt.; J. Flockton, The Lock, Woodlesford, 8th Batt. West Yorks.; and G. W. Franks, Claremont Street, Oulton, Royal Engineers.

W. Hurland, Quarry Hill, Oulton, K.O.Y.L.I.; H. Hutchinson, St. John's Yard, Oulton, 8th West Yorks.; W. Hutchinson, Farrer Lane, Oulton, R.A.M.C. (active service); A. Hines, Powell Street, New Woodlesford, P.W.O., West Yorks.; J. Hunt, Eshald Lane, Woodlesford, Scots Guards; H. Hobkinson, Church Street, Woodlesford, Army Service Corps; Jas. Hughes, Station Road, Woodlesford, York and Lancaster Regt.; J. Higgins, Airedale Terrace, Woodlesford, Naval Brigade; W. Halstead, Claremont Terrace, Oulton, 4th West Yorks.; J. Hudson, Farrer Lane, Oulton, K.O.Y.L.I.; H. Hughes, New Woodlesford, Miners' Batt., K.O.Y.L.I.; and J. Hawkins, Oulton, 7th Reserve Batt. West Yorks.

J. W. Iveson, Oakdeyle Yard, Woodlesford; and E. Irvin, The Vicarage, Woodlesford, Second-Lieutenant, York and Lancaster Regt.

W. Jowsey, 6, Claremont Street, New Woodlesford, R.F.A. (active service); H. Jewitt, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, R.E.; A. Jewitt, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, H.M.S. "Lion" (active service); J. E. Jackson, Mayfield, Woodlesford, R.F.A.; E. Joyner, Quarry Hill, Oulton, K.O.Y.L.I.; T. Jones, Midland Street, Oulton, Miners' Batt, K.O.Y.L.I.; and A. Jackson, 7, Airedale Grove, Woodlesford, R.G.A.

J. Kellghan, Farrer Lane, Oulton, R.R. Hussars; and J. Kirby, Beecroft Yard, Woodlesford, York and Lancaster Regt.

R. McCrome, Church Street, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.; W. Madeley, Aberford Road, Woodlesford, R.A.M.C.; J. W. Moore, Aberford Road, Oulton, King's Royal Rifles; G. T. Moss, Airedale Road, Woodlesford, Yorks. Dragoons; F. Mitchell, 6, Kitchener Street, Woodlesford; W. Milner, 9, Quarry Hill, Oulton; R. Metcalf, The Locks, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.; H. Mackman, Station Lane, Woodlesford, R.F.A. (active service); and N. Metcalf, Carlton House, Oulton, K.O.Y.L.I.

A. Nettleton, St. John's Yard, Oulton, 7th Batt. West Yorks.; P. Nettleton, St. John's Yard, Oulton, Leeds City Pals' Batt.; and F. Nicholson, Waterhaigh Cottage, Oulton, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.

J. Pennington, 7, Powell Street, New Woodlesford, R.F.A.; W. Pennington, Aberford Road, New Woodlesford, R.E.; and A. Parsons, Powell Street, New Woodlesford, K.O.Y.L.I.

C. Scurrah, Quarry Hill, Oulton, King's Royal Rifles; T. A. Stead, New Row, Oulton, King's Royal Rifles; H. Stead, Quarry Hill, Oulton, K.O.Y.L.I.; P. Sykes, Cross Leonard Street, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.; J. Studd, The Hollins, Oulton, York and Lancaster Regt.; J. Stokes, Oakdene Yard, Woodlesford, R.A.M.C.; and C. Simpson, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, K.O.Y.L.I.

J. W. Taylor, Primrose Yard, Oulton, H.M.S "Hindustan" (active service); R. Taylor, Church Street, Woodlesford, H.M.S. "Savage" (active service); A. Tomlinson, White Street, Woodlesford, R.A.M.C. (active service); and H. Tiffany, 5, Beecroft Yard, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.

W. Woodhall, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, 7th Dragoon Guards; C. Whitehead, Quarry Hill, Oulton, 4th West Yorks.; H. Williams, Claremont Street, Oulton, P.W.O., West Yorks.; R. Whitsgeth, Oulton Hall, Army Service Corps; W. Whitley, Eshald Place, Woodlesford, K.O.Y.L.I.; E. Williams, Midland Street, Oulton, R.A.M.C.; E. E. Webster, Oakdene Yard, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.; A. Ward, Bentley Square, Oulton, K.O.Y.L.I. (active service); M. Westmoreland, Railway Garages, Woodlesford, Coldstream Guards; W. Wild, Pottery Hill, Woodlesford, West Yorks.; and Alf. Wild, Pottery Hill, Woodlesford, Miners' Batt. K.O.Y.L.I.

This list is as complete as possible, but should any names have been inadvertently missed, I should be pleased to be advised of the same.—Yours, etc.,

P. C. Hudgins, Hon. Sec.
Woodlesford, December 22nd, 1914.

LEEDS "PALS" ON HOLIDAY.

The first contingent of the Leeds City Battalion (Pals'), numbering about 250 men (representing four companies), arrived in Leeds from the Colsterdale camp on Tuesday on Christmas leave. They were met at the station by a large number of relatives and friends.

They will remain in Leeds until Saturday, but before returning to camp they will take part in a parade in the city, along with the second contingent of "Pals," who leave Colsterdale on Saturday morning. The third contingent will leave for Leeds on the 30th, and the fourth on January 3rd.

The members of the Barkston Ash Teachers' Association have sent £8 17s. 6d. on their third monthly contribution to Sir John Horsfall's War Relief Distress Committee.

A sum of 12s., proceeds of a dart and domino handicap at the Junction Hotel, Church Fenton, per Mr F. Grason, has been sent to Leeds Infirmary.

CONCERT.—An interesting concert was given by the children of Barkston Ash R.C. School on Saturday. A crowded audience showed great appreciation of the various items, the chief of which were Morris dances, old folk songs, pretty fairy plays, and a patriotic tableau. All the children took their parts well, having evidently been well prepared. At the end of the entertainment prizes (provided by Mr and Miss Maxwell-Stuart) were presented to those children who had (strictly) best during the year by Miss Maxwell-Stuart. The Rev. Father Brey gave a short speech, in which he praised both teachers and children for their work.

GARFORTH ROLL OF HONOUR.

The following is a list of names of men, not included in previous published lists, who have joined His Majesty's Forces for active service:—

Pte. Dickinson, Thomas, 10th Bat. K.O.Y.L.I., 12161.

Pte. Hill, Fred, C Company, K.O.Y.L.I., 8845.

Pte. Shaw, George Albert, and W.Y. (Leeds Bantams).

Driver Ward, Bert, C Company, 5th W.Y., 1953.

Pte. Matthews, Gledhill, R.F.A.

This supplementary list brings up the total of men who have answered their country's call, resident in the parish to 131, or 33 per thousand of the population. This number does not include an additional 52 workers at the Garforth Collieries non-resident in the township. These figures will bear a favourable comparison with any similar place in the West Riding of Yorkshire.

WM. GEO. BOSHER,
Hon. Sec., Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association, Garforth Branch.

WEST RIDING DISTRESS COMMITTEE—GARFORTH SUB-COMMITTEE.

	£	s.	d.
Amount of subscriptions previously acknowledged	239	7	5
Underground workmen, boys, and screenmen, Sisters and Isabella Pits, per Mr C. H. Hylden (14th contribution)	6	15	1
Underground workmen, boys, and screenmen, Treath Pit, per Mr E. W. Ogden (5th contribution)	2	1	8
Total subscriptions to date	£248	4	2

WM. GEO. BOSHER, Hon. Sec. and Treas.
Dec. 26th, 1914.

AMUSEMENTS.

EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week "Miss Paris in London," one of the most successful of the recent revues, is the chief attraction. It has very little of the dulness that so many revues possess, and contains some bright numbers, thanks largely to the skill of the principal artistes. Miss Olive Plant makes a very engaging Miss Paris; and Miss Norah Gay, as Miss London, proves herself a pleasing songstress, both in voice and manner. The piece would lose much of its attractiveness without the humour of Mr Ernie Sefton, who, in the role of the detective, is at times very funny. The company is an excellent one, and includes a bevy of charming maidens, some of whom appear to advantage as bathing beauties in the last scene, where they dive into a real tank of water. The ordinary turns on the bill are Lee and Kingston, comedy duo; Arthur Woodville, comedian and dancer; and the Chrisdie Duo, comedy dancing eccentrics.

Mr Horace Goldin, presenting the greatest magical act of this or any day, will head the programme arranged by Mr Frank Allen for the Empire Theatre, Leeds, next week. There is little difficulty in substantiating the high claims of "The Royal Illusionist." Magical acts, for which a company of thirty-five, besides a chorus of Oriental maids, a living tiger or two, and such similar trifles form only part of the accessories, can hardly be duplicated. Mr Goldin's entertainment, in three parts, with its wonderful mystifies and almost uncanny illusions, is an entertainment not to be missed.

The Three Ernests present a bouncing act which is certainly the best of its kind, and full of all sorts of comedy touches to enlighten its excellent acrobatics. Not the least funny accessory of this wonderful show is a sort of super-watchdog of some astonishing breed unknown. Belle Davis and her Cracker Jacks are responsible for much laughter, won chiefly by the most astonishing coon dancing, to which piccaninnies take, apparently, as naturally as ducks to water. The remainder of a particularly strong programme includes Jack Lorimer, the popular "Harlan Laddie"; Wilfred Burnaud, a clever mimic; and the Keppels, high-class vocalists.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week Mr George Carney presents "The Right Prince." In it a real pugilist figures, and his name is Herbert Synott, and he is described as Australia's premier heavyweight. Of course, his presence gives the excuse for a stage fight. Sam Harris, as a grotesque Jewish parent, supplies the chief element of fun in the piece, and he indulges in the usual orgy of verbal misprononciations. The Wyse Brothers seek to emulate "Pat and Orpheus" in a musical performance, slightly tinged with humour, and sentimental ballads are exceptionally well sung by Senhor Jose de Moraes. There is some genuine conjuring by Harry Marcello, and an amusing conjuring skit by Jaffa, who shows how it is done. Others in the bill are Win and Windle, and Katie Butler.

Next week at the Hippodrome Margaret Moffat and Nat. D. Ayer will figure in a little entertainment, entitled "Not (un) likely," and the Royal English violinists, Elsie Southgate, S.S.R.A.M., whose £1,500 Guanerius violin was presented to her when playing before the Shah of Persia, will be one of the artists. Others billed to appear are the Potuski Bros., in "Recruiting"; "Venetia," a miniature comic opera; Greta Mack, Scotland's soprano, in selected songs; Bobbie Pegler, the mimetic policeman; and the Five Black Diamonds, coloured entertainers.

FOR OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.—The following comforts have been sent this week for the soldiers and sailors from the members and candidates of the Aberford Girls' Friendly Society:—11 body belts, 2 doz. pairs of socks, 3 helmets, 9 mufflers, 3 pairs of mittens, and 1 pair of cuffs for the soldiers, and for the sailors 12 blue mufflers and 2 pairs of mittens.

PROPOSED NEW SCHOOL.—At a meeting of the West Riding Education Committee on Tuesday the Elementary Education Sub-Committee recommended that a new school, with accommodation for 200, be provided at Barwick, the estimated cost being £3,500. This was to replace the present National School. Plans for improvements at the present school were, however, sent in by the Rector, and it was decided that the sub-committee's recommendation remain in abeyance for two months. If the contract for the work of alteration and improvement at the National School is let within that time it is probable that the recommendation as to the new school will be withdrawn.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK
PERMANENT
BUILDING SOCIETY
96, ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street), Leeds.
OPEN DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1. Saturday Evenings, 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
Prospectus on Application. Jno. Kelly, President.
Tel. No. 253. Wm. Maude, Manager & Secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE

GARFORTH AND RATES.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—It is rather unfortunate that a number of people should be placed in circumstances that will not allow the practice of systematic saving or spending. The general impression, I fear, is that the mining classes in particular are getting week by week wages that enable them to meet all expenses connected with their households, and consequently they have no excuse (reasonable) for not paying their district rates.

Your last week's issue contained a suggestion that people could deposit a certain sum in a savings bank each week, wherewith to pay the district rate when it becomes due.

This suggestion would be practicable providing the wages were adequate to meet the domestic requirements each week, but as this is not so in hundreds of cases the system you advocate is not possible without depriving the human organism of some essential nourishment.—Yours, etc.,

A RATEPAYER.

CHURCH FENTON SEWAGE AND WATER SUPPLY.

To the Editor.

Sir,—In reply to "Up-to-Date's" letter of last week, I am very sorry to see he has not disclosed his identity. Personally, I think any one with such good intentions is a great loss to a community which is so dark and down in the mire as we are at Church Fenton. He seems to want to know if I am satisfied with my position here. I may tell him, so far as human nature can be satisfied, I am. The first man I find quite satisfied I shall endeavour to the utmost of my ability to have him put in a glass case and properly sealed up for exhibition to future generations. If "Up-to-Date" is so very desirous of improving our village why can't he come out of his shell and show us the way? I am rather afraid he has some personal motive. There are one or two questions I should like to ask him. Does he know where all our sewage has to go to and the low level we stand at? If we adopt his water scheme will the authorities lay pipes and mains to every pasture in the parish so as to prevent farmers having to find water in extraordinarily dry summers? Does he think the surveyor, sanitary inspector, and District Council are going to pay for all his pet schemes, and does he know whether Church Fenton does not stand very well in the averages regarding death?

As far as his insinuation goes about the reporting anything in Church Fenton regarding any sanitary matter, it is a confounded lie, not that I should be frightened to do so if I thought fit, but I take into consideration the difficulty we are placed in regarding the housing question here.

Regarding my policy of "waiting and seeing," and finding the place thirty years hence as it is now or worse, I can only tell him if he will try to do anything for the benefit of the village I have no doubt he will find plenty to help him, but a man who fights behind a screen, in my opinion, is quite as bad as Kaiser Bill.—Yours, etc.,

A DRIGHTON.

The Croft, Church Fenton, Dec. 22nd, 1914.

THE RUSSIAN CHURCH—LECTURE BY VICAR OF MANSTON.

(To the Editor.)

Sir,—I should like to thank you for your complete and careful report of my lecture on the "Russian character and the Russian Church." At the same time, I would point out two inaccuracies in the report that might be misleading.

I did not say that the Church of England regards the Holy Orthodox Church as one of the three great branches of the Spiritual Body of Christ. I said, of the "Holy Catholic Church of Christ."

I did not say that the Russian Church "took Communion literally," I said in connection with the custom of communicating infants that the Russian Church read a universal application into our Lord's words—"Except ye eat the Flesh of the Son of Man and drink His Blood ye have no life in you."

I exonerate the reporter from all blame. The inaccuracies were probably due to the pace with which I had to deal with a big subject in a short time.—Yours, etc.,

HERBERT H. MALLESON.

Manston Vicarage, Crossgates, Dec. 19th, 1914.

THE INCREASED BEER DUTY.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—At a meeting of the Allied Brewery Traders' Association, North of England Section, held on Thursday, the 17th December, the following resolution was passed:—

That this meeting of the North of England Section of the Allied Brewery Traders' Association, consisting of 743 members, representing over eighty industries and trades supplying the raw materials and appliances used in brewing, while recognising the abnormal financial requirements of the nation, views with alarm the operation of the increased beer duty, which the Chancellor of the Exchequer estimates will produce the enormous sum of £20,000,000 per year.

By such reduction widespread loss of capital and unemployment has already been caused in agricultural, manufacturing, and productive industries supplying goods to brewers, and as the new taxation has undoubtedly resulted in much greater loss than the Chancellor's estimate allowed for, notwithstanding his statement that "the Government propose to levy no taxes that will interfere with any productive business," this meeting invites the assistance of members of the Association with a view to presenting a full statement of their case to the Chancellor to induce him to entertain a considerable reduction of the tax.—Yours, etc.,

E. H. WEAY, Hon. Sec.

Manchester, Dec. 19th, 1914.

Correspondence will be found on other page.

"FANCIES OF WOUNDED MEN."

Gunner Corrigan, Royal Field Artillery, in a letter to his sister at Camden Town, says:—

"You would be surprised at the strange fancies that come to some of the men wounded in the fighting. One young chap of the Irish Fusiliers, who was delirious, was asked what he would like, and answered, 'buttermilk.' They couldn't get it, of course, so they got some sour sweet milk instead, and gave it him.

"He drank a little, but didn't like it. 'It's not nearly so nice as they have at home,' he said, and then he became more delirious than ever. He died very soon after, but he had kept calling for buttermilk. It was heart-breaking to those who were around, because they could do nothing for the young chap.

"One other chap of the artillery kept asking for a photograph of his sweetheart. We went through his pockets, but it was not to be found, so he must have lost it when he was lying out on the field.

"One of our men went out under fire to the spot where the wounded man had been found, to look for it, but wasn't successful, though he risked his life in his search. The end of that poor fellow was miserable because he had lost the photograph. I promised her I would keep it to the last,' was what he kept saying in a mournful tone up till the moment he died.

"One strange case was that of a man of the —th Lancers. His leg had been taken off in hospital, and every day thereafter he kept demanding that it should be brought back and replaced. Nothing would console him for his lost leg, and he died a week later still calling for it."

LOCAL FOOTBALL CLUBS AND THE WEST RIDING CUP.

A meeting of the Cup Committee of the West Riding County Football Association was held on Tuesday night at the Grand Central Hotel, Leeds, Mr J. Conner presiding.

The draw for the West Riding Cup Competition was made as follows:—

First Round.

(To be played on January 2nd).

Calverley v. Woodhouse Britannia. Referee, G. Myers, Bradford.

New Wortley Gasworks, a bye.

Fryston Colliery v. Great Preston White Rose. Referee, W. Lupton, Rothwell.

Altofts Albion, a bye.

Rothwell White Rose v. Leeds Churchville. Referee, J. Wilson, Batley.

Leeds Parish Church, a bye.

Clarence Iron and Steel Works v. Rothwell Parish Church. Referee, R. W. Smithels, Horsforth.

Cleckheaton v. Idle. Referee, A. Coward, Bradford.

Bradford City Old Boys v. Sunfield Rovers. Referee, J. Wilson, Batley.

Second Round (February 6th).

Calverley or Woodhouse Britannia v. New Wortley Gasworks. Referee, W. Lever, Bradford.

Fryston Colliery or Great Preston White Rose v. Altofts Albion. Referee, E. Pullan, Leeds.

Rothwell White Rose or Leeds Churchville v. Clarence Iron and Steel Works or Rothwell Parish Church. Referee, G. H. Milburn, Leeds.

Cleckheaton or Idle v. Bradford City Old Boys or Sunfield Rovers. Referee, H. H. Hartley, Bradford.

Huddersfield Town v. Hebden Bridge. Referee, A. Deeton, Rothwell.

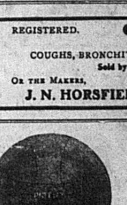
Goole Town v. Halifax Town. Referee, G. H. Crippe, Leeds.

Bwes: Castleford Town and Heckmondwike.

Misses Ryder, Beacon Hill, Scarcroft, have given £2 to the Yorkshire Hussars' Clothing and Comforts Fund.

Mr Gill, the foreman road roller driver to the Wetherby Rural District Council, has had to have his right leg amputated just below the knee.

FOR THE BELGIAN RELIEF FUND.—A sale of work was held on Saturday at the Institute, Burwick, in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund. Mr J. Harrison (Burwick), in a few appropriate words, asked Mrs Childe (Postarton Hall) to open the sale of work. Mrs Childe, after making reference to the trials the Belgians had gone through during the present crisis, said she had great pleasure in declaring the sale of work open and hoped this would not be the only occasion upon which she would be called upon to do so pleasing a duty. Mr Harrison proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs Childe. Mr H. R. Clarke seconded the proposition, and it was heartily passed. The National Anthems of the Allies were excellently sung by a number of children. The following were the stallholders:—Fancy work and general—Mrs J. T. Collett and Mrs W. G. Dyson. Fancy paper stall—Miss Nellie Barker and Miss Marion Helm. Children's stall—Miss Peggie Collett and Miss Gertrude Harrison. Refreshment stall—Miss Gladys Gilliam. Refreshment stall—Mrs J. E. Davies, Mrs A. J. Drury, Mrs J. Harrison, and the Misses Milner. Afterwards a successful social and dance was held. The following musical programme was gone through:—Pianoforte solo, Miss A. Milner; song, "Dear Irish Eyes," Mrs A. J. Drury; song, "Somewhere a voice is calling," Mrs J. Drake; song, "Little grey home in the West," Miss Helm; song, "Zuyder Zee," Mrs J. E. Davies; song, "Children Asleep," Miss A. Milner. Dancing was merrily engaged in, and a very enjoyable time was spent. The accompanists were Mrs J. E. Davies, Miss Millicent Helm, Miss A. Milner, and Mr F. Pullan. The M.C. was Mr H. R. Clarke. The total proceeds of the sale of work and social were £14 12s. 3½d.



YOUR WEDDING
Should BE MADE whether it is MOTOR or CARRIAGE. We are the most skilled of and the most thought of in the City. And, should you require it, our charges. BUCKTON, Chapel Lane (foot of Cookridge Street). Tele. 1877 Central.
"WE NEVER SLEEP."

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
AUTUMN FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1940. Huddersfield: " 1809. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten.
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW OFFERING
THE BEST VALUE IN YORKSHIRE
— IN —
BOOTS & SHOES for Present Wear.
We are SPECIALISTS IN "FOOTWEAR for the COUNTRY."
Large Variety of Leggings, Gaiters, Slippers, & Dress Shoes.
FARMERS' BOOTS. NAVVIES' BOOTS. PIT BOOTS.
BOOTS THAT WILL TURN THE WET
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared.
BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Stores,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
OR THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Swout Street, LEEDS.

HARRY HAYLEY,
Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,
12, King Edward St., LEEDS
Telephone 58,
HAS NOW IN STOCK A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF
Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,
ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.
HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.
A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.
Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.
FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.
STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.
BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

WEST RIDING COUNTY LIBRARY 509,834 D LAST COPY